Woman Heads 38-member Crew Aboard 13-car Shanghai Train

ON THE SHANGHAI-PEKING EXPRESS, China (Reuter) — "Our aim is to serve the people wholeheartedly and never for a moment to divorce ourselves from the masses . . ."

Shanghai's North Station falls behind, and the sound of the stirring refrain, Sailing the Seas Depends on the Helmsman, played over loudspeakers in China as a farewell to departing train travellers, fades.

Chinese on the platform, seeing off relatives and friends, and some choking back tears, sink into the distance. In a country where few people show their emotions, it comes as a surprise to see weeping on station platforms and at air terminals.

The disembodied voice continues: "The train crew is determined to learn from the workers, soldiers and peasants who are our passengers. Let us unite to win still greater victories along Chairman Mao's revolutionary line. . . ."

Within the compartment, known as "soft" class, there's an atmosphere of genteel middle-class comfort of the type familiar in Europe about 1900. There are potted plants and antimacassars, a discreet table lamp and the inevitable porcelain cup and little saucers of green tea.

Outside, the industrial suburbs and crowded streets of the world's biggest city fall away, replaced by a landscape of open vegetable fields and rice paddies.

Studded here and there are the unsightly concrete pillboxes with which the Nationalists vainly tried to stop the advance of the triumphant Communist armies on Shanghai in 1949.

The 24-hour trip, which costs $35 for the 950-mile journey, is made at the leisurely speed of 45 miles an hour. This allows for stops en route at the major cities of Soochow, Wuxih, Nanking, Pangpu, Chinan and Tientsin, besides numerous smaller towns.

"The voice" now has gone on to more practical matters, such as where passengers can buy cigarettes and candy, obtain free boiling water in huge vacuum flasks, borrow needle and thread for impromptu clothes repairs and purchase meal coupons.

There are also exhortations to help the young, detailed attendants—one in each carriage—keep the train neat and tidy.

As a waiter bearing a dog-eared but varied menu comes from the dining car to the compartments to discuss matters en route for the foreign guest, the loudspeaker switches to revolutionary opera.

The experienced traveller by train in China knows, of necessity, that there is a hard - to - find witch situated under the small reading table in the compartment to turn off the wall, if he wishes.

The meal is taken in solitude in an empty dining car unless the foreign traveller insists by using the jargon of Communist China as a weapon to press his point—that he wishes to "integrate" with the bread masses.

The food, as everywhere in China, is excellent, probably unrivalled in railway restaurant cars anywhere else in the world.

Back in the compartment which, though it has four berths, a foreigner usually has to himself, the traveller receives a visit from Mrs. Yang Chiao-di, the 36-year-old crew chief on the express, identifiable by her green armband, who is solicitous as to his comfort.

Mrs. Yang, a native of Shanghai, has a model Chinese family of two children, —and she works three days on, three off. While she is travelling, her husband looks after the children, aged 10 and 12.

As junks sail placidly by on the ancient but still much-used Grand canal, described by Marco Polo 800 years ago, Mrs. Yang details her responsibility as chief of the 38-member crew on the 13-carriage train.

Only the driver and his two mates in their enormous steam engine, which would evoke happy memories of pre-diesel days in the minds of veteran train spotters in Western countries, operate independently.

Included in the crew is a uniformed policeman — "We still have class enemies in our society," one Chinese explained—carriage attendants, luggage men and even the "responsible person in charge of boiling water."

Blooming Error

SHREWSBURY, England (CP) — Posters for a town flower show promised a special Beer and Hooey section but thirsty visitors discovered that the lure was a printer's error. Instead of foaming brew, they found a display of swarming bees.

Fish Farmers

Wurst Worst Way to Diet

BONN, Germany (AP) — For Germans trying to lose weight, the wurst is yet to come.

Doctors and health experts plied with them, but Germans find themselves unable to cool their ardor for their favorite food—the sausage.

It often packs more than 70 per cent fat, the health ministry says. But who listens to the health ministry?

"Diet sausages" have been brought out, to accompany "diet beers." Neither has got far.

Germany has 1,456 kinds of sausage, and everyone has his favorite kind.

King Frederick the Great of Prussia liked his mettwurst, a ground pork sausage. It comes from northern Germany and is spiced with paprika, pepper, nutmeg and ginger, with red wine sometimes thrown in for good measure.

In Bavaria, Berlin and the north, a popular delicacy is blutwurst, blood sausage. It's a dark red as its namesake and dotted with white specks of fat.

Another kind of sausage, liverwurst, was prescribed for anemic children by German doctors in the middle ages. For some reason, possession of a liverwurst also was a traditional sign of prosperity.

One type of smoked sausage gets a regal change of name when paprika is added to its other spices.

It starts out as jagdwurst, hunt sausage; and its ingredients are lean pork, young beef, bacon, marjoram, nutmeg, ground carnway seed and peppered leeks.

Operator of Small Sawmill Finds Timber Supply Lags

CHEPSTOW, Ont. (CP) — Lorne Bester says he probably is working himself out of a job but he goes at it as if he wants that day to arrive as soon as possible.

Mr. Bester works 14 hours a day, six days a week at a small sawmill he inherited from his father near this town, about 30 miles south of Owen Sound.

He says the dozen or so mills spotted on the rolling hills of southern Bruce County are too many for the amount of available timber.

Verdun Flak, a forester with the Ontario ministry of natural resources in Owen Sound, says woodlots in southern Bruce and Grey counties probably have not increased since the last survey in 1953.

At that time there were 140,000 acres of tree cover in lower Bruce County out of 3 total land area of 720,000 acres. In neighboring Grey County it was 200,000 acres of woodlots in a total of about 1.1 million acres.

A new survey is expected which Mr. Fisk forecasts will show a decrease in the amount of quality timber.

The ministry has had a voluntary reforestation program since 1958. Upon request by a landowner, the ministry will plant new trees or mark the mature trees for cutting.

Mr. Fisk says the available woodlots can sustain the sawmill and logging operations if operator do not tear out the entire bush.

Most land in the area is owned by beef farmers who use woodlots mainly to provide shelter for cattle. Mr. Fisk says many farmers lease or all their woodlots to logging operators or furniture factories in the area.

"The sawmill operators are our main problem," says Mr. Fisk. "Only recently have some of the operators paid any attention to our program."

Mr. Bester, whose father started the sawmill 25 years ago, has been operating the mill since 1969.

During the summer he and five employees trim the hard and soft maples, white ash, beech, red oak and cherry trees into lumber. The sawdust is sold to farmers for bedding for animals. The branches are sold for firewood.

The timber he cuts, about 200,000 board feet a year, goes to make furniture. Most mills in the area deal with local furniture-makers, but Mr. Bester ships the bulk of his lumber to New York state.

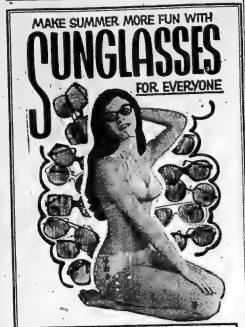
During the winter he moves into the bush—to the 400 acres he owns and other lands he leases from farmers—to cut a supply of timber for the mill.

Mr. Bester says he does not replant because he cuts only mature trees and the woodlots reseed themselves.

He says several mill mill operator were forced out of business in 1969, not because of a lack of timber but from general economic conditions.

Furniture manufacturing is one of the industries most sensitive to economic conditions, he says. If the economy drag, one of the first purchases put off by a household is furniture.

But now, with a buoyant economy, people appear to be buying furniture and he is cutting lumber 12 to 14 hours a day and making an average of about 3,300 per 1,000 board feet.



To guarantee the future of the mills, he says, "something should be done" to make sure the supply of timber is not exhausted.

Polish State Opera To Give German Work

WARSAW (CP) — The Polish state opera house will stage German opera this fall.Wagner's Tannhauser—for the first time since the Second World War.

Zdzislaw Sliwnski, director of the opera house, said in an interview it was not lack of appreciation for the German opera repertoire that has prevented performance of German works for almost 30 years.

But the Polish people were so oppressed by the German occupation and occupation, and had so much Wagner forced upon them in those days of the Second World War, that no audience would have turned out to hear German opera.

Jose's love for her, was sung in Polish translation, in line with the policy of the opera house. Its practice is to use up-to-date translations of all its works, though occasionally a foreign star will sang a role in his or her own language, or in the original Italian or French, while the rest of the cast sings in Polish.

During this spring's European tour by the National Arts Centre Orchestra of Canada, many of the visiting musicians spent a night off at a performance of Bizet's Carmen in the rebuilt opera house.

It was levelled during the war, except for its stone colonaded facade, which was preserved while the inside of the opera house was rebuilt in modern fashion.

Carmen, the story of a Spanish tobacco factory worker's love for the toreador, Escamillo, and the young officer Don Jose's love for her, was sung in Polish to the original music.

The set was remarkable, both for its size on the cavernous stage and for its conception. It appeared to the Canadians as a middle European impression of Spain, influenced by the hard work philosophy of a people's state.

The Act II Bohemian quarter of Seville was set in the Warsaw production in what might have been a building excavation, and the mountain pass scene in Act III, during which the cards foretell of Carmen's death, was played on and between the wooden trestles of a wrecked railway bridge.

The set, in a way, represented the prodigious effort that went into rebuilding opera in Warsaw after the war.

Sliwinski, who has been director of the opera for 20 years, said the great theatre was only rebuilt in 1965. It now runs around the year except for six weeks in July and August when vacations are taken and the house is closed for refurbishing.

It is one of the biggest in Europe, employing 1,500,450 artists, 450 technicians and 600 administrators and clerks. Included in the total are 50 soloists, 140 musicians, and a ballet corps of 125, serving the 2,00 seat main theatre and a 250-se studio.

The repertoire runs from th classical to the avant-garde.

One-fifth of the opera's budg comes from ticket sales, a four-fifths is a direct state sub dy. The highest priced ticket 70 zloty, equivalent to $2 at t official rate of exchange or on the black market. Prices r down to 20 zlotys, and tick are half-priced for young p ple.

Customs Preclearance Deadline Is Extended

OTTAWA (CP) — Prospects of an early settlement in air talks with the United States have prompted the government to extend the deadline on closing the U.S. customs preclearance program in Canada, Transport Minister Jean Marchand said Tuesday.

He said in a news release the deadline will be extended to Sept. 30 from July 29.

The minister said the extension was granted to "allow time in July and early August to finalize the complex air-route negotiations with the U.S."

Customs preclearance of passengers bound for U.S. centres is one of a number of issues in the discussions which have been underway more than three years.

Mr. Marchand announced April 26 that the preclearance system would be eliminated because it favored U.S. airlines and hampered Air Canada.

He said U.S. airlines have told congressional hearings that "preclearance represents a net benefit for their airlines of roughly $13 million over their Canadian competitors."

U.S. authorities have said that if Canada wants new air routes to American cities for Canadian airlines, Ottawa will have to continue customs preclearance.

CUPE and CLC Seek To Thresh Out Dispute

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's largest all-Canadian union and the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) are to meet today to thresh out a dispute that could, if unresolved, lead to a major split in the labor movement.

The 165,000-member Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE), has threatened to withhold its annual per capita payments of $300,000 to the congress unless a satisfactory agreement is reached over affiliation of provincial public servants.

Failure to pay the per capita fees for three months would lead to automatic suspension of the union from the CLC-sponsoring some officials see as a "very real possibility."

The issue to be resolved is whether the union was granted exclusive jurisdiction over affiliation of the provincial employees.

CUPE officials say they were granted jurisdiction by the congress over all provincial public employees some years ago. Most of the union's members are employed by hospitals, municipalities and school boards but there are some provincial workers in its ranks.

The conflict arose as some groups of provincial public servants, notably from Alberta, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland, made moves to affiliate with the congress as individual unions.

Although CUPE spokesmen say these groups must merge exclusively with their unions, CLC officials maintain provincial workers who want to join the congress should be permitted to affiliate directly.

Ontario Tax-relief Cheques To Be Mailed This Month

TORONTO (CP) — The first cheques to municipalities under Ontario's new tax-relief plan announced in the budget last winter will be mailed later this month, Treasurer John White said Tuesday.

The second round of payments will be made in early October.

"I expect we will transfer $115,700,000 to our municipalities," Mr. White said in a statement.

The property tax stabilization plan, given legislative sanction last month, was designed to maintain or reduce property tax rates in the province.

It provides grants to municipalities with below - average taxable assessment to bring their assessment level to $10,000 per capita, at a cost of $27 million to the provincial treasury this fiscal year. About 750 municipalities are eligible.

HOME-GROWN IS BEST FOR SALAD MONTH

Colourful and refreshing at any time of year, salads really come into their own when our home-grown fresh fruits and vegetables reach the market.

Even with the simplest dressing, fresh home-grown lettuce — whether iceberg, leaf, romaine or Boston type — has flavour so delicious that it makes you wonder if you ever really tasted lettuce before. The same is true of such delicacies as endive, escarole and Chinese lettuce, not to mention local radishes, green onions and cauliflower.

And remember, thick slices of ripe, red ripe tomatoes, with a sprinkle of sliced green onions, make a tasty companion for the most elegant main course.

Trim, wash and drain iceberg and Boston lettuce, romaine, cress and mint before refrigerating. Leaf lettuce and chicory may or may not be washed before chilling, as you prefer. Escarole, endive and Chinese lettuce should be chilled unwashed.

For greatest enjoyment, store contrasts of colour, shape and flavour. Make sure all ingredients are cool, and clean - and in the case of greens, crackling crisp, fresh and crunchy. And don't forget the succession of fresh Ontario fruits that can accent a salad, or combine with cheese for a cool and wonderful lunch or supper main course.

CNR Clinches Playoff Spot

With the pressures of winning a division title still fac-ing them, couldn't be blamed with worrying about not even making the play-offs so with the season a little over half completed the Trainmen have become the first team to clinch a play-off spot.

They did it in fine fashion Tuesday night by blanking the Public Utilities 4-0 on Wayne Casselman's two hitter.

In other Industrial Softball League action Mead Johnson moved into first place in the west with an 8-4 victory over Stewart Warner and the Independents kept within striking distance by nipping AOCO 3-1.

Jay Miller spoiled Casselman's birthday heroics by punching the big right-hander for two singles, the only hits off the Trainmen's pitcher. He struck out five and walked three in leading the six-run first inning 10th victory of the season.

Rob McMurter punched a double and single and Casselman had a pair of singles in the CNR eight hit off the Utilities' Wilson Bulpit.

Stewart Warner gave Mead Johnson some anxious moments, clinging to a one-run lead three tallies in the sixth inning propelled Meads to their division leading victory.

Jim Sopha pulled a home run and single for the winners who hold a single point lead over second place UIC. Garnet Bird reached base on three singles and Ray Finkle had two.

Harold Wilkenson went four innings for the winners, allowing five hits and three runs. Sonny Hrakaway fired two-hit ball over the final three frames.

Gerald Lewis smashed a home run in support of Fred Davis and Dave Marvo who shared the Stewart Warner mound.

The Independents' Jim Norther limited AOCO to lest two hits over five innings, but he needed four runs in the final three frames to emerge with the win.

Ron McCoy went the distance for AOCO giving up 10 hits. Ron Waite and Doug Boodhoo were the only ones to reach Norney for hits, both singles.

Two Share Top Spot In Peewee Division

Motorland Chrysler may have won against the Kinsmen 13-11 but they ended up in a tie.

Both Belleville Minor Baseball Association peewee division clubs now share second place with four points each following victories as a result of the mornmen's win Monday.

Radio Shack Downs Petes

led by the sixth inning three-run double of Steve Thompson, Belleview Radio Shack tykes cramped Peterborough's style at the plate 16-3 in an Eastern Ontario Baseball Association game Sunday.

As well as fanning 11 batters while walking three, Jeff Hegdie pounded out a home run, triple and single. Boyd Sullivan tripled.

Sheet Metal, Hawks Remain Deadlocked

Stirling Sheet Metal and the Kinsmen Hawks can't seake each other and the rest of the league can't hang on to the fast moving pair in Belleville Minor Softball Association.

The Metalmen and Hawks made it nine wins with only one loss in games Monday night when Sheet Metal stopped cellar-dwelling Frasers and O'Neill 11-4 and the Hawks defeated Ernie Tuck Appliances 16-9.

Tom Gee had a trio of hits including a home run, for the Hawks in their win over Expert Insulation. Jeff Lee had a four-bagger in defeat.

Don Leach Memorial ended the closest squad to the leading duo six points off the pace with an 18-17 squeaker over Moira Beverages. Bob Hunt's pitching, scoring four runs and Ken O'Hara had three safeties for the winners with Dave Hunt contributing four to solo shot, in a losing cause.

In the final game of the evening Ellis Pruiting broke a tie for first place with Chad Gaston Spur by dropping Dr. Gasmen 24-19. Steve Griffin struck out 11 batters and Mike Barton gave the two runners while Rick Yader punched a triple and double to lead the Spur at the p.ate.

Last Year's Winner Not Too Optimistic

TORONTO (CP) — Kelly Roberts of London Sunningdale is not awed by the opposition, but he is not optimistic about retaining his title at the Ontario Golf Association's 81st amateur championship, which began today at St. George's Golf and Country Club.

Roberts is among four given the best chance of taking the crown in the 54-hole tournament over the 6,791-yard, par-71 course.

The others favored in the field of 144 are Gary Cowan of Kitchener Westmount, Nick Weslock of Mississauga and Jeff Forsythe, champion the last three years at the club.

Weslock is the OGA's top ranked player, with Roberts rated second. Weslock has won the amateur more times than any other competitor—seven—dating back to 1960. Cowan won the title that year.

Roberts, a former resident of Burlington, said his game had gone "a little sour," but he wasn't sure what the trouble was.

"I got off to a good start this season, winning the Early Bird tournament in St. Thomas (Ont.) and the Burlington Invitational," Roberts said. "But lately, I've been falling asleep on some shots. I guess it's all in my head."

Roberts, who has played the St. George's layout several times over the last seven years, predicted a score of 223 would win.

He was among about 80 golfers who had practice rounds Tuesday. All reported the course in "excellent condition."

Weslock, now 35, recently qualified for seniors competition and won the 1972 Canadian championship at Toronto's Donalda club.

He advised tournament officials late Monday that he might "bring three clubs and play the 16th, 17th and 18th holes just to limber up."

Cowan, who left the golf tour two years ago to concentrate on his business as an insurance agent and to have more family life, last week shot 75 in a practice round at St. George's.

A former Canadian and United States amateur champion, Cowan has played in only select tournaments in the last 24 months.

Forsythe did not agree with Roberts that a 213 would win it all.

"Although the course is in good shape, it's deceptive and tougher than it looks," he said. "It, seems as though they've made it easier by cutting back a lot of the rough, but the greens are hard and fast and I think a three-over-par 216 could win—unless somebody gets real hot.

"After all, there's only one birdie hole—the par-5 fourth—so you have to watch out for the sorry holes."

Garry Gibson of "Burlington, Chuck Hamilton, Toronto Lambton and Bruce Cameron of Foxhill, Ont. teed off first today at 7:30 a.m.

The second and third rounds will be played Thursday and Friday. Low 66 and ties after two rounds will qualify for the final 18 holes Friday. In the event of a tie for first, a playoff will take place immediately.

The other low 10 and ties from the amateur will play Saturday July 14 to decide the remaining positions on the team.

Straining for the Dolphins

Miami Dolphins' first draft choice, Chuck Bradley, strains as he does leg lifts at the training camp recently. Bradley, a former University of Oregon centre, is trying to make the offensive line of the world champion Dolphins.

Although the lead had seesawed back and forth between Doug Jones Flyers and Supreme Fence during the course of Belleville Intermediate Soccer Association peewee game, neither team could bring the score around to win it's the end.

Steve Jessup's and Steve Pearce's two goals apiece accelled out those of Supreme scorers Norman Nelson with two, Clinton Dell and Steve Labarge with one each. The final score stood at 4-4.

Read Gets 3rd Win Over Reserve Team

Home field alamping grounds helped Quinte Sheet Metal stroll past Reed 13-5 in straight game to Read 13-5 in South Hastings Baseball League play Tuesday.

In two previous outings, Read clubbed Reserve 41. 14 for a 3-0 record against the last place club. With their fifth win of the season Read still trails fourth place Shannonville by three points.

Pitcher Harold Brannen served up the Read win, barring a run earlier. For Reserve, Ken Barnhart had his troubles. In three innings he gave up eight hits and four walks to allow seven runners to score.

Coming in to pitch the final three innings, Bob Reid had even less success. He gave up eight hits and four batters come home.

Paul Hanley provided the big gun shots in Reserve's losing. Hanley made first four times while Gerard Farrell and Pat O'Connor each had two hits. Reserve's Dave Marcelle hit a double. Singles came from Barnhart, Jack Breen and Bud O'Connor.

Juniors End Bardon Streak

2-hitter by Waite Can't Stop Auger's

Ted Waite lost a two-hitter and Dave Horwood and Ron Hill won on an eight-hitter as Junior formed a fickle finger in Commercial Softball League action Tuesday night.

Three walks, an error, two passed balls, and Jack Auger's two rbi single all within the first two innings spelled defeat for Waite and his Rollins Construction teammates as Trenton Auger's hung on for a 3-2 victory.

In the second half of the Allennite double-header the Belleville Juniors produced 11 runs in the first two innings to record an 11-5 slugfest victory over Bardon Supplies.

Waite struck out the side in the first inning but an error on Al Ferguson's grounder gave Auger's a 2-0 lead after two. Rollins scored in the third on Dave Lott's double and an rbi single by Dave Akey, and in the sixth on Larry Griffin's double and an error on Waite's grounder.

Waite struck out 11 for Rollins and walked four in losing the two hitter. George Ferguson picked up the win for Trenton allowing six hits while whiffing seven.

Larry Mavety added the other hit for Auger's who moved four points off Rollins' league leading pace.

Akey had a pair of singles for Wayne McTaggart a triple for Rollins. Two double plays killed Rollin threats in the second and fourth.

They did make a battle of it however with three runs in the first and third sandwiching a pair of runs in the second. A single run in the seventh was as close as they came. Ted Wallwork stroked a triple and single for Bardon's and Brian Hinsman had a double and single.

Janie Hunter went the distance and but for the disastrous first two innings deserved a better fate. He allowed but one hit over the final four innings but the damage had been done.

Minor Softball Results

The law was after Stephen Liscence Tuesday night but they eluded the Police long enough for a Belleville Minor Softball League bantam victory.

The Licence stopped the Belleville Police 4-1 in the best bantam game of the night. Bill Forbes was another one on the wanted list for Police finnal a four hitter and whiffed 12.

Tim Soule buried the win picking up a three hitter and fanning six. Bob Hamilton stroked a home run and three safeties and Rod Hunt a triple and two singles for the Tiremen with Jeff Soule connecting for two singles on the Mead Johnson behalf.

A Grand-slam home run by Doug Sutherland was the decisive blow in the Legion contest Monday night as he led his Chase's Grocery to a 16-6 win over the Red Shark.

Sutherland added a double and two singles to his home run in support of the 14 strike out performance of Scott Snell.

Bayview Makes Most Of Just Three Hits

O'Brien's Tree Service couldn't see any possible way to lose their Prince Edward North Shore baseball contest Monday night but Palmer Fuels are still wondering how they lost theirs.

Second place O'Brien made Belleville Gems, hammering out a 18-1 victory but Palmer Fuels lost a 5-3 decision to Bayview Orchards despite allowing the winners only three hits.

Pat Maracle hurled the O'Briens to the dismissal Gems to six hits and striking out eight. Ken Kerik allowed all to runs for the Gems before giving way to Tom Bentley who threw shut-out ball for the final three innings.

Larry Thompson had two hits for the Tree Service including a home run. Greg Barkitt and Terry Jones had two hits each for the winners who remain four points behind league leading Consecon.

Bill Hubbs allowed only three hits and struck out seven in the win. Bayview is wound up on the short end of the score.

Elliott Motors Gets Win

It wasn't as large a margin of victory as the 25-1 decision in June, but Elliott Motors tykes' 21-7 win over Thurlow Orchard Shack Sunday was decisive enough.

With the five power of Glen McQuaid with two homers and Rick Dean with one leading the way, Belleville scored runs in every inning but the fourth.

But Thurlow weren't hit-shy as Jerry Latchford answered McQuaid with a two-run round of his own in the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association game. Pitcher Jeff Hegdie pounded out a homer, triple and double while Boyd Sullivan slammed a four bagger and a pair of singles.

MacLeod, along with Brian Cronkright, shared the victory with 11 hits allowed and seven strikeouts. Two walks were issued. Thurlow's Mike Leger and Reggie gave up 15 hits while fanning nine.

Finalists in 1972 Looking Good Again

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Saskatchewan Roughriders, the finalists in last year's Grey Cup game, showed Tuesday night that they'll have to be taken seriously by Canadian Football League opponents again this season.

The Tiger-Cats, visiting British Columbia Lions, showed they'll ball at will to rack up a 36-20 win, while the Roughriders, playing in Winnipeg against the Blue Bombers, were 25-16 victors.

In Vancouver, the Ticats showed the ball through the air and over land with three quarterbacks sharing time, grabbing four touchdowns by passing over the seemingly-hypnotized B.C. secondary.

Chuck Ealey, Hamilton's Mr. Everything last season when he led the Ticats to the Grey Cup in his rookie year, played only the first quarter but Jim Eisenhuger and Bill Ebert, fighting for the privilege of sitting on the bench behind Ealey during the regular season starts, were equally impressive.

Ebert completed seven of eight passes for 115 yards in leading the Ticats to a pair of touchdowns and showed some scrambling ability akin to Ealey's in dancing through the lumbering B.C. pass rush for 47 yards on six runs.

Eisinger, who played most of the final half, guided the Ticats to 19 points as he was good on 19 of 14 passes for 114 yards.

While Ealey's four completions in six attempts, Hamilton completed 21 of 28 throws for 281 yards, giving the Ticats 411 yards of total offence, Garney Henley also threw one Hamilton pass.

Ian Sunier got most of the points for Hamilton, chalking up field goals of 29 and 20 yards, a touchdown on a broken field goal attempt, four converts and a single on a wide field goal.

Tony Gabriel got two other touchdowns and rookie George Milosevic, who led all receivers with nine catches, got the final six-pointer for Hamilton.

Leroy Hendricksen caught two touchdown passes and Jim Young snared the other for the Lions. Ted Gerela converted two.

The strangest touchdown was Sunier's. The willowy Hamilton kicker was back to try a field goal when holder Henley bobbled the ball. Henley, one of the best all-star receivers, showed he can pass the ball, as he lofted a 13-yard strike to Sunier, who had slipped unnoticed over the goal line when the snap was fumbled.

The B.C quarterback situation was anything but good. Don Moorhead, the top pivot for the past two seasons, was largely ineffective, while Eric Guthrie, his backup man last season, was little better.

Rookie Karl Douglas was the choice of the three, but had trouble sustaining marches, several times moving the Lions to two or three first downs and then stalling. The B.C. trio was good on 17 of 30 passes for 246 yards, but had two passes picked off.

In Winnipeg, it was a different story, as Saskatchewan veteran Ron Lancaster played all but 8 minutes at quarterback, directing the Roughriders to all their scoring.

Lancaster handed off to the other Saskatchewan backfield ancient, George Reed, for two rushing majors and gave the ball to Steve Molnar for the other. Jack Abendschan added three converts, a field goal and a single.

Tom Walker ran two yard touchdowns for one Winnipeg touchdown and Clay McEvoy got another, also on a two-yard run, with quarterback Don Jonas adding a convert and a field goal.

Six Castoffs Enjoy the Last Laugh

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Six American League managers had cause to smile Tuesday night.

They were not only winners, but the players who produced big efforts were acquired from other teams.

Boston Red Sox' Luis Tiant, who was unconditionally released by Minnesota two years ago, two-hit the Twins for a 3-1 victory.

Stan Bahnsen of Chicago White Sox, a former Yankee, beat New York 3-1.

Cleveland's Rusty Torres, another ex-Yankee, hit a three-run homer in the ninth, rallying the Indians over Oakland A's 7-5.

California's Lee Stanton, a refugee from New York Mets, belted three home runs in the Angels' 10-inning 10-8 decision over Baltimore Orioles.

Detroit's Dick Sharon, former prospect of Pittsburgh Pirates, slammed two homers in the Tigers' 5-4 victory over Texas Rangers.

And Kansas City's Lou Piniella, a former Indian, drove in three runs to help the Royals defeat Milwaukee Brewers 5-4.

In player-transaction talk, that's called the last laugh.

Boston visits Minnesota and New York is at Chicago in the afternoon while Oakland at Cleveland, Kansas City at Milwaukee, Texas at Detroit and California at Baltimore at night complete today's schedule.

"Tiant looks super good," said Twins' designated hitter, Tony Oliva. The only two hits off the Boston hurler were a double by Dwight Evans and a single by Duffy Dyer.

Ron Grimsley pitched the Reds' over Montreal in a game twice halted by rain. He scattered five hits, in the seven innings he worked — but five the first four of them, he had Montreal hitless. Then came the second shower.

"That second delay hurt me," he said. "My arm got stiff and then it took a lot out of me to warm up another time."

Was he hoping he'd get the side out without a hit in the fifth, then wind up with a rain shortened no-hitter

"No," he smiled. "The umpires told me they were going to get this one in no matter what. Still, it was a nice fan game.

Three Year Contract With Argos for Rae

TORONTO (CP) — Mike Rae, 21-year-old hero of Southern California Trojans' 42-17 win over Ohio State in the 1973 Rose Bowl, said Tuesday he signed a three-year contract to play with Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League because he offered him a chance to play regularly.

Rae, who said he had rejected a no-cut contract with Oakland Raiders of the National Football League,

"I had a good deal with Oakland," Rae said. "They offered me a no-cut contract and the salary was good.

"But I would have been on the taxi squad at full salary of course, and I didn't want that. I wanted to be part of a team where I would play.

New head coach John Rauch has been impressed with Rae during the training camp and said Tuesday the young quarterback will start the second half of an exhibition game Friday night in the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Jim Kaat's five-hitter.

The Red Sox won it with two runs in the third on doubles by Darrell Evans and Tommy Harper and Luis Aparicio's RBI-single.

"It's always great beating your former teammates," Bahnsen said after doing just that and knocking the Yanks down to second place.

Chicago manager Chuck Tanner also recognized another player, Buddy Bradford, whose major league stops included Cleveland and Cincinnati.

He scored the tying run and batted in the winning run while running his hitting streak to 11 games.

Sharon, who started out the season on Pittsburgh's roster, didn't correct the error in a major league, much less go four-for-four with two home runs in Detroit's victory.

"I never did that even in the minors," Sharon said. "My best was four-for-five."

He belted three home runs, including a two-run game-winner in the 10th for the decision over Baltimore.

Piniella, whose three RBI came on a two-run homer and a single, provided Steve Busby with the margin of victory. Busby did the rest himself, striking out 13 Brewers to set a Kansas City record.

Torres' three-run homer was the final blow in an Indian comeback which wiped out a 5-0 deficit.

Matlack Stops Astros On One-hit Shutout

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"It was eight inches fair. What can you do" Jon Matlack sighed.

What Matlack did was bear down, get Skip Jutze on a grounder, then collect out oppose ing pitcher Jerry Reuss and former team-mate Tommie Agee.

Helms was the first Astro to reach base against Matlack, leading off the sixth inning with a vicious line drive double that eluded the diving third baseman Wayne Garrett and landed just inside the left field foul line.

In the rest of the National League, Atlanta Braves defeated Philadelphia Phillies 4-2, Cincinnati Reds beat Montreal Expos 6-2, Chicago Cubs turned back San Francisco Giants 4-2, Pittsburgh Pirates edged San Diego Padres 4-3 and St. Louis Cardinals nipped Los Angeles Dodgers 3-4.

Two day games today have Houston at New York and Chicago in San Francisco. The evening contests are Cincinnati at Montreal, Atlanta in Philadelphia, St. Louis at Los Angeles and San Diego at home with Pittsburgh.

Watching a perfect game and no-hitter go down the drain ancient. George Reed, for two rushing majors and gave the ball to Steve Molnar for the other. Jack Abendschan added three converts, a field goal and a single.

Tom Walker ran two yard touchdowns for one Winnipeg touchdown and Clay McEvoy got another, also on a two-yard run, with quarterback Don Jonas adding a convert and a field goal.

Weiskopf Is Third In Every Category

TROON, Scotland (AP) — Tom Weiskopf, lanky "third man" of the British Open golf championship, set out today in a bid to beat the course he has come to hate.

"I don't like this course at all," groaned the big money winner from Columbus, Ohio, as he took on the 7,064-yard, par-72 Troon layout on Scotland's blustery west coast.

Weiskopf was third in the U.S. Open last month, he's third in the list of top money-winners on the U.S. PGA circuit and he's a third favorite in the betting for the British Open.

British bookmakers rate Weiskopf a 10-to-1 betting shot to lead this 102nd renewal of the British Open. That made him third choice behind Jack Nicklaus (7-2) and defending champion Lee Trevino.

Trevino, bidding for his third title in as many years, was 6-1 in the 153-strong field.

Weiskopf, winner of $171,627 so far this year, partnered Britain's Tony Jacklin, Bert Yancey and Lanny Wadkins in the third practice session Tuesday.

Troon's frequently troublesome westerly wind was fairly dormant during the practice round and Wadkins, the top money-winning rookie last year, was putting well. He scored seven quick birdies. Ital. Weiskopf was in all sorts of trouble with his putts and frequently pulled his drives into the heather.

"I think some British courses are great," Weiskopf said. "I like Birkdale and Muirfield. But here it is all a matter of luck."

Weiskopf said he had played on only one seaside layout in the United States and he had a difficult time a few miles down the coast from here at Turnberry last year when he finished far down the list.

But British bookmakers were taking no chances with him. The remembered how Weiskopf "silenced" Trevino in the World Match Play championship final at Wentworth in October, 1972.

Canada Summer Games A Showcase for Young Athletes

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — The facilities, more than $4 million worth, are ready, the competitions are complete and the only thing lacking is the athletes for what's being touted as "the biggest national sports competition in the world."

The event is the Canada Summer Games, a showcase for young athletes in a variety of sports. Thousands of volunteers here, and in neighboring Burnaby have been preparing for the Games for more than two years.

The Games get underway Aug. 3, with more than 3,000 athletes from 10 provinces and two territories expected to compete. Organizers point out that's more competitors than were in Vancouver for the 1954 British Empire Games or in Winnipeg for the 1967 Pan-American Games.

Even the Grey Cup, says executive director Denny Veitch, is a flash in the pan compared with the Games when it comes to national involvement. Before stepping in to head the Games, he was general manager for British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League.

About 3,000 volunteers, ranging from Boy Scouts to businessmen, have done most of the preparatory work and all have worked without reward—not even tickets to the events.

There is a core of highly-trained professionals, including 250 members of the Royal Canadian Engineers, about 380 doctors and nurses who will operate a small clinic and hospital at the athletes' village, and a group of Vancouver firemen who have offered their services as drivers for the athletes travelling to the various facilities.

Nerve centre for the Games will be the New Westminster secondary school, Canada's largest high school, transformed under the guidance of Maj. Norm Henderson of the Royal Canadian Engineers into a hotel for athletes.

The 75 classrooms have become 30-bed dormitories, the gymnasium has become a 1,300-seat theatre and there will be two cafeterias capable of feeding 3,000 at a time.

"It's a big job so far and there's still plenty to be done," said Maj. Henderson.

"We've been working on plans and supplies since January, but we couldn't get on with the school changes until classes were out, about two weeks ago."

Another major problem is providing food for the athletes, press and visitors.

80,000 MEALS NEEDED

Organizers expect to provide about 80,000 meals during the seven days, both hot and take-out.

"For the $4.3-million price tag, the two communities get a legacy of athletic facilities.

"Burnaby gets the Burnaby Lake rowing and canoeing course, tennis courts, field houses and a couple of revamped playing fields, while New Westminster gets brand-new improvements to existing facilities, gets the Canada Summer Games' pool, the only olympic-sized covered facility west of Winnipeg.

The pool, built at a cost of $1.2 million, is already open to the public. It boasts moveable bulkheads to vary the competitive dimensions, a $50,000 electronic scoreboard, diving decks rising up to 10 metres high and seating for 2,000 spectators.

DATES RELEASED

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The Canadian women's amateur golf championship and the Canadian junior women's golf tournament will be held in Prince Edward Island this summer, organizers said Tuesday. The amateur event will be played Aug. 5-10 at the Belvedere Golf Club while the junior event will be held at the Brudenell Golf Course July 31-Aug. 3.

Israeli Weightlifters Even Score with U.S.

TEL AVIV (AP) — The United States and Israel were tied for the total number of medals heading into the second day of sport at the 34th Maccabiah Games today.

The traditionally strong U.S. swimming competition and Soviet bloc of six gold medals and seven other prizes, but Israeli weightlifters reversed the score late Tuesday with three first places and two other medal awards.

Both teams began the second day of the so - called Jewish Olympics with 12 medals. Sweden, also strong in weightlifting, had six medals and South Africa had four.

Canada collected two second-place silver medals during the opening day when Montreal's Gord Farnsworth made it to the light heavyweight judo final before losing to Irwin Cohen of the U.S., and the Canadian men's 800-metre relay team chased the U.S. to victory.

Official statistics gave the U.S. four gold medals, six silver and two bronze. Israel had five golds, two silvers and five bronze.

With swimming and weightlifting again the main events of today's competition, the Americans and Israelis were expected to remain close.

About 1,750 sportsmen were attending the Games under tight security. Police were taking no chances of a tragedy similar to the massacre of 11 Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics last September by Arab guerrillas.

In tennis, the Maccabiah's Court of Honor, the supreme authority over the Games, Tuesday reversed an appeals committee ruling barring the No. 2 seeded woman player, Vicky Berner of Vancouver from the competition.

The appeals committee earlier ruled that Miss Berner could not play on the grounds she was a professional.

At least six Maccabiah records were shattered in Tuesday's events, two of them by Swedish swimmer Anita Zarnowski in the women's freestyle and 200-metres backstroke events.

Michael Cook of the U.S. swept one of Olympic star Mark Spitz's records off the books with a time of 2:03.5 in the first leg of the 800-metre relay in which Canada finished second.

Aaron Now Receiving Support in the Mail

NEW YORK (CP) There is a sickness in the country, and Hank Aaron experiences it every day of his life on and off the baseball field.

It often digs him deep and it is spread among a segment of American society which simply resents a black man trying to break Babe Ruth's lifetime home run record.

But love can triumph over hate, and it has in Aaron's case.

The slugging Atlanta Braves outfielder was victimized by a rash of hate mail earlier in the season when he launched his attack on the former New York Yankee great's record of 714 home runs.

Things have changed. Fan mail letters and postcards accumulating by the thousands in the Braves' offices have been overwhelmingly in support of Aaron.

He has since closed within 18 of Ruth's career mark.

Six weeks ago, hate mail addressed to Aaron was filled with racial slurs was not uncommon.

Hurt by some of the remarks, Aaron said at the time: "You have to be black in America to know how sick some people are."

The mail, about 75-25 against him, was growing by hundreds and literally. He told a reporter: "Most of it is racial. They call me 'nigger' and every other bad word you can imagine. If I was white, all America would be proud of me."

Sports writers who know Aaron have found him one of the most co-operative figures in baseball, and the word when out: How about some happy mail for Hank?

Last week, some 10,000 letters for Aaron were in the Braves' office, still waiting to be opened. Secretary Carla Coplin, assigned to handle the huge flow, says the letters and postcards are running 99 to 1 in support of Atlanta's slugging Spinner.

When he gets hate mail, the thing that upsets Aaron most is the postcards because they are open and everyone can read "the terrible things" they say.

Aaron is divorced and has former wife and three children live in the Atlanta suburbs. Some of the hate mail has found its way to his family.

Aaron makes no bones about the late mail being an indication of "something very low" in the country.

But he wants to see it all "I want to see what people are writing."

While the vicious letters have upset him, Aaron is more determined than ever to break Ruth's mark.

Twice he swung his 34-ounce, 35-inch bat at balls that weren't strikes Sunday and drove them out of the park. They were homers No. 22 and 23 of his 20th season with the Braves. They also enabled Atlanta to beat the Mets 4-3 in New York.

Another generation who never saw George Herman Ruth play cheered Aaron on the home grounds of another great black baseball hero, Willie Mays, now in the twilight of his career.

At 39, Aaron figures next season will be his last. His huge wrists provide the power which "I'll earn him $200,000 this year, their pre-season training standard this season is going to be tough.

"I need 42 this year to break it. I think I can hit 35, but I doubt if I'll hit 42." Aaron set out the Braves' game at Philadelphia Monday and Tuesday nights with an ailing back.

Aaron has a home ball park made to order for the slugger. Atlanta Stadium is known in the trade as "the launching pad."

But Aaron can hit homers in any park. After the Milwaukee franchise was shifted to the Georgia capital in 1966, he had successive home run totals of 44, 39, 29, 44, 38, 47 and 34.

TALKS WITH ALS

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (AP) Dick Dauron, a running back from Yale who was Detroit Lions' fourth-round 1972 draft choice, signed a contract Thursday with the National Football League club. Jauron was late reporting to the Lions because he had been in Montreal negotiating with the Alouettes of the Canadian Football League, a Lions official said.

Mitchell Makes Multiple Denials

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee was scheduled today to debate whether to subpoena documents from the White House. Former attorney-general John Mitchell also faced renewed questioning on his multiple denials.

Mitchell denied he approved the Watergate wiretapping, decided sealing wiretap logs, denied sworn accusations that he played a vigorous part in the subsequent cover-up, and denied that he talked more than once about the affair with President Nixon, either before or after he quit as Nixon's campaign manager.

Also Tuesday, Jeb Stuart Magruder, Mitchell's deputy on the Nixon re-election committee, told reporters he stands by his testimony to the Watergate committee that Mitchell approved the break-in at a March 30, 1972, meeting in Key Biscayne, Fla.

Mitchell testified Tuesday that he had no personal knowledge to support the accusations made by ousted White House Counsel John Dean, that Nixon knew of and participated in the cover-up plot.

Mitchell said he went along with efforts to "keep the lid on," but said he never told the president about them and believes Nixon was ignorant of the matter.

Mitchell, without ever using the word cover-up, said he knowingly went along with perjured testimony and payments to the silent Watergate defendants, not so much to hide facts behind the wiretapping, which he swore he tried to head off on three occasions, but to keep a member of "White House horror stories" locked up.

These so-called horror tales include much of what has surfaced recently:

—The 1971 burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist by White House agents Howard Hunt and Gordon Liddy, both of whom were convicted in the Watergate wiretapping;

—Wiretapping of reporters and White House staff members;

—Attempts to convince a Life Magazine reporter to publish a story based on forged cables that falsely indicated that President John F. Kennedy ordered the assassination of South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem, and,

—White House investigations into Senator Edward Kennedy's auto accident in Chappaquiddick, Mass.

Mitchell said he first learned of these incidents within four or five days after the June 17, 1972, Watergate raid. He said campaign aides Robert Mardian and Frederick LaRue relayed the stories to him from Liddy, then chief counsel at the campaign finance committee.

Mitchell rebutted the testimony of Magruder, his former campaign deputy, who swore Mitchell approved the wiretapping at the meeting in Key Biscayne, Fla.

Mitchell also said it was a "palpable, damnable lie" that he had ever been shown logs of wiretapped conversations. Magruder swore that Mitchell saw the logs and wasn't satisfied with results of the wiretapping.

Mitchell said he and former presidential advisers H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman had "an innate fear" that the "horror stories" would come to light during the campaign.

He said he never told Nixon about the cover-up because he thought the president would disclose everything publicly and hurt his chances for re-election against George McGovern. He said he continued to keep Nixon in the dark even afterward so as not to hurt his presidency.

He conceded that he may have used bad judgment.

Mitchell said that the only time he talked to Nixon about the Watergate matter last year was once, possibly on Sep. 13, when he, Nixon and former treasury secretary John Connally discussed and rejected the idea of setting up an independent presidential commission to look into the wiretapping.

"I believe it was the unanimous opinion that the appropriate thing to do was to let the normal courses of justice take its place," Mitchell said.

Barnicke Denies Warning Developer

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto real estate man denied Tuesday that he warned a London, Ont., developer not to stir up a fuss about Ontario Hydro's deal for a new headquarters because the developer might never get another government job.

J. J. Barnicke told a legislature committee investigating the construction deal for a new $44-million Hydro headquarters that he did not warn Don Smith, president of Ellis-Don Ltd., one of three losing firms in the bidding.

The committee is checking allegations of favoritism by Hydro to Canada Square.

Mr. Barnicke was testifying because of a letter written by Mr. Smith to John Cronyn, identified as a prominent Progressive Conservative, vice-president of John Labatt Ltd. and a Ellis-Don director.

The London developer said in his letter that "I talked to Joe Barnicke last week and he suggested that I might jeopardize any future dealings with the government if I stirred anything up on this job."

Tuesday, Mr. Barnicke said he had met Mr. Smith only once and wouldn't know him if he was in the room.

He said his only contact with Mr. Smith on the Hydro deal came in a phone call from Mr. Smith, lasting about 90 seconds, in which the developer told him he wanted the Hydro contract.

"Why don't you be low bidder?" Mr. Barnicke said he asked Mr. Smith.

He quoted Mr. Smith as saying he felt the contract would go to Canada Square and Mr. Barnicke asked: "Why don't you go joint venture with him (Mr. Moog)?"

When Mr. Smith said he didn't think he could, Mr. Barnicke said he advised: "Well, you'd better forget about it and go on to something else."

Foreign Investment Changes Considered

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie made commitments to the left and gave assurances to the right Tuesday as he faced Progressive Conservative and New Democratic amendments to the government foreign investment review bill.

Most of the amendments were considered but not completed as the Commons finance committee broadened through resittings totalling five hours while considering the bill which would set up an agency to look at foreign investment and takeovers.

Mr. Gillespie also has changes he feels will clarify and strengthen the bill. These also are to be debated in committee meetings.

The opposition amendments given the best chance of passage were proposed Tuesday by Lorne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkton-Melville).

These would have the agency screen imported manufactured parts to determine if they could be made in Canada, examine the possibility of processing more raw materials here and study reactions this now may prevent expansion of export markets.

Schreyer Is Accused Of Election Illegality

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Progressive Conservative candidate who gave Premier Ed Schreyer a tough political battle in Manitoba's June 28 general election claimed Tuesday that voting in his constituency of Rossmere was held under an illegible returning officer.

Candidate Bill Penner, without specifying what steps he would take if the Premier refused, called on Mr. Schreyer to have the Rossmere decision declared void and a byelection held under a new returning officer.

The Elections Act says that when a court determines an offence has been committed "by or with the actual knowledge and consent of a candidate," the candidate then is ineligible to vote or run for public office for eight years.

Food Rationed

CAIRO (AP) — Foreigners who remain in Egypt longer than six months will need ration cards to buy cooking oil, the newspaper Al Aram said. Egyptians have had certain foods rationed ever since the Second World War.

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: We are going to be passing through Salt Lake City this summer and would like to visit the Mormon Temple and other sights there. Have you any details about the city?

ANSWER: Salt Lake City is at the foot of the beautiful Great Salt Lake on the north-west and the desert only a few miles away to the west and northwest. Founded in 1847 by the Mormons under Brigham Young, the city became the capital of the Mormon settlement and, later, of the state. Its finest buildings are ecclesiastical and some of its most interesting houses were occupied by Brigham Young and his family.

Salt Palace, the new civic auditorium at 100 S. Temple, can accommodate up to 28,000 people at one time. A double-cable suspended roof system eliminates the need for columns, pillars and posts. The University of Utah Special Events Centre seats 15,000.

Temple Square, corner of Main Street and South Temple contains the most famous buildings of the Latter - day Saints Church (Mormon).

Among these are the Mormon Temple, Tabernacle, Bureau of Information, Assembly Hall, Visitors' Centre with displays portraying the history and doctrine of the church and the oldest house in the city. Bronze statues of Joseph and Hyrum Smith and the Seagull Monument are also here.

Visitors may obtain information at the Bures of Information Building. The building houses a museum of natural sciences and history, and a Sandieraft exhibit. Free guided tours also start here. Open daily 9 to 5.

Although the Temple Building itself is not open to the general public, guided tours of the other unique buildings on Temple Square are well worthwhile.

Temple Gates are open 6:30 a.m. to 11 p.m. June 4 through Sept. 15.

In summer the 1¼-hour guided tour is available daily approximately every 20 minutes, with the first tour leaving at 8:30 a.m., and the last tour leaving at 9 p.m.

Organ recitals are held all year at noon on weekdays, 4 p.m. on Sundays, in summer there is an additional recital at 7:30 p.m. daily except Sundays and Thursdays from approximately June 15 to Sept. 15.

Doors are closed at starting time so 10-minutes-early arrival is advised. CBC Y a h r t acle choir and organ broadcasts are conducted throughout the year at 9:30 a.m. each Sunday (doors open from 7:30 a.m. to 9:20 a.m.) The choir practices every Thursday evening from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Visitors are welcome.

The presentation of "Promised Valley" a musical about the pioneer trek westward, is given nightly, except Sunday at 7:30 and 9 in July and August. While there is no admission charge, tickets are required and may be obtained from the Visitors' Centre on Temple Square.

Visitors are able to view by bus the Mormon Church welfare program at Welfare Square. Bus leaves the south gate of Temple Square at 10:15 a.m. and 2:15 p.m., Monday through Saturday and returns 1½-hours later. This tour is available in summer only.

All admission services and facilities on Temple Square are provided without charge.

Falling Hair Supply

HARROGATE, England (CP) — Speakers at the International Trichological Visitors' Conference complained about a shortage of Siberian horsehair used for stringing bows. A disease on the Siberian steppes has struck down thousands of horses and horsehair has doubled in price during a single year.

Guards Dump

PRINCEVILLE, Que. (CP) — tired of frequent fire alarms at the local refuse dump, the municipal council has hired a caretaker to look after their dump and "keep a close eye on it."

Carlsbad Porcelain Produced To Appeal to Popular Taste

KARLOVY VARY, Czechoslovakia (Reuter) — The coffee pot bears a huge hammer and sickle, and the cups depict a Communist red star spreading rays of inspiration.

The plates shout slogans glorifying 25 years of communism in Czechoslovakia and portray the late Communist party chairman Klement Gottwald.

This is the new aspect of Carlsbad porcelain, one of the proud names of European chinaware. Carlsbad itself now is known by its Czech name, Karlovy Vary.

More than 180 years after porcelain was first made in Czechoslovakia, the 17 factories producing Carlsbad porcelain display the political china with the boast that the new hallmark of Carlsbad production is "serviceability, beauty, tradition—the coat of arms of good taste and quality."

Older production, which made the porcelain's name, is displayed with disparaging notes telling of stagnation, cheap effects, artistic decline, incomplete shapes and pseudo-rococo.

However, the political propaganda gives the visitor a misleading impression of contemporary production, which is market-oriented and a valuable source of hard currency for Czechoslovakia.

The 17 factories, all situated in west Bohemia, constantly work at capacity to meet a strong demand from all over the world. About 80 per cent of the output is exported, half of it to the West.

Designs are mostly bright and modern and appeal to the tastes of the mass market. Due to shortage of labor, the factories have virtually abandoned hand-painting for automation and concentrate on utility-ware, rather than the luxury china of artistic merit.

Capacity is so stretched that orders have to be turned down. One was from an American firm, which wanted 5,000 pieces—a major production effort—just as preliminary samples for each of its 5,000 chain-stores.

A small workshop with about 30 employees executes special orders, including tableware for Turkish embassies around the world.

"Manufacturers say the industry's main problem is how to increase production despite Czechtoslovakia's chronic labor shortage. The government's policy is generally not to import immigrant labor, so the only way is through further automation.

The nearby attractions of coal mines and steel works, which pay far better wages, make labor recruitment difficult.

Even in the modern, fully mechanized factories, the work is boring, dirty and hot and the conveyor belt demands a smart rate of output.

Your food shopping Can it cost less?

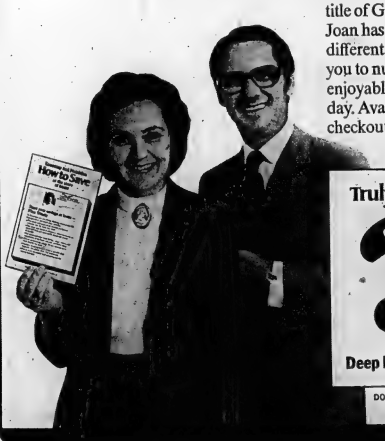
Economy and Nutrition: Plan for both.



Dominion's everyday deep discount prices are one way to stretch your shopping dollar.

Another way is to plan meals in advance. A well thought out shopping list doesn't leave room for wasteful leftovers or spoilage due to unnecessary purchases. The way you store food is important too. Careful storage avoids spoilage and assures maximum nutrition. So does proper cooking. Overcooked vegetables lose flavour and food value. Meats cooked slowly and carefully go further, taste better and are more nutritious.

There's a lot to be learned about economy and nutrition in Guide #4.

Free this week - Guide #4.

"Economy and Nutrition: How to save at home, at the store" is the title of Guide #4. Joan has prepared six different guides to help you to nutritious, enjoyable eating every day. Available at our checkout counters.

Hercules Already Feeds Niger Hungry

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian forces aircraft will soon form part of a tenuous lifeline for six million people in six West African nations.

One Canadian Hercules has already flown about 500,000 pounds of grain from Lagos, Nigeria, on the Atlantic coast, to Agadez, a town in Niger on the edge of the Sahara desert.

That aircraft is to be joined by two others which left Thursday morning. Eventually the three aircraft and about 100 servicemen will be working out of Lagos.

The Canadian International Development Agency has pledged $8.5 million in food and equipment, the payloads have reached 40 000 pounds.

The twice-daily flights of the first Hercules are being made in "rough and tough flying conditions." Although the landing facilities at Lagos are modern and well-kept, some of the landing strips in the drought areas are extremely primitive. Weather conditions also make flying conditions poor.

Food now is being stockpiled in Lagos and two other Atlantic ports; Dakar, Senegal, and Abidjan on the Ivory Coast. The wheat and other grains are however, being unloaded through facilities that are small and poorly equipped for the enormous task.

They lie along the semi-arid regions on the edge of the Sahara. Many of the inhabitants are nomadic, driving their herds of goats, cattle and camels from pasture to pasture.

The herds move north in the summer when the June-to-October rains fail and south as the country dries.

Last year, the rains failed, 18 only now unfolding.

Slum Shacks on the Hills

An estimated 400,000 live in these hillside ranchеros or slum shacks around the capital city of Caracas, Venezuela. About a quarter of the population of the South American country live in the two major cities, Caracas and Maracaibo. Despite the conditions in the ranchеros, many of the residents are better off than they were in the country. (CP Photo)

Venezuela Faces Lower Oil Output

CARACAS (CP) — Although it has one of the highest standards of living of the 10 South American countries, Venezuela is living through a period of change and looking to a murky future.

The 11 million people have a per capita income of $1,100, almost three times that of Brazil with its economic miracle of economic growth and only slightly under than that of Argentina.

It is a country where money chases goods—two of three people own a car—but which has a problem controlling inflation and holding down prices.

The main worry for the future concerns the diminishing reserves of its booming oil industry, which is the lifeblood of the nation.

There are promising signs of a broadening of the economic base into such areas as petrochemicals, steel, automobile assembly and food processing.

But this is a long process and, meanwhile, the government has imposed strict measures to protect its basic natural resource—oil. Tough measures control exports, taxes on the industry are high and in 1963 all foreign-owned assets of the oil industry revert to the state.

Hopes for the future are based on a break from the almost-total dependency on oil, which now provides about a quarter of the country's gross national product (GNP).

One hope is that by 2000, oil will represent only between seven and eight per cent of GNP while manufacturing will have grown to take up the slack.

Venezuela "is beginning to be fully conscious of its own destiny," says Dr. Enrique Sanchez, a business man and chairman of the Venezuelan national committee of the International Chamber of Commerce.

"The men from the previou generation found a nation without experience or resources, and suddenly its wealth exceeded the normal ability to spend it.

"The present generation has a mission: to find new ways, to readjust, re-orientate.

"The challenge we are facing is hardly an easy one."

The challenge is social as well as economic. About a quarter of the population lives in the two major cities, Caracas and Maracaibo, and there is a striking lack of equalization in distribution of income. About half the population receives 16 per cent of the income and the poorer 20 per cent receives only three per cent.

Even in this capital, with a population of about two million, an estimated 400,000 live in hillside ranchеros or slum shacks. There were only 40,000 about 15 years ago but free light, water and sanitary facilities have lured them from the impoverished rural sections to the city. Despite the conditions in the ranchеros, many are still better off than they were in the country.

Venezuela has most of its economic ties with the United States, which takes almost half of its oil exports, but also is Canada's best customer and largest supplier in South America.

Petroleum products account for practically all of Canada's imports from Venezuela, which in 1972 totalled $498 million.

Canada sold $145 million worth of goods to Venezuela, a large part of it in automobiles and parts. Newsprint and wood pulp are also major items.

Canada also has a modest investment of about $167 million in the expanding industrial sector, fourth behind the U.S., Panama and Britain.

Juice of Earth Key to Future

CARACAS (CP) — The natives called it "mene"—juice of the earth.

Mines Minister Hugo Perez La Salvia calls it "the dynamic agent par excellence in the development of the Venezuelan economy."

Both refer to oil, the economic lifeblood of this country of 11 million people.

The natives used oil to waterproof their canoes, line their baskets and fuel their torches. Venezuela in modern time has used it to build the second-highest standard of living in South America.

Now there are concerns that the golden days of oil may be drawing to a close, concerns that have resulted in tough government controls and a planned state takeover of all foreign oil interests in 1983.

With oil a truly international commodity, the results will be felt far away. Canada, which takes about 13 per cent of Venezuela's oil exports to serve its eastern provinces, will be certain to feel the pinch.

Plans for the immediate future are based on the assumption that the country needs stable income from the industry, which provides 90 cents of every $1 of export income. But, with world oil prices on the upswing, that means that exports can be reduced and income maintained at present levels.

By government order, production was reduced during 1971 and again in 1972. Production fell from 3.7 million barrels a day in 1970 to 3.3 million in 1972. Some oilmen forecast that the government will cut this to about 2.5 million by 1980.

For the importing countries—the United States takes almost half of Venezuela's oil and Europe and Central America each buy a lot more than Canada—it no doubt appears an endless cycle: lower production leading to higher prices, leading to still lower production.

For Venezuela's policy planners it seems perfectly simple: Conservation of reserves for the day 10 years away when foreign-owned assets of the industry—estimated at $5 billion—revert to the state.

Meanwhile, the countries handled Venezuelan oil will have to pay as much as the market will bear. The prospect is for more price increases following those of recent years.

Venezuela Plans 1983 Oil Takover

CARACAS (CP) — Dr. Humberto Calderon Berti is director of a plan that won't even start for another 10 years.

When it does, it will change the entire economic structure of Venezuela and will have a heavy impact on the oil-importing countries of the world, including Canada.

Calderon's job is oil, specifically a complete state takeover without compensation in 1983 of all foreign-owned assets of the industry. It is a nationalization of oil as complete as any carried out by some of the Middle East countries, but during a longer, more orderly transition period.

Venezuela lives and thrives on oil and little else, although promising attempts are being made to broaden the economic base. Oil alone has given the 11 million population one of the highest standards of living in Latin America.

Venezuelans say that although the country was violated by Columbus on one of his voyages, it was really discovered and conceived by oil.

Now, in effect, the country plans to conquer the industry and return ownership of the remaining reserves to the nation.

Venezuela's plan, which Calderon administers as director of reversion for the ministry of mines, is simple in its conception.

Under a 1943 law, the oil companies were told their leases would lapse unless they agreed that all concessions revert to the state within 40 years. They had little choice but to agree.

Some dispute followed whether the law was meant to apply only to the rich oil concessions and the processing plants or other property as well.

The government quickly settled that by the so-called Reversion Law of 1972 which said that all sets—everything from refineries to head office buildings and even cash in the bank—were covered. Oilmen say about $5 billion is involved.

The companies—the three largest are Shell, Exxon and Gulf—balked and have appealed to the Supreme Court.

Most oilmen believe the appeal will be allowed to drag on for years and has little chance of success.

As described by Mines Minister Hugo Perez La Savia, the reversion law and tough controls on the industry in the interim have a three-pronged goal:

—Steady and stable oil income;

—Elimination of the prospect of pressure from the companies;

—More money for the country if world demands calls for additional exports.

What happens after the state takeover in 1983 isn't known.

Calderon says "no policy decision has been taken on the future."

Several possibilities are open. The government may take over operation through a state-owned petroleum company already in operation. Or it may enter into new agreements with the companies for renewal of leases, or negotiate management contracts with the companies. But it is a foregone assumption that one way or another the country will want a major management role and a still-larger share of the profits.

Calderon puts it simply: "We feel we must participate more in the control of our own industry."

For Venezuela, oil is vital. The industry provides 90 per cent of the country's export revenue although it supplies jobs for only 30,000 of the 3.5 million in the labor force.

Under tough tax laws, the government takes 80 cents of every dollar of gross profit. Even the Creole Petroleum Corp., the Exxon subsidiary, reported net profit of $109 million in 1972, a bad year for the industry. Standard Oil of New Jersey owns 95 per cent of Creole.

Nationalists within the country are waiting for the day when the country owns the industry outright, ending what many claim has been a long period of exploitation. In the early years of the industry, they say, some of the major companies were able to pay for their complete development costs with the profits from three years of operation.

Professor Seeks Murder Signals

HAMILTON (CP) — Prof. Cyril Greenland, a 54-year-old teacher of social work and psychiatry at McMaster University, is attempting to devise a reliable method of predicting violent and dangerous behavior.

"Murderers and attackers often send out signals and warnings of the explosion that lies ahead," says Prof. Greenland. "It's as though they are asking us to stop them."

At present the art, or science, of predicting violence is in a primitive state.

"However, it is an approach to crime prevention worth exploring," says the professor.

Police were called to the house one morning to find the children cowering in a corner while the mother sat at a table, somewhat drunk, muttering, "I'll kill them."

The next day she went to a social agency and pleaded that the children be removed from her home so they could be "spared much suffering".

That night she killed them.

Prof. Greenland says in about 50 per cent of all homicides, attempted and successful, the killer and victim are related.

Crimes committed by females are nearly always in the home and the victim is usually a relative, most often a child. In a recent year, 49 or 60 homicides recorded were committed by mothers.

Negroes, Police Meet to Reduce Racial Tension

MONTREAL (CP) — Leaders of Montreal's black community met Tuesday night with police to discuss "positive measures" to reduce racial tension in suburban Notre Dame de Grace.

Later, Lawrence Sitahal, executive director of the Negro Community Centre, said in an interview:

"We generally feel the situation can be handled with some positive planning. There is no need to deal with it with notoriety."

Three persons, including two Americans, were taken into custody Monday night after a shooting incident in a park and two of them, including a 25-year-old woman from Reading, Pa., were released later.

About 200 blacks and 50 whites were involved in a confrontation in the park Monday night.

Cornel L. Bridges, 33, a social worker from Reading, was charged Tuesday with illegal possession of a firearm.

Fights between blacks and whites have occurred regularly in the park.

Police said a trial date for Bridges is to be set within seven days.

A man told police he fired once with a .38-calibre revolver to scare off five whites he said had surrounded his car and hit it with baseball bats.

Bridges carried a permit from the state of Pennsylvania for use of a revolver but police here said it is not valid when he is not working.

Black spokesmen said they warned police three hours before the Monday night confrontation of a "potentially explosive situation" in Girouard Park, where the shooting occurred.

In a statement read to Inspector Roger Marquis Monday night, Carl Whittaker of the Negro Community Centre, said the black community feels "justified to use any means necessary to ensure its safety in the park which was paid for with our tax dollars too."

The police log book at the local station shows only two arrests involving inter-racial fighting in the park since last week but police and black spokesmen said many clashes go unreported.

Commuter Trains' Praises Are Sung

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Bob Silcox goes through a new car every four years after putting 100,000 miles on it and considers himself a typical Toronto commuter.

Each weekday he climbs into his car at 6:30 a.m. to drive from his Aurora home to the downtown Toronto office where he works as a foreign exchange broker.

He says his car expenses are about $1,000 a year. He pays an extra $15 insurance because he commutes.

Even by trying to avoid rush-hour traffic, he'll spend about two hours a day in his car completing the 66-mile round-trip.

He has done this for the last 17 years, surviving three auto accidents, encountering snow, ice and fog in winter and greasy roads from summer rainstorms.

Tuesday, he told a public hearing of the Canadian transport commission's rail transport committee that he's "quite bitter" toward Canadian National Railways and its "cheap executives and directors" because the line is trying to avoid providing rail services for commuters.

Mr. Silcox, chairman of the Oro North committee, and a commuter train advocate for the last seven years, was one of several persons who spoke in favor of a Toronto-Barrie rail commuter service at the commission hearing on the proposal.

John Medcof, chairman of Railroad Boosters, which ran a trial commuter train for 28 days last fall under a $100,000 federal grant, said the CN formula for economically evaluating freight traffic on western branch lines is "out of touch" with urban passenger service in the east.

The railway builds an unrealistic cost picture by charging a part of the maintenance of lines primarily used for freight against passenger service, he said.

Sinclair Stevens, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for York-Simcoe, said the Barrie-Toronto commuter line "would be a very profitable operation indeed."

Mr. Medcof said Toronto commuters are discriminated against because the railways provide only six commuter services—not counting provincial GO trains east and west of Toronto—while Montreal has 105 commuter trains.

The Railway Boosters' brief said other commuter lines serving areas north of Toronto are operating on a passenger volume less than the average of 177 a day during the Barrie-Toronto trial service, which ended Dec. 22 when a federal study concluded it was uneconomic.

CN counsel Howard Pye of Montreal said the line "cannot commit funds to a new service which does not pay its way," and if the service is ordered by the commission, CN wants it subsidized "to the fullest extent under the law."

The Railway Act provides for an 80-per-cent subsidy on passenger service operating losses. CN, which neither supports nor opposes the application, has estimated a yearly deficit of $236,000 if the passenger service is 200 a day.

Mr. Stevens said a survey of his riding indicated 935 families might use the service daily.

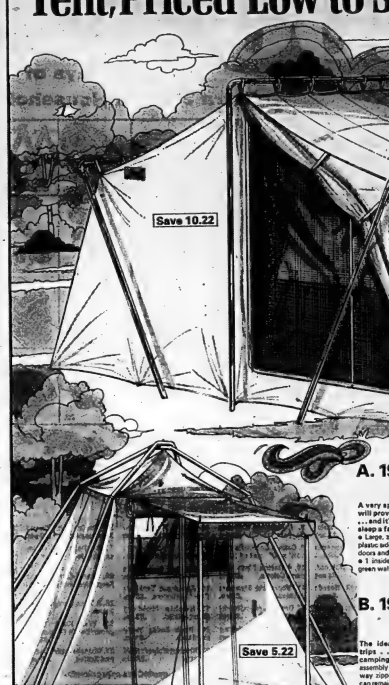
The hearing continues today.

Public Housing Tenants Have Reason to Be Irate

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Public housing tenants have every reason to be irate and at times angry with their accommodation but stand a better chance of having their complaints acted upon if they band together in tenants associations, the director of the National Association of Public Housing Tenants said Tuesday.

Chris Bradshaw told delegates at the man and shelter housing conference being held this week at the University of Guelph that low-rental housing tenants are offered no real choice in style of accommodation they prefer.

He explained that public housing units are owned by either the federal or provincial government and administered by local housing authorities. Local authorities have been known to adopt a somewhat smug attitude bordering on unspoken thoughts such as "if you don't like it, move out," he said.



All attempts by public housing tenants to improve their lot through additional jobs or increased income are frustrated in the system as it now exists, Mr. Bradshaw said. It penalizes tenants for earning more money by determining rental as a percentage of gross income.

New Law Controls Car Dumps

TORONTO (CP) — If you want to avoid Ontario's new laws on abandoned vehicles, keep you old car wrecks in a barn or some other building.

The first of a series of tough regulations aimed at ridding the countryside of derelict vehicles came into effect last Saturday.

These deal with wrecks left in backyards, fields or other private property. The regulations provide that no more than three wrecks will be permitted to clutter a property to the view of passers-by.

Those who decide to go into the business of wreck disposal must conform to new standards outlined in regulations proclaimed last weekend.

Among these are that the site must be fenced, out of the public view, be accessible by road, and located on land that is not susceptible to flooding.

Surveys conducted by the ministry last year established there are about 500,000 abandoned cars in the province.

Environment Minister James Auld said Tuesday it may take two or three years to rid our roads and fields of the backlog of accumulated "auto hulks."

Aid Continues

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will not halt development aid to Zambia in spite of the African country's failure to explain satisfactorily the March deaths there of two Ontario girls, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Tuesday.

Wellington) that a $1 - million loan to Zambia, announced in Lusaka, announced Monday, is being made with his full knowledge and approval.

Canadian development aid to Zambia is "assistance to the people, not the government of Zambia," Mr. Sharp said.

Help Promised

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario government plans to provide financial support for municipal industrial parks, Claude Bennett, minister of industry and tourism, said Tuesday.

An announcement of the program will be made "within a reasonable period of time, perhaps by this fall," he said in an interview.

Money would be provided only for infrastructure or such things as sewers, roads or water, he said.

Nationalism

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A Canadian Lutheran leader said Tuesday that nationalism is increasing both in Canada and the United States, with the resultant need for Christian denominations in both countries to have a national identity.

Rev. Dr. Norman Threinen, executive secretary of the Lutheran Council of Canada, told the governing convention of the Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod here:

"If Lutheranism is to be effective in its mission and ministry on the Canadian scene, it must have a Canadian identity. In other words, Lutherans must be able to speak in terms of Canadians to Canadians and the Canadian situation."

$50 a Hundred

The 1,180-pound animal, offered by Irwi Schenk of Petersburg, Ont. was bought by Sterling Packers of Toronto.

Buyers and sellers have been waiting for weeks at the stockyard for prices to reach the $50 level.

Sin Born

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Lezlie Maland, widow of a Toronto police constable shot to death while investigating a bank robbery last February, has given birth to a son.

The eight-pound boy, born last Friday in the Toronto hospital where she had worked as a nurse, was christened Leslie Jon.

"I feel really elated," Pauline Maitland, 29, said in an interview. "The baby has given me more to do and think about."

Beer at Y

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — The combined Young Men's-Young Women's Christian Association of Guelph announced Tuesday that beer will be served on an experimental one-night basis on a social program planned for Thursday night.

The program for young adults will include sports and swimming followed by a social session at which beer will be served under a special licence. The organizers believe it will be a first for Y organizations.

D. MACDONALD

Site Not Chosen

OTTAWA (CP) — Reports that a Quebec site has been selected for a new heavy water plant are "purely speculative," a spokesman for Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday.

He rejected reports that the government has selected Gentilly, Que., site of a nuclear power station, as the location.

But the carefully worded comments indicated the government is prepared to go ahead with a new heavy water plant, which has been under consideration for about one year by the government and Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. (AECL), a Crown corporation.

The minister's office said several locations are being considered, including sites in Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes.

Eager to Talk

LONDON (Reuter) — The Nixon Eisenhower told British television viewers Tuesday that President Nixon is "very eager" to speak out on the Watergate affair as soon as testimony has been given by all the witnesses.

Mrs. Eisenhower, the president's 25-year-old daughter, and her husband, David, appeared from the United States on a televised telephone tattin with British viewers, hosted by the British Broadcasting Corp.

One caller asked if her frequent public appearances and discussions with the press about the Watergate scandal did not make it appear the president was hiding behind her skirts.

"He's very, very eager to be able to speak out on Watergate as soon as all testimony has been given by all the witnesses," Julie replied. "And I think until it has a chance to speak out, I'll welcome every opportunity to remind the American people that their confidence in him has not been misplaced."

Licence Lost

TORONTO (CP) — An appeal by Trans-Canada Car Leasing Ltd of Toronto against a decision to revoke the company's licence was dismissed Tuesday in a 2-1 decision by divisional court of the Ontario Supreme Court.

The commercial registration appeal tribunal had ordered the firm's licence revoked because it had rolled back the odometers on 130 cars a total of 1.8 million miles and thus committed a fraud on the unsuspecting public."

The majority judgment, signed by Chief Justice Dalton Wells and Justice Peter Wright, said:

"Not only the appellants, but all engaged in this business must realize they can do so only if they act honestly and fairly."

Skeeters Bad

EDMONTON (CP) — Continued wet weather to aid the mosquito hatch could create an emergency situation for cattlemen during the next five to 10 days in central Alberta, a provincial agriculture department spokesman said Tuesday.

B. D. Dixon, head of the department's plant industry laboratory, said cattle in an area between 25 miles to 100 miles southeast of Edmonton and east to Provost are "severely bothered by the hordes of mosquitoes in the area.

"Last week I saw a mating population 30 feet high, 1½ miles long near Stettler," Mr. Dixon said.

The mosquito breeding cycle is seven days and "we could be looking at a population 100 times greater than it is now," he said.

Alter Rules

OTTAWA (CP) — The health department announced Tuesday it is changing regulations to allow inclusion of vegetable proteins in meat products. It also will allow simulated meat products, provided they match quality and quantity standards equivalent to real meat.

The changes also reduce the amounts of sodium nitrates and nitrites that can be used in cured meats, such as sausages, bacon, weiners and meat specialty products. These chemicals can combine with other substances in the stomach to form cancer-causing compounds, it was learned earlier this year.

Friday Is Highlight of Party

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A giant birthday party, replete with all the trimmings, is setting the pace these days in this historic city.

The pageantry, which has been gaining momentum since the beginning of the year, reaches its climax Friday with the re-enactment of the arrival here 300 years ago of Governor Frontenac to establish a military stronghold and trading post.

Flanked by Indians and voyageurs, a modern-day Frontenac will journey up the St. Lawrence River and present Mayor George Speal with the original deed for the property on which Kingston now stands.

The location of the present city was chosen by La Salle in 1673 for a peaceful meeting between Frontenac and area Iroquois. Frontenac took possession of the land in the name of King Louis XIV of France and constructed the fort.

La Salle, the first commandant, named the area Fort Frontenac, the name used interchangeably with Cataraqui until the 1780s. Then, under British rule after the Seven Years War, it was renamed Kingston, apparently in honor of King George III.

At about that time, the site was recognized for settlement by United Empire Loyalists from what now is New York State. And within the next decade Kingston was selected as the chief naval base for Lake Ontario and a dockyard was built on neighboring Point Frederick, later an important base in the War of 1812.

Rich with history, the city, now with a population of more than 73,000, was the site of the first session of the executive council for Upper Canada in 1792, marking the beginning of civil government in what now is the province of Ontario.

Kingston, incorporated as a town in 1838 and as a city in 1846, was the capital of the "Province of Canada" from 1841 until 1844. The capital then was moved to Montreal.

It was also in Kingston, in 1867, that Confederation was proclaimed in the famous Market Square. The home of Confederation's chief architect, Sir John A. Macdonald, is a historic site here.

Other memorable dates:

1 8 1 9—Kingston Gazette newspaper was inaugurated; 1816—The Frontenac, first steamer on Lake Ontario, was launched; 1835—Curling was introduced here, first place in Upper Canada; 1839—Rideau Canal was opened; 1235—Fort-Henry, later replaced by another fort which still stands, was completed; 1839—Lord Sydenham, Governor-General of Canada, initiated legislation to unite Lower and Upper Canada; 1841—Act of Union brought together Canada East and Canada West; Kingston was the seat of the first meeting of the Parliament of Canada; 1842—Queen's College was opened; 1849—British Whig became a daily paper; first in Kingston; 1856—Grand Trunk Railway completed, with first passenger train leaving for Montreal; 1870—Imperial troops were withdrawn, having been here since 1783; 1876—Royal Military College was opened; 1891—Sir John A. Macdonald died.

But officials say the major 20th-century reliving of the past focuses on Frontenac's famous river journey, highlighting the homecoming week July 9-15.

Among other events planned are the Whole World Celebration Aug. 4-5, with crafts, theatre, music, film and dance; a Canada-United States goodwill day Aug. 18 with a military tattoo; the Canadian Olympic Regatta; Training Kingston (CORK) sailing competition Aug. 25-Sept. 1; a Canadian Armed Forces air show Aug. 30; candlelight tours of historic houses Oct. 2-4; and special day-long celebrations to commemorate the closing of the tercentenary Dec. 31, including the burial of a capsule.

German Magazine Quotes Liz

BONN (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor says mutual jealousy between herself and Richard Burton led to the couple's separation after nine years of marriage, a West German magazine reports.

The magazine Bunte Illustrierte says she told it that she "loved being desired by other men" and that her husband "couldn't stand it."

The 41-year-old actress said her husband's involvement with other women, by the same token, made her "come apart inside," the magazine says.

She also said over-glamorizing of her marriage to the 47-year-old Welsh actor led to the separation, said the interview released today in advance of publication.

Miss Taylor was not immediately available for comment on the article. She was reported to be staying in the Los Angeles area. She and Burton have given themselves three months to save the marriage.

"We quarrelled, regardless of whether somebody was present or not," she is quoted as saying.

"The love between Richard and myself turned gradually into a gigantic commercial undertaking.

"I am very quarrelsome. I always wanted to be in the centre and loved being desired by men. That gave me the feeling of being even more beautiful.

"Richard couldn't stand it. He had a murderous jealopy, and because of this, we several times hit each other."

She said her husband was involved with several women since their 1964 marriage.

"And they weren't the ugliest," she said.

"At first, it amused me. I knew that he didn't realize such a fuss about it and that I would still be able to keep him for myself."

She said if she is divorced from Burton, her fifth husband, "I can swear to you that I shall never again marry."

Pageant Begins

ATHENS (AP) — The 22nd Miss Universe beauty pageant got under way today as 64 beauties from around the world gathered at a nearby beach resort.

It was the first of 10 days for the contestants vying for the Miss Universe 1973 crown. The winner will be crowned July 31.

Debby Ducharme, 20, of Port Colborne, Ont., is Canada's entry. She was crowned Miss Dominion of Canada June 30 at Niagara Falls, Ont.

The hospital receptionist also will represent Canada in the Miss World competition in London and the Miss International event in Japan.

In all, Miss Ducharme will travel an estimated 300,000 miles during her reign, making 403 appearances.

Many Complaints

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec consumer protection bureau handles a daily average of 200 complaints in its Quebec City office and 400 in its Montreal offices. Since 1971, the bureau has opened a total of 6,016 dockets on consumer complaints.

Fungus Survey

KENTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — The department of lands and forests is starting a survey in the province to ascertain the prevalence of a fungus that may be a threat to natural pine stands and pine tree plantations, provincial forester LeRoy Wright said.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, July 12

Aries (March 21-April 19): Repercussions of yesterday's incidents are felt causing pigments of tension or excitement. Pick up the pieces; see the humor of it all.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Working arrangements improve with little effort. Keep a watchful eye on possessions and property.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Answering tender feelings to loved ones is as important as pushing your career. Many projects compete for attention.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): It's a lively day. Local issues attract your interest. Get the whole story before you take a stand.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Routine goes better than usual. People of opposite views come and go—most can be safely sidestepped. Confrontation stalls progress.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Advice from odd sources makes sense to you. Your activities have come to general attention. A conservative course is indicated.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Now is the time to cash in on special enterprises. Gather scattered possession. Evening could be fun.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Disturbing approaches pay off. Favors are granted unexpectedly just when you are not depending on them. Be pleasant to all.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Early morning inspiration deserves constant follow-up. Use any special knowledge you have to advantage.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb 18): Details left over from prior moves must be squared away. Do difficult tasks first.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Take initiative with savvy and style. What seems to you common sense, seems revolutionary and even startling to your associate.

Study Whales

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba government, faced with a federal ban on whale hunting, has awarded a $12,000 grant to a group of university students to conduct a research project on beluga whales at Churchill. The project will study the behavior of the whales and promote tourism in the area. Scientists nationally distributed articles on the area and the whales.

Wrong Attitude

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadians seem to be suffering from a "Plain of Abraham complex" as far as bilingualism is concerned," says Keith Spicer, commissioner of official languages. "It seems to me that we're suffering from a complex—sort of the conquerors versus the conquered—and using that as an excuse not to be bilingual."

Digging Planned

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (CP) — The first archaeological excavation in the Alberni Valley area will be carried out this summer on a small piece of land at the head of the Alberni Inlet on Vancouver Island. Denis Ste. Claire, who will head the five-member team, says the land is known to have been an Indian habitation site.

Digestion

Dear Dr. Thosteson: After having pericardiitis, could I get it again? — Mrs. F.R.

You could, but you won't necessarily. Pericarditis is an inflammation of the heart's outer lining. So compare it to an inflamed finger. There's no particular reason why you should have it a second time — but having had it once doesn't protect you against having it again.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Do you have exercises for a person with disc trouble? I've been sidelined in fishing my midrift but feel restricted because of a past herniated disc in the spine.— M.F.

Not all back exercises suit all people. In your case, I certainly would consult the doctor who treated the disc condition, and find out from him what would be suitable for you and what would not.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any way a person can tell whether he has bad breath? I have no one to ask. I have children but no sinus trouble. — L.M.

The most obvious and logical method, of course, is to ask someone. But all know that this doesn't always work because of the advancement used to say, "Even your best friends won't tell you."

Usually a relative, especially mother, is a good one for young folks who have to get a "breath test." Her concern for your social life will usually far transcend any qualms over hurting your feelings.

But if you say, you have no one to turn to, then you can make a pretty good reading on your breath by simply cupping your hand over your mouth and breathing in for it. This should tell you whether or not your breath could stand improvement.

If you do have halitosis, then the only real answer is to get rid of it, rather than go through life shoving your mouth with temporary solutions such as mouthwashes which will only mask the problem.

Your rhinitis could be causing bad breath. If not that, bad breath can be caused by dental problems, mouth breathing or any other oral, nasal or intestinal tract disorders.

If the problem could be caused by such a simple thing as improper mouth hygiene, careless brushing and failure to rinse the mouth after brushing and eating.

To Your Good Health

Tubal Ligation No Health Hazard

George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have several letters in your column concerning the new operation, tubal ligation, but no one has asked the questions that concern me the most:

How does this operation affect menopause?

What happens to the egg once it cannot travel through the tubes to meet the sperm?

If pregnancy is denied later on in life, can the tubes be untied?

Is there any unusual pain after the operation?

Have there been any side effects? — Mr. R.T.

Tubal ligation is not a new operation.

It seems to me I've touched on these questions before, but since you lump them as together I'll answer them briefly. It seems that hear repetition, I'll take them one at a time.

1. The operation has no effect on menopause.

2. The egg, which is of microscopic size, simply disintegrates after ovulation.

3. Untying the tubes is an unpredictable thing and is usually not done. It's best to undertake such an operation as tubal ligation if you will as vasectomy with the idea that it is probably irreversible.

4. No pain is usually associated with the operation.

5. The only possible side effects are those associated with any operation, with the ever present possibility of infection. Post-surgical care normally eliminates this.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Do you think a person could get it again? — Mrs. F.H.

You could, but you won't necessarily. Pericarditis is an inflammation of the heart's outer lining. So compare it to an inflamed finger. There's no particular reason why you should have it a second time — but having had it once doesn't protect you against having it again.

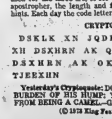
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X B
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three Ls, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Father Mullin Named Pastor

The assistant pastor of Belleville's Holy Rosary Church has been appointed pastor.

He is Rev. George Mullin, OFM, who served as assistant pastor in 1967-70 and again from 1972.

Ordained in the Franciscan Order in 1958, Father Mullin has served assignments in New York, Costa Rica and Burlington, Ont.

After his assistant pastorate in Belleville he served a similar assignment in Don Mills, returning once more to Holy Rosary last year.

Father Mullin succeeds Rev. Reginald Sweeney, Holy Rosary pastor for the past 10 years, who now has been assigned to St. Lambert, Que.

Lawyer Coming

MARMORA (Special) — Marmora will soon have a resident lawyer, Andre L. Philpott of Toronto has accepted the 47 Forsyth St. house formerly owned by the late Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clairmont and will use it as a residence and law office.

Bail Set

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — Bail ranging from $750 to $10,000 was set in provincial court Tuesday for 23 persons charged in a $1 million drug seizure on Vancouver Island.

All 23 are charged with possession of hashish for the purpose of trafficking. Ten are also charged with conspiring to import hashish into Canada.

Thirteen of the accused, including six women, were arrested June 30 as Canada's Armed Forces personnel and the RCMP boarded the converted United States minesweeper Meryaville in Quatsino Sound. Seven men from the Canadian lobbed Cordelia were arrested the same day.

Probe Charge

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario health personnel will investigate his complaints that a home for the elderly here is understaffed, Peter Reilly, Conservative MP for Ottawa West, said Tuesday.

Mr. Reilly earlier had called for a provincial inquiry into operations of Beacon Hill Lodge.

The nursing home was "seriously understaffed," Mr. Reilly said in a statement.

During a visit to the home he had seen a man confined to a wheelchair and whom had only two baths in three months; a woman who said she fell in her room and lay there for two hours before being discovered and two elderly people who had been in urine-soaked beds for several hours.

Warrant Issued

EDMONTON (CP) — A warrant was issued Monday for the arrest of a St. Albert, Alta., man who failed to appear in provincial court to face charges of arson, conspiracy and conspiracy to commit armed robbery.

Provincial Judge Guy Beaudry issued the warrant for Peter Econompoulos, charged in connection with a $10,000 Yellow Cab courier robbery Jan. 3.

Dance Music Cuts Meeting

MARMORA (Special)—Marmora and Lake townships council's July meeting was cut off at the shortest in the year. Councillors could hardly hear each other above the noise of a rock group playing for a teenage dance in the upper part of the town hall.

Council decided not to repair the Gulf Bridge, where flooring has been burned off. Because the bridge is part of a snowmobile trail, the snowmobile club will be notified of the bridge closing. The club made some repairs to the bridge when trails were laid out two years ago.

Councillor James (Scotty) Cook expressed alarm at how quickly trenches at the new disposal site are filling up. He suggested that council consider buying a compactor or hiring a contractor with a compactor. Garbage, he said, is going to be a costly item. Total cost of closing the old disposal site and seeding it was $3,784, shared equally by Marmora village and the townships.

Emily Klyoshk a 60-year-old Canadian Indian, out of hospital just two days after receiving treatment for a serious head injury and a bad heart, literally found herself on the street. Mrs. Klyoshk was evicted from her room on Brock Ave. in Toronto and her furniture was moved into the street without her knowledge, because she owed the landlord $12. (CP Photo)

Put this versatile workhorse to the test! Watch it rout out dirt, lint—even clinging animal hairs—from every type of carpet. Shags, plush, twists, indoor/outdoor.

Low-profile powermate with exclusive beater bar brush cleans under furniture that would foil any ordinary upright. It teams up with the powerful suction of the canister to swoosh up the most stubborn dirt. 2-speed motor for cleaning versatility. Plus "ride-along" caddy with dust brush, crevice tool and upholstery brush. Let's you clean delicate drapes, bare floors, hard-to-reach spots ...effortlessly! Cord reel automatically stores entire 20' cord. It's Canada's most complete home cleaning unit. So versatile you'll wonder how you ever managed before!

Twenty-two master tales of mystery and suspense dedicated to the proposition that great writers, when they write mystery stories, write great mystery stories.

I SERVED CAESAR— Derek Wise.

This is the story of two Romans, the young dukus Caesar and his slave Prosperus. Prosperus was inevitably involved in Caesar's adventures, both military and romantic.

THE MATLOCK PAPER — Robert Ludlum

Professor Matlock has been chosen to discover the whereabouts of a meeting of overlords of crime, in an effort to break up an immensely powerful organization known only as Nimrod. It was an invitation to a frightening chain of events ending in violence and death.

THE TWO FACES OF DR. COLLIER—Elizabeth Seifert

Here is the story of a successful doctor who crossed too often into a grey world where scandal threatened his career and his marriage. And it is the story of a girl who found love and happiness among strangers.

Canadian Route Advocated

Alaskan Pipe Faces Stiff Senate Fight

WASHINGTON (CP) — Accusing the oil companies of creating an energy crisis, Senator Walter Mondale (Dem.-Minn.) has asked the United States Senate to delay action on the Alaskan pipeline while studying an alternative route through Canada.

"It is my belief that a pipeline-delivery system through the Mackenzie Valley of Canada would be the most logical means of transporting North Slope oil to American markets," Mondale said Wednesday.

"There is no hard evidence that construction of a trans-Canadian pipeline would delay delivery of Alaskan oil by three or five years," he said.

In his Senate speech, Mondale introduced an amendment calling for the government to begin immediately negotiating with Canada for the pipeline. The measure also would require an 11-month study by the National Academy of Sciences, comparing the economic, environmental and national-security aspects of the alternative routes.

Mondale said: "It is quite clear that there is a real connection between the nation's energy problems, the creation of that problem, and the desire by the oil industry for lucrative concessions from Congress.

"The question before us is whether we will make a major decision affecting American energy needs on the basis of adequate information, or whether we will ratify a decision made by a few huge oil companies, acquiesced to by American government agencies and never seriously tested."

Under his proposal, Congress would be required to select a route within 90 days after the academy submits its report.

There were dissenting views.

Senator Russell Long (Dem.-La.) said that, if a pipeline to carry Alaskan oil passes through another country, "you can never be sure it will be made available to the United States."

Senator Mike Gravel (Dem.-Alaska) agreed. "It is unreasonable to assume that Canada will deny its own people oil for our benefit," he said.

Although his measure call's for a year's delay, Mondale said: "We must recognize that no pipeline from Alaska will keep our gas tanks full this summer or prevent possible fuel oil shortages this coming winter."

Mondale's amendment is supported by 17 senators, including Senator Birch Bayh (Dem.-Ind.). It has been offered to a bill sponsored by Senator Harry Jackson (Dem. Wash.), calling for construction to begin immediately on an 800-mile route across Alaska to a West Coast supertanker port.

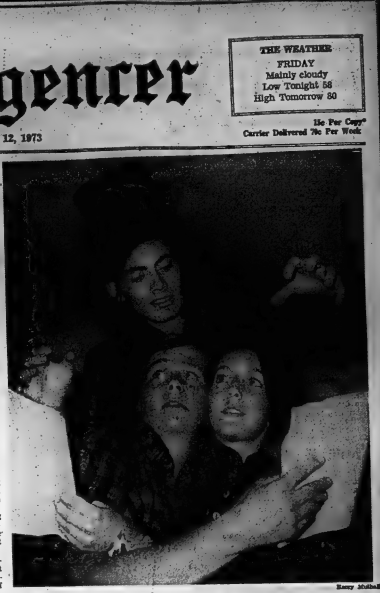
Earlier, Mondale's press secretary, Ernie Lotin, said recent official announcements in Canada have helped the cause of those supporting the Mondale-Bayh position. The Canadian statements, made last month in the form of answers to questions posed by the U.S. state department, were made public Friday.

"This is the first time we have got such feedback from Canada and it's encouraging," said Lotin in an interview.

"As I understand it, the Canadian position is that Canadians are not opposed to a Canadian line—and that is the first time we have had that officially."

The Canadian position is that a Canadian oil line might never be built if the Alaska line is built first.

Howard Pastore, oil assistant to Senator Bayh, said this position "reinforces what we have been saying in a manner we never could do."



"The oil companies have raised the phoney issue that if you go along with the Alaska line, the Canadian line will come later.

"We have said again and again that if the Alaska line is built, the Midwest will never see Alaskan oil. These statements by the Canadians are going to help us, no doubt about it."

Orangemen Mark Twelfth In Belfast

BELFAST (Reuter) — Thousands of Protestants marched through the streets of Belfast and other Northern Ireland towns today to celebrate a 17th-century protestant victory.

The most stringent security measures of the year were in force. But troops guarding the parade routes kept well in the background.

"Make no mistake, we are here and in strength," said a senior army officer. "But it is our hope that we will not be needed."

As the parades began, police in the Northern Ireland capital were investigating the murder of a young man found in a Roman Catholic enclave in East Belfast. The man had apparently been strangled.

News Briefs

Incomes Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — The average family income rose 16 per cent between 1969 and 1971, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday. However, rising prices in that period ate up about seven per cent of the increase. The average income in 1971, was $10,113 compared with $8,722 in 1969.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The financially-ailing Penn Central has gained a $17-million loan and a promise of federal assistance during, and possibly after, its reorganization.

Strike Called Off

MONTEVIDEO (Reuter) — Strikers were prepared to go back to work today after the outlawed Uruguayan National Workers' Convention (CNT) called off a 15-day stoppage in protest against the new military-backed government.

Hijacking Feared

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — French police took precautions today against any attempt by opponents of French nuclear tests to hijack a French plane and fly it over the test site in the South Pacific. Armed guards were put on all French commercial planes flying into and out of Papeete. All passengers and their baggage were closely searched at the airport.

Pipeline Is Mixed Blessing

TORONTO (CP) — Two documents identified as confidential federal government papers published in the department of industry trade and commerce suggest a price squeeze for natural gas and oil is needed and that Canada should charge what the export market will bear." Domestic prices should be "significantly lower."

Inouye said that except in the case of Dean, fired April 30, Nixon did not appear to have reacted strongly.

White House aides H. R. "Bob" Haldeman and John Ehrlichman resigned from Nixon's staff the same day, but Inouye noted that the president had said he regretted that and considered them fine public servants.

"Is this lowering the boom?" Inouye asked.

"No," said Mitchell, "but it shows a streak in the president of warmth and kindness that most people haven't attributed to him before."

Mitchell implied that the resignations of Haldeman and Ehrlichman were less voluntary than they had been made to appear in the White House announcement.

"It's my opinion, senator, that particularly during the month of April and the succeeding, intervening period of time, he has done exactly what he should have done in lowering the boom by removing the people from the White House and by appointing the special prosecutor," Mitchell told the Senate's televised Watergate hearings.

Inouye said it was intense pressure from Congress that led to the appointment of special prosecutor Archibald Cox. But Mitchell said that was Nixon's action.

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — "He was just ripping the baby apart," says a grandmother who killed a mountain lion with a butcher knife as it mauled her infant grandson.

"I did what I had to do, that's all," said Mrs. Peter Underdahl of Anoka, Minn. "I think anyone, with God's help, could have done the same thing."

The boy, 18-month-old Jason Cowden, was listed in serious condition Wednesday in hospital. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cowden of Rapid City.

The 120-pound lion leaped through a partially opened window of a motor home Tuesday and began mauling the child in a tourist attraction called Bear Country. The boy was in the motor home with his mother and her parents. The vehicle had stopped momentarily.

Bear Country is a fenced park containing bears, buffaloes, wolves and mountain lions. The animals roam freely within the fenced area, and tourists drive their own vehicles through the park eight miles south of Rapid City.

Mrs. Underdahl, 53, a slender, five-foot-tall woman, fought back tears as she described her ordeal in an interview at the hospital.

"All I kept saying was, 'Bring me a knife! Bring me a knife!' Finally, my husband handed me a butcher knife and I jammed it in and twisted it and the lion went slack, and I knew I had pierced the heart.

"I said a prayer that the Good Lord would give me the strength and the right spot, and He did."

Mrs. Underdahl said the lion was about 10 feet away when Mrs. Cowden stopped the motor home and opened a side window to take a photograph.

"It was just lying down and calm as could be," she said.

She said the lion sprang when the baby came toward the window.

"I think it was the quick motion and the baby's small size, the prey thing," she said. "You know, those animals attack anything smaller and weaker than they are."

UN May Drop Dollar As Its Monetary Base

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The recent sharp fluctuation of the American dollar on world markets has aggravated the financial plight of the United Nations and UN officials are studying whether to switch to some other monetary base for its operations.

The UN budget, which runs to $220 million this year, operates in terms of the U.S. dollar. Member countries pay their annual assessments and other charges in American funds and the UN pays its bills in the same currency.

"A change in the UN monetary base may have many repercussions. A number of countries, including Canada, would find the change more expensive since they would have to put more in their local currency for the harder French or Swiss francs than they do now for the weakened U.S. dollar.

Canada's payments to the UN total $46 million a year, made up of $5.5 million in annual assessment and $39.5 million to maintain UN operations around the world, including such agencies as UNESCO, the World Health Organization and the International Civil Aviation Organization headquarters in Montreal.

The final decision can be made only by the General Assembly, which opens in September for its fall session. So far, the idea of a monetary switch is only in the discussion stage.

Member governments have not yet been consulted.

The 1973 decline in the dollar benefits many smaller member countries. Their local currency goes farther when they buy dollars to pay their UN bills. The UN, on the other hand, suffers every time the dollar goes down. It has to use more dollars to pay for many overseas operations.

One major concern is the 4,800 retired UN employees around the world. Their pensions are paid in U.S. dollars and some have seen the value of their monthly cheques drop as much as 20 per cent as a result of the decline of the dollar.

A pensioner living in Switzerland, for example, could get 4.3 Swiss francs for each dollar in 1971. Now his dollar is worth less than three francs.

The UN pension bill, financed by UN and employee contributions, is about $1 million a year.

Many countries are expected to oppose a change, some because it would increase their UN costs and others because they feel it unnecessary to take such a step when the UN spends more than 60 per cent of its budget in the U.S.

No Word Yet On Location Of Canadians

SAIGON (CP) — The Viet Cong today still had not told officials of the International Commission of Control and Supervision where two missing Canadian officers are located.

Canadian officials saw nothing suspicious in the long delay in releasing the men after the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary government said the men were being held.

They said communication with the Viet Cong is not easy and it could take some time for word to get to Saigon on where rescue helicopters should land.

Mitchell Maintains Nixon Has 'Lowered Boom' on Watergaters

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Mitchell said today President Nixon has been "lowering the boom" on Watergate participants since April, doing exactly what he should have done.

Senator Daniel Inouye (Dem.-Hawaii) said he didn't see much evidence the boom had been lowered on anyone except John Dean, fired White House counsel.

Mitchell had testified earlier he sought to shield Nixon from word of Watergate involvement and other wrongdoing for fear the president would take strong action and damage his own re-election campaign.

Inouye asked what strong action Nixon took after he did find out.

"I think he has done so by the appointment of a special prosecutor, removing the people from the White House that were involved in the activities . . . ."

Mitchell said.

The White House had resisted appointment of the special prosecutor, finally authorizing the step April 30.

As for presidential action to get rid of aides involved in Watergate, Mitchell cited the cases of Jeb Stuart Magruder and Egil Krogh.

Krogh, a former White House aide, resigned May 9 as undersecretary of transportation.

Magruder quit April 26 as policy director at the commerce

"I remember it well, Martha was on the phone at the time."

Northern Pickets Protest Trucks

A last - minute phone call averted what could have become a confrontation between Northern Electric pickets and employees of Lafferty-Smith Express Lines this morning.

The hauling company, which had been hired by Northern management to transport cardboard boxes from a warehouse to the Lafferty office, ordered its drivers to cross the cordons inside trailers but leave the trailers next to the warehouse.

Pickets, however, claimed Lafferty-Smith was not honoring its strike by removing the boxes.

Northern union officials contacted the shipping company which then ordered the change in plans.

If the removal procedure had gone ahead as scheduled, it would have been the first instance of strike-breaking since Northern employees went on strike May 7.

Permit Application Total $275,000

Building permit applications for the construction of two new industrial structures in the city's northeast sector have been made at city hall.

The other is from Pan Pro-perties for erection of a rental structure of about 12,000 square feet costing an estimated $95,000, planned for the Adam Street and University Park area. The structure would be divided into about six rental units.

Both projects were previously announced by the city industrial commission.

Milk Producers Seek Boost

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Industrial milk producers in Canada are seeking a $1 per 100 pounds price increase, Ken McKinnon, vice-chairman of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, said Tuesday.

He said the increase, which must be approved by the federal government, was passed at a recent meeting in Edmonton of the Canadian Milk Board.

Ontario producers now receive for industrial milk $5.09 plus a subsidy of up to $1.46 per hundredweight.

Industrial milk is used in the production of butter, powdered milk, cheese, ice cream and condensed milk.

Mr. McKinnon said the board would not suggest how much of the increase, which could be effective as early as Aug. 1, should be passed on to consumers.

From the Ashes

A new trust company building is proposed for construction at the corner of Front Street and Victoria Ave. on the site of the former King Sol store. Architect Ernest A. Cromarty of Kingston said negotiations indicated construction of a pressed concrete structure with exposed aggregate finish could begin in the near future. Drawing shows the Front Street elevation of the three-storey structure which would extend about 84 feet along Victoria Ave.

Courteous Citizens Thanked

In a letter received Wednesday by the Belleville Police Commission, Raymond Watson, who lives in the island capital of Kingston, expressed his thanks to Belleville for their conduct at the time of his mother's death.

Although unable to attend the funeral, Mr. Watson based his appreciation on a letter he received from a brother who commented on the "moving and tender incidents" that took place when their mother, Mrs. William Watson of 65 Joyce Cr., died last month.

Recounting the sorrowful period, Mr. Watson expressed gratitude to policemen who led the funeral procession and saluted his mother as she entered Belleville Cemetery, to road repairmen who doffed their hard hats while the cortege passed and to drivers of cars and buses who pulled to the side of the road as the procession moved through the city.

He also noted the help of doctors, nurses and friends from Mrs. Watson's church who comforted her during her illness.

"There cannot be much wrong with a country bearing such people," he wrote.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey, a member of the commission, said she would see that copies of the letter are given to aldermen at the next meeting of city council.

"It's really a letter to the people of Belleville," she said.

As a final comment, Mr. Watson made the remark: "Henceforward, on each occasion I see a Canadian in a London pub, I'll buy him, or her, a drink — and they will wonder why."

Barn Burns

TWEED (Special) — Fire destroyed a barn filled with hay July 11 on lot 14, concession 12 of Hungerford township, two miles northeast of Tweed. The barn, full of new hay, was owned by Joe Murphy.

Tweed's volunteer firefighters answered the call at 2:30 p.m. but found the roof destroyed on their arrival. No estimate of the value of the lost hay crop is available.

Testimonial For Grills Is Planned

A testimonial dinner for Lee Grills, former MP for Hastings, will be held Sept. 18 at the Royal Canadian Legion hall in Belleville. Mr. Grills gave up his seat in parliament before the federal election in the fall which saw Jack Ellis, Progressive Conservative, elected to represent Hastings riding.

Timber! for Elm

A giant elm at the offices of McFarland Construction in Picton was felled Tuesday as passers-by watched. One of the landmark trees in town the once stately tree had died. A second tree, also dead, was removed from the office lawn.

Young Actors Start Early

This year Theatre August runs in July.

The switch doesn't signify any audience problems in what is a peak vacation month.

Last summer the company of young players packed the Belleville Theatre Guild's Pinnacle Playhouse with their program of one-act plays.

So heartening was the response, in fact, the group this year is adding an extra night to accommodate audiences.

The change in programming to July gives the players themselves more freedom at holiday time. As in the past, the company is mostly made up of high school graduates and university students.

The group produced from an experimental youth theatre organized four years ago at the playhouse. It uses Theatre Guild facilities and receives support from the city's recreation department which contributes a grant to cover running expenses.

After last summer's success, the company cleared $275, later turned over to the guild.

However, this year, the total emphasis is on comedy.

The program at the playhouse runs July 25 - 28.

Drug Counselling Plan Submitted

A young high school student, alarmed by rising drug use, wants to establish a program in city schools to warn students about the dangers of drugs.

The girl, in a letter to Mayor Robin Jeffrey, described the horror of watching one of her friends endure three-hour fits while suffering withdrawal from hallucinogenic pills she was taking.

Mayor Jeffrey presented the letter to the Belleville Police Commission Wednesday, adding she hoped something could be done to halt the problem.

The girl said it was her intention to form a group of students and parents who would draft a program for city schools. Among her requests was literature on drug abuse, already forwarded to her by Police Chief Douglas Crosbie.

The chief noted a similar program reached the formative stages under the leadership of Mayor Russell Scott but died when people began to lose interest. One of the plans was to establish a crisis centre in the city for persons with drug problems.

Commission member Judge Wilfrid Lane of Picton commented that student involvement was one of the best means by which young persons could be reached. He said older persons often find a communications gap when they begin to deliver lessons on drugs.

Borrow-bike Plan Presented

Non-owners of bicycles who would appreciate the opportunity of taking free rides around the Belleville area will be interested in the idea of a young Rednerville man.

Twenty-year-old Chris Hart appeared before the city recreation and arena committee Wednesday with the offer to set up a free bicycle service with riders placed on their honor not to make off with the machines.

The idea would be to repair older bicycles and make them available at parks or other convenient locations for the use of riders.

The machines would be painted bright yellow or some other bright color for easy identification and ownership would rest with the city.

Mr. Hart said the idea has been used successfully in at least one European country and felt it might also work here.

He said there were plenty of other unemployed young people who would offer their services to help repair the machines merely "for something to do."

If the committee approved of the idea, all that Mr. Hart asked is that the city provide licensing for the machines and storage for the winter months.

Committee members were enthusiastic about the idea but questioned the city's liability in such a project.

The question of liability will be referred to the city solicitor.

Rail Strife in Munro's Lap

Jack Thomas, head of Belleville's 259 non - operating workers, was commenting on a union report that 57,000 non-ops may be on strike by the last week of July, following the apparent failure of a conciliation board to resolve a contract dispute.

The eight non-operating unions want wage increases of about 15 per cent in the first year of a two-year agreement, while the companies involved, including CP Rail and Canadian National Railways, have offered seven per cent increase in the first year and 7.4 per cent in the second year.

Mr. Thomas xpressed dismay when told of the latest offer.

"If they are still offering that," he said, "then I — and the membership also feels this way — will go to the limit."

He said company offers were unchanged since the last contract expired in December but was optimistic Labor Minister John Munro could bring about a settlement.

Any action taken by the non-operating employees could spread to other workers such as 20,000 shopcraft employees and 14,000 trainmen who also are engaged in contract talks.

The result could be a national rail strike by July 24 or 25 — the first since 1966 when Parliament ordered the employees back on the job.

The bleak railway labor situation became apparent Wednesday after Mr. Justice Craig Munroe of the British Columbia Supreme Court submitted a conciliation board report to the federal labor department.

Mr. Justice Munroe was chairman of a three - member panel seeking a solution to the non-operating employees contract dispute.

Union and company nominees to the conciliation board were to submit separate reports — a sign that there may be little common ground between the members of the panel.

The non-operating employees are legally entitled to begin a strike seven days after Labor Minister John Munro receives the chairman's report.

Union sources said this would give them the right to walk off on Tuesday, but that because of problems of organizing a strike it was unlikely any such action would be taken before July 24 or 25.

Mr. Munro was non-committal about the first day of a legal strike when asked in an interview Wednesday. The seven-day period could start Wednesday, today or Friday, he indicated.

The minister said he was optimistic a settlement would be reached and added Canada Labor Department would offer mediation services to the parties in an effort to avoid a strike.

Union sources said earlier that the shopcraft workers and trainmen could be advised by their leadership to respect picket lines set up by the nonoperating employees, thus effectively stopping railway operations.

The unions are likely to try a rotating or selective strike action, but expect the companies to establish a lockout that would halt all rail traffic.

Negotiations for a new contract have been stalled over wage and job security issues, particularly. Average hourly wage for the country's eight non-operating unions is $3.81.

The 'Blues' Et Al

Got the blues? There is scarcely any of us who does not suffer from at some time or other, or from pain ordinary anxiety which psychologists say is essential in any event to intellectual wellbeing.

Be that as it may, here are some interesting facts and figures on this general subject. According to Dr. Ian Kenning, a Victoria B.C. psychiatrist, women outnumber men in mental institutions but men outnumber women in jails. Why? Because men are not supposed to be sick or weak; consequently they keep their emotional problems to themselves and tend instead to get into trouble with the law.

Meanwhile calls to the Toronto Distress Centre reveal that 63 per cent of the centre's callers are female, yet Statistics Canada reports that 74 per cent of those who actually commit suicide are male.

And, by way of confirming Dr. Kenning's analysis, the director of the Distress Centre, the Rev. Gordon Winch, expresses the belief that some men may think of themselves and their sex as too strong to need help. He said the centre was attempting to overcome this barrier by emphasizing the number of men involved in the work.

Strong, silent types then may not be all they appear, while the rest of us, male and female run the whole gamut of anxiety complexes, neuroses, hangups — anything that you will; but be assured that you are not alone. Hence, perhaps, the proliferation of group therapy, "encounter groups" and the like. "Talking it Out" is another way of putting it and the one conclusion we are left with is that the routine business of living does not permit enough of the kind of person-to-person communications that would free people of this type of problem.

Jailed in Cuba

The case of Ronald Lippert, the 40-year-old Kitchener pilot who has been jailed in Cuba for the past ten years, is attracting considerable attention at the moment.

Lippert's sister, Mrs. Rosemary Lawrence, and 18-year-old daughter Ruth Ann McLean, are now back home after a week-long visit to Lippert in Havana.

Serving a 30-year-sentence for arms smuggling, the one-time flier was permitted to stay at the hotel with his relatives.

There are hopes that Lippert may now be released by Christmas, although for the time being such a prospect is still clouded in uncertainty. Mrs. Lawrence has accused the government of "pussyfooting" in its attempts to secure her brother's release.

Thus far the Government has been moving through normal diplomatic channels and it looks as if we shall have more of the same following rejection in the Commons of a motion for a vote on a direct appeal by Prime Minister Trudeau to Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

There is more wisdom in this decision than may be supposed. Even though Cuban officials have hinted that a top level appeal by Ottawa is indicated, this may not be the psychological moment. "Later perhaps but not now" is what Ottawa likely has in mind.

Meanwhile the family is encouraged by the interest being shown in Mr. Lippert's case by Leeds MP Tom Cossitt of Brockville. Mr. Cossitt has been to Cuba in recent years and has offered to go there again in an attempt to bring about the Lippert's release. But again this is contingent on the failure of routine diplomatic moves. Meanwhile the family in Kitchener, including Lippert's ailing mother, are hoping these efforts will pay off.

No Highway

We are always ready to praise the accomplishments of the younger generation. There are times however when the latter-day maturity that is claimed for them escapes us. For instance we had been taking a look at that great new park, beach and swimming facility at Riverside at the week-end and when leaving found ourselves behind two large groups of teenagers on bicycles. They took up the entire road and upon sounding the mildest of toots on the horn one youth turned around and grimaced, in the fashion of some hitchhikers who have been refused a ride. Another group, a short distance ahead, distinctly made no effort to let us through so that we had to do some fancy footwork so to speak to dodge these totally unconcerned young citizens. Bicycles may be fine thing these days, but that does not give their owners the right to spread themselves across the whole landscape.

Minority Government Situation

NDP Has Almost the Best of All Political Worlds

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — While the New Democrats have won nothing in terms of national support that they since have not lost in Tuesday's by-elections, at least on some time or other, or from pain ordinary anxiety which psychologists say is essential in any event to intellectual wellbeing.

Mitchell Faces Final Test Of Hostile Senators' Queries

WASHINGTON (AP) — After sparring with openly hostile senators, former attorney-general John Mitchell today faces a final test of his claim that he defended President Nixon from the Watergate scandal and the "White House horrors" to assure Nixon's re-election.

At the end of a long and acid exchange Wednesday with Senator Lowell Weicker (Rep, Conn.), Mitchell acknowledged that he probably ignored his legal duty as a lawyer and the former chief law-enforcement officer in the United States.

Mitchell, the president's former law partner, friend, confidant and campaign director, left the witness table in the Senate caucus room with a half-muttered closing remark: "It's a great trial being conducted up here, isn't it."

The Senate Watergate committee, however, already is looking beyond Mitchell to other witnesses and to the vital question of whether it should subpoena presidential papers related to the 1972 campaign.

Mitchell was scheduled to be followed to the Senate witness table late today by White House counsel Richard Moore, 59, the man to whom ousted White House counsel John Dean testified he confided "my deep concern about this matter, especially the cover-up."

Sources on the committee staff said that in a private session June 9, before Dean testified, Moore gave details of a high-level meeting to discuss Watergate developments attended by several White House aides at LeCosta, Calif., Feb. 10 and 11, 1973.

Mitchell had resigned as chief of Nixon's re-election committee the previous July, and Moore was tapped at the LaCosta meeting to keep him informed of late developments, the source quoted Moore as saying.

Dean has testified that among those attending the LaCosta meetings were H. R. Haldeman, then White House chief of staff, and John Ehrlichman, then the president's chief domestic adviser.

The source said Moore testified that one of these now-resigned aides stated that, if it were decided more money were needed, "Mitchell would have to raise it."

In his testimony Dean said the money was for possible further payments to Watergate defendants.

Moore, however, told the committee investigators it was never stated during the meetings why money might be needed, the source said.

And Moore also told investigators that, in a meeting with Mitchell in New York City on Feb. 15, the former attorney-general refused to raise any funds.

Pressure on the president to modify his stand against releasing presidential papers came from both the Watergate committee and special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Senator Sam Ervin, (Dem.N.C.), the committee chairman, used his questioning of Mitchell to send a signal to the president on the issue.

"I don't think that executive privilege covers any political activities whatsoever," Ervin said. "They are not official and have no relation to his office."

In his first day of testimony Tuesday, Mitchell said that when Gordon Liddy, then counsel for the Nixon campaign's finance committee, came to his justice department office and presented an intelligence-gathering plan than included kidnaping, prostitution, burglary and wiretapping, "I should have thrown him out of the window."

Mitchell denied he approved any such proposal.

But he said he did not tell the president of those meetings, or of other facts he uncovered after the Watergate burglary occurred.

Nor did he tell Nixon of that set of separate events, including the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, that he has grouped under the name "the White House horror stories."

Mitchell's constantly repeated answer was that, had the president known,he would have exposed and fired those involved and that might have jeopardized his chances of re-election.

Woolliams Says Co-ops In Racketeer Tax Scandal

OTTAWA (CP) — A Conservative MP referred Wednesday "a racketeer tax scandal" involving student housing co-operatives, but he did not go into details.

Two days earlier, the same MP, Eldon Woolliams Calgary North, in questions about the construction of four student housing co-ops, had referred to this particular scandal, particularly when there is misuse of funds and possible embezzlement and other kinds of conspiracy leading possibly to a question of fraud."

Higher Food Prices Defended

Only Way to Keep Farmers on Land

STURGEON FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Once again, a day after Statistics Canada reported another jump in food costs, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan has defended the increase as the only means of keeping farmers on the land.

"Farmers are not running a national welfare office," he told the Nipissing Liberal Association Wednesday. "To keep them on the land, we must give them a decent profit."

Last month, a day after the statistics bureau reported food prices increases of 1.6 per cent between April and May, Mr. Whelan accused consumers of being spoiled by low food costs during the last 20 years.

This month, the bureau reported a jump of two per cent in food costs between May and June, for a 13-month increase in grocery prices of 11.7 per cent.

"My ears are still ringing from some of the blasts I have received from city people when I have said that farm prices need to rise even faster," Mr. Whelan said Wednesday.

"They don't understand—or maybe they don't want to understand—that the only way we are going to keep on getting a food bargain here in Canada is to keep our farmers on the land.

"And to keep them on the land, we must give them a decent profit."

Mr. Whelan said "tens of thousands" of farm children and "thousands of farmers" have already left farming "because farming has not been as attractive as the fat pay cheques in the city."

"The only way we're going to keep them down on the farm is to put a decent profit into farming and into the family farm."

Mr. Whelan said the recently established food prices review board is learning that solutions to rising prices are not easy ones that can be tackled off the cuff.

A freeze on food prices, for instance, would create a "blacklash of food supply shortage" and the government would either have to ration food or face black market selling.

More gas than any other 1973 car*

The American Government's Environmental Protection Agency has published a study on automobile gas consumption. It rates every 1973 car sold in the U.S. Here are some of the results:

Datsun	29.7	33.9
Honda Sedan	25.9	32.3
Buick Colonnade	22.6	26.6
Dodge Colt	22.7	26.4
Volkswagen Sedan	21.7	25.2
Chevrolet Vega 2300	21.5	26.9
Ford Pinto Wagon	21.2	25.0
Fiat Sedan	20.8	23.8
Toyota Corona	20.8	23.8
American Motors Gremlin	19.0	22.0
Plymouth Valiant Duster	17.9	22.6
Volvo 145	17.7	22.2
Ford Maverick	16.3	20.4
Mercedes-Benz 280	14.7	20.3
American Motors Javelin	14.3	17.9
Chevrolet Nova	12.6	16.1
Chevrolet Chevelle	11.8	14.8
Ford Torino	11.8	14.8
Ford Station Wagon	10.1	12.7
Plymouth Fury	9.7	12.2
Rolls-Royce Silver Shadow	9.2	11.6
Chrysler Imperial	9.2	11.6
Cadillac Eldorado	9.1	11.5
Ferrari 365 GTB	8.3	7.8

*AS TESTED IN THE EPA STUDY

They found that a Datsun 1200 goes further on a gallon of gas than any of the others.

So if you drive a Datsun 1200 you'll save money on gas, and you'll burn a lot less of the fuel that causes much of our air pollution.

If you're economy-minded, or if you're ecology-minded . . .

Liberal MP Assails Election-time Waste

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Barnett Danson coupled a complaint in the Commons Wednesday about the "immense and incredible waste of money" during election campaigns with a suggestion that the public be made aware Parliament is not a playground for the rich.

Mr. Danson (North York) was speaking during second reading of a government bill to control election spending. It is expected the bill will be voted on tonight, then go to committee for detailed study and possible amendment.

Upset by a "waste of money that we would not tolerate in normal life," he supported the bill, saying it would remove the over-riding pressure to spend that overcomes many candidates and parties.

Over-spending usually places candidates under obligation to people who had money or access to money.

Mr. Danson said all parties probably have wealthy members, but he did not think it was just their money that got them elected.

"Nevertheless, the impression is around that it is a position for the wealthy. This, of course, must be eliminated."

He said the need to correct this impression is all the more serious when parties hope to have more women members elected.

"It is sometimes easier for a man to raise the money at the bank or by mortgaging his house. I suggest to honorable members that if their wives suggested that they mortgage the house to run for Parliament, they might not go along with that. So, this will give women a greater opportunity to compete in the political field."

The concern over rising campaign costs has been echoed by members on both sides of the House.

Liberal House Leader Allan MacEachen says the bill is the "most comprehensive attempt to control election expenses taken in Canada so far" and would result in "one of the most open and democratic elections in the world."

The bill would allow candidates to spend $1 for each of the first 15,000 eligible voters in their ridings, 30 cents for each of the next 10,000 and 25 cents for each one over 25,000. It also would require public disclosure of persons contributing $100 or more to campaign funds.

Terry O Connor (PC—Halton) said too much secrecy about campaign funds does not foster public confidence but potential contributors should be "free from scrutiny, comment and the possible derision of others" because of their political leanings.

Mr. and Mrs. Angus Hannah, of RR 1, Belleville wish to announce the engagement of their only daughter, Heather Mary to Roger Lloyd Heidt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anson Heidt, of Belleville. The marriage will take place August 11 at 3 p.m. in Parkdale Baptist Church.

MR. AND MRS. STEPHEN HANSON

Hanson—Westlake

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Hanson honeymooned in the Bahamas and Western Canada following their recent marriage in Whitby, Ontario.

Rev. Roger B. Race, married Joyce Marie, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Jack E. Westlake, of Whitby and Stephen Kenneth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth S. Hanson, Belleville in St. Mark's United Church, Whitby.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a high fitted polyester satin-peau gown. A three-tiered French illusion finger tip veil was gathered to a headpiece of full-bloomed roses and stephanotis. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations, fuji mums, stephanotis, red escort roses, and sweetheart roses with baby's breath.

Bridesmaids: Lydia Westlake, Oshawa,Sister-in-law of the bride: Debby Daniel, Toronto, sister of the bridegroom, and Marilyn Benko of Terrace Bay, Ontario were dressed alike. Each wore white polyester crepe gowns with red polka dots, and carried a white basket overflowing with fresh flowers.

Best man was Joe Black Jr., Belleville, cousin of the bridegroom. David Westlake, Oshawa, brother of the bride, Jerry Daniel, Toronto, brother-in-law of the bridegroom and Larry Westlake, Toronto, brother of the bride, ushered guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanson will reside at 177 Norquon Road, Apt. 1510, Oshawa, Ontario.

Williams — Wilson

Nancy Karen Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Wilson, Stirling, and Richard Edward Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Williams, Frankford, exchanged wedding vows in June at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling.

Rev. John May officiated.

She carried white daisies and red roses.

Lise Anne Richards, the bride's niece was flower girl. She wore a full length white gown similar to the bride's gown and carried a basket of white daisies. The bride's brother, Mark Wilson, was ring bearer.

The couple will reside in Frankford.

Engagement

MRS. LESLIE ELIZABETH SNIDER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Ineson, 68 Selena Ave., Belleville, received a Bachelor of Education degree from the University of Toronto recently. Mrs. Snider who received an Honors degree in Art from Queen's University, May, 1972, has accepted a teaching position with Gronanoque Secondary School.

MR. AND MRS. GIL SACHRO

Sachro—Dyke

An evening candlelight wedding service was held at Bishop Farquier Memorial Chapel, Sault St. Marie, Ontario when Nancy Louise Dyke, of Sault Ste. Marie exchanged vows with Gil Sachro, of Sutton, Ontario.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Ewing, RR 1 Carrying Place. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Henrietta Sachro, Sault St. Marie, and the late Fred Sachro.

Given in marriage by her step-father, Charles H. Ewing, the bride chose a long A-line polyester satin gown. A cluster of small yellow daisy mums and baby's breath, secured her formal veil. She carried a bouquet of yellow daisy mums, yellow sweetheart roses, a yellow cymbidium orchid and baby's breath.

Linda Tracy, as maid of honor, of Sault Ste. Marie and bridesmaids Lynda Dyke, sister of the bride, of Carrying Place, Helen Sachro, sister of the bridegroom and candlelighters Carrie Griswold and Barbara Sachro wore A-line polyester cotton gowns in pastel shades of peach, yellow and white.

Joseph Berdin Jr. of Sault Ste. Marie was best man. Ushers were Wayne Montgomery, nephew of the bridegroom from Sault Ste. Marie, and Chris Brown of Hobart, Tasmania.

Successful Living

Letters 'Posted' Under Mattress

By DORIS CLARK

The blackstrap molasses and wheat germ cult of 20 years ago, to say nothing of the ouija board and table-floating bounce, is the "in thing" today. From the chamber pot turned with jewellery as smart decor in the modern department store, to the whimperers of the Smith Brothers and Charlie Chan, it's all part of the scene.

Yes, those old family portraits of bewhiskered ancestors which we got rid of to the second-hand man, have come back to haunt us.

Have you noticed that Daisy Mae's hillbilly kin have swarmed down from the hills and taken over? Just visit any college campus, or for that matter stroll down any city street, and you will see themBare feet, ragged britches, floppy hats, and, of course, the whiskers.

What a canopy scene it is. Before we celebrate die of boredom, let's contact another planet and see what's cookin' there.

So what's new? Ho-Hum - bring my slippers and shawl. — V. Alexander in CCB Outlook.

Dear Doris: I have written uncountable letters that I "posted" under my mattress - and decided to destroy them later as I felt better having gotten rid of my tension by pen and paper!

I love life, really, I have been working outside painting my fence and straightening around, and though, because of the MS, I am very stiff and sore, I feel better. Your letter perked me up so much.

If my summer turns out to be something worth talking about, I'll drop you a line. It is nice to be able to converse with someone who is not going to find out all your little faults and harp on them instead of bringing up your four points as a so-called friend of mine (a woman) has pleasure in doing, while her faults are even worse! — Mrs. S.

Dear Mrs. S.: You are right that simply putting something down on paper does help to syphon off tension.

You have a lot of sunshine in you and I know you will not fall into the trap of feeling sorry for yourself. I'm looking forward to that report of summer activities and surely hope that they will turn out well.

Dear Doris: My two nieces, both 15, want to hitchhike 100 miles in bush country this summer. Since I am their guardian they need my consent and I am doubtful.

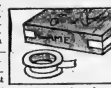
So many bad things can happen to girls, with all the unsavory types and motorcycle gangs.

We cannot live in fear, but where should we draw the line? My neighbors think I am being mean when I say "no" to such things. The girls are used to camps and to ted to hiking and of course they say they know how to take care of themselves. How would you handle it? — Westerner.

Dear Westerner: It is one thing for girls to go for a hike in the woods with a group and a camp counsellor. It is entirely another for two 15-year-olds to expose themselves to the dangers of the open road.

I am afraid my answer would be "no" too; at least for the next couple of years. They may think they are wise and mature and know all about life. But they don't - and as minors under your care, you have to see that they are properly protected.

(Try turning your trouble into triumph by getting help from a trained social worker. Write to Doris in care of this newspaper.)



People and Events

"Agriculture and Canadian Industries" was the program theme of Lansdale Women's Institute June meeting.

Readings were given on how farmers feed the world and provisions and groceries in 1890s and 1950s.

Miss Gladys Lamb entertained the Lamb family at a reunion at Grandview Golf Club where 35 members of the family gathered for dinner and to examine old family portraits. Family members attended from Niagara Falls, Woodstock, Peterborough, Wellington, Sudbury and Oshawa. Miss Lamb was presented with a corsage. Afterwards entertained at a buffet supper at her home.

Designer 'Mates' Fashions

New York (CP) — Canadian fashion designer Claire Haddad, already a hit with women in Canada and the United States, is making a play for the men's clothing trade.

In many cases her clothing for men is a takeoff on her fashions for women. But they are mated, not matched, as in her white wool caftan. Their complement each other but you'll have no trouble telling the man from woman.

"Clothes that go to bed must also go to the pool, even out for an evening party," says Miss Haddad.

Consequently, many of her elegant nightgowns and pyjamas can be worn as loungewear at home, on the patio or at a cocktail party.

Miss Haddad, who probably holds more awards than any other Canadian designer, including the U.S. Coty Fashion Critics' Award, has been thinking of expanding into the men's fashion field for some years.

As in the women's line, the clothes for men are manufactured with dressmaking techniques with soft, stretchy fabrics all aimed at comfort as well as good looks.

Ann Landers

Whats with All the Kissing?

Dear Ann Landers: What's with all the kissing in California? I moved to Fullerton from New England and I have seen more kissing since I arrived here than I saw in all the 40 years I lived in New England.

I was brought up in Boston, where a kiss means something. Bostonians don't kiss everybody they know. In Boston when friends meet they shake hands. If it's a formal affair, they smile and nod. Kissing is reserved for relatives or intimate friends. What about this, Ann? What do you think of the indiscriminate kissing in California? — Please Don't Kiss Me, Kate.

Dear Kissless: You rattled the wrong cage, Dearie. I'm a kisser myself. And so far, I haven't had any complaints. Even in Boston.

Perhaps there is more kissing in California because people tend to be more casual out there. With your attitude, however, you shouldn't have any trouble. Your emphasis on "propriety," as expressed in this letter, probably comes through loud and clear. I can't imagine casual acquaintances smothering you with kisses.

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed several letters from mothers who are fed up with the selfish and inconsiderate demands of their married daughters. These mothers have signed themselves "Had It," "Just Plain Tired," and "Too Much Is Plenty."

Why don't you print some letters from married daughters who have "Had It" and are "Just Plain Tired" of their "adhesive-tape" mothers? Surely you receive such letters. If not—Here's the first.

my mother lives two blocks from us. She phones me at least twice a day, usually it's more. I can't tell you how many times I have walked into the house and heard the phone ringing. Her first words are, "Where have you been? I've been trying to reach you for an hour," when I ask what is wrong she says, "Does something have to be wrong? I just want to know where you are."

My mother has had me paged at club meetings, the theatre and once at a ballpark. She frequently calls me when I am visiting friends. My husband is a saint to put up with her bloodbound tactics. He says she's a sick woman and I must be compassionate. I know he is right but I still find it very hard to take.

I'm not asking for advice, Ann. I just wanted you to know that sometimes the shoe is on the other foot, and—IT Pinches

Florida Seizes Treasure

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — State officials took possession of $750,000 in silver, gold and coins, believed to be part of a 1600 million treasure carried by two Spanish galleons which sank in 1622.

Robert Williams, director of the Florida archives, said Wednesday the state had taken custody of the treasure to make sure Florida gets its 25 per cent share of the find.

In turn, Williams said, the state will help protect the discovery made by Treasure Salvors, a firm of treasure hunters. The treasure was found under 20 feet of sand 30 miles off Key West.

It is just a small part of the fortune hidden in the wreckage of the Spanish galleons Nuestra Senora de Atocha and La Margarita which went down in a hurricane in 1622.

Officials say the find would be the oldest and perhaps richest shipwreck ever uncovered in the United States.

Kane Fisher, 14, son of Treasure Salvors President Mel Fisher, made the discovery which led to diving teams exploring the area where the $750,000 worth of gold and silver bars, coins and other artifacts was found.

Plant Destroyed

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — One man was killed and a manufacturing plant opened only three weeks ago was destroyed by fire Wednesday.

Bernard Jolin, 35, of Sault Ste. Marie was killed in the fire at Northland Trailer Sales. The fire was believed to have started from an explosion during construction of a house trailer. Cause of the explosion has not been determined.

Asper Loses

WINNIPEG (CP) — Returning officer Jim Maloway cast the deciding ballot in deadlocked Wolseley constituency Wednesday and declared New Democratic Party candidate Murdoch MacKay the winner over Liberal Leader Izzy Asper.

Mr. Asper's executive assistant, Peter Liba, immediately announced a judicial recount would be requested.

DOUBLE YOLKED

LONG BUCKBY, England (CP) — Housewife Denise Hurley found at least one 50 cent food buy. Every one of a dozen eggs she purchased was double-yolked.

Laporte Never Knew Who He Was to See

QUEBEC (CP) — Pierre Laporte never knew whom he was going to see shortly before the 1970 provincial elections when he met individuals identified now as underworld elements, the man who arranged the meeting said Wednesday.

Jean-Jacques Cote, a Liberal organizer during the elections, distributed a statement in Montreal to the press "to establish the facts."

He said the main reason for the meeting was to convince Mr. Laporte, then responsible for Liberal organization in 12 south-shore ridings opposite Montreal, that another party planned to carry out an electoral fraud.

Mr. Cote said he got wind of a plan to use a trailer to transport persons from riding to riding in the south shore on election day in an attempt to have false votes cast.

He told Mr. Laporte of the plan, but Mr. Laporte was skeptical.

Mr. Cote said he invited two cabaret owners to the meeting and they confirmed the electoral fraud plan.

He said the cabaret owners "have since acquired notoriety—one must recognize that they were suspected of nothing at the time."

The men, Nichola Di Iorio and Frank D'Asti, have since told reporters they were at the meeting. Both have been linked to organized crime by testimony at a Quebec Police Commission inquiry.

Mr. Cote said police checked on the activity of the trailer on election day and "neutralized" it.

Contract Talk Refused

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro declined to enter into negotiations with a development company on construction of a new Hydro headquarters even though the firm was willing to make concessions to get the contract, a select committee of the legislature was told Wednesday.

G. Vernon Tatham, vice-president of Y and R Properties Ltd., one of three firms that bid unsuccessfully for the Hydro contract, estimated he could have put up a prestige building for about $28 million. Documentary evidence introduced has said that Y and R Properties would charge a rental of $4.50 a square foot on the Hydro site.

Previous figures have indicated that the building under the winning proposal by Canada Square Ltd. would cost about $44 million with a rental of $4.92.

Mr. Tatham's testimony revealed his firm submitted two proposals. One was the present Hydro site on which Canada Square is building the new headquarters. The other submission would have included the Hydro building as part of a major downtown Toronto development his firm was planning.

He told the committee his firm was so anxious to obtain the Hydro contract for the alternative site that it was willing to buy the initial Hydro site, estimated to be worth more than $7 million, and also discarded Hydro plans for more than $1 million.

But, Mr. Tatham said, "the opportunity (to negotiate) was not afforded us."

The developer said his firm's position on the contract proposal was negotiable but "we never got into any negotiations."

Suddenly New Yorkers Do Battle with Thugs

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Nine years ago, a young woman was brutally stabbed to death as she walked home at night in a prosperous section of New York. At least 38 of her neighbors heard her scream for help as the murderer attacked her but not one even ventured to call the police.

The murder of Katherine (Kitty) Genovese became the most famous example of the reluctance of New Yorkers to "become involved" in any crime-related incident.

The Genovese slaying was followed by continuing reports of young toughs beating and robbing people on the streets and in the subways while bystanders looked on passively.

But suddenly, there has been a rash of incidents in which bystanders have become enraged by crimes around them and quickly responded by turning on the criminals. In three widely-publicized cases within a week, the criminals were trapped by the crowds before being rescued by the police.

City officials have welcomed the incidents as proof that New Yorkers still care about each other but some including the city's police commissioner, appear concerned that the tide might grow into vigilante justice.

"As soon as someone gets a bullet between the eyes, that's going to be the end of it," said one police official.

In the first instance of bystanders becoming involved, a crowd on Manhattan's upper west side set upon three muggers after they had knocked a man to the ground and taken a purse from his companion.

The three ran from the scene but a crowd followed them. The muggers jumped into a cab in escape but a growing mob surrounded the cab and tried to bring out the three. The muggers locked the doors and waited until police arrived and rescued them.

In another instance, also in Manhattan, three men chased two muggers who had knocked a neighbor to the ground and stolen six dollars.

The three ran after the muggers and held them until police arrived. "We just dropped our briefcases and took after them," one said later.

Once again, a crowd surrounded the muggers before police arrived.

In the third case, a man suspected of raping a nine-year-old girl was beaten unconscious by a crowd after the girl's brother shouted for help.

When the man emerged from a building, he was beaten by several dozen angry residents of the neighborhood and was taken to a hospital with a collapsed lung as well as cuts and bruises.

Since those three incidents, there have been other cases of crowds aiding police in attempted muggings in the sleazy Times Square area of the city.

The sudden upsurge of bystander involvement may be a response to the feeling of helplessness many New Yorkers have felt during a steadily-growing amount of crime in the streets.

Police Commissioner, Donald Cawley says the new involvement represents "a definite turn-around" from the Genovese murder. Mayor John Lindsay said he is encouraged by the reports of citizen involvement and added: "We certainly hope it is the beginning of a trend."

PM Says Opposition Unfair to Food Board

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau accused the opposition parties Wednesday of trying to destroy the credibility of the Food Prices Review Board before it has a chance to prove itself.

Replying in the Commons to charges that the board is ineffective because it has no regulatory powers, Mr. Trudeau said that the board is being prejudged.

"We want to give it a chance to operate," he said.

The government would review the board's work when it submitted its report and would take further action on prices then if necessary.

NDP Leader David Lewis said the government has emasculated the board by not giving it power to act on rising prices. He asked if the government is considering ways to strengthen it.

Mr. Trudeau said the board should be given a chance to do its work. It was composed of "very responsible men and women."

Fugitives Car Found At Oshawa Airstrip

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — A car commandeered by two prisoners who escaped custody Tuesday was found by police in nearby Oshawa Wednesday.

The car was located at a small, private airstrip in Oshawa. But the whereabouts of Steven Faust, 20, and Michael Mitchell McArthur, 21, was still unknown, a police official said.

The spokesman said they had no leads in the cases, although the unarmed escapees were reported to have been sighted in Toronto Tuesday night.

Daughter of Minister In OFY Grant Group

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says a daughter of Stanley Haidasz, minister of state for multiculturalism, was part of a group receiving an Opportunities for Youth grant of $15,400 to publicize multiculturalism for Polish journals in Toronto but left the team shortly after it won the grant, the paper says.

She is currently employed by Bomac Batten Ltd. of Toronto, an advertising and graphics house. The Globe and Mail says Bomac Batten worked on a $237,000 multiculturalism advertising contract awarded by the minister without public tender to Outreach Inc.

Haidasz, 58, was part of the 16-member group that was awarded the grant in May to prepare articles on multiculturalism for Polish journals to Outreach Inc.

Hazard Said Ignored

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — A report describing how more than 100 houses along a 29-mile stretch of the Credit River valley alt hazardously atop its slopes remains unacted upon since preparation in March, a University of Toronto professor said Wednesday.

Dr. Wyman Herrisod, department of geography at the university's Erindale College, said the Credit Valley conservation authority and the provincial government had ignored the report prepared by him and four students and presented to both bodies.

Land for Recreation Concerns City Boards

A deficiency of parkland and playground property in city areas where multiple family housing is planned or under construction is a source of deep concern for members of the city parks board and recreation-arena committee.

This was emphasized Wednesday at meetings of the two boards as applications for zoning changes to allow multiple-family residential construction were up for consideration and board comment.

One of the applications was from P a n Properties Ltd., which has applied for rezoning of Centre Street lots in the Hillcrest area to allow the construction of multiple family dwellings, a highrise apartment and a commercial development.

The property for which the rezoning is requested is one of city-owned property which is being reserved for possible construction of the Belleville Yardmen's proposed s p o r t s complex.

The parks board has recommended that park land be acquired in the area.

Another area of concern for the two boards is Elgin Street in the city's west end where an OHC townhouse development is now nearing completion.

Also there is a request in for rezoning of two lots immediately to the south of the OHC development to allow c a n struction of two 11 unit apartments by a local builder.

The parks board recommends that if the rezoning is approved by council, the board policy requiring payment of $150 per unit for increased density apply.

The recreation committee has no objection to the requested rezoning but points out the need for land acquisition for parks and playground property.

Recreation committee director Lorne Williams said there was no park property in the area with the exception of school property which was outside the city.

It was recommended that if parkland was purchased in the area, it be adjacent to the school property.

Still another area of playground deficiency is the Farley St. area east of the Belleville Plaza where another O H C family housing development is planned.

In the same area east of a new street being constructed west of Farley Street, between Bridge and Dundas St., a further 14-lot subdivision is planned, with one of the lots earmarked for multiple family housing.

Prison Transport May Break Even

Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said Tuesday his department "may come close" to receiving sufficient funds for transporting prisoners to and from Quinte Regional Detention Centre.

In a report to the Belleville Police Commission Wednesday, Chief Crosbie said he has received a $21,141 grant from the Ontario government, far short of the $42,458 he estimated would be necessary when preparing his 1973 budget.

However, additional funds are forwarded from Trenton which also uses the Belleville police van to transport prisoners to and from the Napanee centre.

Chief Crosbie said a deficit — should one occur — could be calculated until the end of the year since the number of prisoners moved has an effect on the size of subsidies. In the event of one, it would be brought to the attention of the 1974 commission which could then make submissions to the government for more money.

Defects incurred in shuffling prisoners are made up by the city.

The Chief said Belleville's transportation problem was uncommon in Ontario since this is one of the few areas where regional detention centres are in operation. Another opened last year near Ottawa and a third is scheduled to open in the Niagara Region this year.

Bikes Top Theft List

Nearly one out of every four objects stolen in Belleville during the first six months of 1973 was a bicycle, a police crime report shows.

Of 548 thefts that took place in the city, 123 involved bicycles, despite stepped - up police licensing and warnings.

The report, presented to Wednesday's meeting of the Belleville Police Commission, showed the number of breakins from January to June declined by 48, from 229 to 181.

Accidents were also down, from 773 to 650, but the number of drivers charged with impaired driving rose from 92 to 110.

The police force's bolstered road enforcement program is having an effect on drunk drivers. The number of persons charged under provincial driving statutes more t h i s doubled, from 854 to 2,097.

Drug use may be on the increase, although figures for 1972 were unavailable for comparison. So far this year, 38 persons have been charged with cannabis (Marijuana and hashish) offences and 11 with offences involving restricted drugs (LSD, MDA, amphetamines).

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said the figures indicated a slight rise over last year but added that six officers have now completed RCMP drug enforcement courses, making them better equipped to catch offenders.

He said most arrests were being made by uniformed members, plain persons on the street and in cars. More will attend the RCMP course when bookings become available next year, he added.

Broken Stand Piles Up Bike

A broken kickstand sent an RR. Belleville motorcycle rider to hospital Wednesday night when he lost control of the machine and crashed a curb on Dundas St. West.

The kickstand, which had dropped down, struck the pavement, sending the bike into a curb and causing Mr. Hartwig to drive wildly for 92 feet before toppling over.

He was taken to Belleville General Hospital suffering multiple bruises and a neck injury. Following treatment, he was allowed to go home.

The accident took place at 7:30 p.m.

Parks Board Awards Tenders

The tender of an Ottawa man, Bojko Vas Mempulin, has been approved for the supply and installation of a mobile radio communication system for the Belleville Parks Board.

The amount of the tender was for $8,493.80.

Cost of the fence, which will not have barbed wire at the top, will be $2,865.

And Canadian Welding Gas Ltd., of Belleville will c o n tract for the supply of a new welding machine at a cost of $1,687.50.

Cleaning Day on the Harbor

Annual cleanout of Belleville harbor is now under way. Working from raft, city's harbor commission employees Wednesday were busy reaping harvest of weeds from pleasure boat inlet at Victoria Park. Underwater growth proliferates each summer as weather warms up.

'No Comment' Is Northern Story

Northern Electric management and union spokesmen had no comment this morning on Wednesday's announcement that all picket lines against the company have been removed in Quebec.

The officials, contacted in Toronto where they are in the midst of serious negotiations, said a news blackout that has prevailed since the talks began June 27 was still in effect.

Meanwhile, about 4,400 Ontario employees are in the tenth week of their strike, including 850 members of the United Auto Workers Union in Belleville.

Northern said pickets were removed in Montreal Wednesday as the bargaining committee for 650 equipment installers began mailing details of a company offer to their members in eastern Canada.

Details of the offer, contained in a memorandum of settlement, will not be made public until the union members have studied it, the company said in a statement. Results are not expected to be known before July 20.

If the offer is ratified, it would end all strike activity against Northern Electric in Quebec. Last month, the company's 4,200 Quebec shop workers accepted a 98-cents-an-hour increase over three years, ending a five - week strike.

The installers, members of the Canadian Union of Communication Workers, are based in Montreal but work across eastern Canada from Trenton to Labrador. Not affiliated with Northern plants, they work out of a separate department responsible for installing central office equipment.

West Riverbank Park Theatre Plan Deleted

A proposed outdoor theatre for the new West Riverbank Park will be deleted from the conceptual plan before it goes to Toronto for grant approval.

At a special joint meeting of the Parks Board and Recreation - Arena committee Wednesday, board member Robert Phillips questioned the need for an outdoor theatre at the new park and parks director Lloyd Syer said it would be deleted.

Deletion of the outdoor theatre at this stage would not preclude later provision if the facility was considered necessary, he said.

Mr. Syer said provincial approval of the conceptual plan was necessary to apply for the development grant to a maximum of $100,000 based on 50 per cent of the total expenditure.

The south end of the new park, including a parking lot, swimming beach and canteen is already developed and in use.

Next development work, following provincial approval of the development plan, would be a construction of a roadway through the park connecting East, Moira Street and North Park Street.

In-city Trailer Park Now Appears Unlikely

An in-city site for the proposed Belleville trailer park is still as far away as ever.

This was the conclusion reached Wednesday at City Hall as the special trailer park committee headed by Alderman Paul Russell met to compare notes and to decide if possible what future action might be taken.

The committee came up with the proposal that city industrial land in the Adam Street area off Cannifton Road be used for this purpose but as it turned out the Belleville Yardmen also had their eyes on the property as a possible site for their proposed sports complex.

The city has agreed to hold the site for the Yardmen until October of this year.

No other city-owned land is suitable for a trailer park, committee members have been told.

Now the committee is looking outside the city for a possible site and will also approach at least one owner of vacant private land to see if arrangements can be made for a temporary trailer park until a permanent site can be located.

Attending yesterday's meeting along with Alderman Russell were Mayor Robin Jeffrey, Alderman Stu Meeks, Farley Purnell, Richard Lumbers and parks director Lloyd Syer.

Subdivision Sidewalks Suggested

New housing subdivisions without sidewalks could be a thing of the past if the wishes of city traffic and light committee members carry any weight.

Monday, the committee gave its approval from a traffic standpoint for two housing projects — one on Elgin Street and the other in the city's east end — but recommended that the developers be required to construct sidewalks across their frontages.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said in his opinion all residential areas should have sidewalks on both sides of the street.

Asked for in the Elgin Street application is rezoning to allow construction of two 11-unit apartments on the west side of the street, so each unit of the units now under construction by Maurice Robbins.

The street at this point will be widened to 66 feet from the present 50 feet with a recommendation that a sidewalk be provided.

The traffic committee had no objection to a new 14-lot housing subdivision planned for the east side of a new north-south street now under construction east of the Unemployment Insurance Commission building on East Dundas Street.

Unemployment Rise Blamed on Strike

The number of people hunting jobs in the Belleville area rose in June — traditionally a good month for employment.

Although not specifically named, reversal of the customary trend may in part reflect the labor dispute at Northern Electric. The city's largest industrial employer has been closed by strike for two months.

The Belleville Canada Manpower office Wednesday reported 1,905 applicants for jobs during June. This compares with 1,818 in May — an increase of slightly more than five per cent.

The total was made up of 1,009 men and 896 women.

A contributing factor to the increase is believed "a local industrial dispute", said a Manpower official. Northern has been on strike since May 7, the only prolonged shutdown in the area.

Some 289 students registered for work during the month, and 446 on the rolls were placed in jobs — the majority casual tasks — under Manpower's Student Summer Employment.

To date 1,332 have registered for summer jobs at Manpower's Student Employment Centre on Bridge Street east. Placements have totalled 625.

During the first quarter of the federal fiscal year — April to June — 290 visits were made to local employers in the Belleville Manpower area, in the same time last year 169 calls were made.

During the quarter 4,435 applications were made for work — down from 4,583 for the same period in 1972. Placements in regular jobs were 805, compared to 886 and casual placements 859 compared to 922 during the three month period last year.

The Belleville Manpower office serves a territory that includes the city, Ameliasburgh township and all of Hastings County.

Summer Clean-up

Phillies' Luzinski In Homer Spotlight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For Henry Aaron, time is running out. For Greg Luzinski, there's plenty of it left, but he's being playing as though he's trying to best Hammerin' Hank to Babe Ruth's home run record.

Aaron had a productive night at the plate in Philadelphia Wednesday night with a pair of singles and a double.

But he didn't get his 34th homer of the season and 697th of his career which would have moved him within 17 of the Babe's once "unbeatable" record of 714.

The 698 puts Aaron a mere 660 ahead of Luzinski. But for Philadelphia's 22-year-old outfielder has been outshining Atlanta Braves' famous slugger.

Luzinski hit's homer in defeat Tuesday night, Wednesday night, he hit a pair, the second one a two-run shot in the seventh inning to catapult the Phillies to a 6-5 victory over the Braves.

In other National League games, Montreal Expos noseddout Cincinnati Reds 4-3, San Francisco Giants downed Chicago Cubs 7-3, Houston Astros blanked the Chicago Cubs 7-3, Houston Astros blanked Pittsburgh Pirates crushed San Diego Padres 10-2 and Los Angeles Dodgers tarred St. Louis Cardinals 3-1.

Only three games are scheduled today—all at night with Houston at Philadelphia, St. Louis at Los Angeles and Pittsburgh at San Diego.

New York Mets' Tom Seaver has pitched 1,800 innings for just four times.

Philadelphia manager Danny Ozark said of Luzinski's three most recent round-trippers which gave him 15 for the season.

Home runs, though, aren't the only thing Luzinski is working on. In the last few weeks, he's raised his average from a meager .270 to a respectable .279.

"I guess I'm trying to make up for lost time," he said. "I guess I missed the first part of the season."

The victory went to reliever Ken Brett, pitching for the first time since June 25. Three days after that, in a pinch running role against St. Louis, the lefthander collided with Cardinal catcher Tim McCarver and brushed his left shoulder.

Pitcher Steve Renko may have found the secret to winning with Montreal—if there's a job to be done, do it yourself.

Last Saturday night he drove in a pair of runs with two of his three hits in a victory over Houston. And on Wednesday night, he got the key hit in a two-run seventh inning that beat the Reds.

Pepe Frias led off the inning with a triple, then Renko doubled for the tie-breaking run. A few minutes later, he scored on Hal Breedens single. It proved to be the winning run, offsetting Bobby Tolan's homer in the ninth.

"I didn't think I hit the ball that well," Renko said. "It just kept drifting on Tolan and then it dropped in between him and Johnny Bench."

It enabled him to chalk up his ninth victory of the season against five losses. Last year he wound up with a dismal 4-9 record.

Ed Goodson had a pair of home runs, his second of the game highlighted San Francisco five-run seventh inning blast sent the Cubs down to defeat.

The Astros parlayed five singles into three second-inning runs and Lee May slugged a two-run homer to trounce the Mets.

Stargell's homer was his 25th of the season, giving him a share of the major league lead. And it was the 302nd of his career with the Pirates. That broke the club record held by Ralph Kiner.

Don Sutton, 11-5, taking over the league strikeout lead with 200, fanned a dozen Cardinals and got all the backing he needed from Willie Davis, who cracked a two-run homer for the Dodgers, who managed only two other hits all night off Bob Gibson, and reliever Diego Segui.

Lyle Gets 23rd Save With Munson's Help

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fritz Peterson and Sparky Lyle combined to pitch a four-hitter, but the best throw New York Yankees made Wednesday was by catcher Thurman Munson.

With the Yanks clinging to a 3-2 lead, Chicago White Sox had runners on first and second with none out in the ninth. Lyle came on in relief of Peterson, and pinch-hitter Tony Muser stepped to the plate with orders to bunt.

Lyle fired a hard slider and Muser missed. After hesitating, Munson fired to shortstop Hal Lanier, picking pinch-runner Joe Keough off second.

Lyle then struck out John Jeffcoat, who came in to bat for Mickey Rivers, and threw out Carlos May attempting to bunt to record his 23rd save of the season, tops in the majors.

The victory, combined with Boston Red Sox' 3-0 loss to Minnesota Twins enabled the Yankees to move back into first place in the tight American League East pennant race.

In other games, Oakland A's beat Cleveland Indians 9-3, Detroit Tigers whipped Texas Rangers 14-3, Baltimore Orioles defeated California Angels 7-1 and Milwaukee Brewers beat Kansas City Royals 8-1.

The Yankees are at home today with Kansas City and Boston entertains Texas in two key games. Elsewhere, Oakland is at Milwaukee, California in Detroit, Baltimore visits Chicago and Cleveland is at Minnesota.

"We didn't have a play on, but Maxie (Lanier) made a helluva play," said Munson, who played college ball at Kent State on the same team as Jim Shaw, 4-5, the losing pitcher for the White Sox.

Ron Blomberg homered in the second inning and Lanier doubled and Horace Clarke singled him home in the fourth for the Yankees' runs.

The Red Sox, meanwhile, who started the game in first place by three percentage points, were stymied by the six-hit pitching of Minnesota's Bert Blyleven, 13-8.

Cecil Hunter kept Oakland atop the AL West and raised his record to 14-3 with a four-hitter over Cleveland. Sal Bando homered for the A's, Jack Brohamer and George Hendrick for the Indians.

Jim Northrup slammed a pair of three-run homers and drove in eight runs as the Tigers walloped Texas. The runs were the most scored by Detroit since July 12, 1969, and eight RBI were the most for a Tiger player since Northrup hit a pair of grand slam homers on June 9, 1968.

Boog Powell's two-run homer—plus Nolan Ryan's wildness—helped the Orioles to victory. Ryan, California's, major league strikeout leader with 203, fanned 11 in six innings, but walked six.

Rookie batterymates sparked Milwaukee to victory. Eddie Rodriguez, 2-0, pitched a five-hitter while catcher Darrell Porter hit a three-run homer and drove in another run with a bases-loaded walk.

Comfortable Lead For U. S. Athletes

TEL AVIV (AP) — Two Canada added to its silver Canadian all when the women's American specialties head today's events in the ninth Maccabian Games with United States athletes already holding a comfortable lead over their Israeli hosts in over-all medals won.

U. S. swimmers swept Wednesday's competition brushing aside Olympic star Mark Spitz's previous Maccabian records en route.

The U.S. team had a total of 55 medals after two days competition, 18 of them gold. The Israelis followed with 34, including nine first place medals. Great Britain and Sweden followed.

More swimming finals and the beginning of track and field events top today's program. and the Americans were expected to widen their lead over competing contingents of 1,750 sportsmen from 27 countries.

The Americans suffered an unexpected setback in boxing when lost to Dutch light welterweight Tony Waterman. An unidentified American coach recouped off the record, however, bloodying the referee's nose on what he believed to be a bad call.

McNulty Sharp In CFL Debut

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders remained unbeaten in Canadian Football League pre-season exhibition play Wednesday night when they got by Edmonton Eskimos 25-16 before 14,728 fans.

It was a quarterback Ted McNulty, making his first CFL appearance, led the Riders to a 75-yard marching scoring march to account for the winning punch. Willie "Spencer, a 20-year-old import high school graduate, drove over from the one-yard line.

Ottawa also got touchdowns from Jim Evenson on a three-yard run, and on an 88-yard pass-and-run play between starting quarterback Rick Casasia and running back Lee Fobbs. Gerry Organ contributed an 18-yard field goal, a single and three converts.

Edmonton's only touchdown was scored by linemen Jim Sirtis after the Eskimos blocked an Organ punt in the Ottawa end zone.

Dave Cutler converted and added field goals of 42 yards, 13 yards and 25 yards.

A tough Ottawa defence held Edmonton to a total offence of 273 yards, 73 yards rushing and 121 passing. The Eskimos beat themselves by fumbling three time and having two interceptions scored.

The Riders passed for 212 yards and ran for another 129 in net offence of 310 yards.

Casaza completed seven of 13 for 132 throws while McNulty hit his target five times in eight attempts for 60 yards. Bruce Limmerman started the game for Edmonton and completed six of 14 throws for 78 yards. Tom Wilkinson also completed six throws, 36 tried 13 times and was good for 35 yards.

Fobbs caught a short pass in addition to his 88-yard touchdown for a total of 98 yards to lead receivers while Tom Cheren was the top Edmonton receiver with three catches for 57 yards.

Evenson was Ottawa's best on the ground, gaining 42 yards on 10 carries. Roy Bell led Edmonton with 43 yards in 16 carries.

The most outstanding statistic was in penalties with Edmonton taking seven for 80 yards and Ottawa 14 for 110 yards.

London and Oshawa Post Fastball Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

London and Kit hener continued their see-saw battle for third place in the Ontario Fastball League's west division as the two teams exchanged positions for the third time in a week.

It was London's turn to grab third place as they downed Kitchener 9-5. In the only other league encounter, west division-leading Oshawa nipped Woodstock 1-0.

Loodon jumped on two Kitchener pitchers for 16 hits with Vaughn Carpenter getting three of them, including a triple. Art Pacquette, Ted Morrison, Bill Smaldick and Larry Long had two hits each for the winners. Tab Henshaw, John Hagey and Ron Robinson had two hits apiece for Kitchener.

Joe Adam worked six innings for London and got credit for the win, with Ivan Herrington pitching the final four innings. Terry Berezuk was the starter and loser for Kitchener.

At Woodstock, Phil Sokoman's second-inning home run was the difference.

Paul Wanzamaker, pitching his second straight game for Oshawa, got the victory—giving up five hits and three walks while striking out 12.

Marlene Leads Field

ANCASTER (CP) — Veteran Marlene Stewart Streit posted a one-under par 71 at the Hamilton Golf and Country Club Wednesday in the second leg of match to select an Ontario team for the interprovincial competition at the Canadian women's amateur champions ships in Charlottetown on Aug 8-11.

Mrs Streit, living in Toronto but playing out of Lookout Point at Penhill, carded a course record 68—three under par—at the Burlington Golf and Country Club in the first test match Tuesday.

The 34 points she has picked up in the two round — 15 for each par round and one point for every stroke below par — gives her the runaway leadership in the points race to determine the makeup of the team.

Jane Kirkpatrick of Toronto Lambton, runner-up Wednesday with a 77, has 26 points followed by Carole Borbiwick of Toronto and Mrs. Donald Rosart of Burlington, each with 23 points.

Others still in contention after two test rounds are Mrs. Stan Wetzler of Cambridge, 20 points, and Mrs. Ronald Higgs of London Sunningdale with 17. Final two test matches will be played at Lambton July 18-19.

FREGOSI TRADED

NEW YORK (AP) — The York Mets sent infielder Fregosi to Texas Ranger's Wednesday for a baseball player to be named later. Fregosi, 30, who came to the National League Mets from California Angels in the December, 1971, in the deal for pitcher Nolan Ryan, was used sparingly by the Mets this year at third base and shortstop.

Wind, Bata Braves Foil United's Bid

Belleville United had the opportunity to break a five game winless string in Bay of Quinte Soccer Association (BQSA) play yesterday, but a brisk southerly wind and the Bata Braves hung them up.

United dropped a 4-2 decision to the Belaven club, suffering their fourth straight loss. In the two previous contests, United tied 2-2 and 0-0, with the only win coming in their league opener against Bata 4-1.

Capping the first half with a 2-1 score, United appeared to be on their way to breaking the back of the run of losses. But what one team benefits from, the other must also.

Playing with the crisp wind in the opening period, United's second goal was a direct result of the elements. Keith Parry lofted a high ball from near centre field. The ball, adding in a slow arc, slipped under the cross-bar, just out of reach of Bata goaltender Brian Hanoski's straining fingers. Dave Hadley scored the first.

But then came the second half. Strategy employed by United playing coach Jim Bryce to compensate for the blustery wind slammed shut the door to victory.

"The only way you can play is closer to your own goal," said the unhappy coach after the game. "It's hard to take long hits against the wind. You've got to carry the ball more."

Long balls fired from out of United's hefty defensive formation sailed up, out, long and dropped within the centre line to the feet of the Braves.

For the first half of the second frame, United held Bata away from their net. Although shots were taken, goaltender Phil Sova did not need to extend himself.

But just when United began passing on the ground and breaking out of their own end, Bata forward Ed Hartnick defiated the United spirit.

After onlookers sending the referee's instructions and firing a scoring direct kick instead of an indirect kick, Hartnick extracted revenge with a low boot which nestled in Sova's corner for the tying goal.

Having lost their momentum with their defensive play, and consequently allowing Bata to flood their zone, the Belleville club gave up what proved to be the winner to Reeve Mountford.

Mountford figured in Bata's first and Ted Adam's second goal of the game. The winger sailed the ball to Adam as Adam shook the netting in the upper right corner.

Although brothers John and George Hlavac did not count on the board, their mid-field work was instrumental in bringing and keeping the ball inside United's end of the field.

Braves fourth win of the BQSA season moves them into third place, one point behind Belleville Parsons. Parsons defeat Whitley Travellers tonight, the Belleville club will battle heads with present leader Tony's Soccer Club, the league's only loss-free team.

Should Parsons end the Travellers own three game loss-free string, the stage will be set for next Sunday's battle of honors between the two front running clubs. Belleville will be looking for a 4-2 loss suffered at the hands of the Cobourg team.

Constellation Wins After 13-run Rally

Constellation wouldn't say die in an Industrial Softball League game Wednesday night, but it looked like they came back from the dead to ADCO.

Behind 15-3 in the third inning Constellation kept chipping away at ADCO and finally took the lead in the sixth and hung on for a 17-16 win.

In another contest Meads strengthened their western division lead to three points over UIC with a 10-3 win over Brooke Bond.

The Carpetmen rallied for seven runs in the third inning and seven runs over the final three frames to complete their miraculous recovery.

Bellis went the route for the Carpetmen allowing 16 hits and striking out five. Wally Hull and Ron McCoy saw mound duty for ADCO who still maintain a four point lead on the fourth and final play-off spot in the east over Stewart Warner.

Doug McKay had a homer and single and Doug Boomhower a double and two singles for the Opticals.

Meads broke open a tight scoreless contest with two runs in the fourth and then never looked back scoring one in the fifth and five in the sixth to end the Bond's chances of closing the four point gap on eastern division leaders Meads.

Sonny Holoway struck out 10 and gave up eight hits for Meads for outduel the Bond's Tom St. Jules who allowed 12 hits and also fanned 10.

Tim O'Connell led all hitters with a triple and single with Blaine Young, Ray Finkle, Garnet Adams and Rick May each adding a pair of singles.

Ron Stratton had two safeties for Brooke Bond.

Ellis Juniors In Oshawa

The Ellis Juniors are up in the air as to their opening round opposition in the annual Oshawa Junior Softball Tournament but they would like nothing better than to get the chance to bring Grimsby down to earth.

The Wind May Decide 102nd British Open

TROON, Scotland (AP) — Tom Weiskopf was in front today at the start of the second round of the $150,000 British Open golf championship after beating back a tough wind on Troon's exciting links that left many contenders' struggling to catch up.

British bookmakers quickly reshuffled the betting odds after Weiskopf scored a four-under-par 68 over the 7,064-yard layout alongside Scotland's west coast.

Jack Nicklaus, who shared second place with fellow American Bert Yancey at 69, still was the favorite, with his odds trimmed from 7/4 to 9-4.

Backers could have had 10-1 on Weiskopf before the tournament. Now the best the bookies would offer was 4-1.

Weiskopf, Nicklaus and Yancey, together with U.S. Open winner Johnny Miller, were about the only players to find a real answer to the gusty winds which varied in strength but never let anyone forget its presence.

Miller posted a 70 while fifth place was shared by American Lanny Wadkins and Bruce Crampton of Australia, both with 71.

"It's a funny course for me," said Weiskopf. "I can't really figure out where to go."

There were plenty of less polite comments on the conditions which forced many scores into the 80s.

Even the leaders were unanimous that the wind would probably decide the winner of this 102nd British championship.

Nicklaus, the leader with Yancey until Weiskopf made his late run, used his power to good effect. But he said the wind could pull the ball anywhere.

"And that can be tough on the slopes where you find yourself looking up at the sky as you try to get out of the rough," explained Nicklaus.

Yancey said that on the back nine "you have to get what you can against the wind."

Weather forecasters said the prevailing westerly winds which whipped the course may shift to the south a little during today's play.

That should please defending champion Lee Trevino, who was numb after a disappointing 75.

He said he needed a change of wind direction to get into contention.

Trevino, who opened as the second favorite in the betting, dropped to 20-1 on the field of 153 set out to avoid the 80th place cut which takes place after the second round.

Toronto's Whibley Pro-Am Winner

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Whibley of Toronto won the $10,000 Richmond Hill pro-am golf tournament Wednesday, then credited his brother for helping him with three problems that had been troubling his game.

Whibley, 39-year-old professional at the Scarborough Golf and Country Club, had a 36-hole total of 142 — six-under-par — that included a 68 Wednesday.

He has his choice of a 1973 Pinto or $1,000 first-prize money for winning the tournament.

Whibley, who will compete later this month in the Canadian Open in Montreal, said his brother Vic, 'a club pro in Guelph, has helped him on a number of occasions.

"I've been having three problems to work on," Whibley said. "I found that I was jerking my club back too quick on my swing; flaring the blade on my putter to an open-face position and in chipping, dropping my head back."

Whibley had five birdies in the final 18 holes—on the third, fourth, 16th, 16th and 18th.

Turcotte Too Busy

The 31-year-old jockey has become a celebrity since he piloted Secretariat to the Triple Crown of thoroughbred racing last June. Like Secretariat, he is ripe for commercial exploitation.

A New York-based talent agency has taken over Secretariat's promotional ventures, but the rider has shied away from a similar setup.

Turcotte wants to be his own man in any business dealings.

Being the first jockey to win the Triple Crown in 25 years, Turcotte has been offered all kinds of commercial ventures on television promoting beer, shaving cream, hair tonic, riding equipment and automobiles.

Publishing companies want him to write his autobiography, and some have offered advances as high as $10,000 or more. But he isn't ready to disclose his inner secrets yet. Tracks in California and British Columbia have dangled sums as high as $5,000 for a single Sunday appearance.

"I'm too busy with my riding," he says. "I don't have time to be going out of state on Sundays."

John Ervasti's 72 Tops Amateur Field

TORONTO (CP) — London-area golfers led by 18-year-old John Ervasti dominated the first round of the Ontario Golf Association's 81st amateur championship Wednesday at St. George's Golf and Country Club.

Ervasti shot a one-over-par 72 for a one-stroke lead over Fred Wilder of Woodstock on the 6,787-yard course that was buffeted by north winds gusting to 25 miles an hour.

Tied for third at 74 were Kelly Roberts, defending champion from London Sunningdale, his club-mate Don C. Wiide and Wayne Kimura of the host club.

Co-favorites Nick Westlock of Mississauga and Gary Cowan of Kitchener Westmount settled for an eight-way tie for fifth place, one stroke back of John Gilberts of Whitevale, alone in fourth spot at 75.

"The course was fantastic, but the winds were tricky," Ervasti said. "I hope I can be so lucky tomorrow."

Second round of the 54-hole tournament will be played today after which the low 60 and ties will qualify for the final 18 holes Friday.

A student at Oak Ridges high school, Ervasti played the challenging course only once—two weeks ago—when he shot a 72 and finished third in a junior tournament.

He started playing golf five years ago and his first serious taste of competition came in 1971 when he competed in the first amateur at Toronto Lambton.

PAY RECORD PRICE

MILAN, Italy (Reuter) — A. S. Roma has paid a world record transfer fee of 622 million lire (about $965,000) for A. C. Milans star forward Pierino Prati, the Italian Football Association announced Wednesday. The fee is two million lire (about $3,200) more than the previous high.

NAMES PRESS CHIEF

MONTREAL (CP) — Michel Labrecque, former director of information services for the Quebec Confederation of Sports, has been appointed director of press services for the 1976 Olympic Games, it was announced Wednesday.

HACKDART TRADED

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Veteran defensive back Dale Hackbart, who played for two years for Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Football League, has been traded by St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League to Denver Broncos for a future draft choice, the Cardinals announced Wednesday.

LPGA APPEALS RULING

Atlanta (AP) — A ruling that antitrust laws were violated when golfer Jane Blalock was accused of cheating by fellow members of the Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA) has been appealed to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The LPGA announced Wednesday. A judge ruled last month that LPGA players cannot police their own members.

"I missed the cut after shooting 74-86 in the first two days," Ervasti said.

The real surprise of Wednesday's opening round however, was provided by Wilder, a University of Waterloo student, who was a member of the intercollegiate team golf champions last year and with also won a silver medal in the Ontario Universities Athletic Association's championship.

Wilder had birdies on the fourth, 11th and 12th holes. He made the turn at one-over-par and was one over on the back nine. Ervasti failed to break par on any of the six's but was consistent, shooting 36—36.

Westlock, winner of the amateur on seven occasions, hooked his opening drive into a neighboring back yard to get into instant trouble.

"I'll make it up," he said approaching the second tee but he was overly optimistic.

Cowan, off the regular golf, four fee-the last two years, had no predictions for today's round.

"If I said I was happy with the 76, I would be lying," he said moodily. "In a wind like this it's hard to say what went wrong."

The wind magnifies an error. You might be two feet out in normal condition but if the ball sails it could be 40 or 50 feet off the target.'

Another veteran amateur, Bill Morland of North Bay, was part of the only father-son combination among the 127 golfers who teed off Wednesday.

Morland shot 37-41—78 to avoid embarrassment, his son, Bill Jr., had 41-39—80. Dave Morland, brother of Bill Sr., also carded a 78.

Here is how YOU Can ADVERTISE FOR A PROFIT...

1 Check off the items you no longer need and would like to sell and add others not listed.

3 Write up advertisement describing these items and their selling features, include phone number or address. Count the number of words used (phone number counts one word).

4 To reach most number of prospects 6 or more insertions are recommended when selecting the amount you wish to spend from the chart below.

5 Deduct the price of your advertising from the expected return of selling your don't needs.

Thurlow Bombs Frankford

Limiting Frankford to six hits while striking out eight and walking three, Gary Badgley and Rick Woodward pitched Thurlow Plane's Concrete to a 21-4 Eastern Ontario Baseball Association peewee win on Monday.

Playing at home, the Plane's batters were on target with the lumber, accounting for a total of 22 hits.

Bill Sullivan and Ken Reynolds each supplied five hits while Doug Yeder had four. Terry Jarrell and Steve Meeks were in the mood to clout extra base hits for the winners. Steve accounted for two triples and a double while Terry found the range for three doubles.

Tops for Frankford were G. Beaudrie and C. Verchere...

Defencemen Pace Lions

Both defencemen were penalty free, but on the scoreboard, they counted for two goals apiece to lead the Lions to a 7-3 win.

Northey started Belleville off on victory road with his first goal less than two minutes into the contest. John Belanger and Jamie Forester scored one apiece, 30 seconds apart at the tail end of the first frame for a 3-1 Belleville go-ahead.

Rent-alls Still Unbeaten

The rent game due for Complete Rent-Alls on top spot in the squirt division of the Belleville Minor Softball Association Wednesday night, but O'Neil Stationery had to pay.

The Renters maintained their undefeated record and their hold on first place with a 14-3 verdict over O'Neil Stationery in one of three games played Wednesday.

Rusty Downey hammered a two-run homer for the winners and John Munkittrick blared third strikes past 13 O'Neil batters.

Malcolm Brothers still have self found the win column, losing their eighth of the year 9-1 last night to Sidney Inn.

John Svechowski had a home run for the Inn and Mike Wood two singles.

In the final game of the night William Bolch and the Belleville Plaza fought to a 7-7 tie.

Steve Bennett had a triple and double and Steve Hannah had four singles for the Plaza with Jim Noble connecting for two singles in the Bolch cause.

RICK RETURNS

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Rick Reichardt, released by Chicago White Sox June 26,has signed with Kansas City Royals, the Royals announced Wednesday. Reichardt, who was used as an outfielder and designated hitter by the Sox, hit .275 for them.

Errors Pave the Way As Midgets Win 5-4

Tim Mader delivered nine strikeouts and gave up only three hits. But Belleville United Rigging juveniles were upset by Belleville Yardmen midgets 5 - 4 in Eastern Ontario Baseball Association play Monday.

Mader received little assistance from his third Rigging fielder as the comedy of 12 errors gave the Yardmen their sixth win of the EOBA season and a tie with Peterborough in fifth spot.

Relatively free of errors (only two), pitcher Craig Empey delivered United Rigging their second loss of the season. Striking out four batters, Empey pitched a four - walk, seven - hitter.

After scoring two runs in the first inning on four juvenile errors, the Yardmen opened a 4-0 lead until United Rigging rallied with two runs in the seventh. Brian Cousins scored in the eighth while the teams exchanged runs in the ninth.

Peter Crawford came in for the winning run. The second baseman made first with a hit, stole second, took third on a passed ball and scored on a wild pitch.

Phil Badgley's sacrifice moved him to second before three consecutive errors moved Greg Bradshaw to third and Crawford home.

SETS JUMP RECORD

MUNICH (AP) — Dwight Stones of Glendale, Calif., set a world record in the high jump with a leap of seven feet, 6¾ inches Wednesday in track and field competition against West Germany and Switzerland.

Getting Together

Trenton and Belleville have gotten together on the real estate level so it seemed fitting that their annual golf tournament should be shared between the two centres. Doug Grant of Belleville and Harvey Pare of Trenton's Fraser and O'Neil Realtors captured the low net and low gross awards respectively in the seventh annual event. Grant who had a 90 for low net honors and Pare with a 91 low gross received their trophies at a dinner celebrating the union of the Trenton and Belleville realty boards.

Grill, Roofers Win

The Cosy Grill were cut for a win in Wednesday night's Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League action and Bob Blaind - Red Barn were willing to oblige.

The Grill made short work of the Blaind - Barn with a 19-7 whipping to keep hot on the trail of BYBF. In another game T. Bailey Roofing secured their third place standing with an 11-7 win over Belleville Broadloom.

The long ball carried the Grill to its convincing win with Dorothy Caverly stoking two home runs, Judy Pultz a triple, double and single, Verna Hill a triple and single, and Sandra Claus a triple and single.

Claus hurled the win giving up 13 hits and striking out two. Her opposites Marion Lummis and Suzanne Fobert were touched for 18 hits. Robert had five strikeouts in her six innings of relief.

The Roofers fell behind 6-2 after two innings but rallies in the fourth and sixth innings gave them the victory.

Brant and Nora Barberstock shared the Roofers' mound chores allowing seven hits and whiffing 10. Sills was her own support connecting for a home run and two singles.

EVANS EARNS MOST

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lee Evans, former Olympian, collected $13,900 as the leading money winner during the 26-augural year of the International Track Association, the first major endeavor into professional track and field, it was announced Wednesday.

It's Same Old Story At Top and Bottom

The top and bottom teams of the Prince Edward North Shore Softball League played their usual game Wednesday night leaving only the middle four positions up for grabs.

Pennant leading Consecon picked up their 12th win of the season by dumping Wannamaker and Bailey Stables 7-4 and the Belleville Gems lost their 15th of the year 9-1 to Bayview Orchards.

Consecon's win stretched their league lead to six points over O'Brien's Tree Service. Gary Eardley pitched the win allowing five hits and striking out three.

Six different players reached the Stable's Earl Colton for hits while Brian Smith was the only player to have a pair of safeties in support of Colton.

The winners scored four times in the fourth to erase a 3-0 lead and three times in the sixth to break open a 4-4 contest.

A three-hitter by Don Bonter paced Bayview to their win over the hapless Belleville nine and moved the winners within one point of second place O'Brien's.

Bonter whiffed seven and walked only one in picking up the win. Neil Goyer smashed a home run and a single for the Orchards and Bonter added a pair of safeties.

Lacrosse Midgets Lose

Had Dave McQuire and Mark Watson been Belleville midget team members, Belleville would have won their contest against Whitby in South Central Lacrosse Association play Wednesday.

But neither forward could contribute to Belleville's scoreboard marker, played with Whitby. McQuire and Watson matched hat tricks to lead Whitby to a 10-4 win over the visiting team.

Whitby received single goal contributions from Mike Randall, Dwayne Allison, Steve Case and Ross Hayden.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, July 13

Taurus (April 20-May 20): This promises to be a routine day. Misleading advice is all about. Let nothing provoke you to extremes.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Keep your distance from any rivals. Let the world see you in joying safe and sane leisure in sensible circumstances.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Serious discussion of current controversy could get you a public image of having taken sides when you haven't. Patience!

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): This is no day for launching fresh enterprises. You have enough responsibility, can watch the show with amusement.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Real peacemaking is in subtle moves. The goal is to have a settlement which discourages further disaccord.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): There is progress in your personal affairs. You have everything to save by consistent attention to duty.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Much work, little play seems to be the general tone today. Your share is a search for practical solutions.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Persistent tact will get you the knowledge you need for later decisions. Don't take sides yet. Pray for guidance.

Even Grave-digging Is Halted by Strike

HAMILTON (CP) — They're not up to their hips in garbage around here yet, but they're working on it.

They're also putting bodies in cold storage and talking to people to take confiscated dynamite elsewhere than the city dump. But the police do say no way.

The city's outside workers, members of Local 5, Canadian Union of Public Employees, went on strike Tuesday. The main involved handle garbage collection and gravedigging.

The strikers were to vote on a settlement offer Wednesday night.

The men, now making $3.75 an hour, want parity with workers in Toronto. The union has rejected an increase of 14.5 per cent over two years. All raises were scheduled for the first year of the contract and would have brought rates to $4.94 an hour by Feb. 1, 1974.

A union spokesman said that if the increase were in a one-year instead of a two-year contract, it might have been accepted. But Tuesday workers bargain again next year and the Hamilton workers felt they would again be left behind.

And while the strike went on, there was confusion.

The city urged citizens to take their garbage to any of several emergency dumps but some people went to the regular dump, where they found pickets and locked gates.

The only vehicle allowed into the city's dump was the police department's bomb-disposal truck. It was making a routine stop to get rid of some dynamite and a detonator seized recently by detectives, and got no entry after pickets at first refused entry.

One woman with four bags of garbage wouldn't take no for an answer. She threw the garbage at the dump gate and yelled:

"If you don't like what I'm doing, that's too bad."

The pickets burned it.

Chester Orsal, director of cemeteries, said the city has rented facilities from Holy Sepulchr Cemetery in Burlington to store bodies until the strike ends.

The vault at Holy Sepulchre can hold about 100 bodies. During the summer, Mr. Orsel said, there are an average of 15 bodies a week to be accommodated.

He said the city's funeral directors are co-operating, as well, and where possible will store coffins on their own premises until the strike is resolved.

The walkout involves 61 cemetery employees.

Dennis Coons, a funeral director at Blachford and Wray Ltd., one of Hamilton's major funeral homes, said the strike will have little effect on his firm, beyond inconvenience.

He said his company could store 25 to 30 coffins "if we had to."

It is estimated the city's funeral homes could collectively store up to 100 bodies if necessary.

Hunters Beware Of Rabbit Fever

By GEORGE C. THORTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband became ill with a high fever and chills. The doctor said the flu, he stayed in bed four or five days.

He developed a swollen gland on his arm and had chest pains and went to the doctor thinking he might have blood poisoning. He was given penicillin but continued to get worse and finally was put in hospital for five days with an arm in fact packs.

The swelling started to go down and he was allowed to go home with the understanding that he keep his arm in hot packs and take antibiotics. After two weeks later the swelling and pains started to increase.

Then he mentioned that he had been doing some squirrel hunting and that he had immediately ordered a blood test which showed he had tularemia, or "rabbit fever."

The glands in his arm had to be lanced and drained but the doctor said it would still take some time for the infection to go away completely. Should another blood test be run?

It was believed he got tularemia through a tiny cut on his finger while cleaning squirrels. This cut developed into a terrible ulcer which took weeks to heal.—Mrs. T.S.

That's a classic description of tularemia, even to the reappearance of the rash after initial treatment, and it is well worth reading. Just to remind ourselves, "rabbit fever" is still around—and it's no joke to get it.

The germ is present in small animals, particularly wild rabbits and squirrels. Some birds also are infected.

Hence hunters should be very cautious in handling and dressing the animals. The germ usually enters the system through some otherwise-trivial cut or break in the skin, but there is strong suspicion that the disease can be contracted even when there is no break in the skin. That's why it is recommended that gloves be worn while handling the animals. Cooking makes the meat safe to eat, but by that time the damage already has been done.

This is a specific case of tularemia, I see no necessity for additional tests, but your own physician would be in better position to judge whether there are other signs you haven't told me about.

In the average case, you have to expect it to take quite a bit of time before the swollen glands subside.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My bust was 40-D at 13 and it was agony. The boys stared and made indecent remarks. My bra straps cut into my shoulders and I could hardly stand it, and I became stoop shouldered.

The way some people look at me makes me feel like a freak. I am 5 feet two and my bust is big and sagging. I'm five feet tall and weigh 105, not married and have no children.

I'm ashamed to go to a doctor because he'll make fun of me, like my family.—M.F.

After nearly 50 years, you've made up your mind that everybody is going to make fun of you, but that is not so. Doctors are trained people like anyone else and you should not expect ridicule from them.

So go to a doctor. Surgery is possible to remove excess breast tissue. But do not be surprised if the doctor also insists that you lose some weight, because 135 pounds at your height is too much.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I saw an article about acne or other artificial bulk producers. I would like to know where to buy the product. I have inquired at a large supervalue and they didn't carry it.—M.F.S.

All drug stores carry these products. Deal with a pharmacist, not a clerk who may not know.

Opening lead—six of spades.

There are many hands where declarer's chances of making the contract seem nil and his only hope is to get down as few tricks as possible. But some of these hands can be salvaged by careful play, even though the prospect of success is remote. Here is such a case.

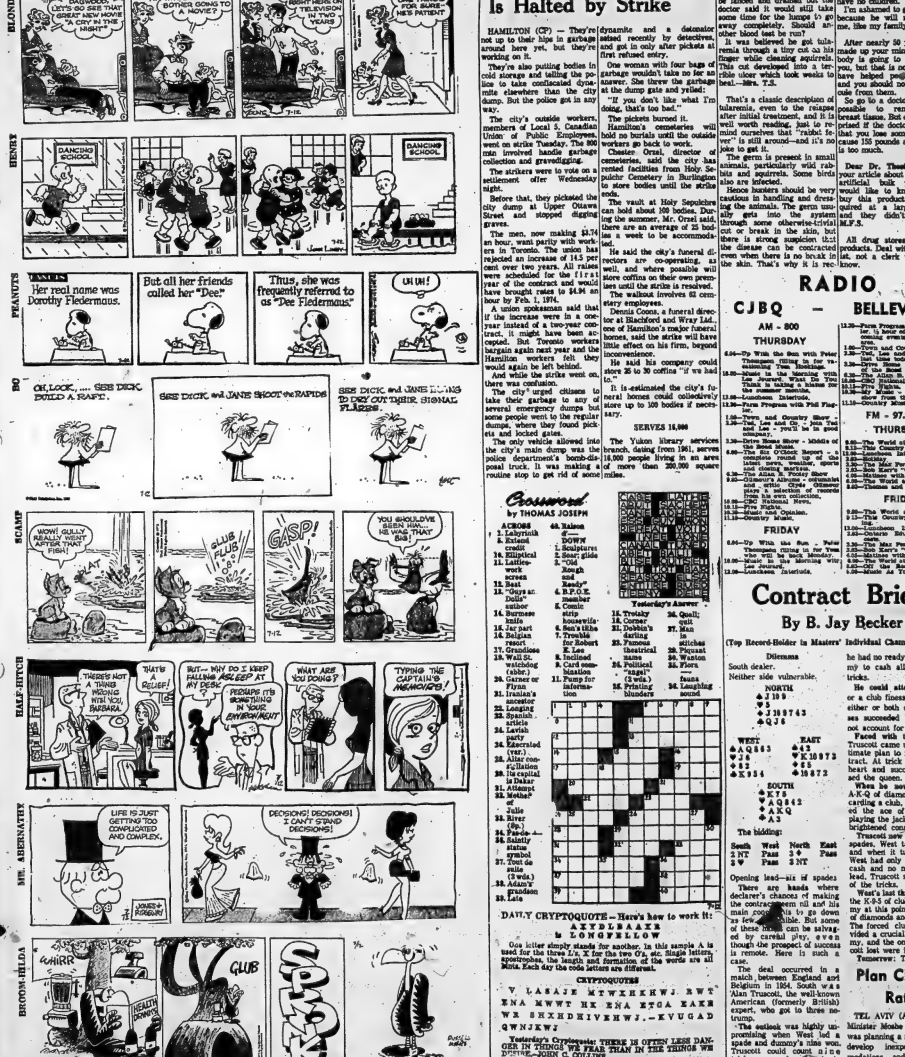
The deal occurred in a match between England and Belgium in 1934. Sitting as declarer was the well-known American (formerly British) expert, who got to these par trump.

The setback was highly unpromising when West led a spade and dummy's nine won. Trusted could count nine tricks — a spade, 2 heart, six diamonds and a club — but he had he had no ready entry to dummy to cash all the diamond tricks.

He could attempt a heart or a club finesse, but even if either or both of these finesses succeeded he still could not account for nine tricks.

Faced with this dilemma Trusted came up with a legitimate plan to make the contract. At trick two he led a heart and successfully finessed the queen.

When he now cashed the A-K-Q of diamonds, West discarding a club, and then cashed the ace of hearts, West playing the jack, his prospect brightened considerably.



Trusted now led the king of spades. West taking the ace and when it turned out that West had only four spades to cash and no more hearts to lead, Trusted scored the rest of the tricks.

West's last three cards were the K-6-5 of clubs, while dummy at this point had the last of diamonds and 9-7 of clubs. The second club return provided a crucial entry to dummy, and only trick Trusted could lost were in spades.

Demand Increases For Interpreters

OTTAWA (CP) — Bilingualism, a major headache for many federal civil servants, is the least of Con Behne's problems.

What he needs are people who can speak English, French and as many other languages as possible, and he can't find enough of them.

As chief of the multilingual conference service for the secretary of state's department, he is responsible for filling requests for foreign language interpreters from government departments and agencies.

Demand for interpreters has increased sharply in recent years and Mr. Behne is engaged in a major search to find more qualified people to work as interpreters for one to three weeks at a time "as and when we need them."

A part-time interpreter can expect to make between $75 and $200 a day plus expenses, depending on qualifications and experience.

In the past the service has depended on hiring free-lance interpreters—"wherever they can be found"—said Mr. Behne in an interview.

Interpreters work as escorts for foreign visitors to Canada, accompany Canadian delegations abroad and translate at conferences.

Demand has been so heavy that interpreters have been hired in the United States and Europe to fill requirements.

"I don't think this was too satisfactory," said Mr. Behne, who speaks English, French and German.

"When the government interest is at stake, it is better to have a Canadian interpreter available. We expect them to be minded of Canadian interests and also to be a good host to a visitor."

It is these other qualifications, besides fluency of language, that makes good interpreters hard to find.

"The kind of people we look for are outgoing persons who will add a little human understanding and reaction capability to the effort."

Mr. Behne said, applicants to the service should have "a fairly good education which doesn't necessarily have to be post-secondary education." He also points out that the kind of people he need should not already have other full-time occupations that require their presence.

He said women seem to make the best interpreters. "They lend themselves to that bit of human understanding that makes people feel welcome.

"The proportion of women to men interpreters, is, well, out of proportion."

"The main need now is for Russian," he said, explaining that a science and technology agreement between Canada and the Soviet Union has resulted in frequent exchanges of specialists in many fields, straining the resource of the ervice.

"The people who go in these delegations are experts in their own fields. They talk in their own jargon. We're interested in finding as many interpreters in as many technical fields as possible."

He said the only time he had to refuse a request was when someone wanted an interpreter for Mandarin Chinese into French.

Applicants for the service, who can reach Mr. Behne at the secretary of state department in Ottawa, will be given an hour-long test by two examiners who will travel to major centres across the country.

Successful applicants will attend a two-week course in interpretation technique, all expenses paid, before being assigned missions.

"The ones who are absolutely terrific we will probably try to make simultaneous translators," said Mr. Behne. He says Canada has only 25 professional interpreter qualified for foreign language simultaneous conference interpretation.

He describes them as "the aristocrats" of interpretation work.

Senators Approve Tax Cuts

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate gave second-reading approval Wednesday to corporate income tax cuts and personal income tax reductions.

The two bills are expected to get third reading today—the final step before they become law by royal assent.

While approving the principle of corporate tax cuts—a reduction to 40 per cent from 49 per cent for manufacturing and processing industries—Conservative spokesmen criticized the measure as limited, tardy and merely reactionary.

Opposition Leader Jacques Flynn (PC—Quebec) insisted that by including a review provision permitting 60-or more members of the Commons to force debate on halting or decreasing the measures, the government had shown "a commercial abdication of its responsibility under the constitution."

He was "horrified at the precedent created, by this legislation."

OUTDOOR LIVING

MAKE THE MOST OF YOUR Vacation!

The Sun is out, the sky is blue. Everyone's whistling zippidy-do-da tunes. Folks are bathing and basking at beaches. On swings and see-saws children laugh. It's vacation time, picnic outing time. Pack the kids off to camp time. And, time to stock up on all Summer needs for the whole family.

Your local merchants are well supplied with beach and resort wear ... fishing and camping gear ... patio furniture and barbecue grills ... sports equipment and swimming pools. Everything for a summer of fun in the sun.

Provincial Help Could Save Trail

There's a prospect that provincial government rescue some day soon may come sparring along the Hastings-Prince Edward Recreation Trail.

Local volunteers who administer the trail — financially shunned by the outdoors public for whom it was created — may know by fall if provincial government funds will be available for upkeep of such resources.

That's when a report is anticipated from Queen's Park on a recent symposium on recreation resources — including trails like the spectacular 220-mile corridor winding from Lake Ontario toward Algonquin Park.

Grant Harvey, secretary of the volunteer trail association, said he "certainly felt optimistic" after attending the discussions called by Resources Secretary Bert Lawrence.

One indication of government thinking came in working papers circulated the various organizations on which discussion topics were based.

Among the suggestions, said Mr. Harvey, was that the province might financially aid trail organizations through some form of Crown corporation agency.

Participants felt that administration of trails should still be left to local, grassroots groups, which might also raise their own fund, supplemented by grants from the provincial agency.

It will take two months before the results of the symposium are condensed into a report — at which time government intentions may also be known, said Mr. Harvey.

Raising hopes on government thinking was the verbal invitation sent out by Mr. Lawrence which said the province was "most interested in initiating a definite course of action" on trail development and planning.

For association officials the symposium was the promising event of a year beset by disappointment and frustration.

Hoped-for federal funds — which built the trail in 1971-72 as a winter Local Initiatives Program — did not materialize a second year.

But the most chagrin was caused by lackluster public response to appeals for help. While hikers, students, snowmobilers used the trail, few people took out memberships — the only source of funds for the trail. Organization of volunteer help needed to maintain the trail was discussed but never realized.

The problems are still current.

Mr. Harvey said the trail association still has been unable to build up a bank account. Although in need of memberships, it hasn't the funds to advertise.

The trail is being travelled again this year, but, Mr. Harvey says he has had few inquiries for information.

"I just frankly can't understand it," he says. "The trail is there and it's been used — but to what degree we don't know."

Self-serve Gas Bar Deferred

MARMORA (Special)—This village will have to wait a while for a self-serve gas station.

Village council deferred its decision on the gas bar until more information can be obtained from the Fire Marshal's office.

Bill Baker of the Becker Milk Company had applied for a licence to operate a self-serve store. He said the Marmora store leads itself to this type of operation, widely used in the United States but relatively new in Canada.

Bert Gray, chairman of the fire and water committee, said the dangers of self serve stations had been discussed at a recent Mutual Aid meeting, and before the operator can application will set a pattern for the whole county, he said.

Council's approval is required before the operator can apply for the consent of the department of energy and resources.

Marmora Swim Program Begins

MARMORA (Special) — A supervised recreation program, offered to the young people of the area, at Legion Park, Marmora, is in full swing.

Supervised swimming commenced Saturday, July 1, Monday to Friday - 10 a.m. to 12 noon and 1:30 to 5 p.m. Saturdays, Sundays and holidays from 2 to 5 p.m.

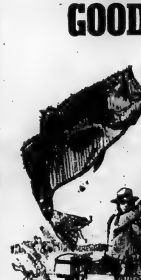
Registrations for instructional swimming classes are being taken with six weeks of swimming instruction to the Red Cross Water Safety program which started Monday, July 9. It is hoped competitive swimming will again be a feature this summer.

The Recreation Committee wishes to stress to parents that it is important swimmers attend classes daily, if at all possible, in order to attain the proficiency needed to pass the tests.

It is also important parents see that children 6 and under are accompanied by a parent or authorized sitter.

Staff hired for the waterfront and playground activities have all attended special training courses stressing water safety and swimming instruction, also leadership techniques and special events planning.

Staff members include: Director of summer program and swimming instructor, Karen Acorn; swimming instructor and playground director, Linda Leonard; and assistant instructor and lifeguard, Cathie Smith.



The Marmora Recreation Committee hopes that everyone will take a personal interest in their local playground and swimming beach and visit them. The Committee would welcome constructive suggestions and ideas for improvement of the programs.

Lower Rates Discussed

DESERONTO — At the recent meeting of Deseronto Ratepayers' Association, the news that lower sewer rates for the town are being considered was the subject of some discussion.

Several complaints about weeds in the town were heard and it was discovered that Deseronto no longer has a weed inspector. Apparently legislation has recently been changed and a municipality such as Deseronto no longer has to have its own weed inspector although there is a County Weed Inspector who may be contacted. The next association meeting is Aug. 8.

Hay Bay Is Central to Area History

The Hay Bay area of the Bay of Quinte attracts tourists and travelers for the same reason it caught the eye of Champlain and the Indian nations before him.

Travel by boat is pleasant and easy along its expanses of open water and sheltered shorelines where fishing has always been a challenge.

In September 1615, Champlain on his way down from Lake Simcoe by way of the Trent River, according to his journals passed through the 'Bay of Kente,' and so must have passed the mouth of the Napanee River, the first white man to see it. Two months later, after having been wounded in battles with Onedas south of Lake Ontario, he returned to Kente, sufficiently recovered to go on a hunting trip somewhere between the Napanee and Salmon Rivers.

In 1783 a Lieutenant Johns was sent to survey the land from 'Bay Cente (Kente) to Cotorogué'. He reports on six day journey; 'Good land the day thro'. He located size, for four mills, as well as making a rough timber survey.

His survey proved accurate, for all four mill sites he indicated were later to have mills on them. Lumbering was to become a backbone industry of the area. Before the Loyalists came up by barges and batteaux the mill at the Napanee Falls had been built for them. Today, only a plaque remains to remind the people of the area of the mill that gave life to the village at the falls, and bread to the Loyalist pioneers.

On the shores of the Bay of Quinte the Loyalist regiments disbanded and drew lots for the land. As grown sons looked for land the flow of population pushed back from the shores of Quinte to the south shore of Hay Bay, the north shore, and the townships of Fredericksburgh, named after one of King George III's many sons. In a survey taken in 1798 close to a thousand people lived in the townships.

Today good roads give access to the lakes, bays and rivers once reached only by canoe. The resorts along the waterways have kept pace with the requirements of holidayers, and have preserved for them the same fish, the beach areas, and boating expanses. Golf courses and good shopping areas are available within a radius of miles. Quiet country roads offer refreshing vistas of green countryside, homes of architectural excellence, snake fences, pastures and apple orchard.

Mazinaw's Rock Majestic

One of the top tourist attractions in Quinte district vacation areas is Mazinaw Lake.

Its Big Rock granite cliff, towering out of the dark lake waters today still makes an impact on the traveller — as it did unknown centuries ago on the Indians who created its mystique in their paintings along the base of the massive rock.

It's a legend still undeciphered. Experts suggest that the Mazinaw rock paintings may be the product of a culture distinct and much older than that of the Quetico paintings. But how much older remains a mystery.

The Mazinaw also abounds in Indian legends.

There are great tales of the early lumbering days, of the men who felled and squared and drove the big timber from the Mazinaw to the Ottawa, fighting and sometimes dying as the drive went down. A pair of matched broad axes rusting in a woodshed, a few grown over graves along the shores will tell how hard it was.

There are recollections of Ontario's first gold rush. A discovery near Madoc, away to the west in Hastings County drew capital from Canadian cities and from the United States into this country to sink 200-foot shafts in the fickle rock. The resting headframes, powerhouses and bookhouses will tell you how great the heartbreak was as the surface showings petered out or the vein faulted.

Take a good look some day at the old stone fences if you wish to understand the story of the first settlers on this land. Sit alone on a stone fence wide enough for a team and wagon, and think of the men who lifted every stone. After a time you'll feel how impossible it was that even a small field should be cleared, yet 40 acres time there were hundreds of acres under cultivation in the region. The families who first used the Addington Colonization Road came to farm the land, and farm it they did, in the face of hardships they became too tired to record.

Prince Edward--a Pearl

Embraced by Lake Ontario and the Bay of Quinte, it sprawls softly south from the Quinte mainland like a big, pastoral Veggie.

Beauty spots like the majestic Sandbanks are natural highlights in a gently - cultivated countryside where picturesque villages and homes recall the early days of Ontario settlement.

Transportation is no problem. There are several hundred miles of good roads in Prince Edward and finding any spot on the map presents no difficulty for the traveller.

There is much to see for the tourist taking time out from relaxation at the county's many fishing, boating and water resor areas. Historical plaques are a help to garnering information on one of Canada's truest historic areas.

Travel highpoints include:

WELLINGTON — On its Main St. is the manor built in 1792 by fur trader Daniel Reynolds, first settler in the area.

The many scenic spots to be leisurely enjoyed include the nar Picton, Sandbanks and Outlet provincial parks.

Summer on the Moira

Quinte Region Is Vacationers' Water Wonderland

Hastings County has a wide range of recreational resources for the resident vacationer, and tourist alike.

The very topography of the county, diverse as it is, must count as a resource in itself.

The Hastings' legacy of clear lakes, large river systems, the big broad Bay of Quinte, the huge woodlots and a sizeable swath of the Canadian Shield provide excellent fishing and hunting opportunities.

Hastings is one of southern Ontario's leading fishing grounds.

Fishing areas are widespread in the county but, certain choice spots are better than others.

The trout fisherman, for example, has a ready haven in much of north Hastings, rich as it is with well - stocked lakes and brooks.

Pickerel are abundant in the deep waters of Lake Baptiste and on the Madawaska. Muskie and bass are also in abundance throughout the north country.

South Hastings is particularly fortunate to enclose the southern reaches of the magnificent Trent watershed. The dividend is reaped by fishermen who find the waters south of No. 1 dam near Trenton teeming with pickerel and in the fall an increasing supply of Kamloops salmon as they move in from Lake Ontario.

Packing In Style

The new - style portable wardrobes are suitable for day or evening, light and compact travel gear, and comfortable shoes with a sense of style.

According to travel experts, today's traveler is saying "bon voyage" to steamer-trunk pucking and welcoming, instead, canvas totes filled with wrinkle-free pants, shirts and tops, and light-weight sandals for cool excursion comfort.

Smart travelers start their trip off on the right foot with fashion - right sandals that go equally well with a long breezy cotton skirt and top, or a sweater set and pants, or what have you.

The Poolside Gang ...Join Them!

The fun is just the price of a day room at The Four Seasons. We have the pool . . . cool and sparkling clean, places to lounge, places to sun.

We also provide a play area for the kids as well as tennis courts and other games. We give you a bright and happy room (doze or watch TV in air conditioned comfort if you want) and we take care of everything you need — food for the mood, refreshments and what-have-you. If peace and quiet are your wish, there's plenty available around our grassy lawns and flower beds.

Join the Poolside Gang any day of the week from mid-morning to 6.00 p.m. Day room charge is $10.00 (based on four adults). Extra adults $2.50 each. Maximum of six persons to a room — children under 14 are free. Call 968-3411 in plenty of time to reserve your room.

History Is Around Us in Quinte Area

The Quinte district, a core area of Ontario's tourist industry, once again is starting to burn with holiday hospitality.

Few regions have been better designed by nature to boat the vacationer.

From the picturesque Lake Ontario shorelines of Prince Edward County to the highland forests of Canadian Shield country reaching to Algonquin Park, its natural features are a treasured trove of contrasts to suit any holiday demand.

The region counts three distinct tourist areas — Highlands of Hastings, Land O'Lakes and the Madawaska — and gives access by road and canal to neighboring vacation spots, like the Kawarthas and the Highlands of Haliburton.

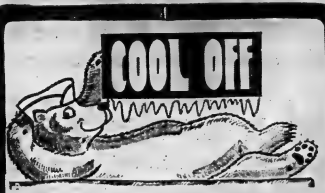
Before the first European settlers arrived in North America, Indians frequently travelled from Lake Ontario to Georgian Bay via the Trent and Severn Rivers and the beautiful chain of lakes which formed their headwaters. Champlain, with a Huron war party, crossed Lake Simcoe in 1615 and followed this waterway eastward on his way to attack the Iroquois. The timber barons of the 1860s used these waterways during this area's flourishing lumber trade.

Today, a series of locks and canals make it possible to travel this historic route from the town of Trenton to Georgian Bay in any sort of pleasure craft.

The contributions of the early settlers to this area can be seen from the historic Bay of Quinte Region, which was influenced by the Loyalists for several generations, but which has been endowed by Mohawk Indian lifestyles also.

The Land O'Lakes and Highlands of Hastings tourist regions are known as "a fisherman's paradise". Each tourist region has its own particular points of interest but each offers easy access to lakes and streams for excellent fishing, canoe travel, hunting and other wilderness activities.

The areas provide every type fo recreation, including winter adventuring, amidst a countryside where the lakes and streams and the surrounding land are clean and attractive.



The Haliburton Highlands and the Madawaska Valley regions are also the habitat of fish and wildlife and offer rugged outdoor recreation to enthusiasts looking for less structured opportunities, as well as excellent modern, convenient tourist accommodations the year 'round. Many mines and mineral deposits are a "rockhound's" delight. These are the lands of remembered vacations with restful relaxation and varied activity.

To the north lies the internationally famous Algonquin Provincial Park, which contains approximately 2,700 square miles of unspoiled natural lakes and forests. There are wilderness campsites and extensive canoe routes established for all to enjoy.

1. Watch your children whenever they are near the water . . . and prevent a dreadful tragedy.

2. Children are poor swimmers or non-swimmers . . . they must wear life jackets. You know — young children move quickly . . . watch them carefully.

3. Watch children playing with plastic toys. They are fun on the beach — HAZARDOUS in the water. The slightest breeze will carry them out of reach into deep water.

4. Don't use inner tubes, water wings, etc., if you can't swim. The false confidence they build may cost your life.

5. Even after small children learn to swim, VIGILANT SUPERVISION must be continued.

6. Do not permit swimming in unknown waters. Have a responsible adult check a new area for drop-offs, currents, water purity — and for safe, firm bottoms.

7. Do not swim alone under any circumstances. Child and adult alike may panic when no help is near.

8. Don't swim in the dark . . . it's dangerous.

9. Know and teach "reaching assists" . . . how to help a swimmer in difficulty by lying flat and extending an arm, a pole or paddle, or towel or clothing . . . how to throw a line or a ring buoy . . . KNOWLEDGE SAVES LIVES.

10. Prevent boat accidents - WEAR YOUR LIFE JACKET!

11. DON'T OVERLOAD A BOAT . . . it's dangerous and stupid. If boat does capsize — HANG ON! Wait for help to come to you.

SAFETY HINTS AROUND THE HOME

Because children love to play in water, they must be watched constantly if there are creeks, rivers or ponds, no matter how small, near the home. A ditch, flooded after a storm, can be a death trap.

Cover open wells. Attention to this constant danger will prevent tragedy.

Make sure deep excavations in your neighborhood are fenced, and small children supervised at play.

Anticipate and prevent that one fatal slip.

Garden ponds and plastic wading pools should be supervised while children are at play — and closed off when supervision is absent. Remember, Children have drowned in as little as two or three inches of water.

Around the home, teach your children to avoid these dangers.

SAFETY TIPS

YOU MUST: Check your boat thoroughly and neve leave your mooring until you have done so.

YOU MUST: Never overload your boat. At all time be especially careful about non-swimmers an children.

YOU MUST: Carry life preservers for every perso on board. Be sure they are worn on deck duty i rough weather.

Pets Need Consideration

Most people are in a quandary as to whether or not they should take their pets on vacation. If the animal has been used to an outdoor life and to numbers of strangers being around, it is usually safe to assume it will easily adjust. But please enquire of your vacation host when making reservations, and do expect to keep your pet under control, especially around beaches. Other vacationers are entitled to consideration also.

Motor Homes Rolling

With everything you need all under one roof, it's easy to understand the motor home boom — it's literally a second home on wheels.

Today it's a purchase that can come with features like molded fiberglass baths, wall-to-wall carpeting, fully equipped kitchens, and bright, bold fabrics in draperies and sofas.

If you're considering a motor home purchase, you'll have plenty to choose from. In the United States alone, production has tripled in the past two years. Some motor homes are as long as 30 feet, and some cost as much as $30,000.

In 1973 models, you'll find vast improvements over the earlier models, both in design and driving ease. Motor homes are a feature of contemporary living, drawing increasing attention from vacationers.

Shall we take the kids?

That is probably the most debated question after making the decision on where to spend the vacation.

Whether it's a two - week respite or a four-day weekend, most parents usually bring the children if they're under 12 years of age.

Traveling with tots can be a nightmare, or if planned correctly, good fun. But before starting on any trip, be it across country or a hundred miles to see relatives by car or plane, here are a few helpful hints:

Read Up — A few weeks before leaving, talk to children about the trip, explaining what they'll be seeing. Encourage them to write away for information, even if you have to address the envelopes. As mail starts arriving, give each a manila folder to keep the pamphlets. You'll be surprised how meaningful the journey will suddenly become to them.

Oranize Early — Don't wait until the last minute to check the car, buy clothes, or make hotel-motel reservations. Remember many places have accommodation plans where children stay for free if they're in the same room as the adults.

Take a Little of Home — Strange surroundings, especially motel-hotel rooms can be disconcerting to tots. Pack your child's favorite sleep toy and a sudsy friend such as a box of bubble bath soap. Some children don't like taking baths in strange tubs, but a bubble bath makes it fun and more like home.

Pack Lightly — No matter what time of year, always carry the minimum wash — wear clothes. For boys: Two slacks or shorts, two crew shirts, a lightweight jacket, underwear, socks, shoes, swimtrunks, pajamas, suit, tie and white shirt.

Gilrs can pack the same, except substitute a dress for the suit, and add a purse or tote bag.

Make Car Comfortable — Adults have trouble sitting in cars for long hours, and so do children. Station wagons are good for long trips. Carry luggage on top of car. Place an army surplus or fitted mattress in back of front seat. Do the same in a sedan, but use luggage to fill in space between front and back seats. Now children have plenty of room to stretch, play and sleep.

Bring Games — Twenty Questions and other word games are fun while traveling. Once you arrive at the destination, have a game the tots can make. It will give them something to do and then play; for example, take an empty detergent or cereal box, punch holes, place clothespins in each hole, assigning point values, and toss dime-store bracelets at them.

Stop and See —At regular intervals, stop to see points of interest and eat. Rest areas provide places for children to run off excess energy. Pack an insulated jug and cut down on food bills.

Make Flying Fun — If it's your tots' first flight, make it fun and interesting. Explain what to expect, what certain sounds mean, and so forth. When the initial excitement wears off, have games and books ready. Bring medicine if children have sensitive stomachs.

Take Shoulder Strap Bag — Mothers need both hands free to hold onto kids, and plenty of room to carry diapers, food, books, etc. A canvas shoulder bag is the answer.

Following these tips will make any vacation, car ride, or weekend visit more fun, because the entire family will be enjoying it together.

Time Out For a Holiday Cast

In Quinte Region Fishing Is Fine

For local anglers, and visitors from as far away as the central United States, Hastings County's hundreds of lakes provide a focal point in the search for "the one that got away."

Haunting the waters of the Belleville - Tweed area is an assortment of game fish that offer almost any angler the choice of his fresh water favorite, including the various species of trout, large and smallmouth bass, pike, pickerel, muskelung and panfish.

The muskelunge, heavyweight champion of the local fish fraternity, has reared its ugly head with reports of several medium-sized muskies landed in Beaver Creek.

Pickerel have been supplying the bulk of the action in the Bay of Quinte area with reports of catches in the Moira River and at the mouth of the Trent.

Those taken in the Moira have been hooked almost exclusively on minnows, while ignoring the artificial bait offerings.

Indian Act Void

Six Nations Land Is Not Reserve

TORONTO (CP) — The thorny issue of Indian rights was thrown wide open Thursday by a Supreme Court of Ontario ruling that the Indian Act is inoperative and that the Six Nations Indian reserve near Brantford has no legal basis for being a reserve.

As a consequence, one lawyer said, the legal title to much of the land on which the city of Brantford is built is questionable.

And Mr. Justice John Osler in his 36-page judgment also came down heavily in favor of the historic Council of Hereditary Chiefs as rightful controllers of the reserve instead of the elected Indian council imposed by the federal government in 1924.

His judgement was based on precedents established in some of the first official land dealings between colonial administrators and Indians in what is now Canada.

The case arose from an injunction brought by the elected council against the hereditary chiefs seeking to bar them from the 87-year-old reserve council house. The application was dismissed and the injunction which has continued since 1970 on an interim basis, was dissolved by Mr. Justice Osler.

Reaction to the ruling was swift and mixed.

Some older Indians on the Six Nations reserve, traditionalists supporting the hereditary chiefs, hailed the judgment as a victory.

A spokesman for the federal Indian affairs department in Ottawa expressed surprise at the decision and said the department would study the judgment before deciding what action, if any, to take.

John Gasson, executive director of the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada, said in Toronto that although the ruling came in a provincial supreme court, it might have repercussions across the country.

"Most Indians feel that they have rights far beyond what ever the Indian Act grants them, but many will still view with apprehension the removal of protection, however great or small, afforded under the act," he said.

Mr. Justice Osler said that in his opinion the Indian Act "is inoperative by virtue of its discrimination by reason of race."

He cited a Supreme Court of Canada ruling which declared invalid because of discrimination, a section of the act relating to liquor, and to a judgment pending in the same court on another section by which a woman loses her Indian status upon marriage to a non-Indian.

"For all practical purposes the entire act must now be held to be inoperative," said Mr. Justice Osler.

He also said that the Indian Act and other legislation had not, in his opinion, affected "the quality" of an 18th-century land grant to the Six Nations Indians or the title held under it.

He referred to a 1784 land grant by which Sir Frederick Haldimand, governor of what was then known as Quebec, games per-mission to the Mohawk Nation and such other of the Six Nations Indians as wish to settle in that quarter to take possession of and settle upon the banks of the river commonly called Ours (Ouse) or Grand River . . . which them and their posterity are to enjoy forever."

The 1784 this grant was con-

Mohawks Ponder Ruling

Tyendinaga Land Grant Made on Same Terms

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Startled leaders of the Bay of Quinte Mohawks today were pondering the possible effects on their Tyendinaga Reserve of Thursday's controversial Ontario Supreme ruling declaring the Indian Act inoperative.

The decision may also hold implications for the legal status of Tyendinaga's reserve lands.

"We didn't ever expect such a ruling," he said.

"But," he added, "no matter what the ruling, we're still governed by the Indian Act."

He refused any further comment until he had thoroughly scrutinized the decision of Mr. Justice John Osler.

The decision rules the Six Nations Reserve at Brantford is not legally an Indian Reserve.

It also cast doubt on the legality of the reserve's elected council.

The Tyendinaga Mohawks and the Brantford Six Nations received their reserve lands under the same historic terms from British colonial administrators nearly two centuries ago, said Chief Hill. Both groups were members of the Iroquois confederacy.

Mr. Justice Osler ruled that the land grant the Iroquois in 1784 by British governor Sir John Frederick Haldimand — later confirmed in a land pat-

Nixon Enters Hospital With Viral Pneumonia

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is in hospital suffering what White House doctors have diagnosed as viral pneumonia.

He is expected to remain "at least a week," Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said, but "will carry on his necessary work."

The 60-year-old president was reported ill and entered Bethesda Naval Hospital in suburban Maryland Thursday night, after carrying on a day-long schedule despite reported discomfort.

It was the first time since he took office in 1969 that Nixon suffered any illness other than a cold. And it was the first time he has been in hospital since an injury to his knee during his presidential campaign of 1960.

White House physician Dr. Walter Tkach said he foresees "no complications," and that "rest and recuperation are the primary treatment."

Asked whether the condition was the result of "overwork or over-concern," the doctor replied that "anyone can suffer a viral pneumonia."

It is an infection of the air sacs in the lungs, often accompanied by pains in the chest, coughing, chills and fever.

New Oceans Policy Launched by Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government launched its new oceans policy Thursday, but offered neither route maps showing where it will be going nor details of what it will cost.

"It's a directing principle rather than a detailed plan," said Science Minister Jeanne Sauve, the minister responsible for getting the policy through cabinet.

The vague language in the statement supports her remark.

The new policy says, "Canada must develop and control within her own borders the essential elements needed to exploit offshore resources."

Mrs. Sauve said it now is up to the various departments to determine how this will be done.

"Important elements of the policy" said a news release, provide that:

—Canada stimulate development and effective participation of Canadian industry in the plan to see that Canada controls the essential industrial and technological ingredients to exploit off-shore resources.

—"Special emphasis be given to a wide range of marine science and technology programs relating to management of marine environment, renewable and non-renewable resources, development and maintenance of ocean engineering at universities and in government laboratories and better forecasting of weather, currents, ice and similar atmospheric and oceanic conditions.

—"Canada stand equal or superior in foreign governments or large multi-national corporations in developing and maintaining its current information base about its renewable and non-renewable offshore resources."

Various departments, including industry, trade and commerce; energy, mines and resources; transport; environment; and the science ministry, were charged "with the responsibility for implementing the new policy."

Farming Licences Urged

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A licence or registration should be mandatory before a person may qualify as a farmer and be eligible for government aid and agricultural land should never be used for any other purpose other than farming, a meeting of the touring Ontario farm classification advisory committee was told Thursday night. Committee Chairman Edward Kowal, a Mississauga lawyer, said that if the 91,300 farmers in Ontario could qualify for a licence, their lands could be permanently classified as farmland.

Strike Settled

TORONTO (CP) — Settlement was reached Thursday night in a dispute which has kept 800 cement pourers off the job in Metropolitan Toronto since Monday.

Indefinite Terms Invalid

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dozens of young people now jailed in British Columbia for federal offences may be serving illegal sentences as a result of a far-reaching decision Thursday by the B.C. Court of Appeal. In a 3-1 decision that could also affect similar cases in Ontario, the appeal court held that section 150 of the Prison and Reformatories Act, which provides for an indefinite sentence along with a definite one, was inoperative in B.C. because it denied an accused equality before the law and contravened the Canadian Bill of Rights.

Policeman Charged As Killer

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Police Constable Merv Smith, attached to Toronto's mounted unit, was charged early today on two counts of non-capital murder following the shooting deaths of his wife and an Orillia building contractor near here Thursday.

Constable Smith, 43, has been remanded in custody until July 18 when he will appear in provincial court in Brechin.

The shootings occurred at a beach cottage six miles south of Orillia. Neighbors heard numerous shots and later found the bodies of Agnes Smith, 40, and Joseph Chiavetti, 43, of Toronto. Chiavetti was construction company owner.

First reports indicated that Mr. Chiavetti was shot once in the cottage and again after he struggled with Mrs. The front window of the car had been shattered by a bullet.

The Criminal Investigation Bureau at Downsview began examining the incident early today aided by Det. Sgt. Frank Barberia of the Metro Homicide Squad.

Several eye-witnesses have been interviewed by police, it is reported, but no further details have been released.

'Copters Will Pick up Canadians Saturday

SAIGON (CP) — Two helicopters will land at 11 a.m. Saturday with the aim of picking up two Canadian officers and two Vietnamese who have been in Viet Cong hands since June 23.

The helicopters will visit two spots in Viet Cong - controlled territory in the area of Xuan Loc, 35 miles northeast of here, and at one of those sites they are expected to pick up the four men and return them to Saigon.

The rescue plan was arranged between Canadian officials and officials of the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) and the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) in talks today.

"We are encouraged but we will not be satisfied until the two Canadians and the two Vietnamese ICCS employees have been returned," said Canadian Ambassador Michel Gauvin.

He made the statement after preventing ICCS commissioners from doing any routine work for the third time this week. The Canadian position is that the commission must do no routine work until the men are freed.

The four men, Capt. Ian Pitcher of Toronto and Capt. Fletcher Thomson of Ottawa, their driver and interpreter fell into Viet Cong hands during a flag-showing trip.

First word that the rescue mission was almost ready to go came from the PRG, but none of the PRG statements mentioned the two Vietnamese.

Asked about this, a spokesman would only say: "We have another specific schedule for the Vietnamese. I don't know whether they are to be released at the same time as the Canadians."

Canada has always mentioned the release of these two men, an interpreter and a driver, as it negotiated for the release of the two officers.

The question is whether Canada can accept the release of the two officers when ICCS officials are not sure of the fate of the Vietnamese.

Campora Quits So Peron Can Run

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — President Hector Campora resigned today to allow new Argentine elections that appeared certain to return to power Juan Peron, ousted by a military coup in 1955.

Campora and Vice-President Vicente Solano Lima signed their resignations in the Pink House, the official palace. Both houses of Congress were to approve them later today.

The dramatic move followed a sudden call from moderate union leaders that Peron resume his long-interrupted leadership. He returned from exile June 30 after Campora, Peron's hand-picked stand-in, won elections from which Peron was disqualified.

Argentina was calm today despite bitter opposition from some leftist factions of Peronism who felt the sequence of events would bring another conservative government and weaken their stance.

Elections were expected to follow in 40 days, open to all parties but almost certain to be won by a coalition ticket of Peron and Ricardo Balxin, 68-year-old leader of Argentina's second-largest party, the Radical Civic Union.

Meanwhile, the provisional president would be Raul Lastiri, president of the Chamber of Deputies and son-in-law of Peron's trusted lieutenant, Jose Lopez Rega.

There was no indication whether the military would oppose the return to office of the 77-year-old former dictator. But Campora gave some his inauguration 48 days ago has put younger officers at the head of the armed services, replacing some of the leading anti-Peronist generals and admirals.

Campora, a 66-year-old dentist and protege of Peron, said early today he announced his intention to resign that a presidential election would be held within 40 days.

Campora said Peron will be a candidate and his vice-presidential running mate will be Ricardo Balbin, head of the Radical Civic Union, the country's second-largest party.

Balbin, 68, was jailed for a year during Peron's 1946-55 dictatorship and ran second to Campora in the presidential election last March. His presence on the ticket with Peron would increase public opposition to any attempt to block the election.

Campora, although picked by Peron for the presidency, had been unable since his inauguration May 25 to suppress feuding among the diverse factions in the Peronist movement. The deepest split has been between the middle-of-the-road unions, Peronist backbone, and the leftist radicals. The radicals, supported by the youth movement, demand a sharp swing to socialism.

The bitterness of their rivalry was demonstrated when at least 25 persons were killed and hundreds were wounded in gun battles during the huge rally that welcomed Peron home from Spain June 20.

Peronist congressmen, politicians and party officials demanded Campora assume the presidency. The General Labor Confederation threatened a strike to demand "power to Peron."

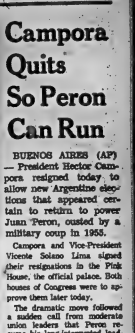
Await Last Of Non-op Findings

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal labor officials expect to receive today the third part of a conciliation board report on the contract dispute between 57,000 railway non-operating employees and their employers.



Receipt of the report today would give the railway workers the legal right to strike just after midnight Saturday night, July 21, although because of organizing problems they are not likely to walk off their jobs until July 24 or 25.

The dispute involves porters, clerks, maintenance, roundhouse and other workers employed by CP Rail, Canadian National Railways and smaller railway companies. Their last working agreement ended Dec. 31, 1972.

Wednesday, union officials said they are getting set for no-strike and selective strikes across Canada, following apparent failure of the conciliation board to overcome the impasse.

Labor Minister John Munro said he is optimistic agreement can be reached.

Honorary bearers were Les Shore, Bill Ford, Bert Robinson, Ross Cooper, Arthur Robbs and Dick Burns.

Power Line Objectors Get Chance

An environmental group concerned with the possible marring of scenic Long Reach by Ontario Hydro power lines will have a chance to voice its objections during the next few months.

Hydro plans to hold a series of public meetings to hear views of Prince Edward County residents about the location of transmission lines into the county from a new generating station under construction near Nanticoke.

Save Our Bay has expressed fears that Hydro might erect lines across the reach at the easternmost tip of the county.

A Hydro spokesman said Thursday, however, that a decision will be made on a route for the lines until public hearings are complete.

The spokesman said a study team has met three times in preparation for what should be a lengthy process to determine Prince Edward County's future power requirements. One of the goals is to decide whether new transmission lines should carry 44,000, 115,000 or 230,000 volts of electricity.

The Hydro official was responding to questions from a Prince Edward County politician at a meeting to discuss a proposed bulk power corridor south of Belleville.

℞ CURRENT NEWS ABOUT LEG CRAMPS
Intermittent claudication is a painful cramp in the leg. It generally occurs in the calf muscle or thigh while walking. In usual cause is insufficient blood supply due to hardening of the arteries. During bed, humid weather a great loss of salt may be a cause.
It is presently impossible to cure hardened arteries. But you can walk slower, take certain leg exercises and your Doctor can prescribe medicines which dilate the blood vessels. Sometimes, if there is an obstruction at some point in the large arteries, you may need surgical help.

Feathers - - Without Fuss

Trent Valley Goslings In Camden Lake Flock

They went east — by truck.

Destination for the 10 crated geslings was the provincial Camden Lake preserve northeast of Napanee where, hopefully they'll now return each year as a birdwatching attraction between winter migrations.

The goslings, a gift of the Lower Trent Valley Fish and Game Protective Association, will join a growing swarm of Canada Geese at the preserve.

The preserve, still under development, has been attracting spreading public attention since it opened three years ago.

Last year, about 1,600 people visited the site to watch various species of wildfowl— and the Canada Geese for which it is now a declared sanctuary.

The association, which has its own gaggle of geese, helped get the preserve under way with a similar donation some years ago.

This year's mating harvest produced the 10 goslings, says Howard.

Aside from a contribution to conservation, their donation to the ministry's preserve also solved a cost problem.

It's a good problem.

The association already has a sufficient showing of adult geese. The goslings would have added unnecessarily to a feed bill that keeps going up in price.

There also was a certain urgency about getting the goslings off the association's ponds. The birds had to be transferred before they learned to fly.

At Camden Lake they'll be banded — for migratory identification and join other geese now totalling about 180 at the preserve.

Some 20 geese will be kept as a captive 'year - round group — both as an attraction to draw more migrating Canada Geese and for public viewing.

Grass Fires Keep Firefighters Busy

Sticking brake shoes and tinder-dry brush conspired Thursday to keep firemen busy for 2½-hours fighting a grass fire along a Canadian National track through Corbyville.

More than 40 men from Thurlow Township, Corby's Distilleries and CN joined forces pouring water onto the stubborn flames and patting them out with brooms.

At one stage, firemen feared the flames might reach Gulf and Texaco storage tanks nearby along the west side of the line. A tank car containing lethal anhydrous ammonia was also a short distance from the blaze on an Agrice Fertilizer siding.

A CN spokesman said the fire began around noon after a freight train, bound for Belcroft, passed under the Highway 2 bridge north through Cannifton and Corbyville.

Witnesses said they saw sparks flying from the wheels of several cars, immediately igniting dry brush on either side.

The spokesman said most probable cause was sticking brake shoes. The train was brought to a halt just north of Corbyville but nothing could be found.

Another train also caused problems for firemen last night when flames broke out along the CN right-of-way south of McFarland-Gendron in Belleville around 9 o'clock this morning.

Belleville firefighters quickly doused the flames. Fire Leo Culhane said the fire probably resulted from a similar occurrence to the Corbyville blaze.

The document, in the name of King George III, granted the land to the chiefs, warriors, women and people of the Six Nations," and their heirs forever.

Mr. Justice Osler said that the effect of the Haldimand grant and Simcoe patent was to give the Indians title to the land in fee simple, as opposed to other reserves in which title is vested with the Crown in trust for the Indians.

The injunction brought against the hereditary chiefs developed from incidents in June and July, 1970, during which the chiefs seized and padlocked the Six Nations council hall.

Mr. Justice Osler pointed out that the order-in-council provided that "this land" (the Six Nations Indians) was "considered fit" to have the elected council.

The Indian Act also defined what it meant by the word "reserve".

It stated, it meant "any tribe, band or body of Indians who own or are interested in a reserve set apart by treaty or action of, which the legal title is in the Crown."

Said Mr. Justice Osler: "Having decided that land, perhaps uniquely, is vested not in the Crown but in the Indians for their common benefit

Public Response Is Required To Determine Hydro Line Route

Ontario Hydro is taking three proposals to rural residents between Napanee and Oshawa in its bid to find the ultimate right - of - way for planned 500,000 - volt transmission lines.

During the next month, meetings will be held in communities along the 1,200-square mile study area to give residents an opportunity to record their preferences.

In addition, Hydro is mailing 28,000 pamphlets and placing advertisements in local newspapers to explain the alternatives. Coupons will be provided with each pamphlet and ad, affording persons a chance to indicate their choice.

Called Phase II, the current drive for public input comes after an initial series of meetings that helped planners map out the three proposals shown for the first time to municipal politicians and planners Thursday night.

The research firms of Commonwealth Associates and Canadian Facts spent the past five months holding public meetings and conducting opinion surveys, as well as gathering data from maps, statistics and local records, to produce what they describe as environmentally suitable corridors that also make sound use of land.

When the project is finished, probably by 1976, the transmission lines will carry power from Lennox Generating Station, east of Napanee, to a new transformer station near Oshawa. They will form a major portion of Hydro's bulk transmission network across southern Ontario.

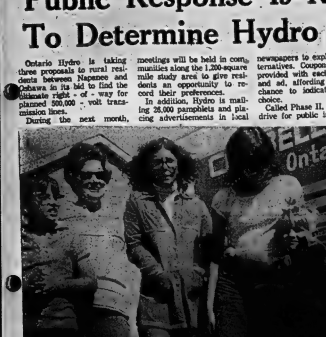
Once the second input phase is complete, Hydro and Commonwealth plan to submit a recommended route to the Solandt Commission. Dr. Ormand Solandt, appointed by the Ontario government as a one-man board, is receiving similar reports on power corridors from around the province.

After an interval so that interested parties can make written submissions to the commission, Dr. Solandt will hold public hearings. He is expected to present his final, well-aired proposal to the government by the end of the year.

A change from the original scheme outlined in January has resulted in corridors 2,400-feet wide into which a single 425-foot right of way will be fitted.

Hydro had called for a 610-foot right-of way but residents said the 200-foot higher towers and narrower corridor, Commonwealth biologist Tina Beyer told the meeting.

As a result, twin towers 160-feet high will replace single 130-foot poles. They will also be capable of carrying two 500 KV circuits, as opposed to three in the original plan, although Hydro officials don't expect to connect the last two until at least 1980.



The 610-foot corridors were also to have provided room for 230 kV lines on either side of the main towers — to come into use as demand required. But a Hydro spokesman said public attitude, re-vealed by the surveys, preferred that the commission purchase land as needed, rather than keep it for the future.

At coming public meetings, Hydro will supply detailed maps showing the exact route of the corridor proposals.

The townships of Brighton, Percy, Cramahe and Seymour meet July 17 and 18 at East Northumberland Secondary School, Brighton.

Sidney, Murray, Rawdon and Seymour meet July 31 and Aug. 1 in Frankford Public School.

Thurlow, Tyendinaga, Richmond, Huntingdon and Hastenford Townships meet Aug. 7 and 8 at Holy Name of Mary School, Marysville. All meetings begin at 8 p.m.

Mapping Future Power Needs

Politicians and planners from communities along Ontario Hydro's proposed transmission line corridor study map to find out where the three suggested routes cross their municipalities. The corridors are almost half a mile wide but final choice, expected by the end of the year, will be a single 425-foot right - of - way connecting Lennox Generating Station near Napanee to southern Ontario bulk power network.

Three Choices for Route

Ontario Hydro planners revealed for the first time Thursday proposed transmission line corridors that eventually will be reduced to a 425 - foot - wide swath across eastern Ontario countryside.

Maps put on display for municipal officials were marked with three colored lines, each representing a separate strip nearly one-half mile wide through townships along the bulk power route.

Called Routes A, B and C, the lines are roughly parallel running from east to west, except where environmental or topographical obstacles have forced changes in direction. There are also several interconnecting lines to give planners the option of switching from one route to another in case of public protest or unforseen difficulties.

In Sidney Township, Route A runs along the south side of the Third Concession Road, exiting south of Belleville. Route B runs along the north side of the Fourth Concession Road, with provision for a link-up with A along an existing transmission line extending through lots eight to 12.

Route C enters the township in the middle of the Seventh Concession on the east side, dropping just west of Highway 14 and exiting along Concession Road Six. Routes B and C miss the town of Frankford by two miles to the south and north.

In Thurlow Township, Routes A and B are the same between the eastern border and the Moira River. There, Route A cuts south to Concession Road Three while B continues along the middle of the Fourth Concession.

Route C follows the Seventh Concession, except for an alternate path down to the Fifth Concession in the eastern half of the township.

Clearly defined maps will be on display when Hydro holds public meetings in Frankford July 31 and Aug. 1, and at Marysville Aug. 2 and 3.

Name Needed

City council and the Hastings County Board of Education will be asked to select an appropriate name for the new Centennial school park site in West Belleville.

Parks director Lloyd Syer told the board yesterday that the Centennial name so far used was merely a "working" name used during development.

However, development of park, which includes a baseball diamond and tennis courts as well as the Dick Ellis Rink, is now well under way and a permanent and more appropriate name for the entire compex is suggested.

Bienvenue a Belleville

Twelve students from Quebec province arrived in Belleville yesterday for a two week stay in Quinte district homes through the annual student exchange program of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews. The Herbert family welcomed Daniele Langlois (third from left) who had been hostess for two weeks to Gail Herbert (fourth from left) in Quebec. Welcoming the girls were Michael, Mrs. Kaye Herbert, Louis and Michele. More than 1,000 students returned to Ontario with their Quebecois guests on a special train Thursday afternoon. While in Belleville the local students and their guests will meet Mayor Robin Jeffrey, tour CFB Trenton and the Mead Johnson plant here and enjoy a picnic at the Outlet.

90 Patients Treated At Mobile Pet Clinic

Today, there are 90 less pets needing medical attention in the Belleville area.

It's a tally that should satisfy veterinarian Kenneth Easton — more evidence of what he calls a "crying need" in Ontario.

To service such a need he quit 15 years of private practice earlier this year and spent travelling for the Ontario Humane Society.

Thursday, Dr. Easton was at the OHS Quinte shelter, aboard the first Belleville-district visit of the society's new mobile veterinary clinic.

The pay - as - you - can service is activating an OHS program to get health services to the province's pets, a plan mobilized to achieve twin goals:

(1) Eradication of distemper, a disease the OHS believes is at peak prevalence — and not being combatted by any official agency.

(2) Extension of medical care to pets who — because of circumstances of human ownership — might not normally receive veterinary attention.

Domestic pets are totally dependent on people — and subject to the problems and attitudes of their owners.

It was a problem he often pondered during his years in private practice at Mississauga after graduating in veterinary medicine in 1958.

"I found in private practice that the scope of what I could cover was limited by attitudes," he says.

"There was such a crying need in a significant segment of the population you just couldn't ignore it that much."

Experiences on the road since he entered what he terms "public practice" with the OHS, confirmed his belief, Dr. Easton indicates.

Among them:

• The woman whose dog had lost an eye, was losing a second through facial disfigurement. Ex sight was saved by plastic surgery — performed in the fully-equipped mobile clinic — which the owner otherwise could not have afforded.

• The youngsters whose father refused aid for their ailing pet, threatening to shoot it instead of paying for care.

• Owners whose finances rule out veterinary attention. They brought pets to the clinic with what they thought was a cold. Checkups revealed heart conditions.

"It's too bad the animal has to suffer because of such barriers," he says.

The OHS service does not compete with private practitioners but "augments" them he adds.

The provincial government tackled rabies in recent years — but distemper is another problem. There has been no official curbing action on the disease which has increasingly concerned the OHS in its animal control operations in various Ontario centres, says Dr. Easton.

Much of it is being spread by dogs wandering at large, animals that invariably will wind up in OHS shelters, where they spread the distemper.

"The society gets a black eye for inoculating an animal with the disease," says Dr. Easton. "We've just got to get out there and stop it the way the government halted rabies."

Since the clinic became operational this summer, Dr. Easton already has driven the mobile medical centre 4,500 miles. Coverage ranges from Brockville to Parry Sound and plans call for return visits every two months.

The service is free for those who can't afford payment, although donations are accepted for OHS work.

Getting the animal hospital "where it's needed" will run a yearly $50,000 — the overhead cost of operating the mobile clinic, says Dr. Easton.

Any way the public wants to show its support "is fine with us," says the veterinarian. "All we ask is for them to please identify with what we're doing — and support us."

Focus on Planning

Planning and design — some of it good, some of it bad — are two key factors in the Ontario Economic Council's review of municipal planning.

The review notes that the small cadre of pioneer planners of the pre-war and wartime years has grown through immigration and increasingly, graduations from universities here, until today there is now no real shortage of professionals at the junior and intermediate levels.

Localized shortages still exist — a product mainly, says the review, of geographic circumstances or of local inability to meet going salaries in the field. A scarcity of competent senior people is also noted.

If there is no serious general shortage of planners, the image projected of planning per se, of its accomplishments, is less impressive. Here are two key factors, according to the review. First, senior public planners have, in effect, done very little planning, serving largely as administrators and carrying out policy homilies of politicians. Secondly, they have offered few initiatives and little in the way of public policy formulation. The same criticism applies to the development of its institutional body, the Town Planning Institute of Canada.

Turning to the area of design the review notes that since 1946 more than 22,000 subdivisions/plans have been received by the Community Planning Branch and while quantitatively this had been the most successful aspect of Planning Act implementation, qualitatively results had been "less than commendable."

"The designs are poor, with dull and stereotyped environments frequently the result; the process is slow, resulting in additional costs to all those who must be passed on to the ultimate consumer; the standards applied are arbitrary and inconsistent and the conditions attached unduly onerous, again adding to the cost."

What follows is no less encouraging in its appraisal of the planning process: "Most subdivision plans are drawn up by planners, surveyors, engineers or architects employed by the development group. The first problem is that not many are very good at it. After 20-odd years there are still remarkably few community designers of real ability in Ontario — perhaps a score at most, of whom only eight or ten stand in the front rank. The rest tend to concentrate on efficient means of dividing the parcel into streets and lots."

"There never has been much of a premium placed on good design, and undoubtedly this is the real problem . . . certainly the public seems willing enough to pay without much thought for community design."

The review speaks of "an almost universal resignation to an unreal, ponderous system in which delay is of no consequence, and where timely processing is equated with careful study."

In a sense this is all understandable, given the extremely complex nature of planning and the inevitable frustrations of the bureaucratic process at every stage of the game. In this regard it is significant that the review recommends the appointment of a planning ombudsman whose task it would be to ensure that the rights of individuals and groups are protected throughout. Meanwhile we are reminded of the old axiom about Rome not being built in a day.

Like Is Is

Toronto columnist Richard Needham tells of a New York employment agency which recently applied a "tell it like it is" philosophy to a Help Wanted advertisement: It went like this, in part: "Secretaries, here it is — the worst job in N.Y.C. Low salary, lousy benefits. This is a real nightmare of a secty job. Crummy offices. Rotten boss. Half-hour lunch. . ." And so on.

The agency explained that perhaps it had overlooked the negative aspect but the truth was, most secretarial jobs were pretty dull and boring. Predictably, the response was excellent. More than 25 women (three times as great as the firm's usual ads) came in and two thirds were placed in jobs in just a few days.

Well now, this is all very interesting, but alas there is no new thing under the sun. It is merely a new stroke. We read of a British real estate man who applied the very same technique to ads for houses. Yes . . . they sold like hot cakes too!

Citizens Contributed Their Stories

A Bureaucrat's Swan Song: Book on How to Quit Smoking

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

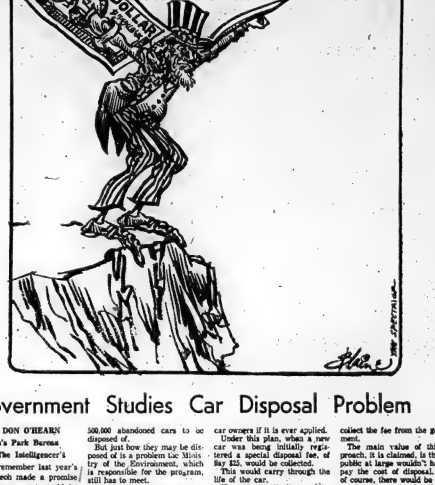
OTTAWA — Back in the days when Canadians were kept up-to-date about the heroic efforts of their ministers of National Health and Welfare, Judy LaMarsh and John Munro, took the smoking habit, an information officer in the department developed the germ of an idea.

His name was Ted Watt and he acted as the department spokesman for the early attempts of Miss LaMarsh and later of Mr. Munro to persuade Canadians they would be better off if they stunned the weed. His plan was to advertise for real life stories of Canadians who had been able to give up smoking and to publish these accounts as an inspiration and incentive for others who also had sed others to follow their example.

In the spring of 1969 advertisements ran in the three Ottawa newspapers to describe such experience in writing. The unusual approach drew the attention of the national news agency, The Canadian Press, and a story appeared in papers all across the country.

Mr. Watt explains that the original plan was to quickly select and print 26 brief accounts, but the national response was such that hundreds of letters were received. By the end of 1969 letters were sent out to 79 contributors asking if they wished their accounts to appear over their signatures. A great majority agreed although six said they preferred anonymity.

The final result, a 118 - page pocket book entitled "How We Quit Smoking" is now on sale at Information Canada bookstores for a modest 75 cents a copy, complete with appropriate cartoons and sketches.



Mr. Watt retired from the department about three years ago but he retains a fatherly interest in the booklet he helped to compile and nurses towards commercial publication.

"I had personal correspondence with all the contributors," Mr. Watt recalls. "I am also pleased to report that by the time I left the department I had not heard that any of those whose comments are reproduced ever became back - sliders and returned to cigarettes."

He notes that there is an unlimited variety of method described in quitting tobacco and many instances of direct contradiction. Many support the "cold turkey" method of quitting constantly, but there are as many who recommend the process of tapering off by reducing their consumption gradually. Some claim will power is the answer but others contend there is as such thing as will power.

Overriding all the accounts are three main forces that caused the writers to quit. They are rebellion against the humiliation of being controlled by a habit; concern for health and the health of others; and a determination to use the money involved for more satisfying ends.

A naval intelligence commander in the second war, Mr. Watt is now working on a book of his own, a story about the morale problem among merchant seamen in the Atlantic convoys. He hopes to get it published but doubts that it will give him any more satisfaction than his compilation of the quit-smoking stories and the beneficial effects he hopes will stem from them.

Government Studies Car Disposal Problem

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
From The Intelligencer's

As you remember last year's throne speech made a promise that the government would be taking action on abandoned automobiles.

The promise was that it would do something about the unsightly mess that abandoned cars make of the country-side.

As of now the promise still has to be kept.

The only substantial step taken to date has been to find out just what the size of the problem might be.

Last summer students were employed to make a survey of abandoned cars throughout the province.

And from their findings it is now estimated that there are somewhere between 400,000 and 500,000 abandoned cars to be disposed of.

But just how they may be disposed of is a problem for Mr. Kerr ty of the Environment, which is responsible for the program, still has to meet.

The root of the problem is that old automobiles aren't worth much for scrap.

In areas such as Toronto which are close to the Hamilton steel mill which uses the scrap the situation is not too bad.

The hulks can be sold and still show a return of a few dollars.

But in areas farther away from the mills the transportation costs are too high. There is little use in trying to dispose of the hulks.

And so most people just take them out on a country road and abandon them.

To try and come up with some answers the ministry this summer is sponsoring pilot projects in Pembroke, Sault Ste. Marie and probably Sudbury.

These projects will cover techniques of collecting old cars and the costs involved, whether incentives for disposal by owners might work and whether perhaps a freight subsidy for transportation to Hamilton might be worthwhile.

Along with this a plan is being considered which might turn into a bit of a stock for car owners if it is ever applied.

Under this plan, when a new car was being initially registered a special disposal fee, of say $25, would be collected.

Then when it finally was disposed of the final owner would collect the fee from the government.

The main value of this approach, it is claimed, is that the public at large wouldn't have to pay the cost of disposal. Also, of course, there would be an incentive for cars to be disposed of properly.

Three R's

(Peterborough Examiner)

Thomas A. Stewart, Secondary School principal Jack Richardson has put into words what that many parents - and future employers - of today's students think when he told the Rotary Club that dry rot is setting into the secondary school system.

He said the idea by "well-meaning academics" that the three Rs are repressive led to a deterioration of skills.

One must readily agree with Mr. Richardson. Student skills have deteriorated at a time when no expense was spared to provide the school system with all modern educational aids.

It's to the credit of educators like Mr. Richardson that - however belatedly - they are sounding the alarm over the problem. But why did so few educators defend the good, time-honored, proven and absolutely necessary aspects of education when the damage was being done.

Jean-Paul Marat, leader of the French revolution, was stabbed to death 180 years ago today—in 1793—by Charlotte Corday, a young girl of right-wing sentiments. Formerly a successful doctor, philosopher and scientist, Marat dictated all authority and so allied himself to no party when the revolution came. He helped bring about the fall of the oligarchical Girondins and is credited with foreseeing the massacres of 1792, when no mechanism was set up to try the aristocrats on specific charges.

Women's Institute's Long Record of Public Service

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The purpose of this letter is threefold: To inform, to complain and to commend.

Briefly the history of the Women's Institute is this: In 1897 this organization originated at Stoney Creek, Ontario. From its humble beginnings it has grown into a great organization of which we are justly proud to belong. The Handbook of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario states clearly the greatness and effectiveness of such an organization as the Women's Institute: "Without vision the people perish." Certainly the idea put forth in 1897 had vision; it was also practical, forthright, and a brave venture. Those who caught the vision could not have known how far-reaching the organization, to be known as the Women's Institute, could be in its influence toward better homemaking and good citizenship.

It is a non-partisan, non-sectarian and non-racial organization, open to all women who are interested in the promotion of better living.

The branch is the first and fundamental level of the Women's Institute. At this branch level the major objectives of the organization are fulfilled. The community and the individual benefit from the efforts of a closely unified and dedicated branch.

Beyond the branch is the District WI. Ours is Hastings East. The District, as a larger unit, enables larger projects to be carried out.

The next step is the Area Women's Institute. This region falls into the Trent Valley Area. Here still greater projects can be conducted and recommendations can be made. Hastings Branch is the area to the next link of the chain, the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario, and beyond that is the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada.

At these two points in the organization the efforts of the smaller units are further coordinated. The FWIO works in co-operation with the Ontario Economics Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food. Their co-operation provides the program of work for Ontario Women's Institutes. The FWIC with all Women's Institutes throughout Canada are organized and the work in each province is coordinated.

The top level of the organization reaches internationally with the Associated Country Women of the World. Many organizations nearly 7,000,000 women in 66 countries. The ACWW works with the United Nations in a consultative status with ECOSOC, FAO, UNESCO, and UNICEF. The work of this organization is widespread. It affects every facet of life in the countries of the world and dedicates itself to the bettering of the quality of life throughout the world.

An organization of this magnitude deserves more consideration in your paper. Our Public Relations Officer writes the meetings and sends them to your social editor. When they appear they are often so cut as to suggest that their original meaning is lost.

Members of our branch are very dissatisfied with the coverage The Intelligencer is giving the Women's Institute not only in this respect but in many other aspects.

The programs for our Women's Institute are printed in the community events department of The Intelligencer. We have been most pleased with this department in the printing of these programs and wish to commend them for their success in their endeavors. If such efficiency can be attained in at least one department of your newspaper why can it not as well be achieved in the publication area of your paper?

It's Slow Going!

OTTAWA (CP) — Former mayors, used to fast legislative action in city council chambers, notice a sharp difference when they come to Ottawa as MPs.

"The slow decision-making process can be really frustrating," says J. R. Ellis (PC—Hastings), a former mayor of Belleville. On municipal politics, an issue is examined, a decision is made and that's it. Here the process goes on for months.

I think this is what I noticed most, too," says Frank Oberle (PC—Prince George-Peace River), a former mayor of Chetwynd, B.C. The time it takes to reach decisions in Ottawa has really surprised me. It's not a bit like municipal politics."

When most new MPs come to Ottawa they try to make an impact in the Commons where all the potential publicity lies.

"But that's not where you can accomplish the most," says Hugh Faulkner (PC—Dauphin-Dauphin-Dauphin-

LONDON BRIDGE is now completed at Lake Havasu City, Arizona. You are invited to fly out . . . at no cost to you! See the bridge! See the city! See the opportunities! See the sun!

Fly as our guests, both husband and wife, to a wonderful small world — Lake Havasu City, Arizona!

You'll see that Lake Havasu City is truly a "planned city" — self-sufficient and beautiful. Planned to offer escape from air and water pollution and the many other ills that confront today's urban society. Developed every step of the way according to McCulloch's Master Plan for a balanced population and economy — light industry, service businesses, recreation and "leisure industry."

See the city!

See the opportunities!

London Bridge Brings New Opportunities!

You'll also see the famous London Bridge — and even walk across it. Now it's completed — but the opportunity it represents is just beginning!

You'll learn firsthand how London Bridge can have far-reaching effects on the economic future of Lake Havasu City. Its reconstruction alone was an $8 million project. And now more employment is expected to result as the proposed multi-million-dollar International Resort Center is developed. Already the City of London has completed its English village, including a pub and restaurant, on an acre of land it owns.

Also, adding to the jobs provided by other employers already established in Lake Havasu City, McCulloch Corporation is now moving its entire Los Angeles chain saw manufacturing operation employing over 700 to this community. When the entire move is completed in 1975, it is anticipating up to 1200 employees in Lake Havasu City — with an annual payroll of millions.

See the opportunities for yourselves!

While you are at Lake Havasu City, you will see the things that always impress its visitors. You'll see the miles of beautiful beaches, golf courses, over 400 businesses, banks, schools and light industries that have sprung up in just eight short years to support the population that already exceeds 8000. You'll see all the growth that can mean new opportunities for you.

So we invite you to see it for yourselves — as our guests — and learn firsthand about these opportunities that Lake Havasu City offers you!

If you decide to fly with us, you will fly on McCulloch International Airlines, a U.S. certificated supplemental air carrier. It operates the nation's largest fleet of giant, 4-engine Electra-Jets. With multi-million-mile pilots, flight engineers and attentive stewardesses.

But first phone or mail the coupon for details of our flight offer and these free booklets that tell you the story of Lake Havasu City:

2. Today's Story of Lake Havasu City. 28 pages, over 80 color photos, maps and charts.

Food Price Jump Seen For U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for food chain stores in the United States said Thursday the public can expect food prices to rise as much as 15 per cent on some items when the current price freeze ends.

Clarence Adamy, president of the National Association of Food Chains, told a House judiciary subcommittee studying the increasing in food prices, the highest price increases will be for fresh fruits and vegetables, which are not controlled at the production end, but an over-all increase on all market items of four to five per cent can be expected.

He also said shortages of fruits, vegetables, oils, shortening, beef, pork and chicken now are becoming serious and will get worse in the next few weeks.

Adamy urged the immediate lifting of price controls as the best method of easing the price crunch and shortages. But he said if any controls are continued they should cover everybody.

Food Prices Easing Likely

TORONTO (CP) — There are "grounds for hope" that rates of increases in food prices will soon begin to ease, the Bank of Nova Scotia Monthly Review says.

The review says reports so far indicate U.S. crop yields will be substantially larger than last year's.

"There are thus good grounds for expecting some appreciable lessening of upward price pressures in the food sector during the second half of this year, although the weather still remains a crucial factor."

The review also says little of recent price increases can be directly attributed to rising wage levels but wages have been rising faster than productivity.

Council Ready

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ottawa district Health Council, one of the proposed councils to do health planning on a regional basis throughout the province, should be in action by September, Ontario Health Minister Richard Potter said Thursday.

Tour Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate foreign affairs committee has urged a European tour by Prime Minister Trudeau and continued government pressure for a wide-reaching economic agreement with the European Economic Community (EEC) as means to strengthen ties with the EEC.

Firm Sued

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A Canadian couple who claimed their young son suffered severe brain damage after swallowing a piece of a toy, has filed a $6 million law suit against the manufacturer.

The suit, which names Fisher-Price Toys of nearby East Aurora, was filed here Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Cunningham of Ottawa said in the suit that their son swallowed a detachable toy passenger from a toy school bus in January, 1971. They said the child suffered brain damage "so severe as to cause him to become permanently retarded."

Cheese Topic

BRUSSELS (CP) — Canada is trying to make special arrangements with the enlarged European Common Market s that exports of aged cheddar cheese to Britain from Ontario and Quebec can remain profitable.

"We received a very good hearing," said Alec Lane of the Canadian department of industry, trade and commerce after a meeting Thursday with officials of the Common Market's Brussels-based executive commission.

85 Injured

KANKAKEE, Ill. (AP) — Eight-five persons were treated for injuries when 19 cars of a Chicago-to-New Orleans Amtrak passenger train derailed south of here.

Hospital officials said there were no serious injuries, although 22 persons were admitted to area hospitals after the accident Thursday night. Hospital officials said most injuries were bone fractures, strains, neck injuries or shock.

The Northumberland County public library services, established in 1965, serve a population of 33,000 scattered over an area of more than 1.3 million square miles.

Fashions Of An Earlier Age

Helen Walt with the Riggs Wedding Gown at the Hastings County Museum. Miss Walt, who has looked after costumes, among other things for the museum, says the gown is turn - of - the - century. It was presented to the museum by Miss Leona Riggs. It was her mother's wedding gown and features duchesse lace.

It was an earlier and more gracious age when the daughter of a wealthy family was married in a gown of only the finest fabric tediously hand sewn and embroidered.

Such a gown is the Sutcliffe wedding gown worn 120 years ago by a daughter of the wealthy Trenton merchant family.

Today the gown is displayed in a glass case at Glanmore House, Bridge St. E., new site of the Hastings County Museum.

"It's the prizeof the collection," says Helen Walt, who has been, according to curator Marten Lewis, a zealous worker for the museum for many years.

Miss Walt remembers the Sutcliffe store where you could buy "every kind of cloth you could think of and hand-made ready to wear clothes."

As for the Sutcliffe family, who were "very, very wealthy", Miss Walt says "anything they did was done right."

Doing it right, in that Victorian age, included a pure silk brocaded taffeta gown inset with Indis muslin flowers all painstakingly hand embroidered.

The gown is in three pieces: a skirt, "guimpe" or sleeveless top and a jacket. The guimpe is of hand made pillow lace.

The slippers the bride wore are embroidered with what Miss Walt believes are real seed pearls and beneath the slippers she wore hand-woven hose.

There are other "real" clothes from the Victorian age at Glanmore house though none are currently on display. People were smaller in those days and Miss Walt says the mannequins are too big for some of the gowns.

There are however, several copies on display.

In the drawing room two ladies have afternoon tea. One, representing a young woman between the ages of 17 and 20, is wearing a pink afternoon dress.

"It's a line for line copy from Godey's Ladies Book of a gown that was the height of fashion in 1867," Miss Walt says.

"Every lady - young or old - changed her clothes by 3 p.m. every day. Then she sat down with her fancy work and expected callers."

"We'd call it a dinner gown," Miss Walt says.

Like the other, it was standard attire for the wealthy city woman unlike the ensemble displayed in the Canadiana room of the museum. There a farm wife churns butter in a plaid dress covered by a full length white apron. The dress is also an "afternoon" dress, the kind a farm wife might put on "if she had the time". It would be a "best dress" Miss Walt says.

"That would be about as dressed up as she got unless her father was wealthy enough when she got married to give her a black silk gown. That was the thing to wear in the country."

Glanmore House is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and 2 and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

She's all set for tea as any young Victorian lady would be. She's wearing a pink afternoon gown like the kind young women under 30 wore after 3 p.m. in that earlier, more gracious age. The costume, like others, is on display at the museum, Bridge St. E.

Watch the Little Things

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The minor details of eating habits are the things to watch when trying to lose weight, says Swedish physiologist Dr. Per-Olof Astrand.

For example, drinking whole milk instead of skim milk can add four pounds of fat each year. Taking sugar in coffee amounts to a seven-pound weight increase for a two-cup-a-day coffee drinker.

Dr. Astrand, chairman of the department of physiology at the Swedish College of Physical Education in Stockholm, was here for a conference. He said that weight loss is all a matter of small increments.

Dr. Astrand was critical of fadddish diets. They achieve rapid weight loss through reduction of starch and water content of the body.

These carbohydrate-free, protein diets were dangerous because they might lead to hypoglycemia—or low blood sugar. The nervous system and brain rely for "food" on starches which are broken down to sugars. When there is insufficient starch, the body begins to break down its proteins which make up muscles. This results in less efficiency, depression and hunger.

Weight must be lost slowly, he said. It takes years to put it on so one cannot expect to lose it in a month.

Being 15 to 20 pounds overweight is not as dangerous a condition as many people believe, unless a person has a weak heart or high blood pressure.

Dr. Astrand advised a balanced diet of about 2,500 calories a day which should include necessary vitamins and minerals. The diet should be combined with a regular exercise program. Walking just a mile a day will cause a weight loss of 12 pounds in a year.

Consumer Tips Given For Quinte WI

Quinte Women's Institute learned money facts and "ways there is so much wealth left at the end of the money" at their July meeting from three members of Consumer Education Department of the Citizen's Bureau.

Elaine Struthers, Elke Danziger and Clair Seddon gave institute members comparison shopping tips and suggestions to follow when salesmen arrive.

Tips Mrs. Struthers gave for comparison shopping were:

1) Find out from friends or a Canadian Consumer Magazine the relative cost of your prospective purchase.

2) Know what you want.

3) Plan expenditures over a year.

4) Avoid overuse of credit.

5) Read your guarantee.

6) Buy when on sale - unless you lose the guarantee.

7) Compare brands.

8) Watch daily paper - for lower prices.

9) Keep "care labels' and "guarantees".

A "handmade" quilt made by Mrs. Earl Scrimshaw was presented to Quinte Women's Institute as a fund-raising project following the program.

Calbury-Morgan

Rev. Canon R. B. Wright married Suzanne Marie Morgan and Robert William Calbury in Christ Church June 29.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Delbert Morgan, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Calbury, of Belleville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long mauve sheer polyester over taffeta gown. Her mauve tulle shoulder length veil was held by a fabric rose.

Bridesmaid Joanne Morgan, sister of the bride, chose an identical gown in pink.

Best man was Blaine Mullins.

A reception followed at Elk's Hall.

Keeping Tradition: Store Becomes Gallery

LORETTO, Ont. (CP) — Buy an old house with a store in it that has never been out of business and the thing to do is open a business of your own to keep the tradition going.

That's the way the seven members of a commune saw it when they bought a 101-year old house-with-store that was once the largest general store in the area.

It now is the Loretto Gallery, a show place and sales room for arts and crafts taken on consignment from across Canada.

Barry Kirkness says they do not even care whether the business is a roaring success. They are interested in carrying on the tradition and in offering a new outlet to artists.

"We know there are a lot of very talented people around who can't get a foot into the big galleries."

All seven commune members will take turns staffing the store.

The group has lived together for two years and all of them have full-time jobs.

The group consists of Jo and Dave Gwilliams and Angie and Barry Kirkness, two married couples; Madeline Bates, Jo's sister; John Vandrie and Richard O'Brien.

Dave works as trainer for his father-in-law's horses. Jo and Madeline are Air Canada stewardesses. Angie is secretary to their mother, Barry will work for Air Canada shortly. John is a mechanic and Rick works for a floor machine firm.

Everyone shares housework and cooking chores and everyone has worked on the extensive garden and the scarecrow that sits in the middle of it.

"All the birds come and sit on his shoulders," Angie says.

Widower Fears Hiring Housekeeper

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: What am I to do? I am a widower, raising three children. They help with housework and we enjoy one another.

My problem is that in order to get my business I have started: I just can't put in any time at keeping house. I need a housekeeper, but even if I could find one I'd be afraid to have her stay here.

Maybe I'm oversexed. I miss having a woman so much that I wouldn't trust myself with one in the house. And I don't want to make any trouble.

Is there some kind of medication that reduces a man's sex drive — not afraid of Myself.

Dear Afraid: I asked my medical consultant about this and he said no pill can help the man who needs virility but not the guy who has too much! How about hiring day help, or a male housekeeper?

You are doing a fine job, to go from your long letter (of which I have only had room for a little here). We can't help but admire your struggles to keep your family afloat; we both doubt that anything about your urges is abnormal.

The doctor did suggest that some hard physical work or sport, engaged in regularly, could help reduce your inclination.

Dear Doris: My girl friend and I are both 19 and just don't get along too good. I have known her for several years. Whenever I have made new friends, she'll despise them for the reason of having her own opinion, such as "She is a snob" or something else. I think she talks behind my back to these people about anything that is in it or I like about me. They can be pretty catty, so I can hardly remember cutting her down to people. I am quite shy. — Is This Fair

Dear Is This: Not fair. But a habit with some people. Can't you also make friends? big by belittling you? That is, in her own eyes. Others catch on after a while.

In some years — especially from eight to 15 — two people can change so much that it is a puzzle why they keep seeing each other. Time you made some new friends — by being friendly. Don't accept yourself as being shy forever.

Be kind to her — but keep any deep feelings to yourself.

Dear Doris: There is to be a wedding dance after my daughter's marriage ceremony. I was wondering, do they still pass the bride's slipper around for a collection? If so, who should pass it around and what time of the evening is this to take place — Bride's Mother.

Dear Mother: This is a new one on me. The only bride's slipper I know about is the glass one that fitted Cinderella. None of the etiquette books mention this kind of a collection.

To some of our Canadian citizens who originate in Europe, there is a practice of contributing money and gifts at the wedding supper.

In your case, a good deal depends on whether the practice you mention is common among your daughter's friends. If it isn't, don't do it. Would any of our readers like to comment?

(Doris reserves the right to ignore anonymous letters. If you have a legitimate beef, sign your name to your note about it, sent to her in care of this newspaper. All names are kept confidential.)

Stripper Moving Up - - Western Coast

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — Jodi English is in business to make money and wastes no time saying that being a stripper offers little else.

"There's a lot more in this business," the 26-year-old exotic dancer said. "You can't develop a star any-more, the days of the Gypsy Rose Lees are long gone."

She spends a circuit from San Francisco tip the west coast to this northern interior British Columbia city. She spends an average of two weeks in each place, doesn't date the customers and has little contact with other strippers on the circuit.

She said she intends to stay in business for another five years, make a lot of money and get out. Then she wants to settle down and have a family.

Miss English said she started stripping in Los Angeles about five years ago when she was and supports her.

abandoned by her husband after a short marriage. She picked up tips from watching other strippers and began to put together her own routines.

"It's a very selfish business," she said. "If you develop, so she said. "If you develop some, good techniques you don't want anyone else stealing your act.

"You have to work hard at being a good stripper. It's like acting. You have to have a talent if you're going to succeed."

Miss English said the person who gives her the encouragement and support she needs to keep acting is her road manager, Tim, who travels with her. She said her parents don't even know she is a stripper, think Tim sells golf clubs for a living

50 Years Celebrated

Anniversary-Reunion in Canniffton

It was a reunion for the brothers and sisters Charles, Ralph, Rachel and Mary. Another sister, Kate Hicks, was unable to attend.

At Home

Mr. and Mrs. Orick Lethford, 157 Bridge St. W. will be At Home to friends, relatives and neighbors on the occasion of their 50th Wedding Anniversary on Saturday, July 14 from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Best Wishes only please.

Supportive Roles Restrict Minister Tells Women

OTTAWA (CP) — Deeply-imbedded attitudes in society are the hardest problems for women to overcome in trying to improve their role, Labor Minister John Munro said Tuesday.

Mr. Munro, minister responsible for the status of women, told the first Ottawa meeting of the Advisory Council on the Status of Women that he is looking for recommendations on action that could improve the position of women in society.

"For too long and in too many cases women have played a supportive role to men, both at home and in the labor market, regardless of their interests and talent," Mr. Munro said.

People concerned with raising the status of women wanted a society in which everyone, men and women, can live the life they choose, regardless of their sex.

A large part of society still expects every woman to raise a family and work at home he said, and this restricts opportunities for women.

The 28-member council was set up earlier this year to advise the government of actions to take on behalf of women. It reports to Mr. Munro but has the right to make its reports public.

This Interior Decorator Designs Around Family

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — The decorations in Joan Butterfield's house include a furnace filter and two pieces of stale bread.

Mrs. Butterfield is an interior decorator who says she encourages customers to express their own family's interests and tastes in their surroundings, and not to practise what she preaches.

The filter has become part of a light and airy sculpture. The bread has been allowed to curl, sprayed with copper and used as an abstract design.

Mrs. Butterfield was borne working in an office. She studied decorating at night, and now works for Modernage, a furniture firm.

She says she believes a home should reflect its owners' personalities, and does not have to cost a fortune.

"Your home is the setting for yourself and your family, so let it reflect your skills, talents and interests. If it does this, it's bound to be attractive."

She adds:

"If you are not confident that you have the skill and ingenuity to carry out decorating projects successfully, start with a small project.

"For instance, carpet your stairs with remnants or samples or small throw rugs, in different colors, big enough to fit one step. Keep the collection about the same weight, texture and blend of fibres to assure uniform wearability. Cut pieces to fit a step and use tacks or staples to hold each piece securely."

She says you can brighten the bathroom with old newspapers.

Women: Fairer Not Weaker

CALGARY (CP) — The fairer sex they might be; the weaker sex they're not.

"Just recently one of our girls happened to be near the scene of a bank robbery," said Jeanette Allen, police superintendent of the combined constabulary of Nottinghamshire in England. "She saw the police officer getting roughed up by the robber who was six feet, five inches, so she jumped right in.

"She was only five feet, four inches and had only been on the force for two years.

"That is jolly good job."

Superintendent Allen and Jane Williams, an inspector with the London metropolitan police force, were in Calgary recently while on a cross-Canada trip.

Women could be used more extensively in police work in Canada, they suggest.

Superintendent Allen, who heads a staff of 86 police-women in the city and county of Nottingham, said she has two policewomen on permanent drug squad, two on the regional crime squad, two detective sergeants, 18 detective constables, one uniformed chief inspector, two inspectors, and 30 sergeants. The remainder are uniformed constables.

"Women were brought in as matrons to the police at the beginning of the Second World War," she said. "They've been fighting ever since for equality on the police force.

"We now get 95 per cent of the pay the men receive and by September we'll be getting equal pay.

"They (policewomen) can begin when they're 19 and retire between 30 and 35, with a half pension after 25 years of service. They spend three months at a special training school studying basic law, swimming and life-saving, first aid and self-defence.

"We require them to pass an education test, but I'd rather have somebody with a lot of common sense than with a string of academic qualifications."

Superintendent Allen and Inspector Williams said men rarely assault policewomen, but that women will "have a go at us anytime."

English policewomen deal with many situations, they said.

"They often have to go into horrible places where the smell is so rank it almost takes your breath away and your feet stick to the floor, it's so filthy," Superintendent Allen explained.

"And they have to contend with the very depths of sexual offences.

However, there's compensation, too. They're on duty during all the royal ceremonials and premieres and have the best view.

English policewomen, like their male counterparts, do not carry guns. They rely on tact to solve many strained situations.

One policewoman "rescued a baby when it was taken up on a roof by its father, who threatened to jump off," Inspector Williams said. The officer talked the man out of jumping.

"There was a lot of publicity on the incident and she received 20 offers of marriage.

"She left soon after, now that's what I call luck."

The two officers said women can do many police jobs better than men.

"I think women can handle juveniles better than men can," Inspector Williams said. "Women are firmer. Men are apt to be a bit soft if a child cries, whereas women won't take everything at face value. Children always get away with more with their fathers than with their mothers.

"And if I'm not mistaken I would want Jeanette's job . . . supervising 86 women. He'd give up in a week!"

Ann Landers

Pisces Or Schizo?

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing about the letter by Jazzy who was bewildered and hurt by the man she loved because he seemed to be two people. One day he was the dearest and most considerate of lovers. The next day, for no apparent reason, he was remote and broodingy.

I would be willing to bet this man is a Pisces, born between Feb. 20 and March 20. These radical personality changes are characteristic of a Pisces and anyone who has had the misfortune to love someone born under this sign of the zodiac must be willing to understand and accept his unpredictable behavior or get out of his life.

I can tell you from experience that Pisces are fascinating but they are not worth the wear and tear on the nerves ayrrrgh. You were right when you told her, "Fight it with your head. Take it and run."—Aster in Arcoharge

Dear Ann: Several people wrote and offered the same explanation for the man's erratic behavior. Schizophrenics behave that way, one said, no matter when they were born. Thanks for your letter.

Dear Ann Landers: Please excuse the writing paper. As you can see it's a grocery store bag but it's all I have in the house and I want to get this letter off to you while I am still mad enough to express myself properly.

Why are people such selfish, inconsiderate slobs? I had an appointment with the doctor this afternoon, and while I was waiting in one he him I picked up The National Geographic magazine. There was a beautiful spread on the goldfish. It had lovely color photographs and some fascinating text. In the middle of the story it said "turn to page 333." Well, I found that page and two others had been ripped out. It was so furious I said a dirty word right out loud. (This is very unlike me.)

Don't people realize those magazines are there for everyone? What kind of a person would tear pages out of a magazine that is placed in a waiting room for the enjoyment of everyone?—Still Fuming

Dear Still: You provided the answer. They are selfish, inconsiderate slobs.

Dear Ann Landers: My best friend received an engagement ring last week. She was awfully disappointed. This girl had some definite ideas about what she wanted, but the ring was a surprise so she had to act ecstatic and pretend.

I don't want that to happen to me, so I am planning ahead. I called the jewelry store and asked if it's proper for the girl to go with her fiance to pick out the ring. The man said, "Certainly. Most girls do and we recommend it."

So, Ann, I am going with my boy friend to pick out our ring in September. I need to know the following:

Do we kiss in the store? Is this considered the official moment of engagement? Would it be OK to have a friend present, with a camera?

Thank you.—Well Organized Miss

Dear Miss: A ring is only a symbol of the engagement. You were "officially" engaged when your beloved asked you to marry him and you said, "Yes."

After you select the ring and have it sized to fit your finger, take it home and get kissed there. If you want a friend to take pictures, I suggest the privacy of your living room.

Two members of the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the National Secretaries Association will leave Sunday to attend the international convention in Denver, Colo. Mrs. Rosemary Mc Eachern, secretary to Hastings county director of education Eric Hammarlund, and Mrs. Dorothy Aitchison, secretary at Harry J. Allen Public School, will represent the local chapter.

Mrs. McEachern will present a 10-minute paper at a workshop, an outline of a mini-workshop on decision making, held in Belleville last winter.

It was judged one of the three best educational programs submitted this year to the international organization.

The Trainmen Are Pulling Out

CNR aren't resting on any laurels as they continue to pull away atop the Industrial Softball League eastern division and UIC aren't resting because they don't want to be left behind.

The CN romped to their 15th win of the season Thursday night crushing Stewart Warner 18-8 to pull out to a six point lead over their closest rivals Brooke Bond. Meed, while UIC closed to within one point of western division leading Meed Johnson by tripping Canadian Tire 6-2.

In other ISL action the Quinte Mall Leaders continue to falter dropping a 6-3 decision to AOCO who enhanced their fourth spot lead to six points over Stewart Warner. Constellation dropped the Utilities 10-6 in the final game of the night.

Brian Plumbe led the CN's 15 hit attack with a double and four singles and Gil Nesbitt pounded a homerun R o b McMaster and Milk Bell had a trio of singles each as the Trainmen moved a step closer to clinching top spot.

Plumbe picked up the win allowing 12 hits before Wayne Caseman buried the last inning in relief. Dave Marvin and Fred Davis saw mound duty for Stewart Warner.

Ken Tracee connected for a home run, double and single and Bill Lynch a homer and single for the Warnermen.

Precast Gets Twin Wins

Pat Dens and David Leuting teamed up this week to pitch A and B Precast to a pair of Thurlow Minor Baseball tyke wins. Foxboro Cheese Factory fell 18-10 while Jerry's Motorcycle was on the short end of a 36-8 score.

Precaster David Walsh slammed five home runs in the two contests. Three of them came in the win over Jerry's.

Other big hitters in the twin wins were Dens with a homer, triple and double and Mark Carey who collected 3 with a triple.

Edward Bieffman and Todd Hogan shared the pitching for Foxboro. Leading the Cheese Factory hitters was Scott Massey with a triple and Steven Reid who connected for a double.

Novices Blank Gerrard Road

The 10 players Belleville Mc-Donalds novices fielded in their South Central Lacrosse Association game against Gerrard Road Wednesday proved to be adequate for 1 to 0 win.

Gerrard Road goaltender Jack Peebles failed to stop Jim Fleming and Barry Deane twice as the two novices scored two goals apiece to give Belleville a 4-0 victory.

Joe Scanlon burled a five hitter for UIC and Brian Chase and Bill Healy punched home runs as the Unemployment men continue to chase Meads.

Andy Pruden took the loss for the Canadian Tire giving up nine hits. Ken Trice tripled for the losers who held a 2-0 lead at one time.

AOCO jumped on the Lenard Tire Mark Sheridan for five runs and five hits within the first two innings to hand the slipping Bankmen their sixth loss.

Doug McKay and Terry Keller led the winners with a pair of safeties each. Ron McCoy went the route for the win allowing 10 hits and fanning five.

Constellation continued their come - from - behind dramatics last night scoring six times in the final inning to record their win over the Utilities.

The Carpetmen had erased a 15-3 lead by AOCO the night before to emerge with a 17-16 win.

Rick Foren had a triple and single and Mike Callaghan a double and three singles in support of Jim Thompson who pitched an eight hitter for the win.

Wilson Bukat was tagged with the loss giving up 12 hits and fanning nine. Rob Boyle had a double and single for the Utilities.

Minor Soccer

Fitzgibbon Construction built a defensive wall in front of their own net in Belleville Minor Soccer Association mosquito division play Wednesday as they shutout Belleville Police Association 9-0.

Bob Scanlon and Dave Meeks nailed down two goals apiece in the win while single goals were added by Mark Masterson, Doug Weatherall, Chris Donaldson, Ray Bird and Tony Parks.

In other mosquito division play, Belleville Auto Alliance edged 211 Barbar Salon 3-2. Jamie Calder, Mark Anglin and Bill Keller booted goals for singles while Denis Campbell and Craig Wilkins scored for the barbers.

Plane's Closing In

Despite Barry Colkin's grand slam homer in the sixth, Ejetia could not bring off the win in their South Hastings Baseball League game against Plane's Concrete Wednesday.

John Masterson contributed another home run, but the Canniton club drubbed Latta 12-6 to press league leading Melrose closer. Melrose failed to increase their insurance points for first place with a 3-3 loss to Shannonville.

Bernie Coughlin and Bob Robb earned the win with a six-hitter. The Canniton pitchers combined to fan eight while walking five batters.

Although Dale Bamber and Reg Abrams also allowed only six hits, their seven walks contributed to their 12 run humiliation. Coughlin and Ken Abrams took a single and double apiece from the Latta combine.

Weekend Meetings Will Discuss Northern Offer

Belleville Northern Electric workers, on strike since May 7, could be back to work Monday.

The employees, members of the United Auto Workers Union, will hold ratification meetings this weekend to discuss a tentative contract settlement announced in Toronto Thursday night.

Until the meetings have been held, no details of the proposed agreement will be released.

The contract applies to production and office workers at Northern Electric plants in London, Kingston and Brantford, as well as Belleville. In all, about 3,500 workers are affected.

That leaves only the 1,000 members of the Communication Workers of Canada Union still at the picking stage with Northern. They include western region installers and employees of the company's North York plant.

Lorna Moses, president of UAW Local 1839 which represents 800 production workers in Belleville, said this morning pickets would likely be taken down at the Sidney Street plant Saturday.

The Local will meet Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in Centennial Secondary School auditorium to discuss the contract offer.

The remaining employees, 180 salaried office members of Local 1530, will meet Saturday at 9:30 a.m. in the Royal Canadian Legion, spokesman Tom Freeburn said today.

Both negotiators were speaking from Toronto where they have been taking part in steady negotiations with company officials for the past two weeks. Last night's announcement came shortly before midnight.

"I'm very pleased," was Miss Moses' comment.

She said a final meeting between the union and management was scheduled for this afternoon to iron out back-to-work procedures in the event the contract is ratified.

Next week Northern employees begin their annual two-week vacation but a company spokesman said certain workers will be called in an attempt to get the Belleville plant into "limited operation".

Most machinery in the plant will require servicing after the 10-week layoff and other employees could also be called.

Although no details of the settlement were released, Northern Electric's latest known offer was a wage-and-cost-of-living package increase totaling about 84 cents over the three years, including a 28-cent increase in the first year and 28 cents in each of the other two years.

In earlier bargaining sessions, the UAW was seeking an increase of 40 cents an hour in the first year followed by 25 cents in each of the second and third years.

Average earnings of the workers involved are $3.34 an hour, union officials have said.

A Lake Where Time Stood Still

A score of Trenton boys this week have done what they thought impossible. They have paddled nearly 80 miles, walked over 17 portages and found a part of themselves. A recreation organizer for the town, sponsor of the six-day program, said "they have grown up out here where time stands still." The boys average 14 years old and will return home Friday evening.

Trenton Canoe Trippers Get Taste of Travel in the Bush

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

CLARENDON LAKE — In unforgiving land where the wilds permit few mistakes, a score of Trenton boys have found challenge, comradeship and a place where time stands still.

Under the auspices of Trenton's recreation department, 16 boys and two supervisors today will complete a 75-mile canoe trip as experienced paddlers and woodsmen. Prior to launching boats last Sunday, none of the 18 boys had any experience at all.

Through the trip's degree of difficulty and its length, the program is unique for recreation departments in the province.

Starting at the southern tip of Mazinaw Lake, the party headed south through Marble Lake, east through Kashwakamak (Long Lake), through the Mississippi River System to Mud Lake, south into Cross Lake and Fawn Lake and west through Clarendon or Big Gull Lake.

At this point, the party was met by program director Dino Gettas for last - minute preparation of the Thursday portage through appropriately - named Black Hell.

Black Hell is really two words to describe a mile of terrain that is designed to break the hiker's heart. The trail, seldom if ever used, is so obscure, this writer in the company of Mr. Gettas and two girls who will supervise the trip next week, tramped for more than three hours through swamp and muskeg looking for it.

With six canoes neatly lined on the shore and ghostly blue shapes of nylon tents breaking the skyline, the vague smell of gingerbreak met the boatload of Gettas and company approaching the cove.

"It's tough to bake it out here," said a 12 - year - old, wielding a well - blackened pan, "so we just kind of scramble it."

Goulash has been the big seller on the menu for the camp, followed by a concoction of everything in a pot served Wednesday. Gettas and company were too late to sample the sweet - smelling though empty main course pots and declined to sample the well - done gingerbread omelette.

While the boys cheered and guffawed at the first sightings of females, Mr. Gettas re-covered earlier portions of the trip with staff, outlining the next trip which will be made by girls.

"You wouldn't believe how they have changed or grown up," said one supervisor. "The first day (covered 19 miles) was tough and there was mumbling and grumbling but now they are really pulling the load."

The boys in trip start at 12 and range to 16 with the average age being 14. Only one 16-year-old was on the voyage.

During the night a new fraternal organization was christened. Tailor - made to the needs of the paddlers, the new group is Turtles.

Typified by clean living, one will ask "Are you a turtle?" The secret reply, signifying membership is "You bet your sweet donkey I am."

By early evening, one-by-one, the boys parted from the traditional campfire to crawl into tents awaiting the hardest and most difficult, hardest, Black Hell.

By 6 a. m. breakfast, a strange camp concoction aptly pathetically called blueberry pancakes, was finished and by 10 a.m. camp was broken and the first of the canoes was slipping silently across Clarendon Lake.

Because of the amount of packs and gear, two trips were necessary, through the portage.

The portage is to tedious and back-breaking note that trippers are reluctant to try it, preferring to end the voyage at Clarendon rather than completing the circuit back into Long Lake.

With moans and groans and mostly spirit, the 80-pound canoes were loaded onto backs and the portage was done. This was one of 18 p-ortages through the trip.

"Sure they can do it," said Mr. Gettas, "they have to and they know it and that's what gives them the strength. This is something they will look at with pride and talk about for a long time."

They have learned the lesson of need and endurance.

The trip is outfitted through the Trenton recreation department and provincial funding subsidized salaries. Each participant pays $25 for the week and supplies his personal gear.

And somewhere through the woods came the cry, "Are you a turtle?"

The trip concludes today.

Black Hell, Toughest of All

Canoers on the first leg of a portage that most fear to take. A one-mile strip of land joining two lakes designed to make every step a hardship. Carrying 80-pound canoes, the portage was completed by 13-and 14-year-old boys from Trenton marking the highest and last hurdle of their 80-mile, six-day voyage into the back woods. None were experienced before the voyage. None quit.

Renovation Plans Are Announced

PICTON — Renovations estimated at $65,000 are planned at Caen Court, part of the Prince Edward Heights village complex for the mentally retarded. The announcement was made by James Snow, minister of government services.

Tenders for the work now are being called and it is expected the project will be completed in six months.

Caen Court includes a group of three units of row housing. Renovations will consist of altering one unit of six row houses to a social education centre for the dual retarded. A second unit will be changed to supervisors' offices for the complex.

Labor Law Explained Next Week

PICTON — A summer work program with the ministry of labor, SPIEL, is coming to Picton on Monday, July 16.

SPIEL is a student group to provide Ontario citizens with the opportunity to communicate with the labor ministry and its many branches.

A group of 35 college students from across the province is attempting to inform the public of labor legislation, programs and services.

Residents of Prince Edward are invited to visit the SPIEL display on the lawn of the Armory during the week. A mobile information centre will be open.

Stanley Knowles Will Get Award

Stanley Knowles, NDP member of parliament, has been chosen as this year's winner of the annual man-of-the-year peace award granted by the executive of the Lester B. Pearson Peace Park near Tweed.

Mr. Knowles was recognized for his outstanding contribution to Canadian unity in interpreting the west to the east and for facilitating the flow of business of government because of his knowledge of the rules.

The member for Winnipeg North Centre is acknowledged as the leading expert on parliamentary rules and procedure in Ottawa.

The award will be presented to Mr. Knowles at the seventh annual Community Day at the park July 14 at 2 p.m.

Previous award winners were Robert Kohaly, dominion president of the Royal Canadian Legion, Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville, Pierre Juneau, chairman of the Canadian Radio and Television Commission and J. Frederick Harris, former premier of Ontario.

Friends of the Peace Park awards will be given this year to local citizens who have consistently supported the park since its dedication July 1, 1967. This year's winners are Clyde Bell, editor of the Tweed News, Gladys M. Naylor of Madoc and Rev. J. H. Thompson, rector of St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc.

Community Day at the park will feature a "July fest of food, dancing and singing". An arts and crafts show will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and among those exhibiting, will be Dorothy Banks, art, Peterborough; Mrs. Wilma Brownlee, ceramics, Bancroft; Colin Edward, art, Kaladar; Mrs. J. McLeod Ogden, art, Foxboro; Jerry Stapley, art, Stirling; Dene Wilson, Tweed and Priscilla Cadwell, arts and crafts.

A country auction, with auctioneer J. C. Courneyea of Tweed, will be held every hour. There will be a draw for a $5 attendance prize and free coffee for adults and ice cream for children will be served until 11 a.m. Mohler's German Restaurant will serve a hot lunch from 11:30 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Ceremonial service for veterans and Legion members will be held at 2 p.m., assisted by Boy Scouts. After the service senior citizens will be treated to entertainment featuring music, dancing and singing. Taxi service from Trinity United Church in Madoc to the park will be provided at 1:20 p.m. by Don's Taxi. A paintboard will be provided in the afternoon for children and a contest will be held to find the person who can eat a pie the quickest in the fastest without using his hands.

Auxiliary Shop Opened

PICTON — "The Second Time Around" has become a heartwarming experience for members of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary.

The thrift shop officially opened here Monday, is stocked with clothing, handbags, shoes, swimsuits, novelty items and books and is staffed by hospital auxiliary volunteers.

Money raised by this project will be used to purchase a heart monitoring machine for Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital.

Volunteers Are Listed

A brochure listing all local organizations who use volunteers to fill their needs is now in preparation for distribution, a Quinte Exhibition board said.

It will be given out at the Volunteers' Action booth at the exhibition to acquaint the public with groups that can use their services.

So far, 40 organizations have been listed, together with a key person in each organization who can be contacted for further information. Ruth Burrows, director of the Central Volunteer Bureau, is planning any organization that uses volunteers, and hasn't registered, to call the bureau at 962-9331 to ensure inclusion of its name in the brochure.

Man Charged

A man charged with attempted break and enter will be has arrested beside an east end house early this morning has been released on an undertaking to appear in Provincial Court.

Skye Robb, 35, of 288 Coleman St., was taken into custody shortly before 1 a.m. A bail hearing was held in Hastings County courthouse this morning.

City police received a tip that a man was outside a house in the east end of Belleville. When they went to investigate, they found a side door screen had been tampered with.

Meeting Will Discuss Pool

PICTON — The Quinte's Isle Swimming Pool Committee will meet at Bonnie Park Hall on Monday, July 16 at 7 p.m. to further discuss a community pool.

The meeting was organized by the Picton Recreation and Parks Committee.

It has been noted that this summer the committee, expected problems in arranging for a suitable site for its annual swimming program, a popular activity among youngsters in Picton and the surrounding area.

Car Damaged

TWEED (Special) — A Madoc youth escaped unharmed after his car went out of control and into a ditch on the Stoney Settlement Road a mile east of Highway 62, Wednesday afternoon. The car, driven by Carl Pigden, 17, of Madoc, received $400 damage.

Alarm Box

9 p.m. . . . 9 Hamilton St.: Pastic radio on kitchen table melted causing smoke damage to room and blistering adjacent wall. Firemen quickly extinguished the radio but were forced to cut a hole in the wall to prevent heat from starting new flames.

4:04 a.m. . . . Front St.: garbage bag on fire.

Concoctions Taste Great

Dino Gettas, director of recreation-for Trenton, looked on Wednesday night as young campers created something of a ginger bread omelette. Gettas and company passed up the offer to taste and settled later for spaghetti. The word was, the food is great, though some of the young chefs were not looked upon too fondly by friends. Each of the boys took his turn cooking during the one-week trip, with some having more success than others.

American Takes One Stroke Lead

TORONTO (CP) — A strapping 21-year-old American, who praised the organizational ability of Canadian officials, made a big impact Thursday in the second round of the Ontario Golf Association's 31st amateur championship.

Curt Sampson, a 6-foot-3 journalism student at Kent State University, moved into a one stroke lead in the 54-hole tournament with a three-under-par 68 for a 144 total, one stroke ahead of opening day leader John Erwast of London Hunt Club. Erwast posted a 73 for 145.

Kelly Roberts of London Sunningdale, defending champion, shared third place with club-mate Don White. Both had 72s over St. George's Golf and Country Club's 6,797-yard layout.

The winner here is scheduled to lead Canada's four-man Willingdon Cup team into the interprovincial team championships held in conjunction with the Canadian championships.

However, while Sampson qualifies under OGA rules to play in the Canada championship, he is not eligible under the Canadian association rules to play in the interprovincials championship and therefore would forfeit his spot on the provincial team.

Ross Thompson of the OGA confirmed Thursday night that if Sampson, one of U.S. natives who qualified for the Ontario amateur, comes out ahead the field after today's round then the automatic berth on the Ontario team goes to the highest-placed Canadian.

The other three members of the team will be determined in an 18-hole playoff July 16 involving the best Canadians recarded in this championship tournament.

If a playoff is necessary today, sudden-death extra holes will be played until the winner of the course is cleared.

Veterans Weslock of Mississauga, who had a 76 opening-day, equalled par and remained in contention for what could be his ninth Ontario amateur title, with a 73.

Former Canadian and U.S. amateur champion, Gary Cowen of Sunset Westmount, improved his game by three strokes but was still troubled by an unruly putter and carded a 73.

Anita Another Spitz

TEL AVIV (AP) — Swedish swimmer Anita Zarnowiecki was establishing herself as a female Mark Spitz of the ninth Maccabiah Games as the Jewish Olympics entered its fourth day of competition Thursday.

Miss Zarnowiecki, an Olympic competitor at Munich last September, won four gold medals in the five events she entered, setting records in four of the golden.

But Sweden lagged far behind the more powerful United States and Israeli teams in total medals. By Thursday night, the Americans had 61 medals, 28 of them gold. Israel followed with 48, including 20 gold.

Canada had produced no golds in the first three days, but stood 10th in the 18-nation Games' medal list with six silver and one third-place bronze.

Vicki Berner of Vancouver teamed with Pam Goldish of Toronto Thursday to move into the women's doubles tennis finals, defeating two Germany Kathlyn Levin and Janet Haas 7-6, 6-2.

Canada also scored an easy 76-26 win over Italy in basketball action but came out on the short end of a 3-0 score with Argentinian volleyball players.

American official Roy Silver said he was satisfied with the U.S. showing.

"We brought a very young team compared with the others, and we think they are making fine progress," he said.

Some American athletes believed the Israelis were setting unfair obstacles in the way of their chief rivals. Tennis player Kerr Miller told a reporter his team was locked out of the practice tennis courts at their hotel until they threatened not to play their bill.

Other Americans complained that Israelei referees in several sports were continually making decisions against the U.S. team.

One American, a doctor who lost his temper over what he believed to be a biased decision, was suspended from the Games Thursday after punching one of Israels top shown sportsmen, Shmuel Lalkin.

Conflicts were not restricted to the Americans.

In Thursday's basketball preliminary between Argentina and Brazil, the Brazilians were left with only two players on the court after three were ejected on fouls by the referees. The game ended with Argentina leading 63-51.

But not everyone at the Games was having difficulties.

PGA NAMES DIRECTOR

LAKE PARK, Fla. (AP) — Bill Sullivan, golf equipment manufacturer, will become executive director of the Professional Golfers Association-Aug. 1, PGA president William Clarke announced Thursday.

"Horrible Harry really needs glasses. That's the second time he's pinned the ref!"

a 7 - 5 win over Philadelphia Phils.

"The way I've been stunggling, it is nice to know I contributed something," said the 31-year-old outfielder, a veteran of 11 seasons with Houston.

Wynn, nicknamed the Toy Cannon because he is exceptionally strong for a man who stands 5-foot-10 and weighs just 160 pounds, homered in the first, then broke a 4-4 tie with his 10th homer of the season with one out in the ninth off Barry Lersch, 3-4.

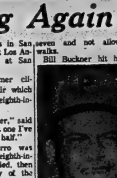
He also came through with a big defensive play in the eighth inning, turning an apparent single into a force-out with a bullet throw to second base.

In the only other National League games, Pittsburgh Pirates beat San Diego Padres 6-0 and Los Angeles Dodgers defeated St. Louis Cardinals, also by a 4-0 score.

New York Mets visit Cincinnati's and Montreal Expos are at Atlanta Braves for doubleheaders with a while single in game action has Houston at Philadelphia, St. Louis in San Diego, Chicago Cubs at Los Angeles and Pittsburgh at San Francisco Giants.

Wynn's second homer climaxed a seven-run rally which saw both teams stage eight-inning rallies.

"I got a banging slider," said Wynn, "It was the first one I've been in a month and a half."



Veteran Juan Pizarro was able to get out of the eighth-inning with the score tied, then earn his first victory of the year on Wynn's homer.

Luke Walker, a spot starter, hurled his first shutout of the season, stopping the Padres on five hits in Pittsburgh's victory. He struck out five and did not walk a batter.

Billy Willie Stargell crashed a three-run homer in the fourth inning, raising his season total to a major-league leading 26.

The Dodgers' Andy Messersmith pitched a seven-hitter in Los Angeles' victory and run over St. Louis, striking out seven and not allowing any walks.

Bill Buckner hit his fourth homer of the season and drove in three more runs with a base loaded single in the eighth.

Robinson's Bat Sparks Orioles

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brooks Robinson may be one of the steadiest glove men in baseball, but Baltimore Orioles Manager Earl Weaver nuts with his roller coaster act at the plate.

"Every time I want to bench Brooks, I don't," the manager of Baltimore Orioles said Thursday night. "I put him in the lineup and look what happens."

What happened was that Robinson, who's been batting woos at it but this season, smacked a pair of run-scoring singles, the second one a tie-breaker in the eighth inning to lift the Orioles to a 4-3 victory over Chicago White Sox.

In the rest of the American League, Boston Red Sox beat Texas Rangers 5-2, New York Yankees clouted Kansas City Royals 10-3, Detroit Tigers edged California Angels 7-6, Oakland A's swatted Milwaukee Brewers 8-4 and, in a twi-night doubleheader, Minnesota Twins beat Cleveland 8-4 before the Indians came back to gain a split with a 7-4 victory in the second game.

A full slate of single games tonight includes Kansas City at New York, Texas at Boston, California at Detroit, Oakland at Milwaukee, Cleveland at Minnesota and Baltimore in Chicago.

"I've been struggling with my hitting most of the early part of the season," Robinson said, "but I'm happy I've brought out of it. It'll be nice t go into the All-star Game and be playing well."

Robinson, descite his weak .227 average, will be the starting third baseman for the annual mid-season classic later this month.

Boston's Luis Aparicio became the eighth player in the history of the game to bat 10,000 times. And his 10,000th was a single that helped build a run against Ranger bonus baby David Clyde. The big run, though, was Tommy Harper raising his big homer in the fifth.

Surprise, surprise!" cracked Johnny Callison after hitting his first home run of season to help the Yanks down Kansas City. Gene Michael drove in three runs and Matty Alou, Bobby Murcer and Graig Nettles each had three of New York's 17 hits.

Dick Sharon and Duke Sims drew ninth-inning walks and Dick McAuliffe ripped a two-out tie-breaking single in the bottom of the ninth for De-roit against the Angels. Willie Horton had a three-run homer and Eddie Brinkman hit a two-run shot for the Tigers.

Ray Fosse's ninth-inning homer triggered a four-run Oakland rally that sent the Brewers down to defeat.

George Mitterwald drove in four runs with a three-run homer in the second inning and a single in the fourth—but it was Jim Holt's tie-breaking single in the sixth that carried Minnesota to its first-game victory over Cleveland.

The Twins blew a 4-2 eighth-inning lead in the second game when the Indians scored five in the ninth, climaxed by George Hendrick's second two-run homer of the game.

Weiskopf 3 Up After 2 Rounds

TROON, Scotland (AP) — Tom Weiskopf definitely wasn't blowing hot and cold at the start of the third round of the British Open golf championship today.

"I feel better now," the tall American said Thursday. "I'm just going to have to be patient."

His massive nine-under-par two-round total of 135 over the heather-clad 7,064-yard course helped to maintain his happy disposition. Weiskopf was three shots clear of his nearest rivals, U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller and Bert Yancey, who shared second place.

Mira Sinks Calgary

MONTREAL (CP) — Quarterback George Mira came off the bench to pass for two touchdowns, throw a 34-yard touchdown pass and score one himself on a five-yard run to lead Montreal Alouettes to a 22-13 win over the Calgary Stampeders in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Thursday night.

Mira had his problems moving the club early in the third quarter but found John Harvey all alone in the end zone on the final play. It came 41 seconds after Fritz Seyferth caught Jerry Keeling's 34-yard pass from Calgary quarterback for the first time in the game.

Mira added the 7-0 at the end of the first quarter as George Gaines intercepted a Bob Cameron pass on the opening play from scrimmage and ran it in from 20 yards out. Don Sweet added his first of three convert.

The Stampeders got three points in the second quarter on Larry Robinson's field goal, set up by a pass interception by Seyferth's TD.

The Alouettes got a break at the end of the first quarter when a punt by starting quarterback Jerry Wade bricked 32 yards and bounced out of bounds on the Montreal 46.

But the Stamps could not score even though they had six tries from inside the Montreal 10-yard line.

Robinson's field goal came after Floyd Preister intercepted Cameron's pass and ran it back 18 yards to the Als' 29. Jim Lindsey failed to take advantage of the break and the Stamps' who are now 0-2 in pre-season play, had to settle for Robinson's effort.

33-year-old Rookie Would Rather Kick

DETROIT (AP) — Joe Zuger is listed as a punter-quarterback on the Detroit Lions roster, but the 33-year-old "rookie" doesn't really want any part of the quarterback part.

"I think I can still kick," the former Canadian Football League signal caller said, "but as far as being a quarterback goes, well, some rookies are starting to catch up with me. I'd rather stick to punting."

Zuger played for Hamilton Tiger Cats for 10 years, guiding them to the Grey Cup championship game five times.

He suffered a shoulder separation near the end of the 1971 season and was waived out of the league the following year after Chuck Ealey became firmly entrenched as the Tiger quarterback.

Canadian teams are allowed to carry only 14 Americans, and it was unlikely Hamilton would carry Zuger strictly for his punting—which averaged 44 yards a kick.

So the 6 - foot - 2, 210-pounder from Homestead, Pa., decided to try the National Football League's Lions who had drafted him from Arizona State University in 1962.

JOE ZUGER

"I haven't looked forward to playing that much quarterback," said Zuger, after a scrimmage at Cranbrook school near Detroit where the Lions have their training camp.

He contacted the Lions.

"I wasn't sure if I was still their property" and Detroit, thinking of the erratic punting of Herman Weaver last season, signed Zuger in March.

Zuger shared quarterbacking duties in the scrimmage with third-string quarterback Bill Cappelman, who was on the taxi squad last year. Detroit's first two quarterbacks are Greg Landry and Bill Munson.

"I'm mainly interested in kicking," Zuger continued. "But the more a person can do the better chance he has of sticking.

"The only time I might get a chance to quarterback here is if the other three quarterbacks all get creamed," he added with a grin.

In his years in Canada, Zuger suffered a broken wrist, broken fingers, broken nose a couple times and separated shoulder. He said he has fully recovered from the shoulder injury.

He wasn't idle last year. He served as a coach and scout for Hamilton.

What if he doesn't stick on the roster of new Lions' Coach Don McCafferty?

"I'll try somewhere else in the NFL," Zuger said.

Drug Use Covered Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress was told Thursday that professional and amateur athletic organizations are covering up the extent to which drugs are used to improve performance.

Jack Scott, athletic director at Ohio's Oberlin College, testified before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee that organizations like the National Football League (NFL) and the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) are trying to draw attention away from hippills and injections given athletes with a public relations campaign aimed at, such "counterculture" drugs as LSD and heroin.

Scott referred specifically to NFL television spots in which football stars warn youngsters about the dangers of drug addiction. The ads "give parents the impression that all they have to do is get Johnny to cut his hair and turn out for the football team and they'll have the drug problem licked," Scott said.

But Scott cited a study he said showed that one out of every two players on the University of California football team admitted using amphetamines.

Frontenacs Bow Out

KINGSTON (CP) — Kingston Frontenacs this week withdrew from the Provincial Junior Hockey League when the club directors decided it wasn't economically feasible to continue operation.

Kingston earlier this year acquired the former Montreal Junior Canadiens' franchise in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

In a joint statement issued by spokesmen for the two clubs, the Frontenacs requested the franchise be suspended for the 1973-74 season, leaving the door ajar for the following year when they hope to reapply for entry to the second level Junior league.

PLANS MORE

CHICAGO (AP) — Arthur Wirtz, chairman of the board of the Chicago Stadium Corp., announced Thursday plans for the addition of 10,000 seats to the arena that houses Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League and Chicago Bulls of the National Basketball Association. The addition to the present 20,000-seat facility will make Chicago Stadium the largest indoor arena in the nation.

Clemente Was Told Mercy Plane Unsafe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The plane that carried baseball star Roberto Clemente to his death last New Year's Eve was overloaded, had two bad engines and had not been flown in four months, the National Transportation Safety Board said today.

The flight engineer was unqualified for his position a n d the co-pilot had a total of six hours in the type of plane being flown, the board added.

Clemente, an all-star outfielder for Pittsburgh Pirates, and four others died when the f o u r-engine DC-7 crashed shortly after takeoff from Puerto Rico on a mercy flight to Managua, Nicaragua. The plane, owned by a Purto Rico charter operator, was loaded with relief supplies for survivors of the Managua earthquake.

Clemente, a native of Puerto Rico, had agreed to head up the relief effort after he got word of the Dec. 23 disaster. His organization had collected $150,000 in cash and tons of food, clothing and medicine.

The safety board said its investigation of the accident showed:

—The four-engined, propeller-driven plane was 4,200 pounds overweight when it took off;

—There was extensive internal failure in the inboard left engine during the takeoff. The board said the failure was traced to previous engine damage caused during a ground accident;

—The inboard right engine was so badly worn that it could not develop full power;

—The aircraft had not been flown in approximately four months;

—The flight engineer was a mechanic unqualified for his position in the crew. The co-pilot had six hours of DC-7 flight time.

The board said the previous accident that damaged the left engine occurred on Dec. 3 when the plane ran into a drainage ditch during taxiing. It said the left and right inboard engine propellers struck concrete and bent sharply.

The first attempt of the aircraft to take off was aborted, the board said, the plane was returned to its ramp for work on both right engines.

It said the plane attempted a second takeoff three hours later. The plane took 8,000 feet to get off the ground and gained altitude slowly before turning left to head back toward the airport.

The board said an eyewitness told Clemente the plane was improperly loaded and unsafe but that Clemente replied he didn't know anything about this.

Mr. Clemente presumed the flight was being conducted s a f e l y. This was understandable. But faith in a safe operation is not enough."

The board said persons chartering an airplane should determine themselves the airworthiness of the craft and the operational ability of the pilot.

The 38-year-old Clemente was one of 11 baseball players to get 3,000 hits during his career. He compiled a lifetime batting average of over .300, won four National League batting titles and hit over .300 in 12 seasons. He was named the outstanding player in the 1971 World Series when he batted .414 and led Pittsburgh to the world championship.

Clemente was the National League's most valuable player in 1966 and was selected to the league's all-star team 12 times.

JOHNSON RETIRES

CARLISLE, PA., (AP) — Tackle Mitch Johnson, a seven-year National Football League veteran, has retired from the game to continue his job with the federal government, Washington Redskins announced Thursday. Johnson, 31, played college football for UCLA.

Atlanta Wins

ATLANTA (AP) — John Cocking and Dave Metchick each scored a goal, pacing Atlanta to a 2-0 triumph over Vera Cruz Thursday night in a replay of a North American Soccer League game.

The contest was a replay of a June 22 clash won by Vera Cruz 2-0. Atlanta protested an illegal substitution, causing the rematch.

Unbeaten Teams One Goal Apart

By AL ZARAS
Staff Sportswriter

If lacrosse served up in a tension filled arena is your cup of tea, last night's South Central Lacrosse Association games between two teams fighting to protect seven game winning streaks would have tickled your innards.

But if lacrosse quickly degenerating into a scrambly, short-handed game of high sticking displeases a sense of proper behavior for bantam aged players, the battle would have curled a hair or two.

Although both the Belleville bantams and Markham Ron Shank Fuels were far from angelic, the officiating of chief referee Good Brown did little to keep a tense situation controlled.

Ron Shank Fuels edged Belleville 5-4 to extend their winning streak to eight games while delivering Belleville their first loss in as many.

What caused Bill Lunch of Markham and Mike Finnegan of Belleville had to be said but both coaches looking incredulously at the bantam scorekeeper for explanations. Even penalized players knew not how long, or for what offenses, they occupied the box.

At the tail end of the third period, Markham's Ron Lunch received a two minute slashing penalty and Finnegan quickly followed suit with a similar sentence. But upon learning of Waterson's penalty, only gave Dix two minutes to serve. One minute and 30 seconds later, having his original tripping penalty called to his attention by coach Finnegan, Brown gave Dix another two minutes for tripping.

Dix received another two for a too - many - men - on - the - floor penalty after the scorekeeper shouted to referee that Markham had all seven on the floor.

With under a minute remaining in the game, Markham established a goalie-pulled power play in the attempt to add to Wally Inwood's two goals, Jeff Runciman's and Peter Thompson's singles. Playing six to Markham's four starters, Jeff Gow failed to beat goaltender Peter Donahue on six attempts with 17 seconds remaining.

On the sound of the buzzer, Thompson bounced in a goal but the spent seconds nullified what would have been the tying net shaker.

Markham survived the total of 58 penalty minutes on the strength, of Donahue's work, and the goalie-footedness of Dix, Chris Williams and Howie Kelly.

Dix snapped a single behind Belleville goalie Joe Bourcette as did Kelly and George Vigus. Williams' two goals sandwiched Markham's infliction as he beat Bourette on a toe-high shot with 59 seconds left in play.

But Bourette's work in the net cannot be faulted. With just over two minutes left to pay Bourette amazingly stopped four consecutive shots aways within the space of 60 seconds.

And there was the problem. "We've never had to play a defensive game before," said coach Finnegan. "We weren't getting inside and were letting them get in."

And what was the major reason Markham was over what coach Laurin considered better team. "I yell at my players. But never: this is wrong, that is wrong. I yell: do this, try that."

"You have to let them think they're as much the boss as you are. You have to psyche them up, make them believe they're good."

Two Wins For Gagne

Gagne Masonry's Bob Hagerman and Wally Gagne combined their efforts from the mound to deliver Radio Shack tyke Al - Staff a 22-14 loss Wednesday and a 21-6 drubbing to B. G. Foster-Tuesday in Thurlow Minor Baseball junior division play.

With a double and a pair of singles, Ron Landrey was Gagne's big hitting while Good Saunders garnishing the win with a triple. For Foster, Doug Morris slapped out two singles.

In Wednesday's contest, both Saunders and Hagerman killed the ball for triples. Landrey bit for a single to bigger while Gagne did the same. Radio Shack's heavy hitter was Boyd Sullivan with four singles. Gerry Latchford worked two doubles in the field.

BYBF Girls On A Spree

The bottom teams of the Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League have left the wrath of BYBF and they now know why the Yardmen are in first place.

In the guise of a 47-2 destruction of Belleville Broadloom Tuesday night, the Yardmen girls flexed their power Thursday night by crushing Bob Ross Ford 19-0.

Sue Morton picked up the shutout allowing six hits. Her mates at the gave her more than enough support with 20 hits.

Suzanne Corbett was the losing pitcher for the Barn. Marg Scanlan had three h'ts for the losers.

Warming Up for Saturday

Mead Johnson Squirt catcher David Cox awaits pitching on runner Don Simonds at a practice session Thursday night in preparation for Saturday's annual Belleville Minor Softball Association squirt tournament. Belleville is defending champions of their own tournament but will not have to worry about their arch rival from North Beadsle who will not be making an appearance this year. Meads slapped Belleville 10-9 in last year's championship win.

Preparing for Annual Tournament

Squirt Team Loaded with Rookies

Some old familiar faces won't be at the annual Belleville Minor Softball Association squirt tournament this Saturday but a few fresh ones will. Mead Johnson coach Al Van Cleef and Lou Desjardins have to worry about.

Mead Johnson's perennial nemesis North Park won't be in the eight team picture this year and though that is somewhat of a relief in itself, new entrants and an entirely different team from last year's all - Ontario champions presents more than enough worries for first year coaches Van Cleef and Desjardins.

"We don't have any returnees from last year and we don't have any OASA experience. They've all played house league ball in the first year for them on the all-stars," explained coach Van Cleef.

Most of the players are just in their first year of squirt ball with only five members moving up to peewee this year. The lack of experience is costly especially against bigger and proven second year players.

Their pitching isn't on a par with second year squirts but what can you expect. Jamie Millar has some speed and Sean Monoghan has the control but they just haven't developed the strength yet. Our hitting is something we have to work on. They get some hits but not good ones," observed Van Cleef.

The squirts have some worrying to do before tomorrow's tournament in which they are the defending champions, but if it wasn't for Van Cleef and Desjardins they might have been worrying about where they were going to play at all.

Van Cleef coached the Kinsmen Hawks of the house league last year and won the championship. I was planning on staying on there but I took over the all-stars because they didn't have a coach," said Van Cleef who also holds down the position of vice-president of the West Hill for the Belleville Minor Softball Association.

The squirts are looking to the house league for new strength with call-ups being invited to their regular Thursday practices and though they haven't fared that poorly in games up to this point, added help can always come in handy for the OASA playoffs which begin later this month.

"We are three and five in peewee house league and we won the B Championship at the Richmond Hill Tournament earlier so we haven't done too bad. Against teams coming tomorrow, we beat Richmond Hill 8-4 and we split a pair of games with Kingston and Napanee."

Meads are champions from last year, winning a dramatic 10-9 decision over North Beadle, and this year's version of the Belleville representatives will stay with Toronto opposition, opening the tournament with an expected strong Scarborough Corvette Park team.

North York, Kingston, Oshawa, Napanee, Lindsay and Richmond Hill round out the entrants. Games will be played at the Alemite and Queen Victoria School Saturday. The B championship will be at 4 p.m. and the A championship at 5:30 p.m., both at the Alemite.

Yardmen Midgets Ready

It's said practice makes perfect. The Belleville Yardmen midgets were doing just that — practicing at Centennial Park — in preparation for their trek to the prestige Tops in Tournamentia For '73 in Oshawa Saturday.

Assistant coach Jim Crouchman put the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association team through batting, sliding, as well as base running paces to hone their skills for the two day double elimination tourney.

"I hope they play Saturday against Lemington like they did against the Belleville Juveniles Monday," said Crouchman Thursday. The Yardmen edged United Rigging 5-4 to down the fellow lies their second loss of the season.

Crouchman expressed pleasant surprise at the win saying that he did not expect such play from a team and pitching staff that was primarily first year midgets.

With only Craig Empey being a second year midget, pitchers Mike McClelland and Bruce McDonald "did their necessary midget experience on the mound. But we'll be in good shape next year." The next year is still some distance away and Crouchman outlined his concerns about getting his players ready for Saturday's 16 team journey.

"Basically, we're just practicing what they learned at the beginning of the season. They've got to turn properly at first instead of going halfway into right field. With the OASA tourney, I'm training them to use a relay man instead of having the ball from the 365 foot mark to home.

During sliding practice into second base, Crouchman explained as well as illustrated the manner in which to cut the second baseman's feet out from under him in the attempt to break up a forced double play.

Although the players were "horsing around a lot," during the practice, Crouchman said there'll be little nonsense during the two days they'll be playing ball in the tourney.

Peewees Stop Bantam Team

The SACO peewees proved they aren't playing above their heads even though they are playing in a higher league in Belleville. Minor Softball Association bantam division pay Thursday night.

Th peewees stopped Steven Lucas' bantams 10-7 Thursday behind the 11 strikeout pitching of Danny Vance.

A double and three singles by Randy Ryckman and Tim Duval's home run paced the Kinsmen Phillies to a 9-7 victory over the Bunny Restaurant in the other bantam contest of the night.

Dwight Bowyer had a home run, double and two singles for the Pit Bunny.

Holoway Blanks Trenton Auger's

Errors have long been the antagonist of softball teams and it was never more evident than in Thursday night's Commercial Softball League game between Devolin and Trenton.

Embroiled in a classic pitching duel Devolin used a pair of errors in Trenton in the sixth inning to score the only run of the game to their 18th win of the season.

In the first half of the Alemite double - header a pair of triples led Howard and Robert Preating to a 4-0 shutout over the Ellis Juniors.

Devolin's Don Holoway and Trenton Auger's Scott Reid were throwing two hitters at each other with little happening in the way of run production until the dramatic sixth inning.

As so often happens the visiting club threatens in the top half of the inning and then the home club produces the run in their half. In this instance Trenton put men on second and third with Steve Barker's double. An intentional walk to Larry Mavety and a walk to Jim Hall loaded the sirtbsents by Holoway and Wayne Woods threw to the plate to home in and beat the threat.

Devolin won the game in their half of the sixth when Eric Maher reached base on an error by Trenton short-stop Al Ferguson and then scored on a single by Devolin pitcher Mavety, whose toss to second sailed to the centre field fence.

Holoway whiffed eight in winning the two hitter as Bob Motermen moved to within one game of pennant leading Rollins Construction. Rick Rosebush had t h e only two hits for the winners, both singles.

Reid lost the two hitter while Ken Secretauil and Barker had the only hits in his support.

Howard and Robert's Bob Ethier was never in any trouble blanking the Juniors on just two hits in leading the Printers to a fourth place tie with Trenton.

Ethier struck out five and walked only two to outshoal the Juniors' Ron Hill who fired a four hitter. He whiffed two batters in the game.

John Campbell clinched the win for the Printers tripling in Karl Bagnell who had reached on a fielder's choice in the third. An error to Junior catcher John Stanton on the throw to the plate allowed Campbell to score the final run of the game.

Jim Richardson and Dave Horwood accounted singles for the Juniors' hits.

1½ BATHS

one of four houses we have left in East Belleville. This popular model has a carport. There is an L shaped living dining room. Kitchen has a simple eating area. Low down payment.

FAMILY ROOM

for the many who have called seeking houses with family room on the main floor, we have two houses now nearing completion and two larger ones just starting. These are split level models. Also starting is a large two storey model with family room. This one is in Fosston Park.

In West Park Village area we are starting on a two storey with family room and fireplace.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, July 14

ARIES (March 21–April 19): Yielding to aggressions causes trouble. Use mechanical things carefully. Entertainment is out of step with your mood.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Begin early in some disciplined rhythm with a definite program, doing something worthwhile.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): It's fragile, leave it stored away. Give people plenty of elbow room; everybody shows strong reactions.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Find a sensible way to work off restlessness. Your help will almost certainly be needed; be ready.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You'll be doing well if you get through this day with your pride intact; accepting others as they are helps.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can get to fundamentals with personal resolve and good questions. By evening you should know where you stand.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You have the means for constructive change. It is important to know what you want; let others decide their own needs.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Overconfidence is evident. Get perspective on the issue. Minor conflicts needn't blow up into major disputes.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Sensible answers are hard to come by. Let things drift. By nightfall earlier mishaps are forgotten.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Make your routines flexible enough to assure co-operation. There's more to the story than surfaces indicate.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Discretion includes keeping things to yourself, as well as staying out of others' disputes. This should be a day of minimum exertion.

Alcohol Rapidly Enters Blood

By G. C. THORTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: To settle a coffee klatch discussion, how long does it take alcohol to reach the blood stream, and how long after drinking does it stay in the blood and urine? — Mrs. L.B.

Alcohol is absorbed very rapidly—the glow of a cocktail may be felt within 30 minutes. In that space of time 80 to 90 per cent of the alcohol will have been absorbed, some through the stomach, some through the small intestine.

This time is somewhat variable. Food of any kind can delay absorption. Alcohol, however won't, in the long run, prevent it.

Alcohol in beer is absorbed more slowly than the same amount of alcohol in wine. A highball made with soda is more rapidly absorbed than one with plain water.

The body can use up or eliminate about three-quarters to one ounce of whisky per hour. But asking how long alcohol stays in the system depends on how much you have consumed and over how long a period. You don't get rid of a lot of alcohol as soon as you get rid of a little. Rapid consumption results in accumulation in the blood stream.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm 13 and have acne. It isn't very bad and I try to take care of it. I wash my face three times a day with a special soap for this.

I have reservations about using a medicated soap that often. Once a day or even every other day avoids risk of irritating the skin, which you shouldn't do when you have acne.

Wait just as often but most of the time use ordinary soap. And in every case, especially if enough about rinsing after a ward. That's very important Preferably, hot water to rinse.

Acne isn't a simple problem to cope with, and sometimes a bit of care as to diet, and the use of special medications when needed, will help a lot.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is gas gangrene? How does it develop? How is it treated? What is the prognosis? My husband is in line for surgery shortly — Mrs. C. S.

Gangrene means that the involved tissue has died, and gas gangrene is a form in which the germ present in the inflamed tissue produces gas.

Essentially, gangrene results from a shutting off of circulation to the affected area, from whatever cause. It used to be frequent occurrence in battlefield wounds, when flaps or tatters of torn flesh were deprived of circulation. And germs took over. Prompt treatment prevents that today.

Circulation can be shut off in other ways —an artery may become occluded (blocked) or a puncture wound or sometimes a lesser wound, can admit infection in which gas can destroy small arteries in the area. It is a formidable condition and is treated with gangrene antitoxin, antibiotics, surgery to remove gangrenous tissue. Prognosis depends on whether treatment is instituted before the gangrene has spread too far.

Note to Mrs. L.W.: Your "dry eyes" problem usually is best solved by the use of "artificial tears" which can be readily obtained.

Contract Bridge

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

Test Your Dummy Play

You are declarer with the West hand at Six Clubs and North leads the queen of diamonds. How would you play the hand?

♠ KJ7	♠ A432
♥ KJ6	♥ A432
♣ A7642	♣ KQ963

This fine problem, originally published in the British Bridge World magazine, was submitted by Paul Lukacs of Israel.

South bids the opening diamond lead in dummy, draws both missing trumps and leads dummy's top spades, ruffing with dummy.

If South follows suit with the five or the six, or throws out of spades, West plays the seven and is sure to score the rest of the tricks regardless of what North may next.

North is thoroughly and completely endplayed in all suits.

If South produces the eight, nine or ten of spades on the deuce lead from dummy, declarer wins with the king, reenters dummy with a trump, and returns the three of spades — planning to play the ace if South follows low.

By playing in this manner, declarer ensures the contract in every one of the following cases:

1. If South produces the ace, his higher trump is ruffed.
2. If South plays in defense and plays the five or six of spades when he has a higher card to play.
3. If South has the queen of spades, and regardless of the number of spades he started with.
4. If North has either the singleton or doubleton queen of spades.
5. If the spades are divided 3-3.
6. If the heart finesse—when taken as a last resort—loses and the spades prove to be divided unfavorably—win.

Only if all six chances fail will declarer go down on the Bill Provides Reimbursement For Candidates

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave second reading Thursday to a bill which all parties agree will cut election costs and bring financing arrangements more into the open.

The first legislation ever to restrict election spending, it now goes to committee for detailed study and possible amendment. However, it may not be passed until after the House returns from a summer holiday.

As it stands, the bill would require public disclosure of campaign contributions of more than $100 and provide for partial reimbursement of the amount of a candidate spends.

For political parties, it would limit expenses to 30 cents for each eligible voter or about $10 million nationally. Individual candidates would be restricted to $1 for each of the first 15,000 voters in their ridings, 50 cents each for the next 10,000 and 25 cents for each remaining voter.

Flora MacDonald (PC—Kingston and the Islands) said she would amount to about $27,000 in her riding compared with $92,000 she spent in the campaign for the Oct. 30 general election.

The highest amount spent in the campaign last fall was more than $80,000 by Conservative Steve Roman in his unsuccessful campaign against Barnett Danson (L—York North).

Miss MacDonald said the reimbursement provisions in the bill would amount to about $6,600 for her, based on a formula of 16 cents each for the first $25,000 voters, plus 14 cents each for all remaining voters.

Donald Lewis, New Democratic leader, said the legislation does not go far enough and has loopholes.

He said the $100 donation limit will not prevent corporations from concealing large contributions. They could merely pass out $100 donations, or some figure below that, to dozens of individual candidates across the country.

He also attacked a clause that restricts reimbursement from the federal treasury to candidates polling at least 20 per cent of the vote.

While it will cut out "freak and nuisance" candidates as intended, he said, it will also work to the detriment of serious candidates for smaller but recognized parties, such as the NDP.

He suggested a 10-per-cent limit while Miss MacDonald, who supported the measure, said statistics show the best level would be around 15 per cent.

Mr. Lewis contended that Liberal and Conservative reliance on corporate donations results in "an inevitable close relationship" that affects the way both parties govern.

However, he said, he would not risk losing the bill entirely by holding out for the changes he wants. The bill was far better than anything ever introduced and should become law as quickly as possible.

Nixon Aide Moore Denies He Knew Watergate Facts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential aide Richard Moore faced another session before the Watergate committee today to discuss events about which he says his memory is hazy. But he swears he was not involved in the cover-up and doesn't believe President Nixon knew about it.

Moore's testimony began Thursday following that of former attorney-general John Mitchell, who stuck to his story through three days of questioning despite suggestions that he had lied under oath to keep the lid on the scandal.

While they testified, the Senate panel's chairman, Senator Sam Ervin, arranged to meet with Nixon to discuss the president's refusal to surrender White House papers to the committee.

Hours later the President was admitted to Bethesda Naval Hospital with what the White House described as viral pneumonia.

Moore, a special counsel to the president, read a 30-page statement that contradicted on two key points the previous testimony of former White House counsel John Dean.

—Moore admitted that he attended a meeting in La Costa, Calif., in February and that Dean mentioned "he had been told by the lawyers . . . that they may be needing some more money."

Moore went to New York to suggest that Mitchell raise the necessary funds, a request which Mitchell rejected, but denied he was told the money was for the original Watergate defendants, as Dean has testified.

—Dean swore he was convinced the president knew of the cover-up because parts of it were discussed in Nixon's presence by Dean and other White House aides. But Moore said nothing he heard in four meetings he and Dean had with the president or in his own talks with Dean indicated the president knew the "critical facts" until the March 21 meeting at which Dean said he told the president all he knew of White House involvement in the cover-up.

On these two points, Moore indicated he was sure of his facts and confident in his conclusions. But under rapid-fire questioning by assistant chief counsel Terry Lenzner he repeatedly said he was unable to recall dates, the contents of specific meetings or the people with whom he met.

Mitchell, who faced some of the toughest questioning in the closing hour of his lengthy interrogation, defended himself against suggestions he couldn't be believed under oath. He said he always will have to decide whether to believe him or those who contradict him.

Committee chief counsel Samuel Dash asked whether he would commit perjury in order to ensure the re-election, and Mitchell said that would be a subject "I would have to give very long and very hard thought to."

Dash then noted that Mitchell had made a sworn statement last Sept. 5 and pointed out apparent contradictions between his testimony then, that he was not told of Gordon Liddy's involvement in Watergate, and his testimony before the Senate committee that he had been briefed about Liddy's role four days after the break-in.

Mitchell also denied Sept. 5 knowing the circumstances of how Liddy had been hired by the Committee to Re-elect the President, but later told the Watergate panel he had interviewed Liddy and approved his hiring.

"Since you may have given false testimony under oath on prior occasions, is there really any reason for this committee to believe your testimony before this committee?" Dash asked.

Mitchell replied that he disagreed with Dash's interpretations of his prior answers.

In the White House papers dispute, Nixon said he is willing to meet with Ervin but has no intention of backing off from his stated position that the committee can't have the documents it says are needed for its investigation.

The committee unanimously adopted a resolution saying it "is entitled to have access to every document in the possession of th White House or any department or agency of the executive branch of government" pertaining to its investigation of the scandal.

Hartwell Is Being Sued

EDMONTON (CP) — Radio station CHQT and the Toronto Sun say in a copyright story a lawsuit charging negligence has been filed against an Edmonton airline and Marten Hartwell, lone survivor of an Arctic mercy flight.

The story says a statement of claim has been filed by the estate of Judith Hill, a 27-year-old British nurse killed in the crash of the plane piloted by Mr. Hartwell.

The statement charges negligence by the pilot and by Gateway Aviation Ltd., Mr. Hartwell's employer at the time of the crash last November 8.

The crash started the most expensive search in the history of Northern aviation, costing about $2 million.

The story says the lawsuit charges "that the crash would not have occurred if the defendants had exercised proper care in the maintenance, operation and navigation of the aircraft."

Olympic Financing Promotes Squabble

OTTAWA (CP) — A 4½ hour squabble broke out in the miscellaneous estimates committee late Thursday night over financing the 1976 Montreal Olympics. The meeting finally broke up about 12:40 a.m. today.

Guides Coming On Conflict Of Interest

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau countered opposition charges of government wrong-doing Thursday by renewing a promise to introduce guides on conflict of interest before the Commons adjourns for the summer, expected later this month.

His statement came as opposition members confronted the Liberals with charges of conflict of interest involving the daughter of a cabinet minister, renting government office space and financing of student housing projects.

He also said he had not spoken to Stanley Haidasz, minister of state for multiculturalism, about an Opportunities for Youth (OFY) project linked with Dr. Haidasz's daughter Marie.

The girl was one of a group that applied for a grant to conduct a study of the Polish community in Dr. Haidasz's Toronto Parkdale riding. The first proposal was turned down but a later one with a smaller budget of $15,400, was approved. However, Miss Haidasz, 18, had left the group by then.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis said he did not think the OFY application was itself a conflict of interest but the fact that the $15,000 was to be used "for propaganda purposes in the riding of the minister" was.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield told reporters he had doubts the incident is a true conflict of interest but rules on conflict of interest for government members were long overdue.

It was the fifth meeting held to study a government bill to aid Games financing through sales of commemorative coins, stamps and a national lottery. However, only one clause in the proposed legislation, setting out the bill's name, has been approved.

Both the Liberals and the Conservatives favor helping the Games but the Conservatives are charging the minority government with trying to railroad a half-baked fund-raising scheme through the House.

The Liberals want the bill back in the Commons Wednesday for final approval and were prepared to keep the committee up all night, if necessary, to complete the clause-by-clause study.

Most of the evening, however, was spent in a hassle over how and when to adjourn. The Conservatives with New Democratic support, finally got the adjournment and, much to the dismay of the Liberals, set the next meeting for Tuesday.

The Liberals charged the Conservatives with trying to filibuster on the bill.

The bill simply authorizes the government to issue the commemorative coins and stamps and allows for a national lottery. The Summer Games committee has estimated that the coins will raise $250 million, the stamps $10 million and th lottery $22 million.

Games organizers estimate expenses at $310 million.

A treasury board analysis indicates the coins are likely to raise only $100 million and says the Games organizers have under-estimated operating costs by almost $52 million.

The analysis predicts a Games' deficit of $172 million.

The federal government has said it will not pick up any deficit.

The Conservatives say there are many unanswered questions about the fund-raising schemes. They accuse Treasury Board President C. M. Drury and Postmaster - General Andre Ouellet of not providing straight answers.

CRTC Plans to Bar Foreign Commercials

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre Juneau announced Thursday that the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) is seeking regulations that would in effect, ban foreign commercials from Canadian airwaves.

At a meeting of the Senate transport and communications committee, Mr. Juneau said the CRTC feels that regulations governing commercials are necessary. He is CRTC chairman.

He said the regulations will call for 100 per cent Canadian production of radio commercials, and Canadian content in television advertising will be "as close to 100 per cent as possible."

The Senate committee was considering a motion by Senator Sydney Buckwold (L—Saskatchewan) to ban foreign advertising in broadcasting. Mr. Juneau estimated it will be a year, at least, before the measures could be brought into effect. Public hearings and consultation with the industry would be required.

Housing Starts Will Surpass Last Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Housing starts this year will surpass the 1972 total—which was 249,914—two cabinet ministers contended Thursday.

Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford said the statistics for the first six months of this year totalled 92,838 as against the 91,824 for the corresponding period last year. Single-family dwellings were up by six per cent over the first half of 1972.

High Winds Hit Brighton

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

BRIGHTON — This community today is sorting out the cost of last night's vicious wind squall that ravaged its Main Street district, demolishing the town hall and causing property havoc in surrounding homes and businesses.

Friday night shoppers were strolling the business sector at the tornado-like blow punched into the downtown, shredding trees, downing power and communication lines and sealing Highway 2 which runs through the village.

Inexplicably, no one was seriously hurt — George Hees, the local MP called it "a miracle".

A man and his daughter — rescued after their small car was buried in the rubble of the toppling town hall — escaped with minor injuries.

But property damage — its total still being tallied today — ran high as trees crunched into homes and automobiles, the windows and contents of stores left shattered.

In the blow's wake, Mr. Hees, MP Prince Edward - Hastings, who hastened here minutes after, said he would seek senior government aid for the village.

The community should be declared a disaster area by the provincial government, he said. Federal funds should also be available to help compensate villagers for serious property losses, said Mr. Hees.

Exactly what kind of abruptly fierce weather phenomenon swirled through here — timed at 7.35 p.m. by provincial police — was not clear.

Villagers called it a twister—but exact shape wasn't certain.

"It came incredibly fast," said antique store operator Peter Lyon.

"The trees started swapping as though they were being pushed over with a big bulldozer," said John Farrow, young food store employee who has just bought a house earlier in the day — then had the veranda ripped off.

A spokesman at Canadian Forces Base Trenton weather office declined to give the vicious wind snap a name. No funnel clouds — the mark of a twister — had been confirmed in the region, he said.

But Charlie Gibson, highways worker, said he saw the storm approach from the north. As he watched — on Highway 401 north of here — he saw thin sky spouts merge and sweep down on the village.

Among alternative possibilities was a sudden downdraft from thunderstorms which hit the Quinte area Friday evening — causing 50-mile-an-hour wind and fierce rain and hail at Trenton.

Neither were there any confirmed reports on the path of the wind strike.

Provincial police and villagers reported the blow appeared to sweep in from the northwest and head southeast toward nearby Lake Ontario.

Its duration was only a few minutes — reports varied on exactly how long.

At least a score of homes — which are a mark of this community — were believed damaged by the winds velocity and falling trees.

Most spectacular damage was to the 99-year-old town hall, where bricks cascaded from the building's tower and walls. Its roof debris was buried a block away across the tops of downtown buildings.

William Patterson, husband of village clerk Shirley Patterson, and his daughter Carol, were driving up a sidestreet beside the building when it was hit.

Their car was buried in falling debris, but the incident was spotted by passersby sheltering in nearby doorways. Rescuers ran to the scene as the squall passed and cleared the rubble, helping the Patterkens through the car windows. They were

Indian Act Needs Revision: Chretien

OTTAWA (CP) — Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien views an Ontario Supreme Court decision ruling the Indian Act inoperative as confirmation that the act must be revised, a spokesman in his office said Friday.

Ben Wicks

"Yes, Mrs. Mitchell . . .
No, Mrs. Mitchell . . .
Yes, Mrs. Mitchell . . ."

The government and the Indians themselves have agreed for some time that changes are needed, the spokesman said.

The court ruled the Indian Act inoperative Thursday and concluded that the Six Nations Indian Reserve near Brantford, Ont., has no legal basis for being a reserve.

The federal spokesman said a revision process has been started by supplying Indian groups with funds to study the act and make recommendations for revision.

He described this as "a time-consuming process" and said there is no indication when a revising bill will be ready for presentation to Parliament.

President Unaware Says Aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even a flood of news stories about Watergate failed to arouse President Nixon's suspicions that the White House was involved in the scandal, says presidential aide Richard Moore.

The white-haired, "quiet-spoken" Moore testified Friday that he, too, discounted news accounts of the scandal until about March 1, when his own suspicions began to grow.

Still, he waited nearly a month before urging White House counsel John Dean told the president about the cover-up and attempts to extort hush money from presidential aides.

"I did not feel that I had anything but hearsay and gossip and rumor, but I sure was beginning to worry," Moore told the Senate Watergate committee.

Moore's televised testimony filled the entire day and he was recalled for a third day when the hearings resume Monday. His appearance was suggested by the White House to give another version of events Dean testified about.

Board Chairman Suggests Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — Wages, pensions and fringe benefits provisions for an increased monetary settlement to non-operating railway workers of a minimum 20.7 per cent over two years are suggested in a conciliation board report released today by the labor department.

But the proposals—made by Mr. Justice Craig Munroe of the British Columbia Supreme Court—are rejected in another report filed by the panel's company representative because they would cost railway firms an estimated $153 million.

Widely divergent views among board members on the issue of wages for 36,000 non-operating employees of CP Rail, Canadian National Railways and nine smaller firms are likely to intensify the possibility of a major rail strike by the last week of July.

The unions said earlier this week they expected the conciliation board to fail to propose a satisfactory contract agreement, and that they are preparing for rotating and selective strike action by July 24 or 25.

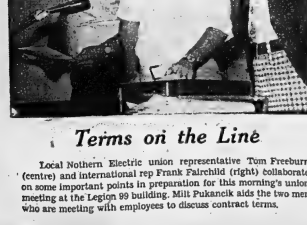
The three board members submitted separate reports.

The workers include porters, clerks, maintenance, roundhouse and other employees. Their last contract expired Dec. 31, 1972.

Mr. Justice Munroe, chairman of the board, suggests increases in basic rates of 30 cents an hour retroactive to Jan. 1, a five-per-cent wage increase effective Jan. 1, 1974, and a further raise of three per cent on July 1, 1974.

Mr. Justice Munroe's report indicates that hourly wages averaged $3.54 in 1972. Union figures indicate hourly earnings of $3.81.

Mr. Justic Munro estimated that over the two-year life of the contract average hourly earnings of the employees would rise by 17 per cent.



Improved fringe benefits, including shift differentials, and an already-negotiated pension plan would increase the total monetary package to at least 20.7 per cent, he added.

This compared favorably with contract gains won by other workers in 1973 and 1974.

Yacht Flounders On Quinte Shore

A race against the clock brought near disaster to a Kingston sailor in the Bay of Quinte Friday.

Sgt. Jack Dubeau, a member of the Canadian Forces Sailing Association of Kingston, was alone in his 30-foot sloop on his way home from Presqu'ile shortly after noon as he approached the swing bridge at Bay Bridge Road.

"I was trying to time myself to make the bridge opening," he said, "but it didn't come open. So I turned upwind."

Unfortunately, his mainsail caught a gust, blowing him straight onto the rocky shore of Prince Edward County.

For 20 minutes, the $12,000 yacht slammed up and down on the rocks, pounding on its keel and fiberglass hull.

In an attempt to prevent the boat from wandering aimlessly, Sgt. Dubeau threw his anchor overboard.

Persons on the Rossmore shore rushed to his aid, attempting to push the boat away and tossing him tires to use as cushions against the blows.

Finally Stu Meeks in a La-Salle Rescue Boat appeared on the scene and, after some initial difficulties, secured a line on the floundering yacht.

Moments later, the two boats were back in Belleville harbor and Sgt. Dubeau — with only his pride injured— was inspecting the hull for damage.

A quick glance revealed a few minor scratches on the blue portion above water and the sailor said his ship was not taking on water. He planned to dry dock it in Kingston, however, for a more thorough look.

The bridge was supposed to open at 12:30 p.m. and that was the time by my watch," said the nonplussed yachtsman preparing to resume his sail.

Nearby, another boat-owner commented that sailors familiar with the Bay of Quinte have learned to turn on their motors when approaching the bridge.

Craft Damaged

Kingston yachtsman Jack Dubeau was enroute from Presqu'ile when heavy winds in Bay of Quinte blew his craft against the shoreline west of the Bay Bridge. Examination at Belleville harbor — after yacht was towed in by Alderman Stu Meeks — showed little damage.

Mail Bags Recovered

The mail trucks from Belleville to Peterborough through the storm Friday night but the mail didn't.

Belleville police and Madoc OPP Constable Bill Young were called upon for the recovery of 12 mailbags that fell out of the mail truck that runs from Belleville to Peterborough via Stirling and Campbellford.

Belleville police recovered three of the bags and constable Young covered the road from Madoc to Peterborough, finding eight more bags.

A packaged rifle was also recovered in the search. All mail was turned into the Peterborough Post Office.

A misplaced latch on the truck is believed to be the cause of the mail loss.

Federal Funds Available For Quinte Art Gallery

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Quinte Arts Council is organizing a study into possible construction of a gallery for cultural exhibits in the Belleville area.

Such a project need be no cultural pipedream, QAC executives have suddenly learned.

What's quietly exciting them is the fact federal funds are now available to assist construction of such a facility in the Belleville area.

It would house local art exhibits and circulating cultural displays from national art galleries and museums.

The availability of federal financing was learned late this week when a representative from the secretary of state's department came calling, says QAC president Mnfred Koechlin.

She was Ann Shudleigh from the department's consultative committee on national museum policy.

The state secretariat is now pursuing ways and means of bringing national culture closer to Canadians. One formula envisons construction of regional art galleries in designated areas for art, museums and other cultural displays.

The Belleville district is one such designated area QAC officials were told, said Mr. Koechlin.

Federal funds would construct the building, while local sources would raise financing to cover its continuing operation, said Mr. Koechlin.

Local government, cultural and other community sources would have to combine into a support group for the facility.

The idea already has been tentatively discussed by an impromptu group of QAC representatives, local artists and educators.

Initial response was positive to such a project, said Mr. Koechlin.

The next step will be formation of a committee from various sectors of the community to further explore the possibilities, he said.

John Pringle Appointed Judge for Norfolk County

John Pringle, Hastings County Crown Attorney for the past 17 years, has been appointed county judge for Norfolk County in southwestern Ontario.

Mr. Pringle expects to be sworn into the judgeship sometime next month.

His appointment ends an association with Belleville and Hastings County dating from the early 1950s when he first took up private practice in the city.

A native of Montreal, he was a lawyer with the federal government Polymer Corporation before coming to Belleville.

In the city, he entered private practice with his brother, the late Robert Pringle who was also city solicitor for many years.

He was appointed Crown Attorney early in 1958. During his public service, Mr. Pringle also was solicited prosecutor for the Attorney General's department on various cases across the province. Among his more notable special assignments was the attempt in U.S. court to extradite labor leader Hal Banks back to Canada.

Mr. Pringle says he will formally assume the Norfolk County judgeship in the period Aug. 10-17.

He and his wife Barbara have two children — Beth, 17, and Fraser, 15.

Picton Man Thrown From Car

BLACK CREEK — A Prince Edward County man was reported in serious condition in Kingston General Hospital today following a one-car collison on Black Creek Road last night.

Randy Welsh, 20, of RR9, Picton, was thrown from a car driven by John Sill, also 20, of RR8, Picton.

As the car spun out of control leaving the road to come to rest in a farm field, Mr. Welsh received serious head and chest injuries. He was taken by ambulance to hospital at Kingston.

The single vehicle was southbound on the road, about three miles from Picton, when the accident occurred shortly after 8 p.m.

Cycle-truck Collision Kills Man

PICTON — A Wellington man was killed last night when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a tractor-trailer unit on Highway 33, three miles west of Picton.

Dead is 20-year-old Robert Arthur Fox of 197 Main St., Wellington.

He was fatally injured when his machine hit the rear fender of the westbound transport unit as it slowed to turn.

Since all Picton ambulances were on call the motorcycle was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital in the provincial police cruiser. He died shortly after arrival.

The spokesman for the Picton OPP detachment said last night's storm was not a factor in the fatal accident which occurred shortly after 9 p.m.

Radio Personality Leaves CJBQ Post

The Radio Station CJBQ personality and program director has ended almost a quarter - century in Quinte - community broadcasting.

He now enters a new field of local electronic programming.

Soon, Mr. Jourard will take up his duties as the first director of community programming for the Belleville - Trenton Cablevue cablevision company.

The venture will introduce community television into the area for the first time.

Yesterday Mr. Jourard formally left CJBQ. Later he was first hired as broadcaster 23 years ago Some years later he was appointed program director.

But, aside from broadcasting, he also became widely known as an active community figure with local theatre among his major interests.

Marking his departure yesterday, staff and management presented Mr. Jourard with a briefcase and a directory of theatre.

Following a vacation, Mr. Jourard will take over his community television post in early August and begin preparations for programming later in the year.

taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital and later released following examination.

Ironically, Reeve Dorothy Brintnell later revealed Friday was the deadline for calling tenders for demolition of the aged municipal building.

As power and communications blacked out the village, provincial police and detachments of police became the lone source of contact with the outside.

Police could receive incoming phone calls on a single line into the OPP office, but could not call out. The police radio became the only means of two-way communication.

The police office became the centre of emergency operations for the night as OPP reinforcement crews, Bell Telephone and Ontario Hydro units were mobilized to clear up the blow's aftermath.

Coroner Dr. O. W. Elliott remained on standby — with an ambulance despatched from Trenton — at the police offices.

As night fell police and other emergency personnel began patrolling Main Street with a large request broadcast through bullhorns: "If you're not in town tonight, please remain at home."

This morning work crews were still clearing the streets of debris and trees. Hydro and telephone services were reported partially restored.

A Bell Telephone official in Belleville said later this morning that 3,000 phones were now back in service in the village area, and about an additional 1,000 were yet to be restored. Bell has 40 men at the scene and service should be completely restored by Sunday night, the spokesman said.

DONALD THRUSH has received a bachelor of arts degree from Queen's University in Kingston. Mr. Thrush, retired head of the retail tax division in Belleville, is the newest member of the Hastings county board of education. He completed his degree in psychology and sociology extra-curarily.

BRIGHTON — "It was Friday the thirteenth . . . I'll never going to joke about that again."

Antique dealer Peter Lyon succinctly summed up the feelings of fellow villagers Friday night as — like them — he began seeking to get some things straight after the vicious wind squall that ripped through his neighborhood.

For Mr. Lyon the blow left its marks in a damaged home, a wrecked store where the fragments were more precious than most — antique glass and other fragile valuables.

He figures his losses might run up to $15,000.

For John Farrow and his wife Gail the windstorm's moment damage to a home they had bought earlier in the day — and have still to inhabit.

The veranda was shorn from the house the 25-year-old food market employee reported.

Both men were on-the-spot witnesses to the storm's abrupt, vicious swipe.

The Farrows were walking down Main Street when it struck. They took shelter in a doorway.

"It was devastating," recalled John. "We just stood in the doorway maybe three or four minutes.

"The trees were snapping as though they were being pushed over with a big bulldozer."

They were just across the street from the community's venerable townhall which suddenly started rocking "back and forth, back and forth — and then it finally caved over."

There was a car driving past and it was buried in the debris. John and another man — believed a tourist — dashed to the rubble as the storm swirled away. They cleared the debris from around the automobile and helped the occupants — William Patterson and his 4-year Carol to safety through the windows.

"Thank God, nobody got hurt in the village," said John.

Mr. Lyon feels the same way.

There were several dozen people on Main street at the time and "we're all very lucky" no one was hurt.

For him and his Mary Ellen the blow hit as they were between their home and store across the way. Mr. Lyon said he recognized what was coming — he'd experienced a similar big blow before in Montreal.

The couple hurried indoors and rushed their three children to shelter under tables in the basement.

"It came incredibly fast," he recalled. "Within about a half-minute the heart of the storm was upon us."

A 1973 maple tree without side his home was sent "flying through the air like a feather".

There was a certain unpredictability to the squall's passage.

Reeve Dorothy Brintnell was walking toward the window of her home with a cup of tea when the storm struck. First realization that something was amiss came when she saw trees falling beside the house. But the house was unmarked.

Townhall Rubble: Demolition Was Planned

Brighton A Disaster Area Declares MP George Hees

By BARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

BRIGHTON — George Hees, MP for Prince Edward Hastings, has called for senior government aid to villagers whose homes and businesses were stricken by Friday nights vicious windstorm here.

The community should be declared a disaster area and compensation should be available from provincial and federal governments, he said.

He discussed aid measures with Reeve Dorothy Brintnell while work was being organized in the squall-struck streets of the downtown area.

Mr. Hees said he would seek to have the provincial government declare Brighton a disaster area and "application should be made to the federal government also to assist".

Reeve Brintnell said the damage caused "is going to be went seeking the reeve to Mr. Hees was on his way home to Cobourg after attending a carnival in Trenton — 12 miles from here — when the windstorm swept through the village.

He was on the scene shortly after.

"It was just a miracle there were no injuries," he said.

After viewing the damage he went seeking the reeve to discuss applying for aid from senior governments.

Such help, he said was justified by the nature of the incident and the severe damage that ensued.

"There are a great many people in this area that will have to be compensated for a disaster which was no fault of theirs — for which they couldn't prepare," said Mr. Hees.

"They'll otherwise suffer very serious financial loss. There's no question about that."

At least one villager was having similar thoughts at the same time.

Surveying the damage along Main Street he commented: "They'll have to declare it a disaster area Nobody's insurance is going to cover all this."

Four Injured At Tyendinaga

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — Four young men were injured when their car went off the road and hit a tree here today.

In Belleville General Hospital were the driver, Ralph Gene Maracle, 21, with both legs broken; passengers Neil Brant, 21, broken leg and suspected broken back; Marty Brant, multiple leg fractures. and Kevin Brant, 18, face cuts.

All were resident at RR1, Deseronto.

The accident occurred at 6 am. on the Bayshore Road at the east end of the Mohawk reserve near Highway 49.

Provincial police said the tree — about a foot thick — was snapped off by the impact and the 1970 automobile is a writeoff.

Motion Alleges Judicial Bias

TORONTO— A notice of motion was filed in the Supreme Court of Ontario Friday asking that Provincial Judge J. D. Clendenning be prohibited from hearing a breach of probation charge against a Belleville youth.

The motion alleges that Judge Clendenning has biased opinions against all persons brought before him charged with breaking probation.

Basis for the motion is a statement made by the Judge while awarding another youth a suspended sentence and probation last February.

In his comments to the youth, Judge Clendenning said he would be incarcerated if he broke any terms of the probation order.

The motion was made on behalf of Christopher Georgiou whose case was scheduled to be heard before Judge Clendenning July 6. It was filed by his defence counsel Peter Rosenthal.

Grant Improves Park

MARMORA — A $5,000 provincial government grant has been confirmed for Marmora's still - developing municipal park.

The grant — matching a similar outlay by the village — was announced by Charles Rollins, MPP Hastings.

It will aid continuation this year of the development program begun several years ago along the Moira River in the village. Some 22 acres are being converted into parkland property and marsh.

Work this year will include construction of an entrance road, development of a parking area, beach improvement and picnic facilities.

Ellis Charges Grant Favoritism

Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, has charged that political favoritism may have governed awarding of Local Initiative Program grants in Ontario in this year.

The five ridings receiving the most money under the creative winter works program were all represented by Liberal members, he says.

The lowest five ridings were represented by non - Liberal MPs — although four of the five had elected Liberals in the 1968 election.

"You can't help but draw the conclusion that there was some favoritism," said the Conservative M.P. "In reviewing the figures it would be impossible not to draw that conclusion."

Highest on the list was Toronto Rosedale — represented by Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, which received $1,-249,000.

Low ridings included Wellington - Grey - Dufferin - Waterloo, represented by a Conservative, which received only $19,200.

Some $210,663 were awarded to Mr. Ellis' riding of Hastings where 34 percent of LIP submissions were approved. By comparison, Peterborough riding, represented by Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner, received $314,236 on an approval of 56 per cent.

Prince Edward - Hastings, held by Conservative George Hees, was granted $71,416.

Conservatives held 45 per cent of Ontario's 88 ridings, the Liberals 40 per cent.

But ridings represented by Conservatives received $9,931,-000, compared to $13,343,000 for constituencies which returned Liberals.

Mr. Ellis said he found it difficult to understand why Toronto - Rosedale — "one of the wealthiest areas of the province" should receive so much and a riding like Prince West (NDP), $4,600; Toronto Lakeshore, (NDP) $40,200 and Toronto High Park (PC), $44,-700.

In Ottawa, a spokesman for Manpower Minister Robert Andras, minister responsible for the LIP program, denied politics plays a part in awarding grants.

He said Mr. Andras turns down MPs from all political parties who seek special treatment for their ridings.

The spokesman said grants are made principally to high unemployment areas.

He conceded that Rosedale has many wealthy residents, but said there are also pockets of poverty in the constituency.

Bikes and Noise

As a rule we do not publish verse, but here is the gist of a few lines we have received in this vein; we might view it by way of a postcript to our observations the other day about cycling behavior,

City driving, suggests M. Godwin, is something of an obstacle course, urging motorists to "give the cyclist wobble-room."

As it is, the writer has reservations of his (or her?) own about taking to the bicycle as a mode of transportation, fresh air and all.

"Observing some of today's motorists, my alternative may become hiking."

A salutary reminder indeed to both motorists and cyclists to exercise care.

And some further thoughts of our own about the two-wheeled variety, only this time concerning the ones with motors, is there anything manufacturers can do about cutting down on the noise.

They could very well make a start now because, as we understand it, a special branch of the provincial government ministry is studying the entire problem of noise in our society, with a view to bringing in legislation governing permitted sound levels. This is as it should be, for the nuisance factor in this regard is growing daily.

A citizen gives us an example. Pulling into the curb across from a medical clinic the other day, he says he was being tailgated by a youth on a motorcycle. Another car accelerated past with a roar which frightened the sick child of our informant, enroute to the doctor.

This is but one example of the nuisance factor in noise and the sooner the appropriate legislation is passed the better.

Fickle Fame

Thirty-five years ago actress Veronica Lake of the peek-a-boo blonde hair and sultry voice arrived in Hollywood. She and her family had driven from Florida and as she related in her autobiography, Veronica, she remembered the all-night drive across the final stretch of desert and crossing the California line early the next morning.

"It was the Fourth of July, a significant date in American history and certainly in my life," she wrote. Indeed it was the start of one of Hollywood's most meteoric careers, that of a glamorous young woman who took the movie world by storm but a dozen years and three marriages later had faded into near-oblivion. Among admirers, at the height of her fame, was Aristotle Onassis. Then, last Monday, July 7, Miss Lake died of acute hepatitis in Burlington, Vt. She was 51.

Miss Lake's autobiography makes it clear she preferred a warm climate. In fact she made her none latterly in Miami, but there is mention in the book of visits to friends in New Hampshire so she may have come north again for that reason.

Her book — published only two years ago, just when her career was emerging again from obscurity, shaking loose from a drinking problem and, incredibly, from the jobs that included working as a barmaid in New York — tells of early family links with Canada and just across the border in the Adirondacks. One of her last films, Footsteps in the Snow, a minor epic on drugs and addiction, was made in Montreal only a few years ago.

Miss Lake was born Constance Ockleman, not in Lake Placid as some reports said at first, one almanac would have it, but in Brooklyn, Irish on her mother's side and German and Danish on that of her father, who was a seaman.

When her father died her mother married Anthony Keane, a New York Times staff artist whose health dictated they live alternately in Saranac Lake N.Y. and Miami. It wasn't the same mountain air of the Adirondacks, incidentally, which drew Robert Louis Stevenson to Saranac for a time. During this time the young Constance went to Villa Maria convent in Montreal, of her feeling as she recalls a southern drawl there, while in Miami she took on a French Canadian accent. Such were her beginnings as an actress.

The rest is legend, the stardom of Veronica Lake. Her book is a down-to-earth, often poignant record of that time, a story of triumph and disaster and courage. Perhaps some other biographer will fill the void of what happened in the last couple of years. Few, according to one report, knew who she was when she died in the Vermont Medical Center, testimony to the fragility of fame and the fleeting nature of public acclaim.

Uganda's Gen. Amin Expected

Commonwealth Conference Will Be A Security Headache

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Two East Block task forces are busy firming up preparations for the Commonwealth Conference which is expected to bring at least 25 of the 32 heads of government safe to the Queen to the Capital.

The week August 2, and the big worry is security.

Peter Roberts, formerly Prime Minister Trudeau's press secretary and now an External Affairs officer, heads a task force of 75 assigned to the transportation, accommodation and most important of all, security of the biggest army of VIPs attending Canada's largest-ever international conference.

The security assignment alone is enough to make even a seasoned and cool-under-pressure civil servant like Peter Roberts bludder.

For in the background, as the planning proceeds, must lurk the shadows of such fanatics as the young seekt who assaulted Soviet Premier Kosygin at the East Block doors . . . the criminal who shadowed President Nixon to Ottawa and then later crippled Alabama Governor George Wallace in an assassination attempt . . . and all those various protest groups whose picket and demonstrate when classed any VIP, India's Prime Minister Indira Ghandi being the most recent, comes to the Capital.

But to all that there is an added ingredient of tension.

It is the very disparity of the Commonwealth prime ministers.

They range from leaders of London and Ottawa - type democracies, freely elected and accountable to Parliament, all the way along the line of repression to one-party states and absolute dictatorships.

Things could become prickly when Kenneth Kuanda, president of Zambia, arrives and possibly might be confronted by the parents, relatives, friends and sympathizers of the two girls now facing firing squad shot to death.

But by far the most worrisome of the imponderables facing the Task Force on Security will be the presence of Uganda's Gen. Idi Amin

How many of the nearly 6,000 Ugandan Asians he expelled, who found refuge in Canada, will be on hand in the Capital to make him feel as unwelcome as he made them?

Just how unpredictable Idi Amin can be recently was revealed by the British humor magazine, the world - famed Punch.

While most other Commonwealth countries shared in the happiness of Princess Anne and Lieutenant Mark Phillips, news of their engagement was received with sighs of relief in Uganda.

For the announcement of the engagement blew away a cloud of doubt that had been hanging over that state and four ladies in particular — the four wives of President Amin.

They, in common with most of the 45-year-old dictator's subjects, had been taken in by a spoof announcement in Punch that a marriage had been arranged between Princess Anne and Idi Amin.

The magazine's joke was taken so seriously that President Amin's one - party Ugandan government issued an official statement: "The British have appreciated the General's wisdom over them and that is why they are doing'ing Princess Anne as his fifth wife."

The imperturbed front page headlines in the Voice of Uganda, the government - controlled state newspaper.

President Amin himself then went on a tour of military and public service establishments and was quoted in the Voice as saying: "I appreciate the fact that the British recognize me as a man to be reckoned with and have offered the Princess as a wife to strengthen the weakening ties between our two countries."

The President's Number One wife, Masama Maliamu, adopted a more personal approach to

Oil and the Military Bring Boom to Indonesia

By JOHN HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Oil and politics do not mix. It's axiomatic.

Look at the Middle East, Latin America, the Caribbean, even Canada and most of Southern Africa.

In the developing world, nationalistic governments demand constantly larger shares of oil royalities, or as in Libya, larger shares in the ownership of oil company subsidiaries.

In Canada, one of the very few oil-producing nations where that industry is almost entirely foreign-owned, chiefly by the giant U.S. and British multi-national oil corporations, rising nationalist feelings demand greater state control over our petroleum industry.

There is an exception in the contemporary world's mix of oil and politics and it is Indonesia where that country's largest oil and gas basin is entirely in the hands of Pertamina, perhaps the world's most entrepreneurial state oil corporation.

Oil and gas one of the most all-embracing state oil corporations outside the Communist bloc, owning just about everything connected with Indonesia's oil industry. This is not the case with many other state oil corporations in the developing world.

In Mexico for example, Petroleos Mexicanos (Mexican Petroleums), PEMEX for short, controls primary oil and gas production under Mexican laws now more than 25 years old. But private enterprise, Mexican or foreign, is free to enter secondary petrochemical activities, using basic PEMEX feedstocks as their raw materials.

Indonesia's Pertamina currently is making round-the-world deals with U.S. oil and gas giants, Japanese oil distributing companies, investment banks, Japanese trading companies, even Dutch financial interests, takes about 60 per cent of the split on earnings.

That might seem high by the older formula of 40 to the state and 60 to the foreign oil company. But in Libya, Occidental Petrolis (state to foreign oil company) which now is typical in oil-producing countries or the prospect of complete company takeover as in Iran and Libya in the last few weeks.

Why the growing confidence of oil multi-nationals in an oil-rich but once immoneysy-chaotic Southeast Asian nation which forced them out in 1962. The reason is largely one man, a unique military bureaucrat, Lt.-Gen. Ibnu Sutowo who runs Pertamina, and another general, President Suharto of Indonesia who supports him.

Both men were the key movers in the military coup which overthrew the very-corrupt and very-inefficient Sukarno dictatorship in 1966. At that time Indonesia actually had three state oil enterprises, a small one headed by Gen. Sutowo, another state oil enterprise and yet another under the domination of the once large and powerful Indonesian Communist party.

The Indonesian army destroyed the Communists in one of Asia's bloodiest civil wars.

Then its generals as tough, if gynaxic military administrators, seriously began the job of modernizing the country of thousands of islands and 108 million people.

International oil executives responded to sound management in an Indonesian uniform, just as other international investors had responded after 1964 to Brazilian generals as successful stimulators of industry in their huge country.

In spite of sharp criticism from her left-and-moving Asian neighbors, Indonesia's general's realized prosperity would reach one of the world's most populous nations only through efficient foreign development of their oil resources.

And Indonesia as a result, is currently enjoying record prosperity and investment.

Contradictory Policy Noted On Agricultural Sales

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

In the lengthy list of 1973's business trouble spots Canadian agriculture ranks high.

Over the last dozen years or so, our government has been carefully cultivating the rapeseed industry—and export markets in that and related commodities.

The campaign has been so successful that we have become the world's biggest exporter of rapeseed. The world demand for rapeseed, soybeans and other oilseeds has been growing rapidly, and pushing up the prices paid to producers.

For Canadian farmers, the new importance of the high-protein feeds has brought good market opportunities and satisfying rewards—especially at a time when wheat markets were becoming chancy.

Today, however, we seem to be doing our best to scare off the customers that only yesterday we were courting. The federal government seemingly decided to put restrictions on the exports of rapeseed, soybean and linseed and their by-products.

Granted, good reasons can be advanced for Ottawa's action. Canada's exportable supply of rapeseed for the crop year beginning July 1 is estimated at 45 million bushels, down sharply from the current year's exports of an estimated 52 million bushels.

And the demand for our high-protein feeds increased dramatically in mid-June after United States President Richard M. Nixon announced a massive crop sally, a system of exports quotas on soybeans and other products, to help curb the current upper-inflation.

Suddenly, the long-term plans for the development of bigger overseas markets for both U.S. and Canadian agricultural products were knocked askew.

For the sake of questionable short-term objectives (the export controls are, for political reasons, will probably mean higher grocery prices in the end), our overseas customers are being told that they can't have the commodities that they had been urging them to buy for us until quite recently.

Our highly-subsidized agricultural competitors in the European Common Market and other overseas markets are delighted, naturally. The less North American farmers, the more there can get for their own farm products.

Our current agricultural policy—if that is the word for it—must be antagonizing our harvest-to-foreign customers, strengthening the hand of the protectionists overseas, and undermining the long-term interests of our own farmers.

It would be far better for Canada to use that quiet, tactful diplomacy (on which we pride ourselves so much in international affairs) to persuade our overseas customers voluntarily to moderate their demands for our farm products for the time being.

A year or two free of bad weather in the major agricultural countries—which is not too much to hope for—would then bring back normal, healthy markets for our farm products.

Minister Is Busy

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — The toughest burden at this session was carried by Allan Grossman, treasurer and minister of inter-governmental affairs.

Among other matters Mr. White had to handle both the energy tax, which eventually was withdrawn, and the new planning act, which met more opposition than any other piece of legislation.

The treasurer has earned a rest. But he isn't going to get it. Rather, it is back to the grindstone for him.

Before the session wound up Premier Davis made it clear that as it was over he would start immediately to try to draw up a new housing policy for the government.

And this is a job which isn't to be envied.

Probably no problem of government has received more public attention in recent weeks than housing.

And certainly few problems are less in the way of easy solution.

First, of course, there is the matter of price.

The price of housing has risen so high, and is continuing to rise at such a rate, that it unquestionably represents a crisis.

Then there is the matter of supply, with the short supply of housing only a symptom of development lots being regarded as the most inflated factor in such prices.

And finally, there is the matter of financing.

With prices getting out of reach and mortgage money running short by the per cent, the purchase of a home is a problem which many can't afford.

Mr. White can be depended upon to come up with something. He is that type of man.

But whether he can come up with any effective solutions is another question.

Such as:

—That a crash program of servicing land would bring down the cost of lots.

—That financial institutions be required to provide mortgages at lower cost.

If he can combine any or all of these into an effective policy, and quickly, he will be a good man indeed.

And he would be giving a lead that probably would be welcomed by other governments, today, Ontario is far from alone in having high-cost housing as a problem.

Muggers Mugged

New York Times

On three occasions within a week, New Yorkers who were accused of violent crimes have taken an active part either in apprehending the suspects or in assisting the police in making the arrests.

In one instance, three local citizens actually gave chase and captured two suspected muggers near the scene of the violent attack. In another incident, passersby surrounded a man in a white sheet as he attempted to flee from the scene of a purse-snatching and formed a human barrier until police could arrive. And in a third episode, the neighbors of a nine-year-old girl who was alleged to have been the victim of an attempted rape overpowered the suspect and turned him over to the police.

Although the deeds of these citizens actions may, in fact, have been carried out with an excessive use of force, leaving the suspect uncriticized, the unanimity of approval in all three incidents points to a gratifying encouragement of what in the past has too often appeared to be the sole attitude of resignation and indifference or an actual tendency to condone criminal acts.

Ultimately, the war against violent street crime must, of course, be carried on and won by trained and authorized law-enforcement personnel. But the chances for victory over the muggers will be greatly augmented in an atmosphere of public encouragement for individuals and active support of the law.

Twelve Thousand Saints Buried In Monastery in Mesopotamia

NASTERY, Turkey (AP) — Twelve thousand saints are buried in this Christian monastery in the stony hills of northern Mesopotamia, but inside the dark crypts below the chapel one grave is empty. The man who will occupy it is still alive.

The six monks and eight nuns of the Syrian Orthodox Church who live in the monastery see their main task as the commemoration of the Syrian saints lie resting back to the 2nd century; whose bones and relics are kept here.

The saints they honor are not familiar to Christians in Turkey. They include the Forty Martyrs of Sebastia, Roman legionaires who were thrown into an ice cold lake in 320 AD because they would not give up Christianity; St. Daniel, who walked across the River Tigris;* saints who were walled in summer and iron clad in winter; and St. Joseph, who hid himself in an iron cage from his childhood on."

The monks of Deyre-el-Umur receive guests in an all to name in their services, regularly kissing and burning incense at their graves.

The empty grave is to receive the body of Mar Abram Bilgie, the 86-year-old bishop of the nearby town of Midyat, who has retired to the monastery for his last years. Lying on a mattress in the guest room of the monastery, which is open to all, the white-bearded bishop dispenses good advice and jokes with equal ease.

The monastery was founded in 396, and Abbot Isa Circek says it was built by angels. He points out the stone the angels left suspended in the air when the church was finished. It fell to the ground when an Egyptian princess disguised as a man smuggled herself into the church out of curiosity.

The monastery, which once held 1,500 monks, was sacked on several occasions by the Persians, the Turks and the Kurds. Even Timurlane brought his Mongol hordes this way, attacked by the monastery's wealth.

It was last broken into four years ago, when Kurdish bandits stole the gospel books and silver lamps. A local Kurdish chieftain was bribed to give some of them back.

The Monks say that on one occasion a lion defended the monastery from which the monks had fled at the approach of an enemy army. When the monks came back 14 years later the lion graciously left, and died in Syria, where its grave is still pointed out. In its cave the main reception room is decorated with a tapestry showing a colorful and friendly lion.

The last miracle reported by the monks was in 1958, when it is said a stream of light like a rainbow appeared at night linking the church and a saint's grave.

An even more impressive miracle is the survival of the monastery through 1,600 stormy years of war and persecution. Fifty years ago there was only one aged monk left. Now, as well as the 14 professed members of the community—the youngest is 18—there is a school in which 30 boys are taught Syriac, Turkish, Arabic and English.

There are about 35,000 Syrian Christians in Turkey, which has an estimated population of 37 million. Thirty villages in this area are Christian, as is much of the town of Midyat, 18 kilometers to the west. Other Syrian communities exist in the provincial capital of Mardin and in Istanbul, Ankara and big cities. After the 75,000-strong Armenian community, the Syrians, officially termed heretics by the Eastern Church since the 5th cent., are the most numerous Christians in Turkey, the Greek Orthodox and Roman Catholics.

The monastery lives partly off its own land, some of which is rented to tenant farmers, and partly from contributions from Syrians in Istanbul, Lebanon and the United States. It has a herd of 100 cows, donated after by three boys from the neighboring village of Yeddin (Seventhsphere), and produces its own wine, bread, cheese and milk.

The monks fast rigorously for 220 days in the year, and eat completely from meat. They hold three lengthy and solemn services a day, and spend the rest of their time studying, rewriting old manuscripts, and teaching.

Despite the small size of the Christian community in Eastern Turkey and its continuous drift to Istanbul, the monastery is likely to survive. The Christians are largely villagers, with the piety of simple people. They see themselves as a Christian island in a sea of Islam, and are especially devoted to their religion.

Kingdom of God References By Jesus Mistaken by Many

By REV. GORDON C. SMYTH

If a person reads the Gospels, even with one eye shut, he cannot help but be struck by the number of references to "the Kingdom of God". Unfortunately, whereas Jesus meant one thing, most of those in his audiences took from the phrase any other thought.

He was thinking of a kingdom standing for divine influence, spiritual power, and moral truth. His listeners, for the most part, had in mind the restoration of the glory of King David's kingdom.

Nowadays? We'll, Jehovah's Witnesses have their view and British Israelites a different view. Some devout people cling to the mistaken notion that the kingdom of God and the Church are synonymous. Christian activists interpret battles won for human rights as signs of the kingdom.

However, I suspect it may be correct to say that an increasing number of folk are growing cynical about the Lord's Prayer. "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven".

I believe that we can be confident because of the unique reading of life that our Lord put into his concept of the kingdom of God. Jesus Christ has given us the most powerful interpretation of life's meaning. The fatherhood of God, the friendship of the Spirit, the sovereignty of righteousness, the eternal now — there never was an interpretation of life for inquiring and restless souls to compare with that.

I also believe that we can be confident since, while the Gospel of the kingdom is for individuals, it is not individualistic. It is for all God's world. It is not a purely program. It is not an economic system. It is not a religious ideal. It is an ideal that must practically say, "The man to whom I owe most, the man to whom India owes most, is a man who never set his foot in India, and that man was a Jew."

When you and I are inclined to be discouraged, let us remember the wisdom of our Lord's parables. He set up unlikely or anything that held a germ of promise. He likened the seed to a grain of mustard seed that would eventually develop to the point where the birds of the air could find shelter in its branches. He drew attention to a small amount of leaven that a woman used in baking, but it produced many loaves of bread.

The kingdom of God looked like a tiny thing when our Lord chose 12 apostles and walked in Galilee. But He saw the kingdom gathering into itself all the kingdoms of this world, business and politics, education and sports — all our vital human interests. They would further the material for the kingdom of God. It would expand until the glory of God covered the earth as the waters cover the sea.

Evidence of the kingdom is woven into the knitting of many of our laws and institutions. Evidence is also woven into many of the habits of our personal lives. Find a home and, right away at its influence, and both you and society would soon fall apart!

But how will the kingdom of God fully come? Only partly, not by force unless one means by the force of Christ's quality of love. I mean the calibre of love that made Him the object of homage of the rich, the suffering, the outcast, and the sad. I mean the sort of love that took Him to Calvary. In that sign He will conquer yet!

Catholic Church Is Fighting Franco's Anti-labor Regime

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — From the Carrachenel prison near Madrid, Spain, Rev. Francisco Garcia writes: "I am a Catholic priest, faithful son of the Holy Church, a prisoner . . . for the 10th time. . . ."

So far, he has never been convicted of any offence.

A worker-priest, he is one of the so-called "Carabanchel 10," now facing trial for labor union activity, a cause that increasingly has brought Spain's Roman Catholic Church into conflict with a genuine ally, the regime of Francisco Franco.

"There exist situations of injustice which oppress and prevent free exercise of fundamental rights," Archbishop Jubany of Barcelona said recently in protesting the slaying of a workman by police in a clash with construction strikers.

"The workers suffer from systematic repression of all forms of free association."

It is the case of the labor leaders now facing trial, accused of "illegal association," that has sharpened the issue and drawn protests from labor leaders in most European countries.

"It clearly is the biggest fake in the current anti-labor struggle in Spain," says Eric W. Schmidt, a Manhattan lawyer and organizer of the newly formed United States Committee for Carabanchel 10.

"It's particularly amazing how the church has supported the movement for free trade unions and collective bargaining," he said in an interview. "But the entire hierarchy does so, but most of the bishops do. It's a movement that cuts across all political lines."

Spain, with a population of about 33 million, is overwhelmingly Catholic and has only about 26,000 Protestants. Protestants, once sharply restricted, now function more freely so long as they register with the government under a law enacted in 1966 in the wake of the Second Vatican Council.

Spain's Catholic bishops and priests two years ago asked for an end to the concordat between the church to the government, although Franco has continued it. The churchmen also apologized for the church's largely pro-Franco role in the Spanish Civil War that brought him to power.

Church statements—sometimes suppressed in Spain—have called for broadened human rights, including the right to free trade unions, assembly and political organization in a land where only one party, the Falange, is authorized.

"The middle class has become increasingly vociferous and open for reform," Schmidt said. "This includes the church, lawyers, doctors, university professors, students and many businessmen."

He said the "Carabanchel 10," representing labor leaders from throughout Spain, face up to 20-year terms. They have been in jail since June, 1972, to be tried by Madrid's Tribunal of Public Order.

They were reported to have been arrested at a meeting in a religious house in Ponzeio. There, an outcry of world public opinion can free them," Schmidt said, noting that Spanish trials usually are rushed through in two hours.

He said that despite Spanish law allowing only a government-linked labor syndicate, and banning strikes, there now has the highest strike rate of any Western European nation, with industrial wages set at $3 a day. He said a drive for free trade unions has swept the country, and about 6,000 people have been arrested in the last year, most eventually released.

"Priests, intellectuals, lawyers and doctors go to jail regularly. At least is good to jail, they never felt alone."

A special prison for priests has been designated in Soria.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS SWIDER

Swider — Brintnell

St. Teresa's Roman Catholic Church, Toronto, was the setting Saturday, June 16th, 1973, for the wedding of Lesley Anne Brintnell, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brintnell, Madoc, and Thomas Edward Swider, only son of Mrs. and Mrs. Frank Swider, Toronto.

Rev. Lewandouski officiated at the late afternoon double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a full length gown of white polyester crepe. The jewel neckline, lily-point sleeves and train complemented a large mock's hood made in the same material. She carried a large white orchid with smaller lilies and fern cascading down on ribbons.

Pat McNamee was matron-of-honor and bridesmaids were Barbara Sillard and Phyllis Swider. They were gowns of flocked dacron in pastel shades of green, yellow, blue and rose. They carried baskets of yellow and white carnations and daisies with fern.

Larry Redko was best man.

Steven Sillard and John Mc Namee were ushers. Ron Milorelli assisted the ushers and attended the bridesmaids. The best man and ushers all wore shirts and boutonnieres in the same pastel shades as the bridesmaids.

Following the wedding at the church, the orchid party and relatives were received at the home of the groom's parents, after the Polish custom whereupon the bride and groom were served bread and salt to welcome them into the family.

After a month's honeymoon abroad, the couple will reside in Toronto.

WITH AUSTRALIA IN MIND

"A man must carry knowledge with him if he would bring home knowledge." — Samuel Johnson.

January 4, 1973 :

"I am now in Mombassa, a middle sized port-city situated on the Indian Ocean," writes Geoffrey Uttley, enroute, with Stephen Lee, both from Belleville, via North Africa and India to Australia. "It is very hot and humid here, but it's great to be by the ocean again."

And Geoff, who has a degree in Zoology notes, "We went down to the seaside and checked on the marine life in the pools in the rocks — saw many cancer crabs, but best of all was the climbing fish, unique in this part of the world. They can scamper up the rocks by flipping their tails. When you try to grab one it flips about two feet in the air and disappears under the rocks.

"There are many Indian and Arabs in Mombasse. They own most of the stores and small businesses and it is easy to see why there is friction between the Africans and Indians.

"Last week we made a little journey into Tanzania to see Mount Kilimanjaro. We stopped at a place called Arusha. It is a paradise — beautiful flowers everywhere, lush green grass. The gardens in front of the houses are terrific. We travelled on a bus to the base of Mt. Kilimanjaro and walked along a dirt road in the rain fores, saw many banana and coffee plantations. The air is saturated with fragrances from the flowering trees and there are many mountain streams. Mount Kilimanjaro is almost always covered with clouds that hover around its peak. In order to see it you have to get up at daybreak. It has a very impressive snow cap.

"Near Arusha here are many Massai. The Massai think of themselves as God's chosen people. Both the men and the women cut out the cartilage in the bottom of the ear, leaving the ear lobe intact. then they attach weighted jewellery in the earlobe. In due time the lobe stretches under the weight. The Massai are fearless and cause much trouble because they like to steal other people's cattle".

BOMBAY January 20, 1973.

"Arrived safely in India two days ago, the boat trip across the Indian Ocean took 10 days. The passage was quite uneventful. Saw thousands of flying fish. There was one rough spell that flattened a lot of women and children. Made a brief stop at The Seychelles, a group of 90 islands, formerly a British colony. The islands are quite mountainous and are covered with tropical vegetation. Towards the end of the journey some of the ballast must have shifted because the boat was tilted at a bad angle. You couldn't put your knife on the butter plate or it would slide off on the floor.

"Bombay is a huge city — 5 million — typical metropolis, lots of large buildings. Living conditions are extremely low here. Tomorrow we will be going to New Delhi — 900 miles. Costs only $3."

Randle—Hicks

Bridge St. United Church was the scene of the recent wedding of Mary Louis Hicks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hicks, Belleville and David John Randle, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Randle, Belleville.

Rev. George Ward and Dr. H. M. Davis performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long white peau de broche gown with an elbow length brevier veil gathered to a pearl decorated ring headpiece. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and baby's breath.

Bridesmaids, Ruth Randle, Mary Lucas, Wendy Anderson and Sharon Sills were identical dresses as the maid of honor except in mauve. Each carried yellow and mauve mum nosegay.

Following a reception held at Four Seasons Hotel, the couple left for their wedding trip to Upper Canada Village.

Mr. and Mrs. Randle will reside at 184 College St. W., Belleville.

Headgear For Fall

MONTREAL (CP) — Hats are definitely back, skirts are getting pants narrower and the "little-girl" look has given way to tailored styling.

Morty Garelick, designing for his own label, Par Morty, has turned to green for fall. His collection featured forest green coats, pants suits and jackets in a distinctive tailored look.

A group of his "masculine-style" pant suits, which cropped up in his collection last year, returned in a new 1973-74 version which included swing coats teamed with narrower pants in green tweed topped by raccoon trims, hats and shoulder bags.

Marielle Fleury, designing for Rainmaster, has switched from the bold appliques which highlighted her collection last year to embroidery and hand-painted designs on "supersuede."

Her collection included embroidered parkas, wrap coats and dramatic capes in bold reds and blues. A group in "supersuede" featured hand-painted floral designs on a pant suit, a duffle coat and a blouson jacket.

Two young designers, Allan Goldin and Toby Klein who design for The Market, showed a bright collection featuring a return to the 1940s look with padded shoulders in jackets. These designers also provided the only vestiges of the "little-girl" look with two brushed challis gowns in a floral print.

For those who don't want the total hat look, there is the wide, co-ordinated headband, shown with many of the designs.

John Warden is promoting a muffled look in footwear with deep cuffed knit caps teamed with matching fringed scarves. The hats and scarves showed up in his collections for both men and women.

VACATION TIPS

—Keep cold foods refrigerated and hot foods hot. Bacteria that cause diarrhea (often a traveller's misery) multiply much faster in lukewarm foods.

Swimming is great exercise and good for cooling off. But those people with sinus or ear problems should be careful. Also, swimmers should check water to be sure it is free from pollution.

MR. AND MRS. DONALD PATERSON

Swimming Classes in Madoc

Swimming instructions began in Madoc recently, and over 80 children registered.

Classes of Tadpoles, Pre-Beginners, Beginners and Juniors, were appointed according to their swimming abilities.

Ellen Gollick and Janet Maloney, both of Marmora, are instructors.

Miss Gollick was selected to compete in Oshawa in the Ontario Summer Games this month, where she placed fifth in the discus and third in the Women's Javelin, to win a bronze medal. She plans on becoming a physical education teacher.

Paterson — Broatch

Elizabeth Gayle Broatch was united in marriage to Donald John Paterson in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Trenton in June.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Broatch, Trenton, and the groom is the son of Mrs. and Mrs. John M. Paterson, Scarborough.

Rev. Douglas Wilson officiated at the four o'clock ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of silk organza over taffeta, with a scalloped neckline, bodice and back bejewned with Guipure lace. The full skirt featured a deep flounce to correspond with the detached train, caught with a large matching bow in the back. The long full sleeves ended with a deep cuff. Her shoulder length tiered illusion veil was caught with a lace headpiece. She carried a bouquet of pink roses, pink and white carnations and stephanotis.

The bridesmaids, Margaret Fieldhouse, cousin of the groom, and Nancy Jean Broatch, cousin of the bride, and the matron of honor Mary Arthur were dressed in respective shades of mauve, turquoise and pink floor length gowns with complementing accessories.

The groom was attended by Donald Reid, Mississauga, the best man, while the guests were ushered by Daniel Field-house and Robert Broatch.

The reception was held at Batawa Recreation Centre.

Special guest was the groom's 98 year old grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Paterson. Other out-of-town guests were present from Belleville, Baltimore, Brockville, Fenelon Falls, Frankford, Guelph, Kingston, Kingsville, Newmarket, Toronto and Whitby.

Their future residence will be in Toronto.

KATHRYN JANE MORTON

daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Morton, Stirling, Ontario, graduated from the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing, Belleville on June 16, 1973. Kathy is a graduate of Centennial Secondary School, Belleville.

VACATION TIPS

— Boaters should study a safety booklet. Usually practices include overloading a boat, diving from a moving boat, and going too close to water skiers, fishermen and other boats. If a boat turns over, stay with it. You could a long swim in rough or cold water and chances are favorable for rescue.

He Tosses His Salad to Music

Harold Varty of Tweed wants to share his "musical tossed salad." And it's the "tossing" that's most important, according to this 69-year old retired farmer.

His unique salad style developed five years ago when he found out how much people enjoyed watching others toss the kitchen. So he prepared this salad for show and taste.

"It's delicious, my guests say. And some even lick the spoon."

Grandfather of 11 and father of five, Mr. Varty has not only found time to entertain family in his kitchen but has fulfilled positions on Hinsa Conservation Authority, Tweed Seniors Citizens, and Tweed Horticultural Society.

Here's Harold Varty's tossed "musical salad," that he says, can be called:

Henry Mancini Salad

The Musical Salad

The Col. Bogey Salad

Use either a large head of lettuce or a goodly quantity of the leaf variety.

Wash in really cold water — then dry it well with a towel.

In cutting up the lettuce use the kitchen or any scissors freely but do not use the shredder.

Add a few drops of vinegar taken from a bottle of sweet mixed pickles.

Also add some chopped fresh green onion and some really nice ripe tomato if you wish.

Now shred homemade dressing over the top. Next add two tbisp. from a can of cream of celery soup.

Now, we are ready to "Toss" and at this point, turn on very lively music from your radio or record player.

Start the body in motion with the music, making sure to get the arms in harmony so that the rhythm of the music will hopefully be transmitted into your salad which you are now "Tossing".

When completely tossed, place the bowl into the frozen section of your refrigerator until ready to serve.

Also, tossing to music is very entertaining to all ages from children up to 90.

The Col. Bogey Marsh is very effective as it's always been.

However the real secret of this lovely salad is the homemade salad dressing to which the credit must rightly go to Mrs. Varty, my wife.

P.S. There have been threats of tossing the tosser out of the kitchen.

SALAD DRESSING

¼ cup vinegar
1 th condensed milk
1 tsp mustard dry
2 eggs
3 tblsp. mayonaise beat until thoroughly mixed

Ann Landers
Mother-in-law Indifferent

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are of different religious faiths. It does not bother us but it bothers his family a great deal. They have never accepted me even though for five years I have done everything humanly possible to be friendly. The only saving grace is that they live 500 miles from here and we don't see them very often.

The problem is the telephone calls. When Bob's mother places a call (twice a week) she makes it a person - to - person, which is more costly, but she wants to be sure she talks to him and not to me. We have no children and no help-only Bob and I and the dog. (Bosco is very smart, but I have never seen him answer the telephone.)

At the close of every call, Bob says, "Just a minute, Mother, Bernice wants to talk to you." I do not want to talk to her and I've asked him not to do this to me, but he says, "It's bad manners not to put you on." Please, Ann, straighten him out in your inimitable style.—Personal Hell, Nova Scotia

Dear Person: When your mother-in-law's call comes through, take Bosco for a walk. Tell your husband in advance that you are going to do it so he will not think you are trying to run out on him.

Dear Ann Landers: I'll come right to the point; I'm in trouble because I'm a liar. I met this fellow when I was in bowling league. He is out of sight. I told him I was 17 and a junior. The truth is I am 15 and will be a freshman in the fall. He says he wants to see me again and I am like a psychotic just thinking about it.

Eventually he will find out I lied to him. Should I tell him I was sick in the hospital in bed for two years? Or would it sound better if I said my grandmother took me on a trip around the world and I missed a lot of school? I will straighten out the age bit later. Right now I want to explain why I'm not where a 17-year-old should be in school. Help me, Ann. You are awfully good at this thing up.—Little Liar In Big Trouble

Dear Liar: The trouble with a lie is you have to tell 10 more to cover it up. My advice is come clean and let the chips fall where they may. (Oh, what a tangled web we weave when first we practice to deceive.)

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed an interesting letter about compulsive talkers. You described them very well- but you didn't say what to do about them. I am surrounded by three such characters—my wife and her two sisters. Can you help me?

I am known to be a good listener, but even a good listener likes to say a few things now and then. It is virtually impossible to get a word out when my wife and her two sisters are in the same room. No one ever finishes a sentence. They interrupt each other and talk until the breath gives out, and then another one cuts in and takes it from there. When I try to say something all of them talk right over me. Is there some approach to this problem that I have overlooked? You seem to have an answer for everyone, Ann. How about me?—Dumb Ed

Dear Ed: Why bother. That trio of magpies isn't interested in conversation. All they want to do is jabber. When they get together why don't you take the newspaper and go read some place? It will save wear and tear on your nervous system, and you might even learn something.

Japanese Officials Embarassed, Prostitution A Growing Trend

TOKYO (Reuter) — More Japanese women are becoming part- or full-time prostitutes for the sexual enjoyment rather than the mere profit-motive, says an official report.

This fact is proving embarrassing to authorities trying to crack down on the vice who have previously attributed it to poverty in most cases.

The trend has been reported by the Tokyo metropolitan government in a 552-page report reviewing the first half of the 15 - year old prostitution law.

It found that poverty now is blamed by only 12 per cent of interviewed as against 53 per cent a decade ago.

Sexual pleasure as a motive has risen to 21 from seven per cent in the same period.

In another report by social workers dealing with arrested prostitutes 35 per cent of 500 interviewed said they had entered the profession out of dissatisfaction with their sex lives.

Many of these are housewives no longer content to wait at home for husbands who may be away for up to 16 hours a day on business and pleasure trips.

Police have detected a growing trend of housewife prostitution in satellite towns on the western edge of Tokyo, which provided little for a woman after her husband has left at the crack of dawn for perhaps a 90-minute train journey to his city job.

Police women have told police their purpose in part-time vice was to make extra household money and therefore be home or provide for the education of their children.

One case was recently reported in Kobe of a prostitute ring involving 30 housewives and three schoolgirls.

Most of these women were expensive clothes, posing as members of upper-class families in almost all their customers were company presidents or other high-ranking officials.

They were reported to have earned from ¥1,000 to ¥3,000 (serving $37 to $120 at a time.

The justice ministry reported a total of 3,000 people were sent to the public prosecutor in 1971 for violation of the anti-prostitution law—a 12.2-percent drop from the previous year.

In Tokyo, police arrested 1,665 people in 1971.

Although this was only a fifth of the total of 10 years earlier, officials said this couldn't be taken as an indication that prostitution was declining.

"It's just getting more difficult to distinguish between prostitutes and other women these days," explained one detective.

Licensed prostitution existed in Japan from 1617 until 1958 when the anti-prostitution law banned all brothels.

Immediately after Japan's surrender in 1945, the government decided to gather prostitutes for occupation forces in the hope of "saving" other Japanese women.

An authorized procurer body, the "International Friendship Association," was set up, but quickly disbanded when its women helped spread venereal disease.

Following the introduction of the anti - prostitution law, many of the brothel-keepers and their girls branched out into Turkish baths.

Masseuses working at Turkish baths in Tokyo now total more than 4,000.

Police say it is difficult to check whether prostitution is being carried on as the massages are usually performed in cubicles housing one client.

Authorities in Tokyo and elsewhere are trying to crack down on proliferating models easily accessible to call girls and dance halls.

One fact brought out in recent reports is the growing incidence of venereal disease. Of the prostitutes arrested throughout the country in 1972, 69.7 per cent were suffering from some form of the disease—the highest rate in five years.

The Tokyo Metropolitan report said the situation was much worse on the island of Okinawa, returned to Japan in May, 1972, after more than 25 years of American military occupation.

There are an estimated 18,000 prostitutes on the island out of a total population of less than one million. The anti-prostitution law applied since reversion 18 months ago has so far had little noticeable affect.

It reported a woman of about 76 was still carrying on business.

Successful Living
Stress Isn't Bad

Stress isn't always bad. There is a good kind. Says Barbara Ward:

"The stress I've been talking about is quite different from the stress that comes unsought and agreeably from doing tasks with your fellow man with a purpose in mind, and pulling yourself up to the utmost in order to get on with it.

"Stress can be very creative, but creativeness depends upon the feeling of direction or companionship or partnership. A jokier group than those pulling out fire bombs on the roofs of London, during the last war, you couldn't imagine or a stressful situation enhanced by ability, partnership and a sense of knowing what to do."

Barbara Ward (Lady Jackson) is a world person, an economist and author, who because of her concern about the state of mankind, has become a kind of collective conscience for all of us. I was privileged to be among those who heard her at a recent meeting of the McGill Society in Ontario. I have already given you some ideas about what Hans Selye had to say about stress that same day. Barbara Ward's over-all look at the stressful times in which our whole world lives was an eye-opener.

She pointed out that we are born feeling inferior. Our bad stresses are related to our unclear purpose in life combined with a sense of the shortness of our lives.

Yet it is a tremendous time in which to live. Think about the scientific knowledge we have with regard to the basic structure of matter from the very large to the micro small! Those who study the sky now have evidence reaching 12 billion light years out; the thrust of invention is intoxicating.

But it is a period of strain. Part of us love the insecurity of it all, some of us see it as far more than we can cope with.

Somehow we are not quite sure that science is an instrument for man's benefit; we are concerned about our economy, and whether or not to avoid the wastes which are so evident. All of this is at the very behind pockets of poverty throughout the world.

Barbara Ward's words made me feel once more the compelling pull that material things have over us; made me reflect once more that material comforts do not bring happiness. We need a new set of values and morals with his dinner guests watching him toss to music in his kitchen.

Anglican Controversy Ends

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — The Mothers' Union, world-wide Anglican women's movement, has voted to admit divorced women to membership, ending a four-year controversy which caused the Canadian branch to be separated from the parent body.

The union's central council, composed of 200 delegates representing 429,000 members—308,000 of them in Britain—decided Wednesday to admit divorcees by a majority of 224 votes to seven at its annual meeting in Egham, Surrey.

Membership now will be open to all women who are baptized and declare support for the objects of the 91-year-old society.

This also includes unmarried mothers.

The vote, which follows a year of discussion on a report by the Bishop of Willesden's commission recommending admittance of divorced mothers, automatically means the Canadian branch now is "back in the fold," a union spokesman said.

The Mothers' Union in Canada was put at loggerheads with the Westminster-based parent body when the Anglican church in Canada decided to permit divorced persons to remarry in church.

Although Anglican churches throughout the world are independent of the Church of England, the Mothers' Union here has followed Canterbury's actions, which still are against the principle of remarrying divorcees in church.

A change of name may, in fact, have to be contemplated by the whole organization after considerable tentativeness approved Wednesday by a show of hands (it formally agreed at a future meeting—to admit men to membership.

Woman Lawyer with Ready Ear
Becomes Inmates 'Greatest Friend'

OTTAWA (CP) — There may be a danger that Canadian prisoners will make complaints in the future, just for a chance to chat with their new ombudsman.

Inger Hansen, 44, is a charming woman with a sharp smile and a ready ear.

Her charm and quiet manner hide the fact that the new correctional investigator—described as a "correctional ombudsman" in the words of one spokesman in the solicitor-general's department, one of the best criminal lawyers in British Columbia.

Solicitor-General Warren Allmand announced the appointment of Miss Hansen, an employee of the justice department here, on Friday in response to criticism of correctional approaches.

Miss Hansen will visit federal prisons, hearing grievances from prisoners, their families or friends and seek to rectify things.

In an interview she said she regards the interesting work as a "challenge to do something or other."

Miss Hansen is a native of Denmark who came to Canada at the age of 21 out of curiosity and who stayed to become an outstanding criminal lawyer. She said she has dealt with all types of cases, from non-capital murder to rape to traffic offences.

She received her law degree at the University of British Columbia and came to Ottawa in 1960, where she has been doing research into juvenile delinquency.

The solicitor-general's official said that during her eight years in criminal practice in Vancouver she often was sought out by prisoners who had heard of her through the grapevine.

"She was one of the inmates' greatest friends," he said.

Miss Hansen says she cannot say for certain whether any prisoners will want to see her.

"They may ignore me," she said.

She was emphasizing the pioneering aspect of her one-year trial run at seeking to overcome institutional troubles through prevention.

Under terms of reference she can investigate only matters that are under the jurisdiction of the solicitor-general's department.

She will not be able to intervene in cases concerning provincial laws less than two years— or with applications for parole or with sentencing.

She may not investigate a case of a prisoner who has not taken the available means of grievance, such as through inmates' committees or through available legal processes. And she may not deal with a complaint of a circumstance that is more than a year old.

She will report directly to the solicitor-general, and Mr. Allmand said her annual report will be tabled in the Commons.

Miss Hansen expressed optimism about her job.

"I hope to defuse some of the tension," she said, adding there is always tension in a closed environment such as a prison.

"You've been in hospital. You know all about the tension. I think you have as you live there and can't leave."

If there are charges of such things as brutality by guards, she might decide to call formal hearings in which both guards and prisoners could be represented by counsel.

If there is a riot or other serious trouble in a prison she expects to be replaced by a full-scale investigatory commission.

U. S. Senate Kills Canada Pipeline

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senators championing a pipeline through Canada to carry Alaskan oil to United States refineries were virtually crushed Friday by senators favoring a pipeline-tanker route down the West Coast not touching Canadian soil.

Proponents of the Alaska route, led by Senator Henry Jackson (Dem. Wash.), fought off 61 to 29 an amendment favoring a trans-Canada line and sponsored by Senator Walter Mondale (Dem. Minn.).

Voting mainly on east-west regional allegiances which cut across party lines, they followed up with a 58-to-33 rejection for a compromise proposal by Senator Thomas Eagleton (Dem. Mo.). The Eagleton amendment also called for study of a Canadian alternative. The action clears the way for swift passage of the Senate's main pipeline bill, written by Jackson, which comes up for vote Tuesday.

In essence, the Jackson bill removes right-of-way restrictions which have stalled the 800-mile, $3.5-billion pipeline project. A weakness of the bill may be that it does not dispose of environmental questions which could stall construction still further when these questions are tested in court.

The bill does, however, call for negotiations to be carried on with Canada toward possible construction of a trans-Canada line should a second pipeline become necessary.

Tourist Councils To Be Reduced

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Industry and Tourism minister Claude Bennett said Friday he is going to reduce the number of regional tourists councils in Ontario by one-third.

Mr. Bennett said the existing 39 councils aren't operating effectively. There is too much duplication of programs and tourist advertising by the existing councils, he added.

Mr. Bennett said he expects to make the reduction early next year. He also said the United States campaign to have tourists stay in the U.S. because of the gasoline shortage has resulted in a drop in tourist business in Ontario so far this year.

However, Mr. Bennett said the province is attempting to counter the drop-off with a heavy advertising campaign along the Ontario-U.S. border. But he admitted that, to date, it has only had limited success.

Park Policy News Tuesday

TORONTO (CP) — Leo Bernier, Ontario minister of natural resources, announced Friday he has scheduled a news conference for Tuesday to release the province's long-awaited policy on the future of Algonquin Park.

The policy is expected to deal with the controversial question of logging in the park. The Algonquin Wildlands League has already called a public rally at Huntsville on July 27 to protest against what it calls the erosion of the park's wilderness character and government inaction.

Commons Unanimous On Bill to Cut Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons consummated the rare, but appreciated, act of cutting taxes Friday, with passage of a bill removing federal sales and excise taxes on a wide range of goods.

The bill, announced in Finance Minister John Turner's Feb. 19 budget, removes the 12 per-cent federal sales tax on children's clothing and footwear, cosmetics and confectionery products, including soft drinks and candy bars.

The measure received support from all three opposition parties and was sent to the Senate.

The Commons then turned to a second bill announced in the budget, reducing tariffs on a list of imported items that include foodstuffs and manufactured goods.

Mr. Turner told the House the government is prepared to reimpose some of the tariffs if the reductions cause "genuine hardship" for Canadian producers.

He said the bills, both retroactive to Feb. 19, are designed to stimulate economic growth and help fight increased living costs, especially the rising price of food.

About one-third of the proposed tariff reductions affect food items. The reduction would be about 15% per cent on imports valued last year at $1.4 billion.

Mr. Turner said the sales-tax bill has a total value of about $100 million annually but he could not guarantee that manufacturers will pass on their 12 per-cent tax saving to consumers.

Pressed by New Democratic Party members to explain how the effect of the bill will be monitored, Mr. Turner said a unit in the consumer and corporate affairs department will watch prices on affected goods.

He admitted he has little more than normal suasion to compel manufacturers to pass on tax benefits. But he was confident public scrutiny of prices would have "a salutary effect on manufacturers' prices."

The minister, described by Lowne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkton-Melville) as "the candy man," said he has been assured by candy and soft-drink producers that they will comply with the aims of the bill.

The measure has been in effect since February and he said the price of soft drinks across the country has increased at only half the rate of prices in the food industry in general.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) asked why the minister did not also remove the 11-per-cent sales tax on building supplies as an incentive to house construction.

Mr. Turner said a cut in personal income taxes, recently passed by the government, is a better way of putting more disposable income in the hands of people. Removing the building materials tax would discriminate against people not building homes.

The sales-tax measure wipes out federal sales tax on all food and drink products except beverage alcohol. It also applies to clocks and watches costing up to $30 and to incinerator equipment bought by municipalities.

Mr. Turner said a review of the proposed tariff reductions will be made before they expire next February.

The current tariff, established in 1959, was out of date.

Ontario Doctors Hit Record

TORONTO (CP) — A record 538 doctors received $10,000 or more in payments from the Ontario Hospital Insurance Plan during November, 1972, statistics released Friday by Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter.

Costs for the month were the highest recorded and the number of physicians who were paid $10,000 or more for a one-month period was also a record.

The November total cost, $47.78 million went beyond the $40 million-$45 million range in which Dr. Potter has predicted costs would stabilize. The April-November average last year rose to $42.5 million.

In October last year, 481 physicians were in the $10,000-payment bracket.

North Desolate But Beautiful

From the air it looks like giant tidal flats when the tide is out: brown, rippled and broken by landlocked pockets of water.

On the ground, first impressions are ones of utter desolation. Brown shale or dirt and underfoot, merge into brown steep-rolling hills and knolls, crystal-clear and clean green icy ponds and lakes. Small pockets of long-lasting snow are snared in sheltered hollows.

It is as though the color has been leached by the cold of centuries from the barren landscape.

Nearby small patches of vegetation appear — moss only a few inches across. The colors, so lost from the landscape are distilled and intensified in incandescent little snow flowers and lichens.

Brilliant clean yellow, whites, purples and reds pop from between loose brown pebbles in neon contrast to the monochrome backdrop. It is these small plants that feed browsing herds of lumbering musk-ox, the nomadic caribou and flighty white arctic hares.

The air is cool, leaping to intense chill with a gust of wind. When the wind blows in off the pack ice the cold is numbing.

This is the sort of inhospitable but momentarily beautiful terrain the 75 men of the militia company on Exercise New Viking spent two weeks covering — up to 43 miles a day of it.

They spent their first week near the arctic community of Resolute on familiarization training.

Resolute itself is a collection of square-cornered huts and buildings — low, squat, simple. Sprouting up around the tiny community, which boasts a hotel and a 75 cent movie house, are the domes, aerials, antennas, masts and paraphernalia that accompany meteorological and air environmental study and research — and communications with the world outside. An above-the-ground pipeline leads from the storage tanks a mile away into the village and the Department of Transport area where neat rows of heavy earthmovers and scarifiers sit and wait.

Eskimos, the young people dressed in blue jeans and fringed jackets, drive the tundra gravelled road in snappy little cars to the movies, the airport office or the hotel which faces the RCMP office across the street.

The Resolute Bay Eskimo Village is four miles away, at the end of the "main road". Rugged huskies loiter around the same square-cornered huts and forage the beach for the remains of butchered seal carcasses.

Discarded 45-gallon drums, the water through every shade of green to the deepest of royal blue.

The Eskimos' European style boats are driven up on the shale. An outboard motor wrapped in canvas lies beside one. A clump of cold yellow flowers, perhaps six inches across, splashes color next to outboard. Above the beach there is a little graveyard with simple white wooden crosses. The Eskimos were burying one of their elders there on Wednesday night.

After their week in the Resolute area, the militiamen were flown another 500 miles north, beyond the range of the Eskimo, to Mould Bay. Another collection of square-cornered huts this time is seated on a brown shale rise that slopes away on each side, to a bay littered with pack ice. The ice never fully departs, and ships never come in.

Again, the piles of oil drums.

The militiamen left Mould Bay behind them in their long-ranging forays into rugged geography of Prince Patrick Island. For seven days they lived in it, finding remains of caribou and plentiful fossils from the days before the polar ice, before the last Ice Age. You get the feeling none of it has changed much since the ice's slow withdrawal — the animal life is transient and poised on the brink of survival, summer to summer.

But the wildlife is there, some of it plentiful. Hasty Pees reported seeing caribou, arctic owl, arctic wolvs, seals lemmings, lgraudt geese, Canada geese, ptarmigan with chicks, ducks and other water-birds, arctic hare and fox.

Navigation North of North

At Mould Bay, Prince Patrick Island, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment members of Sertal 60, Exercise New Viking, sight up on the route of their patrol over the Arctic tundra. The exercise took place north of the north magnetic pole, making compasses wander erractically and difficult to use. The skills of Arctic navigation using compass, map reading, dead reckoning and astro compass were an important part of the two weeks' Arctic training for a company of militiamen from 16 different regiments across eastern Canada. Militia Ends Arctic Exercise

By MIKE PATERSON
Staff Reporter

Glad to leave but glad they had been, 75 militiamen from 16 different units across eastern Canada lifted off yesterday from Mould Bay on Prince Patrick Island deep in the arctic circle on a 10½-hour flight to Trenton.

The militia company had completed a two - week involvement in Exercise New Viking that maintains a year-round military presence in Canada's far north.

For the militia, Exercise New Viking was a first. In the past, the handful of militiamen that have participated have always been attached as individuals to regular force units. Sertal 60, the 60th time the two-week workout has been held, consisted entirely of militiamen, company under the command of Maj. Carl Hubel. A Company Commander of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment based at the Belleville Armory.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, as well as providing the command organization had their own platoon in Serial 60. A total of 28 Hasty Pees, 19 from A Company, Belleville and 19 from B Company Peterborough, took part in the Arctic exercise.

Another two platoons completed the company. One was a French - speaking platoon drawn from Quebec militia units, the other an English-speaking platoon drawn from militia regiments across eastern Canada, from Toronto to Prince Edward Island.

A week's familiarization training at Resolute Bay on Cornwallis Island set the tone of the exercise, breaking men and equipment in to the unique environment of the arctic. That training was carried out under Major Bud MacEarchon, RCR, and four regular force non-commissioned officers.

Maj. MacEarchon is Commanding Officer of Exercise New Viking. He and his staff will remain at Resolute Bay until late August when they will move back to Churchill for the winter phase of the continuous sexercise.

Serial 60's destination was another 500 miles beyond Resolute. After the familiarization training they were taken north to Mould Bay for a seven - day long-range patrol.

The first day there a volunteer platoon under Warrant Officer Dave Nicols of Belleville set a distance record over the difficult shale slopes and muddy valleys. They covered 43 miles with full kit in the hard day's march.

Another first was scored by the introduction of tactical training to the New Viking program.

Company attacks and defences were carried out, enemy captured and live rounds fired at defensive positions to test their effectiveness and demonstrate the cover they offered.

A 10-foot-high cairn, 12-feet across the base, was built to mark the naming of Militia Lake by Serial 60. As well as naming Militia Lake, the company also gave it Viking Lake and Baie De La Roche their names.

"This Serial has been bery successful, and because of the success of this exercise, I'm going to recommend that the militia continue their involvement in New Viking," said Maj. MacEarchon.

"All of the training, terrain and problems this company was exposed to are exactly the same as the regular force troops face in this exercise," he said. "The soldiers involved in Serial 60 certainly lived up to the reputations established by their units.

"I found the individual soldiers to be energetic and keen to do well on the exercise — and I think it was a marvellous experience for all of them," said Maj. MacEarchon. "They worked as a completely independent group and achieved the same aims as a regular unit." He added it had been a pleasure for him and his staff to work with the militia.

Maj. Hubel, commanding the company, agreed the men had coped well with the problems posed by weather, terrain, fatigue and aching muscles.

"There was a lot of physical hardship — it was cold and wet," said Maj. Hubel. "The most important thing they learned was perseverance.

The preparation of rations was not too easy but everyone was fed. The men learned how to change their clothes in the open and stay warm. They learned navigation by compass, map readings and dead reckoning and used the astro compass," he said. "We weren't without problems, but the company performed very well."

It was a weary group that boarded the stocky Hercules for the trip home that included a refuelling stop at Resolute Bay.

"I can't wait to get home for a bath and some decent food," said one militiaman. Another said he was going to order a pizza when he stepped off the plane at Trenton Airbase. Others said they had missed small pleasures like a glass of fresh milk, the sight of trees and even darkness. (For the duration of the exercise it was daylight, 24 hours a day.)

A cheer went up as the Canadian Armed Forces Hercules lifted off. One soldier summed up the feelings of the men with the comment, "I wouldn't have missed it, but I'm glad to be leaving."

Their performance and Maj. MacEarchon's satisfaction with it will mean the chances are good other militiamen will have the chance to participate in Exercise New Viking as a company of their own. And it is possible that members of Serial 60 will be with them for another spell in the arduous environment of Canada's far north.

Gotcha!

Three Hasty Pees "subdue a prisoner" on Prince Patrick Island near Mould Bay where they were working out in the second week of Serial 60 of Operation New Viking. This kind of tactical training was something new for the continuous exercise which maintains a military presence in Canada's far north. The militia company was the first Serial to undertake tactical training in the field on Operation New Viking, staging a company attack and preparing then testing defensive positions. The first time militia had taken part in the exercise as a separate unit, the militia company scored an official success. The 75 men taking part returned to Canadian Forces Base Trentan late on Thursday night after a gruelling two weekes deep within the Arctic Circle.

Principals Protest Delay in Hiring

BLOOMFIELD — A hiring moratorium has concerned members of the Prince Edward principals' association which has communicated its concern to the county board of education.

In a letter to the board, association secretary Tom O'Halloran writes "The' principals of your county wish to express great concern about the long deferment with respect to filling of staff vacancies in the various schools. We feel that such a delay reduces the choice that principals have in making staff selection."

The letter adds, "Extended delays such as the one experienced this year make this selection much more difficult, and possibly could lower the quality of education."

The principals' association states that it is unaware of the reason for the board's delay in filling teachers.

McNeil said financial considerations were the reason for the delay and added that nine appointments were approved in June. Two vacancies remain.

The principals' association is to be advised of the reason for the delayed hiring policy.

Faithful Friend's Farewell

For these three members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment who took part in the two-week Exercise New Viking, the trip to the far north meant new pets as well as hard work. Part St. Bernard, predominantly Husky, the four-week-old pups were given to (from left) Warrant Officer Dave Nicols, Corporal Carl Ward and Corporal Tom Leonard all of A Company, Belleville, by a resident of Mould Bay, Prince Patrick Island. The little puppies rode happily on the 10½-hour Hercules flight back to Canadian Forces Base Trenton. They now face a warmer life in the Belleville area.

Arctic Pups New Pets

This friendly husky, Chimo, found friends among the militia company that took part as Serial 60 in Exercise New Viking. Owned by a resident of Mould Bay, Prince Patrick Island, deep in the Arctic Circle, Chimo kept pace with militiamen's seven-day long-range patrol over Arctic shale, mud and snow. Soldiers shared small quantities of rations with him that Chimo topped off with lemmings and other small game. Above, sporting a Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment beret, he watches as the militiamen load the Canadian Armed Forces Hercules for the journey home. Three pups fathered by him, also made the trip as adopted pets of Hasty Pee members.

Weiskopf, Miller Swinging Clubs Head-to-Head in Open

TROON, Scotland (AP) — Tom Weiskopf and Johnny Miller may write themselves into the record books today in their head-to-head clash for the 102nd British Open golf championship.

The two golfing stars were locked in what seemed like a two-man battle for the coveted trophy over troon's 7,064-yard layout along Scotland's wind west coast.

Weiskopf, from Columbus, Ohio, who has won three United States PGA events recently, and Miller, the U.S. Open champion, were only one shot apart as they went into the final round.

Weiskopf was at 206—10 under par. Miller was nudging him with a 54-hole total of 207.

As they parted each other on the final day, the winner may need a record score to hold off the runner-up.

Arnold Palmer, the veteran from Latrobe, Pa., set the British Open record the last time the championship was played in Troon, in 1962, with a 276—11 under par.

Two other Americans were 60 to beat the record. He and Miller have teamed up the first two days in the course to between stiff winds and downpours and NOBODY's got even par.

Brian Barnes and Neil Coles of Britain each had a 213 and Graham Anderson, another U.S. tourist, was at 214.

Jack Nicklaus fell out of contention with a 215 while Palmer had a 218. Defending champion Lee Trevino's bid to win the open for the third consecutive time wavered as he ballooned to a 223 after taking three bogeys in a string of four holes on the back nine.

Weiskopf went 68-67—71, Miller did 70-68—69.

Fellow American Bert Yancey appeared the only threat within reach of the two leaders among th 70 golfers who survived the cut for the last round. He was another four shots off the pace at 211.

"This is the big one," said Weiskopf. "But I won't be worrying about the other guy. I'll just play the course."

Miller, who picked off pars and birdies with calm assurance as he gradually wore down Weiskopf's lead from the first day, told reporters: "This is the best I've ever been going into a final round.

"It would be cream on the top of the cake to win this one after the U.S. Open."

Loneliness at Third

NANAIMO, B.C. — A guy can get lonely on third. Six-year-old Robert Walker of the Department Bay, B.C., Peanuts Baseball League whiles away the idle hours waiting for somebody — anybody — to reach third base. The ace infielder kept himself awake by sticking his tongue out at the first baseman. The first baseman didn't notice. Then he scratched his chin — perhaps a sign to the pitcher that the bant was on? The pitcher didn't notice. Then he psyched out the batter into Nanaimo team by grunting at the enemy dugout. But they were all too busy drinking soda pop to notice. Robert plays in the local pewee league and all of this action would have been missed, had it not been for photographer Bob Kiemele of the Nanaimo Free Press. (CP Photo)

Roberts Storms on Greens for Win

TORONTO (CP) — Kelly Roberta, "hitting the greens all through this tournament," stormed home with a 69 Friday to defend the Ontario amateur golf championship he won for the first time in 1972.

The 19-year-old from London's Sunningdale club finished the 54-hole tournament with a 216, three shots ahead of fast-closing Gary Cowan of Kitchener-Westmount, a three-time winner of the event.

Roberta, who attends the University of Indiana on a golf scholarship, was two-under par for the round and two under for the tournament at St. George's tough, 6,797-yard layout.

Cowan, former Canadian and twice United States amateur golf champion, came out of semi-retirement to compete and in the Canadian Open at Montreal later this month.

"I was hitting the greens all through this tournament," Roberta said. "It hit 11 greens Wednesday, 15 Thursday and 16 today and that's what saved me."

The blonde, lanky swinger who has been winning golf tournaments since he was 12, expressed doubts before the tournament started that he would be able to defend the crown.

He fired a 72 in practice at Toronto's Lambton golf club the change in his game came the previous day while playing a practice round with his father at Sunningdale where he carded a 69, one under par.

"I had only 34 putts Monday, so today I had a lot of confidence in my putter and my iron."

Roberta also finished with a 69 while third-place went to veteran Nicol Weslock—an eight-time winner of the Ontario title—who finished with a 72 and a 219 total.

Tied at 220 were second-leader Curt Sampson, and Sunningdale's Don White. Sampson had a 76, White a 74.

Sandy Billyard of Lookout Point, Fenthull, was alone at 222 with a 76 to be followed by 18-year-old John Evrassi of London who led after the first day with a 72 and wound up at 223.

Toronto golfers Gord Sudlery and John Swann were another stroke off the pace with Fred Wilder of Woodstock, Sudlery had 75, Swann finished with a par-equalling 71 and Wilder a 72.

Sampson, an American who lives in Toronto during the summer months, got his Ontario Golf Association card by competing in the province the last two years.

Expos, Braves Unleash 53 Hits in Doubleheader

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was too hot and muggy in Atlanta to do any running, so the Braves and Expos did a lot of trotting—home run trotting.

Eight National League baseballs exploded behind Atlanta's walls and after six hours of bonding, the teams negotiated a Friday truce.

It was decided Montreal would take the first game 11-9 and Atlanta would come back for the second 15-4.

Elsewhere in the national League Cincinnati Reds edged New York Mets 2-1 in the first game, then the Mets came back for the second game 7-5; Philadelphia Phillies beat Houston Astros 5-3; St. Louis Cardinals topped San Diego Padres 5-3; Los Angeles Dodgers blanked Chicago Cubs 10 and San Francisco Giants defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2.

The offence began slowly in the first game in Atlanta the Expos chipping away for a run in the second while the Braves countered for two in the third.

Then came the big guns. Henry Aaron slugged a two-run homer, No. 34 of the season, capping a five-run fifth.

"Just another number," said Aaron, who now needs only 17 more numbers to equal Babe Ruth's 714 career total.

HANK AARON
. . . 17 to go

"I hit it awfully highter, tht the ball carries good here," Bailey said. "It just went out, really didn't hit it that good."

Apparently, you don't have to. In the two games Friday the teams combined for 53 hits, bringing the total to 60 for the past two doubleheaders.

Bill Stoneman, who was coasting on the short side of a 7-1 score when he left in the sixth, saw his team score seven runs while he was still pitcher of record for a gift victory.

He was aided by homers from Ken Singleton, Hal Breeden and Jim Lyttle. Mike Marshall gilt wrapped the victory with three scoreless innings of relief.

Montreal's general, Gene Mauch, had high praise for Marshall, who gained his 11th save of the year. "I don't know what Marshall is made of," Mauch said. "Something different. I guess. That's the hottest, muggiest night that we've seen this year and that Marshall was still going hard in the ninth."

Home runs from Norm Miller and winning pitcher Carl Morton, 8-6, highlighted a five-run second as Atlanta built an 8-5 lead after four innings.

Willie McCovey of San Francisco Giants was supposed to rest Friday night but played instead, and dismantled the Pirates, slamming a two-run homer, his 15th and 300th of his career, and a two-run triple.

Tom Bradley, 9-7, went the distance, limiting the Pirates to four hits, including Richie Hebner's 14th homer, a two-run blow.

Don Billingham of the Reds fired a two-hitter in the first game, out-pitching the Mets Tom Seaver on his way to victory No. 13, which matched his career high.

The Mets took the second game on the strength of a four-run first inning. Cleon Jones' first homer since opening day, when he had two.

Montreal's slugging Expos are back in Atlanta for the weekend with single games tonight and Sunday.

Murcer Smashes 3 Homers in Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bobby Murcer expected to get busted by Earl Weaver. And he was. But what Garber didn't expect was that he'd get busted, too, for playing it safe.

Murcer hit a three-run homer in the first inning and a solo shot in the sixth.

Then in the eighth inning, Murcer went down at a fastball sailed at his head.

Up he got and cracked his third homer of the game, the final touch in New York Yankees' 5-0 victory over Kansas City Royals.

In the rest of the American League action, Texas Rangers beat Boston Red Sox 4-1, Cleveland Indians defeated Minnesota Twins 11-2, Oakland A's belted Milwaukee Brewers 13-4, Detroit Tigers downed California Angels 8-2 and Chicago White Sox edged Baltimore Orioles 3-2.

The Yanks are at home to Kansas City again today when Cleveland visits Minnesota, California is in Detroit, Texas is at Boston, Chicago entertains Baltimore and Oakland is in Milwaukee.

Sunday games are: Cleveland at Minnesota, Baltimore at Chicago, Oakland at Milwaukee, California at Detroit, Kansas City at New York and Texas at Boston.

Recalling the eighth inning as he stepped to the plate, Murcer said: "I expected to be busted the last time. Anyone who hits three home runs expects to be busted."

Garber insisted it wasn't intentional. "I'd been pitching him outside," Garber explained, "and I wanted to throw some fastballs inside."

Jim Fregosi, in his first start as Texas manager, traded the New York Mets, had three hits, including a triple and added a sacrifice fly against Boston.

"I've had some pretty good days," said Fregosi, "but that's my six-time all-star with California. I've always hit pretty well in this park."

Minnesota pitcher Joe Decker, 7-7, was driven off the mound by Cleveland batters, hit another one, uncorked a wild pitch and left in the middle of a four-run third inning that locked the game up for Cleveland. Drew a ball part first for an error.

Chris Chambliss doubled for Cleveland in the four-run burst, then doubled for another run in the Indians' four-run fifth that put the game out of reach.

Gene Tenace hit a grandslam homer and Joe Rudi added a two-run shot, his second homer in two games, to highlight Oakland's 13-hit assault against Milwaukee.

Mickey Lolich scattered seven California hits—including Frank Robinson's two-run homer—and got Ed Kirkpatrick pinch-hitting for designated hitter Frank Howard, Rich Reese and Tony Taylor.

Robinson's homer was his second with Angels since being traded by Baltimore Orioles on the all-time list, one ahead of Jimmie Foxx.

Dave McNally of Baltimore was costing along with a four-hit shutout until the ninth inning.

Then came singles by Pat Kelly, Carlos May and Bill Melton and Ken Henderson's game-tying double—and finally Eddie Leon's game-winning sacrifice fly. Eddie Watt drew the win and Wilbur Wood his 11th victory.

Kenyans Get Word

TEL AVIV (AP) — Three Kenyan runners invited to race in Israel's ninth Maccabiah Games as special guests of the Israeli lobby have been received instructions from Nairobi to block all official competition because of the participation of Rhodesian Jewish athletes in the event.

Word of their pull-out came as the track and field events were set to begin tonight.

Distance runners Amos Bewoot and Thomas Maweu and women's African champion Sabina Saisiel said they were "strictly instructed not to compete with Jewish athletes from Rhodesia competing here in the so-called Jewish Olympics.

Maccabiah officials decided to arrange what they called a "special invitation program" outside the Maccabiah schedule in which foreign, non-Jewish athletes would compete after regular athletics competition.

The Kenyans were unavailable for comment on the latest developments.

The withdrawal by the Kenyans will not affect the meeting record, including 27 gold, before tonight's resumption of competition after the Sabbath.

Sweden was in third place.

Earlier in the week, officials issued a statement saying the Rhodesians, as all competitors, were considered only as members of Jewish sporting clubs. Special invitations for Israel, no nation can be regarded as a nation in which foreign, non-Jewish

82 Golfers in Running For Robinson Top Spot

Six players entering today's third round were tied for the lead and another 76 are within six shots of it.

"In simple terms," said one PGA official, "it means that with two rounds to go a total of 82 players could win it. Ever heard of such a thing before?"

A sudden-death playoff Sunday, if it develops, will be the fifth straight year a playoff has been needed at Robinson to decide the winner—a PGA record.

Jammed into the lead at 137, five under par for the well groomed Crawford Country Club course, were unknown Mike Morley and Bobby Greenwood and four better-known golfers, defending champion Grier Jones, Dean Refram, Babe Hiskey and Charles Coody, who is seeking his first victory since winning the 1971 Masters.

All four Canadians entered in the tournament failed to make the cutoff point, 143 after 36 holes.

Toronto's Ben Kern came the closest at 144. John Morgan of Victoria and Will Homeniuk of Winnipeg had 145s and Gary Bowerman, also of Toronto, carded 146 for his two rounds.

Only one stroke behind the leaders at 138 were 14 golfers, including George Archer, Lou Graham and first-round leader and former Robinson winner, Labron Harris.

Toros May See Block

TORONTO (CP) — A move is afoot to block Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association from playing in Varsity Arena next season.

The Students' Administrative Council at the University of Toronto, which owns the arena, criticized the university for bargaining with the Toros owners.

The university has refused to release terms of the proposed contract for public discussion.

council vice-president Michael Jaegi said Friday.

Council-members say the university has been sexlled for $80,000, including money obtained through concessions.

Scott said the council is distributing a petition to bar the Toros. He said the university should be encouraging participatory and recreational amateur sports rather than commercialized spectator-oriented activities.

Theismann, Rae Back Argonauts In Roughrider 25-13 Rough Up

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts made a couple of errors before running away to a 25-13 win over the Roughriders Friday night.

A crowd of 23,132 watched the Canadian Football League exhibition game in which Brian Lancaster split quarterback duties for Saskatchewan while Joe Theismann and Mike Rae called the Argo signals.

Newcomers Ken Mathieson, on a 33-yard pass from Rae, and Peter Muller, on a one-yard toss from Theismann, scored two of the Toronto touchdowns. Running backs Leon McQuay added the other on a one-yard run midway into the second quarter.

Ivan MacMillan booked a 25-yard field goal for the Argos and Muller kicked a 50-yard single. Zenon Andruszkow completed the scoring with three converts.

For the Roughriders, who didn't get moving offensively until Lancaster took over in the second quarter, Rick Eber scored their only touchdown on an 18-yard pass reception. Jack Abendschan kicked two field goals of 30 yards and 40, and a convert.

It was the first win in two pre-season games for Toronto. The Roughriders, who finished last in the Western Conference last year, have a 1-2 exhibition record.

Toronto led 4-0 after the first quarter, 18-10 at the end of the second and 18-13 going into the final 15 minutes. The game was played in muggy mid 70 degree weather until a brief, thunderstorm late in the game.

Toronto's offence of 363 yards included 191 passing as Rae completed 10 of 12 or 127 and Theismann four of nine for 64. Saskatchewan had a net of fence of 225 yards, 162 on passes. Lancaster was good on 11 of 24 for 132 and Linstrom four of 13 for 30 yards.

Mosca-Bulldog Grudge Still On

History has recorded countless instances of lengthy grudges ranging from Romulus and Caesar in Rome to the Hatfields and Daltons at the OK Corral but never has there been a grudge that brings the two antagonists together so pestedly in order that they may pummel, kick and slug-gem with intent to annihilate as does the Angelo Mosca-Bulldog Brower grudge.

For the past two months Hamilton's favorite Italian, Mosca and Toronto's infamous Bulldog have been at each others throats, legs, groins, shoulders, ears, eyes in fact no part o f the anatomy of either wrestler is safe from the others vicious onslaught. Ergaph hiked has thrown Bulldog a small elephant alive during open heart surgery and enough bad water has flown under the bridge to submerge Pruzhen.

Rules and regulations have been cast aside by both wrestlers and referee's warnings fall aimlessly against the deafened ears of both men. Bulldog has emerged the official winners of most of their battles to date but winning the bout means less than punishing the other. Their violence and pier six brawling antics do little for their personal well being but the crowd loves it and the fire in their eyes bring out the worst of both wrestlers.

Bulldog and Angelo were at it again Friday night and 800 Belleville fans' fans were screaming for more. Carlos Belafonte tagged up with Angelo in opposition to Eric 'the Animal' Red who was the Bulldog's right hand man. The quartet proceeded to present a wrestling display that would make olympic coaches shudder and provided th e finale for the screaming fans thirst for action.

For the record both teams were disqualified for carrying their personal vendettas outside of the ring. Each pair had one pin to their credit before the match was called, but Angelo and Carlos had shaved off more flesh than Bulldog and Eric will care to remember.

Undoubtedly, t h e i r grudge will continue in two -weeks, when professional wrestling returns to the Arena but they may have to wade through eight other wrestlers to reach each other. A 10-man battle royal highlights the next card with $1,000 awaiting the survivor. Two men get put up $100 each to enter the ring but only one can remain at the final bell.

There was other action to get the fans in the mood last night for the finals with Mike Kelly and the Waltman fight tot u r e d r e. Nick Decario pinning Bill Williams, and the Wildman taking an unpopular decision over Pat Kelly.

Gone to the Animals

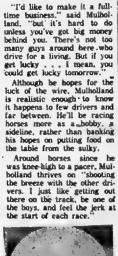
Carlos Rajafonfi may like' enimals but after Friday night's eard of professional wrestling, he may learn to live without them. Carlos had some moments of anguish in last night's main event when Bulldog Brower and Eric 'the Animal' Red found disfavor with his presence. Carlos and ragtag teammate partner Angelo Mosca r e turned the compliments a little later, much to the delight of the Belleville Arena crowd.

'Racing in Blood' Says Mulholland III

Sam Mulholland III figures harness racing is in the blood. To keep it there, the 18-year-old is following in his father's, and grandfather's hoof marks as he was in the sulky behind Gypsy Hill Jenny in his qualifying race drive for the Canadian Trotting Association 'E' licence Friday.

In the fifth at the Quinte Exhibition Raceway, Mulholland took the 6-year-old owned by Picton's Walter Denille to a third place finish. Jumping to the lead from the two hole, the pacing mare turned out the first quarter in 3:31:1, but was covered up by Perfect Hanover in the second race winner.

"You don't have to finish in the money to qualify for your licence," said Mulholland before the race, "you just have to handle the horse well, control it well, and get into any trouble."



But as he said himself; "I pretty near went flying during Blue Gusto a while back. A driver came too close to me, even though he had enough room to drive a truck through. But those things happen — everybody's so close out there."

But speaking of finishing in the money, Mulholland's driving has been good enough to take Gypsy Hill Jenny to a life-time record breaking mile in 2:13:6 last week. The youthful driver was pleased in breaking the mare's record set by his father last year.

"I'd like to make it a full-time business," said Mulholland, "but it's hard to do unless you've got big money behind you. There's not too many guys around here who drive for a living. But if you get lucky — I mean, you could get lucky tomorrow."

Although he hopes for the luck of the wire, Mulholland is realistic enough to know it happens to few drivers and far between. He'll be racing horses more as a hobby, a sideline, rather than banking his hopes on putting food on the table from the sulky.

Around horses since he was knee-high to a pacer, Mulholland thrives on "shooting the breeze with the other drivers. I just like getting out there on the track, be one of the boys, and feel the jerk at the start of each race."

SAM MULHOLLAND III

Front Runner Losing Ground

Johnny's Jewel leads the pack around the paddock turn in the first at the Quinte Exhibition Raceway Friday, but Don Ray Charlie makes his bid gaining on each step on the outside. The 4-year-old gelding overtook Johnny's Jewel to cross the wire first in the, slowest 2:18.8 timed race of the evening. Trotter Shadydale Alex finished second with Johnny's Jewel was in the money third.

Bobcats in Expanded 13 Team Loop

Belleville Bobcats will be fighting for a playoff spot in the OHA Metro Jr. B League against their new enemies in the coming 1973-74 hockey season, Cats GM Jim 'Snipe' Matthews announced yesterday.

Toronto Red Wings, Etobicoke and Oak Ridges will be fielding t e a m s in the OHA newly proposed 14 formation, consisting of two groups — one of seven teams and another of six.

Six of last year's 10 teams, Belleville, Whitby, Oshawa, Markham, Pickering and Peterborough will welcome Oak Ridges into the first grouping. Red Wings and Etobicoke will join Toronto Young Nationals, St. Mike's, Wexford, and Bramalea in the second.

Although the groupings will not affect the proposed fully interlocked double home and home regular s e a s o n play come playoff time in February, a team's standing in its division will determine the draw.

Each division's four top teams will essentially p l a y league quarter final series before finishing in first place. The Metro League finalists will receive a bye into the third round of OHA Jr. B provincial playoffs, as the Toronto Mets did last year.

Although Matthews agreed with the proposed 48 - game schedule, he said he was not keen on having two divisions.

Hole In One

Belleville Memorial Arena manager Rob Burrowes scored his first ever hole in one Thursday but his golfing buddies may have to wait a while for him to supply a liquid treat to mark the event.

Burrowes clean Oak Hills Golf Club to chalk up the ace. And that is a dry club.

Fred Merrill was golfing with Burrowes when Rob aced the 130-yard 7th hole.

Parsons-Tony's Battle

Belleville Parsons fifth straight win in Bay of Quinte Soccer Association (BQSA) play has landed them into trouble.

Shutting out third place Whitley Travellers 2-0 Thursday, Parsons move into a two way tie with Tony's Soccer Club, the only undefeated team in BQSA action t h i s year.

Parsons will have to turn the table on Tony's when they head to head meeting n e x t Sunday to extract a measure of revenge for a fame 4-2 loss suffered at their hands at the beginning of the season.

Earning his second shutout of the season, Al McNeill stopped a strong rally by Whitley in the final five minutes to preserve goals scored by Mark Metus and Nick Del Grosso.

Del Grosso gained a measure of satisfaction with his goal. The forward had five minutes earlier in the second half scored. But the goal was disallowed on an offside call.

Playing in net for Whitley, Terry Hore had the shutout turned around on him. Hore had built up a record of three straight shut out wins.

thews, referring to the first place team versus fifth, second versus ninth form. "We'll be thrashing that out at the meeting, as well as the mechanics of the interlocking schedule."

Intell Star Rises

Where was The Intelligencer when the lights went out?

Counting their lucky stars and relishing in a 6-5 Industrial Softball League win over UIC.

Mother Nature delved into the softball wars to decide the outcomes of Friday night's games forcing a rain postponement of the Post Office-Brooke Bond opener at the Memorial and then giving The Intelligencer a free lunching victory when the lights went out during a power failure.

UIC had actually tied the score in the top of the sixth inning at six apiece but the refusal of the lights to come back on forced the inning was complete sent the game to the last full inning the fifth. The Intelligencer held a 6-5 lead at that point and was awarded the win.

The lead had been passed around like a hot potato until the darkness hit, changing hands four times. The Intell had jumped to 1-0, 2-1, and 4-3 leads but needed t w o runs in the bottom of the fifth proved to be the winning tallies. Joey Edwards and Randy Derry had back-to-back singles in the fifth and then both raced home on Glynn Reynolds triple for the winning runs.

Bill Cooney and Randy Derry had a double and single each to go along with Reynold's triple and Joe Edwards two singles.

Their hits came off UIC's Pete Hamilton who gave up eight hits all-told. He struck out four and walked one. Ron Culleden started for the Printers before Dave Feeney came on in relief. The pair gave up nine hits while fanning four.

Ron Jury and Brian Chase had triples for UIC who remain one point behind western district.

Storefront Legal-aid Clinic Busy in London

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — An elderly woman whose dog killed a neighbor's dog was threatened with legal action to have her pet put away.

A man said his car privately and promptly received a flood of traffic summonses from across Canada.

Another fellow living in a basement apartment was flooded out every time it rained. He wanted to move but the landlord insisted he was bound by his lease.

They may not make for gripping courtroom scenes, but these are the kind of problems handled regularly by a group of University of Western Ontario law students.

The three full-time and five volunteer members of the group work out of the upper floor of a two-storey building above a laundromat.

The storefront legal-aid clinic was opened last January as a community services project.

David Braund, a director of the clinic, said it provides law students with valuable practical experience and is a source of advice for poor people with legal problems.

The clinic is an extension of a student legal-aid office on the university campus. However, a survey showed that 60 per cent of the cases handled at the campus office involved students.

There seemed to be a misconception that the campus office was intended for the sole use of students, Mr. Braund said. It also reveals another problem faced by the student lawyers.

The clinic is operated under Ontario's legal-aid program which means it cannot be advertised. The two student legal-aid offices are funded by a $15,000 federal government grant, another $3,500 from the province and $1,000 from the university.

The federal grant contained a stipulation that a survey must be made to find out the over-all legal needs in London.

The survey, now under way, involves questioning welfare recipients to see whether they have legal problems, how they go about solving them or whether they know they have a legal remedy, Mr. Braund said.

The students are able to take civil cases involving claims of not more than $400 in small claims court. They also can act in some Highway Traffic Act matters which do not involve indictable offences.

Fritz the Cat Denied a 'Day'

TORONTO (CP) — Schizophrenics, clowns, pets and stamp collectors are among more than 100 groups which have succeeded having a day, week or month officially proclaimed for their cause.

But Fritz the Cat and the Gay Liberation Front have been less successful—Toronto city hall proclamation applications down.

Since January, 1972, the mayor's executive assistant, Bryn Lloyd, has considered 112 applications to create special occasions for causes. All but 10 have been granted.

"As long as the groups are within the bounds of morality, are law-abiding and not controversial, there's no problem," Mr. Lloyd said.

Thus it was thumbs-down to the Gay Libbers while Fritz and his feline friends were considered "frivolous," Mr. Lloyd said.

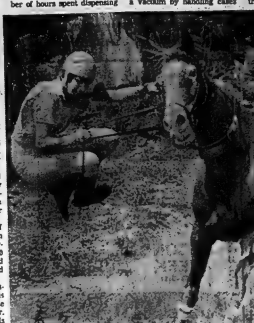
advice and acting on the cases. During the ashbit year, up to 80 volunteer students work two to three hours a week on cases which otherwise might be handled by lawyers charging the legal-aid fund.

"We also feel we are filling a vacuum by handling cases which might be considered too minor and otherwise not be heard," he said.

In the case of the woman and her pet dog, the clinic lawyers put a quick end to the threatened legal action after they found the Vicious Dog Act applies only if a dog bites a person.

They found that the man who sold his car neglected to make sure the new owner changed the ownership. The students convinced other provincial jurisdictions that they were seeking the wrong person.

And the lease of the man in the leaky basement was soon broken after it was explained to the landlord he was contravening the Landlord and Tenant Act.



"We feel our success ratio is no lower than that of a lawyer although we might not argue the case as well as a lawyer with years of experience," said Mr. Braund.

The students can handle cases only after they have been referred from legal aid, although there are other callers seeking advice.

In many cases, the caller can be directed to an appropriate social agency.

This fall, 10 law students will move out of their classrooms into the clinic to carry on the program as part of their year's study, said Mr. Braund.

"The relationship with legal aid will be severed and the students will work directly with a London law firm which will give them greater scope.

Ocean Research Today May Feed Hungry Later

OTTAWA (CP) — Exploiting the food resources of the ocean's deep ranges to feed a hungry world is a popular theme with science-fiction writers.

J. Robert Weir, chairman of Canada's Fisheries Research Board, feels the world is not at that stage yet. He suggests, however, that money spent on research now may save the world grief in the future.

"The kind of information I'm talking about, to get it and to start to adapt it to the point where we'll be reaping the benefits, will take a considerable number of years," he said in an interview.

"If you wait until it becomes critical, you haven't enough time to get the information to apply it and you're in real trouble; secondly, you may have lost a lot of valuable species in the meantime."

The Fisheries Research Board, an advisory group which does no research itself, is part of the environment department's fisheries and marine branch.

Dr. Weir says Canada is "one of the richest fishing areas in the world." The $100.5 million budgeted by the government for its fisheries and marine program in 1973-74 bears this out.

The prime objective of the program, as outlined in the department's 1973 - 74 estimates, is:

"To promote the management and sustained utilization of the marine and aquatic renewable resources of the nation, compatible with a concern for the quality of the environment."

Dr. Weir, dean of agriculture at the University of Manitoba for 15 years before joining the federal administration in 1965, is keenly aware that application of land-farming practices to the oceans would give Canada a head start toward achieving the government's goals.

"If you're going to grow fish intensively, then you start in real trouble; secondly, you may have lost a lot of valuable species in the meantime."

"You've got to have the very things you have in agriculture: breeding and selection management, feeding and disease control.

"Much of this we don't know too much about. When you come to the marine side of it, we're faced with management of the continental shelf. This is a big task, an expensive one, but we'll have to have the information if we do it."

The board, celebrating its 72th anniversary this year, has a substantial fleet of vessels at its disposal through its various agencies.

It also has research stations at St. Andrews, N.B., Nanaimo, B.C., Halifax and the University of British Columbia. All these deal with the marine ecology while a new station at Winnipeg studies the inland water development. The total staff is about 950, including about 250 scientists.

"They're studying not only life, the entire ecology of the marine environment, whether it's marine or fresh."

"The planet earth is a very small place and I think the old concept of the sea being unlimited is rapidly disappearing," Dr. Weir said when asked whether the oceans are a bottomless breadbasket.

"We first have to recognize that most of the oceans is not very productive because of the temperature of the water and the slowness of growth of aquatic plants and animals. The Arctic Ocean, except for a few exotic species, really is too cold to be productive; it can't produce food for commercial fisheries in any case."

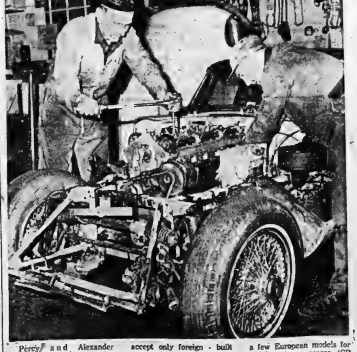
Man's use of the oceans as a dumping ground is hastening their death but Dr. Weir feels there still is time to save them.

But we have to recognize the danger and take corrective measures, manage it, not just use it."

The Great Lakes, for example, were considered beyond man's ability to pollute.

"Now this certainly is not so and we have to be very concerned about it. And, if the lakes have gone that way, there's no reason why the oceans can't go that way.

"I think the old axiom of Freedom of the Seas is being replaced by Management of the Seas."



But Dr. Weir thinks that ects all so-called pollution of the sea is harmful.

Heavy metals such as mercury are but what about things like sewage and phosphates?

"By adding nutrients we're enriching it, nutrifying it," says Dr. Weir. "Consequently, we have a different ecosystem; we have some species of fish which aren't able to do well and they leave and they're replaced by others.

"This isn't necessarily harmful if it's managed. Maybe they're better species, maybe they're more productive species.

"As you fertilize the land to increase plant production, you may make it less suitable for certain crops and more suitable for others. So you're fertilizing the water in this regard."

Beatles Tape Worth Fortune

LONDON (AP) — Ring-Size Taylor, an old buddy of the Beatles, has a 12-year-old tape of the lads from Liverpool he made when they were a group of unknowns playing for peanuts in a Hamburg dive. Music industry people believe it could be worth as much as $50 million.

Taylor says he bought the rights to the tape from the Beatles for "the price of a few drinks." Now he hopes to get them to market it and make him a fortune.

One writer who heard it, William Marshall of The Daily Mirror, said: "The financial potential is tremendous. There's material for two albums.

"It's one of the most exciting sounds I've ever heard from them. Their hard-driving rock 'n' roll from the golden period of 1962 is all there and more."

Taylor, who led a band that played alongside the Beatles in their early days, made the tape during the hard winter of 1962 at the Star Club in Hamburg. The group, short-haired and living in a squalid apartment with no heat, was just starting on the road to stardom with 12-hour sessions on stage for a few dollars a night.

Taylor, now a butcher, offered the tapes soon after he made it to the late Brian Epstein, then the Beatles' manager. Epstein, who engineered the group's rise to stardom, told him it had no commercial value and offered him £30 for it, or about $46 then.

Taylor said no. The tape lay forgotten in a cupboard in his home until a few weeks ago.

"I was thinking about this rock-'n-roll revival going on and suddenly remembered I had this tape from the old days," he said, "and I pictured it must be worth something."

Taylor took the tape to Alan Williams, the Liverpool club owner who was the Beatles' first manager. They plan to approach Apple, the Beatles' company, about releasing the tape. Taylor wants $250,000 and a percentage of the royalties. But the Beatles would have to agree to release of the tape.

Musician Returns To City of Fame

TORONTO (CP) — Henry Cuesta returned in June to Toronto, the city that gave him his name as the top clarinetist in Canada. He appeared at Sutton Place with the Henry Cuesta Quartet, three Canadian musicians.

Cuesta, who now plays on the Lawrence Welk Show, previously had been on a 10-day tour with Welk. Bobby Hackett was the man to reconnect that Cuesta join Welk more than nine months ago. Welk introduces him as a Canadian though Cuesta is originally from Texas.

Now he plans to take his own band with guitarist George Arthur to play in major nightclubs in the United States.

"I have only had five or six weeks of free playing with Lawrence Welk, and I've come to Toronto three times because I enjoy playing as much," Cuesta said. "My wife is Canadian, my children are Canadian, and I say I come from Toronto because I gave me my break.

"My years in Toronto were the most productive years of my career. I played at the Golden Nugget for 3½ years when I first came here and I learned and gained more confidence. It was really great to play between Don Ewell and Willie The Lion, two fantastic pianists."

Cuesta exudes the warmth of the man he works with, on stage and off. His zest for playing is evident throughout each set. His music is light and traditional and his stage manner is relaxed but professional. His audience knew every nuance of every song.

Henry Goodman and Glenn Miller are Cuesta's idols, whose arrangements he follows closely. Every number is a standard, from Muskrat Ramble to Goody Goody but he really shone with Bei Mir Bist Du Shoen.

Cuesta works closely with pianist Charlie Mountford who acts as the band lead. Mountford seems to light up when exchanging riffs with Cuesta. Bass man John Amadio and drummer Mickey Shannan have played with Cuesta for seven years and their solo together at Big Time Jazz Festival demonstrated their spirit and prowess.

B. C. Mine and Union Fight Over Pollution

ENDAKO, B.C. (CP) — Do all the tailings and sewage from Canada's largest molybdenum mine end up in a pond or do they seep into nearby Francois Lake?

Questions like this are rocking this community 110 miles west of Prince George, as union and management tell totally different stories.

The United Steelworkers of America, Local 958, says the mine is causing serious pollution problems and possibly endangering the health of employees.

Charges are nonsense and are just being used to harass the company.

Endako mine, which employs about 400 men, is a division of Canex Placer Ltd., which is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Placer Development Ltd., an international company based in Vancouver.

The mine's ore body was discovered by a band of hunters in 1927 but wasn't developed until 1965. Today the open-pit mine sprawls across hilly, forested country about two miles from Francois Lake. The pit will eventually cover 300 acres.

Camille Lemire, acting president of Local 958, says the union has been complaining about environmental and health matters since 1967 but the problems only really became obvious two years ago.

The union's specific complaints are that copper dioxide and dust concentrations in the plant's roaster house have exceeded some nosebleeds and that air pollution has killed large stands of timber near the mine.

The union has also alleged that mine tailings, including cyanide, seep from a tailings pond into Francois Lake and that sewage overflows a settling pond into a creek which flows into the lake.

A few hundred yards from the plant a neatly-detailed sign proclaims "Reclamation Project" and states that 70 acres of hillside have been graded, fertilized and seeded.

The area is fairly well covered with grass but there is also a large stand of dead jackpines and a row of dead Lombardy poplars. More dead poplars stand along a ridge overlooking the mine and there are tree stumps all over.

"It's copper dioxide that's killing those trees and if it does that to trees it can't be very healthy for human beings," says Mr. Lemire. "At the moment all the tailings-dioxide goes right in the air but 85 per cent of it could be removed from the emission if the company would pay for the equipment."

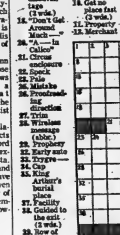
Mine manager James Wright says operations are policed by a variety of government agencies and no trouble has been reported.

"We've met all the air and water standards and we don't expect to have any difficulty meeting the new sulphur emission standards when they come into effect."

Scarlet Divers Help To Police

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — The Scarlet Divers club began as a leisure-time sports activity for RCMP officers, but now it is a serious addition to training sessions for members of the RCMP Sydney detachment.

Since the club was formed in January its 14 members have explored the bottom of cold drowning victims. Many of the bodies have been dove voluntarily during off hours and in winter conditions.



Having to recover a body is much more humane than dragging with grapnels," said the club's founder and president, Cpl. Collin Killam.

He said the time factor and the inefficiency of dragging operations are often too much for families to bear.

Lakefront Lots In a Short Supply

TORONTO (CP) — The dwindling supply of lakefront lots within 100 miles of Toronto is raising the price of cottages out of reach of all but a small percentage of buyers.

Lots in Muskoka, 110 miles north of Toronto, have increased 500 per cent in 10 years, according to real estate brokers. Lakefront lots with 100 feet frontage which sold in 1963 for $2,000 now sell for $10,000 and the same size lot on Lake Simcoe which sold for $5,000 now brings $25,000.

Harold McGrath, regional assistant director of Ontario Land Ltd. Realtors, said the situation is getting worse.

"The shortage of lakefront lots is rapidly putting them beyond the financial reach of all but one per cent of Metro dwellers.

He said a lot on Chemong Lake which sold for $7,000 last year now brings $10,000 and a cottage which sold for $14,000 now is worth $17,000.

Robert Grant, manager of United Trust in Barrie, said a cottage which sold for $21,000 eight years ago now sells for $30,000.

He said 60 per cent of all cottages built are wintered for permanent homes for their owners and improved road links to Barrie bring Toronto within commuting distance.

This, coupled with increased land and building costs, brought his firm's sales volume in April to $2 million, compared with $500,000 in April last year.

One reason for the higher prices is the tighter laws on water pollution.

Five years ago a 150-gallon septic tank and a few feet of weeping tile were sufficient. Today, health rules in most municipalities require 500-gallon tanks with 300 feet of weeping tile and up to 3,000 square feet of loam for the system.

William Phillips, president of Sonnenberg Development Corp., said he bought land on Buchhorn Lake, 25 miles north of Peterborough, for $125,000 and planned to sell it for about $1 million.

The province would not let him fill 11,000 feet of the shoreline because it was a swamp and Mr. Phillips said the decision cost him more than $1 million.

G. M. Farrow, director of plans and administration in the Ontario treasury, said the province found that the swamp was a breeding ground for fish.

"You can't dredge up swamp to create shoreline because it will upset the delicate ecology of the water system," he said.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, July 15

Aries (March 21 — April 19): Deal with grouchy moods gently; the people involved are more complex than they appear. Do not overreact.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Being personally serene may be difficult, but it will work it. Attend your community's Sunday confabs, then relax.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Social situations change abruptly; don't stir matters. Neither meddle in others' affairs nor let others mix into yours.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You can please nobody fully; begin with yourself. If a hobby palls, take a rest. By evening you have new incentive.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 23): Accept differences of opinion calmly. If you're off the right track, make amends and start fresh.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your constructive criticism is taken wrong—perhaps it is not so essential to pick things apart.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Comes a gentle turning around of your life. Support the constructive side of any issue you are involved in resolving.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Practicality outweighs all other considerations. You must balance community expectations as you with your actual resources.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Early incidents find you set for events that do not come about. Mind your own business; select company carefully.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be thoroughly conventional this Sunday. Plans are subject to change; leave some slack in your schedule.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The urge to change things for the better is strong. If you heed this, others will never learn to solve their own problems.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Pushing for immediate answers provokes unexpected responses, perhaps negative. Let well enough alone, sticking to usual routines.

Monday, July 16

Aries (March 21-April 19): Cultivate recent social contacts, make a search for possible career advancement—keep these activities separate.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): In this relatively-quiet environment your efforts count more; resist temptation to take the easy way.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Optimism rises; arrange financial details, redeem promises made to others. It's a good time for a financial transaction.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Joy in the fullness of a close circle of friends is indicated, whatever the external situation may be.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Overt leadership isn't necessarily yours to exert. It's time for group-work, consultation, getting general agreement.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Relationships show their quality now— some are richer and more diverse than appeared lately.

Libra (Sept. 23—Oct. 22): Now is time to publish or promote your view of what can be done to alleviate locale conditions, persuade friends to co-operate.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Claim whatever is owed to you, now, or seek clear understanding of when it will come in.

Sagittaries (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): This can be a memorable up-ward-moving ten-day episode in your life. "Luck" arrives, tends to compensate for imbalances.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan.): Pick up your share of the work, press career interests vigorously. Long-past connections are again available.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): With all the possible opportunity to advance yourself materially, your personal life is apt to be more pressing.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Explore possibilities for confidential and special assistance; find out which people really decide those matters in which you are interested.

Amiable Bite

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP) — Diane Hemmings, 21, lost her suit for damages resulting from a dog bite which, she said, had ruined her ability to dance properly. Rejecting the claim, the judge said the dog had been generally "amiable" and the attack "completely out of character."

Too Short

PINNER, England (CP) — Nurse Margaret Bartlett was fired by Northwood and Pinner District Hospital because she is only four feet, 10 inches tall. This is two inches below the minimum height standard for staff which was set, said hospital directors, according to medical advice.

To Your Good Health

Boils Are Caused By Germs on Skin

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the best way to get rid of boils? I have had several and they can be prevented?—K.D.

Boils are caused by bacteria, usually either staphylococcus or streptococcus—that get a foothold in the skin and then multiply.

They are not, as so many people have been told, "from something in the blood."

It may well be that some folks are better supplied with antibodies in the blood which suppress these germs before they get a good start, but that's beside the point.

Boils develop from common bacteria on the skin.

Let's say that you have a single boil to start with. The boil represents a battle between the multiplying germs and the defensive forces of the body which are trying to keep the infection isolated and destroy it.

If some of those germs get a little head start, they have new ing place on the skin, (in a pore, perhaps, or in the area some tiny scratch or abrasion) they may start another boil. These new boils, or infections, do not start instantly. It takes a bit of time.

Therefore, the first rule of preventing more boils is to keep the germs from spreading to new areas. Keep a dressing on the boil. Use an antiseptic or germicidal preparation on and around the area. Burn or otherwise safely dispose of old dressings. Except in the proces of applying a dressing, keep fingers away from the boil—because fingers can pick up those germs and transfer them to some new area.

A hot wet compress will help the boil to point or "come to a head." As this occurs, it is time to see your doctor. If the boil ruptures by itself or you attempt to squeeze out the core, the danger of spreading the infection increases.

In some instances a particularly virulent or resistant germ may require special laboratory cultures to determine its nature and select the most suitable medication, but that is unusual. The simpler methods usually suffice.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it possible to become addicted to tea?

I am 50 and have had two strokes. I started drinking tea the last couple years, but for the past six months I drink a cup of tea my headache leaves.

I had been drinking three large cups a day, but tried to get away from it when I heard it had some kind of poison in it that gets into the bloodstream—Mrs. G. M.

It could well be the caffeine in the tea that relieves your headache. Just plan any sugar you may use in it.

I see no danger in your use of tea. Three cups a day is not excessive.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had prostate surgery and now I notice that the sperm does not discharge at all. With the urine charged sperm hurt the reproductive organs, or in time cause cancer of the block a gland area? What happens to the sperm if it is not discharged?—J.S.

There is no cause to worry. The sperm is not "undischarged." It is discharged into the bladder, and flows away along with urination.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is stasis dermatitis edema? What causes it and will cancer develop from it? I have this in the lower part of my legs and it swells once in a while.—A.E.

The "edema" part of it refers to fluid accumulating in the tissues, and causing swelling. This can result from such things as varicose veins, heart, kidney or liver disorders, but does not cause cancer.

"Stasis dermatitis" pas of it is related. It is accompanied by some scaling of the skin in the vicinity of the ankle. It can result from sluggish circulation—and from varicose veins with or without edema.

The bidding:

4 ♥	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♦	Pass	6 NT	Pass
7 ♥	Pass	7 ♥	Pass

Opening lead — queen of spades.

Assume you're East and that you see only dummy's hand and your own. Partner leads the queen of spades and this is what you think: with the king as you contribute the three and the ace.

Declarer plays a low trump to the queen and continues with the AK-J-10. West following to the first trump lead and then leading two spades and two clubs. You follow to thrifing three rounds of trumps, discard a diamond on the next trump, but what do you discard on the fifth trump after declarer throws a club from dummy?

When the hand was played East discarded a spade on the last trump, and it was seemingly unconcealed. Declarer thus got him 2,510 points!

Declarer now ranked the A-K of diamonds, leaving this position:

West	North ♠A2 ♥Q ♦A9	East
♠J10		♠5
♥QJ10		♥9
	South ♠9 ♥5 ♦3 ♣K93	♦Q8

When South then played the diamond to the queen, West found himself squeezed. Whatever he discarded, declarer was sure to win the rest of the tricks and so bring home the grand slam.

But note that if East's spade holding in the diagrammed position had been the 5-4, West could have discarded the 10 of spades at the critical juncture and South would have gone down one.

It just goes to show what a big difference one little card can make.

Nixon Is 'Improved' But Stays in Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon was reported improved today after spending a reasonably rested night in Bethesda naval hospital.

The pains of the right chest which he complained of experienced Thursday and Friday lessened during the night, the hospital reported, and his temperature dropped from a high 102 to 100 at midnight.

Nixon was admitted to the hospital Thursday night after his personal physician Dr. Walter Tkach determined that the president had viral pneumonia.

Doctors reported Friday that the president was suffering from severe pains in the right chest.

They recommended therapy and estimated that the president would be in hospital seven to 10 days, but added that "he might not feel quite up to par" for quite a while after his release.

There is considerable malaise and uneasiness and a feeling of a lack of energy that may continue for some period," one doctor said Friday night.

Reports pictured Nixon Friday as "champing at the bit" to pursue his normal pace, but he apparently heeded their advice and slowed down on the first day.

Except for a brief morning meeting with advisers and an afternoon family visit, Friday was taken up by therapy sessions, principally inhalation of medication, and rest.

Meals consisted exclusively of juices for the first 24 hours. Nixon had his first substantial meal Friday night: steak, potato, peas and ice cream.

Though the president could have a limited number of visitors, a spokesman said he did not think one of them would be Senator Sam Ervin, chairman of the Watergate committee, who sent a letter to Nixon Thursday urging an immediate meeting to discuss the possible release to the panel of White House papers.

The president's press secretary has said Nixon intended to continue with "the essentials" of his office, including signing and reviewing legislation, and making policy decisions. But he did none of these Friday.

"If this turns out to be a typical viral pneumonia, which clinically, it appears to be, the course varies from mild illness to a very severe illness, to a very severe incapacitating illness," said Dr. Sol Katz, director of the pulmonary division, Georgetown University Medical School.

Katz was noncommittal when asked whether the disease could be associated with fatigue. Fatigue does lower the body's defences, Katz said, adding also that "one can see this illness in fairly healthy individuals in general."

Nixon was described in the last medical report Friday afternoon as continuing to "experience discomfort from chest congestion." But, it said, he was "resting with more ease."

Ballard's Comments Draw Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — Harold Ballard, president of Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto who was convicted last year of fraud, may have trouble getting parole this October because of statements he made earlier this month, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand indicated today.

Ballard, out of Millhaven penitentiary near Kingston on temporary pass, spoke at a news conference Aug 3 to announce plans for a new hockey arena.

He was quoted as saying that life in Millhaven is so good he was "looking forward to getting back."

Other comments attributed to Ballard were that prisoners are eating better than the average Canadian.

Mr. Allmand told reporters outside the Commons today it is obvious Ballard "doesn't seem to be responding to his rehabilitation program."

He was convicted last October of defrauding Maple Leaf Gardens of $205,000 and was sentenced to two concurrent three-year terms.

Mr. Allmand was asked whether Ballard's comments may have a bearing on his routine eligibility for parole in three months. The solicitor-general said the parole board makes its own decisions.

"But," he added, "I've no doubt that his actions will have some effect on the decision of the parole board."

Lake Levels Still Dangerous

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Recent reports predicting declines in the levels of the Great Lakes may have lulled lakeshore residents into a false sense of security, says Dr. Frank Quinn, chief hydrologist with the Dominion Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's lake survey centre in neighboring Detroit.

Dr. Quinn warned in a news release Friday the situation is as acute as ever.

Because of reports of declining levels, there may be a feeling that the danger is over when in fact just the opposite is true, he said.

"It's true that the levels of most of the Great Lakes are going down, but this is neither unusual nor unexpected. They always go down at this time of the year, the same as they always begin to rise in later winter."

He pointed out, all the lakes are well above their long-term averages and will continue that way for the next six months and probably longer.

He said Lake St. Clair is 12 inches higher than one year ago, 29 inches above the long-term average for July and six inches above the high monthly mean for July.

Lake Erie is 13 inches higher than it was a year ago, 28 inches above its long-term average for July and 19 inches above its high monthly mean for July.

$2-million Mill Lost

KIOSK, Ont. (CP) — Fire early today totally destroyed a $2-million lumber veneer mill in Algonquin Park, levelling the eight - acre site in less than 90 minutes.

Two employees in the mill at the time of the fire escaped uninjured.

First reports indicate the blaze was started by a faulty electric motor in a wood-drying room.

The mill, owned by Goodman Staniforth Co. Ltd., is the only source of employment in Kiosk, a community of 500.

Junior Fishing Derby Planned

PICTON — A junior fishing derby sponsored by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce will be held in the county this summer.

The derby, open to county residents and tourists, was proposed by Susan Hyatt, an employee of the Picton and District Parks and Recreation office through a Youth in Action grant.

Organizer of a summer aquatics program, Miss Hyatt said former fishing derbies open to adults has led to cheating. Partly for this reason they were discontinued. She feels that children under 15 years of age, eligible for the Junior derby, will be less likely to break the rules.

The junior derby will be held the last week in July and youngsters at Prince Edward's two provincial parks are expected to compete.

Trophies for the largest of each of four fishing divisions will be awarded. The fish must be caught in county waters.

The chamber of commerce has approved a grant of $125 to the derby.

Peron Returns

Peron's Return Helps Investors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign investors are likely to benefit from the prospective return to power in Argentina of former dictator Juan Peron.

The former president may succeed in curbing the kidnappers and other terrorists who have hampered business operations.

He also is thought to be opposed to legislation to raise taxes and limit credits for foreign investors.

But some American banks, principally Chase Manhattan, Morgan Guaranty Trust and First National City, still may lose their holdings in Argentine banks.

A pending law would buy out their interests and those of two Spanish banks and a German one. Peron is not expected to object.

U.S. officials never doubted that President Hector Campora was simply a stand-in for Peron. But they did not think the onetime dentist would resign so swiftly, on his 50th day in office.

Washington is not unhappy that Peron is replacing Campora so soon, although there is some question about the health and vigor of the 77-year-old former president.

Campora is considered to the left politically of Peron. He attracted several young radicals to his government that Peron probably would not have taken on and will drop.

Under Campora, the prospects appeared good for passage of the bill to restrict foreign investment. Mining, insurance, communications and some other industries would have been off-limits to companies owned entirely or predominantly by foreign interests, including American firms.

Those already in such enterprises would have been forced to sell out.

Without Peron's support the bill is likely to fail.

His prestige, meanwhile, may be a bulwark against terrorism. And he evidently has support within moderate business and labor sectors that Campora lacked.

Air Machinists Quit Work

VANCOUVER (CP) — Air Machinists staged a 3½-hour work stoppage at Vancouver International Airport Friday evening to attend what they described as a study session.

The 250 workers, members of the International Association of Machinists, A.F.L.-C.L.C., downed tools shortly after 6 p.m. but returned to work about 9:45 p.m.

Supervisy personnel serviced flights during the stoppage. A company spokesman said the longest delay of flight departures during the evening was about 25 minutes.

Earlier in the day the machinists boycotted a scheduled meeting of a conciliation board, appointed to hear their contract dispute with the company.

The board is expected to make a quick report to federal officials in Ottawa.

Strike Settled

Northern Prepares To Resume Work

By HARRY MULHALL, Staff Reporter . . .

Production lines were being readied at Northern Electric today . . . beginning the restarting process at Belleville's biggest industry after its first major labor dispute.

The end to a 10-week work halt came on the weekend as more than 1,000 plant and office workers in Belleville accepted agreements reached by United Automobile Workers negotiators late last week.

Today, a skeleton work force was on the job, gearing Northern for a full return to work after the annual plant vacation ends July 30.

As they went about the task, fellow workers crowded the pillow to receive their holiday pay packets.

End of the dispute was signalled in Belleville late Sunday afternoon when UAW spokesmen announced workers votes at Kingston, London, and Brampton had also endorsed a settlement.

In all, about 3,500 workers at the four Northern plants had been on strike since May 7.

For production and skilled workers at Belleville the new contract means a minimum increase of $1.03 an hour over three years, said a UAW spokesman.

A highlight of the office workers' settlements was wage increases totalling 13.75 per cent over three years.

Other benefits for both include more holidays and a free dental plan.

Workers were "quite happy with the settlement" said UAW International representative Bob Nickerson after Kingston union members joined Belleville production and skilled workers at Centennial Secondary School Sunday to scrutinize the proposals, then vote. The meeting lasted two and one-half hours.

The tally — from all three Northern plants — saw production workers 83 per cent in favor, and skilled workers voting 90 per cent for the contract, said Mr. Nickerson.

Saturday, Belleville office workers favored the settlement by 82 per cent, said Tom Freeborn, president of the 160-member Local 1530.

"I think everybody is relieved," admitted Mr. Freeborn. "It was 10 weeks, but we came out and it's a good settlement."

Lorna Moses, chairman of the six-months-old Local 1839, representing 880 production and trades workers, felt the first settlement involving the fledgling UAW-unit resulted "in a contract everybody can be proud of."

Voting over, Northern immediately began assembling a task force of about 120 workers to prepare the Belleville plant "so we can start going full tilt" when the vacation period ends in two weeks, said David King, president of the company's System Apparatus Division.

He hoped for "good relationship" between management and labor to realize achievement goals which had been upset by the strike.

"I hope we can pick up the pieces and go on," said Mr. King.

The $1.63 minimum hike for production workers includes both basic pay increases and guaranteed cost of living allowances. Combined, these amount to 38 cents, 35 cents and 26 cents in the successive three years of the contract, said Miss Moses.

Holidays give a better break to workers with less seniority. The period of seniority needed for three weeks' vacation is reduced by a year to six years, she said. There's an 8 per cent plant holiday for a total of 11 days, and a Christmas holiday from Dec. 24 through to Jan. 1.

The 13.75 per cent increase to office workers is split 7.25 per cent, 4.5 per cent and 4 per cent across three years.

In the first year, monthly pay increases could range from $33-$73 for clerical workers and $34-$84 for technical employees, estimated Mr. Freeborn.

The workers' former cost-of-living allowance will be "folded in" to base pay rates — adding 31 cents — 10 cents for each of the first two years, 11 cents for the last.

In the first year, this would mean $15 a month, he said.

A new cost - of - living allowance pays one cent an hour for every 1.54 points change in the consumer price index. The compensation will be paid quarterly.

For both production and office workers a fully - paid dental plan will become operative in the third year of the agreement.

The plant's new length - of-vacation qualifications will be adjusted progressively across the three years on this schedule, years of service in brackets: 1973-4 weeks (6 years); 5 weeks (24 years), 1974 — 3 weeks (3 years); 5 weeks (23 years), 1975 — 4 weeks (13 years); 5 weeks (22 years).

Nixon Improving

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, in hospital for the fourth day for treatment of viral pneumonia, is showing "considerable improvement," his doctors reported today.

Fishing Strike Over

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia salmon fleet resumed operations Sunday night in coastal waters, ending a nine-day strike.

Norma Levy Charged

LONDON (AP) — Norma Levy, the call girl who got Lord Lambton into trouble, was charged today with attempting to induce a woman to turn prostitute. She was released on $25,000 bail and ordered to appear again July 31.

Toronto Trespasser Is Slain

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Robert McKinnon, 22, of Toronto was killed Sunday by a 22-calibre rifle shot through the heart.

Police said the man and two others had been near a private pool in suburban Scarborough and were ordered off the property. However, McKinnon stayed behind in some bushes and was found dead later by the pool.

Robert Quinn, 43, of Toronto was charged with non-capital murder.

Detroit Boy Slain

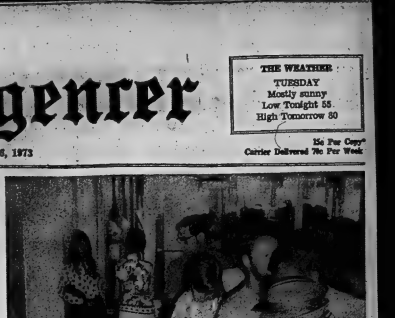
DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit youth, Keith Johnson, 14, was killed Sunday night and seven persons were wounded when a rifle was fired at the window of a house from a car in which four men were riding, police reported. Six teen-agers and a woman were wounded.

Prisoners Freed

SAIGON (Reuter) — The Viet Cong released 44 South Vietnamese prisoners of war today in the same area where they had handed over two Canadian truce observers Sunday, military sources said. The 44 officers and men turned up unexpectedly at a South Vietnamese militia outpost this morning, after being set free some 50 miles east of Saigon.

Dynamite Explodes

GREENWOOD, o. (AP) — Fifty tons of dynamite exploded near this Kansas City suburb Sunday, killing two persons in a blast felt miles away, the Missouri Highway Patrol said.



Police said the explosion of two dynamite storage facilities left a crater 30 feet deep and 80 feet wide.

Two driver's licences and parts of two bodies were found. The licences belonged to Gary Weeks, 19, and David Stower, 18, both of Raytown, Mo., police said. Trooper Robert Place said no positive identification could be made because the fragments were so small.

The youths' parents said they had planned to spend the afternoon shooting at targets in the area and were driving a 1969 Plymouth. Bits of a Plymouth were found near the blast site.

Cause of the blast was not immediately known, but one policeman speculated the busters may have shot the dynamite magazines and set off the explosion.

Windows in homes throughout Greenwood, a town of 1,100, were shattered. At least two area residents were treated for facial labrations caused by flying glass.

The Happy Holiday Time

Northern Electric-Belleville workers line up for holiday pay this morning as weekend union voting ended 10-week strike at city's biggest industry. End of the dispute co-incided with start of annual vacation. Task force of workers is now preparing plant to resume full production when it re-opens July 30.

On Whole Treatment Humane, But--

Canadians Tied, Pushed, Rifle-butted, Harassed

SAIGON (CP) — "Upon my approach a pistol was put to my head and the adventure really began."

So Capt. Ian Patten of Toronto described today the beginning of a 17-day drama during which he, another Canadian and two South Vietnamese lived a gruelling jungle life as prisoners of the Viet Cong. They disappeared June 28 and were returned Sunday after lengthy negotiations.

Patten and Capt. Fletcher Thomson of Ottawa told a news conference of trekking jungle trails while bound and of being hit by rifle butts on more than one occasion. They were in the Xuan Loc area, 45 miles northeast of Saigon.

They told of daily "conversations," one five-hours long after an eight-hour trek, and sleepless nights as the Viet Cong fourth to make them confess they were not connected with the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS).

They said their captors had orders to "apprehend" ICCS personnel and told of secret signals designed to keep their morale up when they were separated.

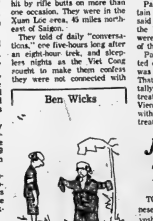
Patten said he was not only "rifle butted" and pushed around occasionally, but also kept bound for 11½ days when he refused to co-operate.

However, through the whole news conference, the men declined to condemn the Viet Cong or its Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG).

Patten mentioned only "certain personalities" and both said they were fed as well as the Viet Cong themselves and were treated humanely by most of the men.

Patten said: "I was rifle-butted on a couple of occasions. I was pushed around a little bit. That's basically the thing. Mentally, I was hurt more with the treatment that was given to the Vietnamese people that were with us. I don't mean physical treatment; I just mean the whole harassment they were getting. That bothered me more than anything."

The two Vietnamese, an interpreter and a driver, were released with Patten and Thomson. All four were with the ICCS at Xuan Loc.



Patten said he was hit once with a rifle butt when he saw Thomson sitting with a pen and paper and called out to him not to sign anything.

"Capt. Thomson was just keeping notes of what the discussion was about," Patten said. "And I was taken away to an area and given this treatment.

"On the whole we were treated humanely, with respect. But there were certain personalities—and I don't wish to say that that's a PRG trait, I think we all have those personalities—that did at times make life uncomfortable.

"We were bound on a number of occasion,' particularly on the march. On other occasions we

Japan Asks U.S. To Show Discipline

TOKYO (CP) — The Japanese foreign minister, Masayoshi Ohira, called on the United States today to "exercise an increasing degree of discipline in managing its own economy."

Ohira told the opening session of the ninth U.S.- Japan joint cabinet meeting on trade and economic affairs that Japan is greatly embarrassed by American attempts to limit the exports of logs, scrap iron and soybeans.

He also criticized U.S. "claims for import restrictions, imposition of surcharges or exercise of explicit restraint."

U.S. Secretary of State William Rogers responded with a promise. Presented into a prepared speech, that the United States would continue to be a source of dependable supply for Japan.

He added that controls on soybeans, the source of much of the protein in the Japanese diet, "will not last a day longer than is necessary."

The issue in many U.S.-Japan conferences has been a growing American deficit in trade with Japan. But Rogers acknowledged that in the first five months of 1972 the deficit had been cut by 50 per cent from last year's record $4.1 billion.

"Most of the progress to date is due to higher prices and increased Japanese commodity purchases," he said. "Further steps by Japan to remove import restrictions and to encourage a positive attitude towards imports will be necessary."

Two Freed Canadians Insist They Were Showing ICCS Flag

SAIGON (CP) — Two Canadian officers sought to assure reporters today they were really on a flag-showing trip for the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) when they were detained by the Viet Cong June 28.

Capt. Ian Patten of Toronto and Capt. Fletcher Thomson of Ottawa faced a barrage of questions about the reason for their trip in the Xuan Loc area, 45 miles northeast of here, that resulted in their detention.

The Viet Cong and its Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) charged the men were on private business not connected with the ICCS.

The Viet Cong who held the men charged them with spying and attempted to force them to sign confessions, the officers said.

They signed nothing.

Capt. Patten said one of the functions of Canadian ICCS members, particularly in his region, is travelling throughout showing the flag and talking to the people. Another is becoming familiar with the area of operations.

"I may add we have been doing that since our arrival. I may further add that we have been doing that in the area (where we were detained) prior to this."

Capt. Patten said he wanted to be "totally familiar with my area of responsibility so that if a request came in from either of the parties I would have my own mind an impression of the area.

"I can assure you if you wish to take a map and discuss any of the area with me and you look at the map I can tell you things you never will see on the map, as far as geography is concerned, as far as treelines and plantations are concerned, things you would not believe looking at a map."

Capt. Thomson, in disclaiming any other motive for the trip, said he left a partly written letter to his wife behind him at the ICCS teamsite at Xuan Loc. It told of the "teamsite familiarization trip" the men were about to take.

The letter said the teamsite had no investigations scheduled for that day and the trip would allow the officers to renew acquaintances and was a "good way to get in some fresh air and see the countryside."

Both men said they considered the area completely safe and that there had been no reports or evidence of Viet Cong activity.

Capt. Patten said the men had a good "working rapport" with militarymen and civilians in the area.

Patten said he has no doubt he had a legal right in the area.

"That was the point I made throughout our conversations (with the Viet Cong) and in fact, strangely enough, on the day I was leaving I said to the chairman—the province chief—chairman, if I return to Xuan Loc teamsite, will you accept me back out in the area I was in?

"He said 'most certainly' and I said 'thank you very much sir.'"

Service Honors Mariners

SOUTH BAY — The watchword was "ships ahoy" as old salts gathered yesterday at South Bay United Church for the annual mariners' service.

Anchored in South Bay's harbor were the brigantine Pathfinder and St. Lawrence II, the Tydand and a coast guard cutter. Crew members rowed ashore for the special service held each year in tribute to Prince Edward's sailors and fishermen, past and present.

Guest speaker was former naval chaplain Rev. Horatio Todd of Brockville.

The service opened with an invocation by Rev. J. MacRae of Prince Edward County and a scripture reading by Commodore James Plomer of Black Creek.

The roll call of sailors who have crossed the bar was read by Philip Dodds. The names included Lloyd Reddick, Charles Newman, Randall Brooks, Durward Cole, Clarence Wadforth and Malcolm Collins, a Toronto youth who drowned this month when he fell from the brigantine Pathfinder. A basket of memorial flowers was placed by Willis Metcalfe, a marine historian.

Rev. Wesley Neelands of Prince Edward offered the benediction at the close of the service.

A small marine museum built to house artifacts was opened yesterday for public inspection although it is still uncompleted. Visitors toured this building and the Mariners Park following services in the church.

Visitors Make Pilgrimage

Twenty-four members of the Legion of Mary from Norristown, Pa., have embarked on a 3,200-mile pilgrimage and will be in Kingston July 25.

The group members of the largest Roman Catholic lay organization in the world is touring Canada for 15 days. They travel in four rented station wagons with one suitcase and a sleeping bag each. The party is comprised of 13 women and 11 men, including a priest.

The visitors are spending their holidays and their own money to visit Legion of Mary centres, sharing a meal and a sing-along with as many members of the legion as they can meet along the way. They sleep in schools or church halls in centres they are visiting. The group will return to Norristown July 29.

The group will be in St. John's Parish Hall, Kingston at 7:30 July 25 and the public from this area is invited to attend.

Speaker Welcomed

Brighton Will Seek Help from Province

BRIGHTON — Village council will ask the provincial government to declare this tempest-tossed community a disaster area.

Reeve Dorothy Brintnell said M. D. Trewin, director of the municipal subsidies branch of the Ministry of Intergovernmental Affairs, Sunday inspected the damage caused by the wind storm that hit the village Friday night.

Mr. Trewin is to report to the Ontario Cabinet today, said the reeve.

Meantime, a local committee is being established to raise funds, she said. If the community is declared a disaster area, money will be matched dollar for dollar by the province.

Immediately after the storm, George Hess, MP Prince Edward-Hastings, visited the scene and said provincial and federal aid should be made available.

There has been no estimate of the damage caused as the squall plowed through the village's downtown area, damaging homes and wrecking the 90-year-old town hall.

About 100 trees, mostly maples, and many telephone and hydro poles were downed.

Sunday, as clearing operations began, sightseers streamed into the area, causing a traffic jam.

Provincial police said traffic from 10 a.m. onward made roads, - cleared only hours before as work crews labored through the night, - impassable in the village.

Appeals were broadcast to sightseers, requesting them to stay away.

Police described traffic as "unbelievable, just fantastic" and said it took them as long as 45 minutes to clear the mile-long downtown section where Highway 2 runs through the village.

It still wasn't clear what shape the storm took that hit the area.

One highways worker reported funnel-shaped clouds bearing down on the village from the northwest. But the weather office at CFB Trenton could not confirm if a twister had hit the village.

Telephone and hydro service was restored Sunday by police and emergency crews who worked throughout the weekend.

Residents were busy boarding up broken windows and gaping holes in roofs.

"It was just fantastic the amount of help that came from individuals from all parts who came with tractors and chain saws," said a police official.

Mrs. Brintnell said the community will not look the same because trees do make it look nice."

"We were very fortunate no lives were lost," she said. "Trees can always be regrown and buildings replaced."

V C Called Them Spies

did without a great deal of sleep—if we were lucky to get sleep. After an eight-hour march on one occasion, we spent over two days getting through what I will call a conversation."

"Whenever we travelled through the jungle, we were bound always to carry some kind of buck and a noose around our neck so when we moved our arms the noose would tighten around our necks.

"At a period of time when I became a little disgruntled with them and refused any cooperation, I was left bound for 1½ days.

"As time went on we were separated . . . We made arrangements for further visits and signs for happiness, joy and wives and things like that."

"Strangely enough we were informed that we were not ICCS, we were referred as Americans on intelligence missions. However, if we signed this piece of paper as ICCS members, they would recognize us as such and we would be released immediately.

"They said that as far as they were concerned, we were foreigners in their country, they could not distinguish us from Americans and if we were Americans we were on intelligence missions. They were told one of two things—part of the time they were probed by the ICCS if we would admit to going into the area illegally; failing to admit going into the area illegally, we were foreigners in that area and as such we were considered as spies."

The two men described walking grueling miles through the jungle, up and down hills, up and around mountains, fording streams—all the while hungry.

The travels took about 30 hours of their total detention.

Patten said their captors provided them with food and other necessities. There ale rice and vegetables with occasional pieces of dried meat or fish.

"We lived in very uncomfortable conditions on numerous occasions, but so did they," he said. "In the jungle we were attacked by thatch-style roof and no walls, of course. But the time we were beneath a sheet of plastic about 2 feet by 12 feet, in a hammock."

There were seldom occasions when we didn't have weapons of some kind available to us," Patten said.

He said that on nearly every day of their captivity they witnessed military activity, despite the cease-fire agreement.

"It was shelling, mortars and air strikes. I would describe it as a continuous state of harassment rather than aimed at any specific target(s)."

"We were told we were being moved for our security."

The Canadians said they were on a trip to show the ICCS presence and get to know the countryside when they were captured. They said they were visiting an area where they had been before and where they were convinced it was safe to travel.

They said elements of a passing Viet Cong regiment there April 7 and Thomson said a French plantation owner had warned him later that the Viet Cong would be in the vicinity.

On this last trip, they saw three Viet Cong slightly west of Xuan Loc. They stopped their jeep and questioned the men who were talking to plantation workers.

That's when the pistol was put to Patten's head.

"I was informed they were directed to apprehend any ICCS personnel that entered into that area—dead or less," he said.

"The reason they presented to me was that they felt there had been numerous occasions when false ICCS had come into that area conducting investigations which in fact they referred to as intelligence collection."

He said nothing they could present would convince the men that they were ICCS personnel.

Non-capital Murder Charged in Stabbing

TRENTON — It was learned today the Trenton man stabbed to death early Sunday was a corporal stationed at Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

James Robinson, 37, of 129 Front St., was pronounced dead on arrival at Trenton Memorial Hospital, said a police spokesman here.

Police have put a blanket on any information so as not to jeopardize the case, said Det. Sgt. Sidney Vickers.

Police said the victim had been stabbed in the lower abdomen but would not describe the murder weapon, other than it was a knife.

Barbara Bertha Smith, 29, of 129 Front St., will face a charge of non - capital murder in provincial court here today.

Following the incident at 1:30 a.m., Sunday, Sgt. Vickers, one of the two investigating officers, accompanied the body to the Coroner's Building in Toronto for a post-mortem.

Other evidence, including a knife, was sent to the Forensic Sciences Laboratory in Toronto.

Sgt. Vickers would not comment on the Coroner's report. He said it would be a "few days" until the report is received.

Quinte Moslems Gather To Mark Feast Day

The menu was suitably exotic — curry delicacies as Samoosas, Labasi, Channa, Akani.

But the festive occasion was also devotional spiritual.

It was the celebration of the Immamat — the high festival of Islam's Ismailia community which Sunday drew 8 9 Ugandan Asians and their guests from various Ontario centres to Belleville's Centennial Secondary School.

For the Quinte district it was the first time a Moslem holiday had been celebrated in the area. It now will be an annual occasion.

Several score Asians —most of them refugees — are now residents of the Belleville-Trenton area since their arrival last fall following the mass Uganda race exodus.

For the guests — including Mayor Hubert Jeffery — the celebration was a firsthand experience of a newly - arrived cultural influence on the Quinte scene.

But it is not a culture which remains outside the main-stream, indicated Akbarali Ismail Jiwani, president of the Belleville - Trenton Ismailia community, in the program's keynote address.

"One of the traditions by which we live is to remain loyal to the country and its rulers and to support it in every way as its law-abiding citizens," said Mr. Mawani.

For Moslem Ismailis — now numbered at 20 million around the world — their religious heritage is personified by their Imam (Spiritual leader), the Aga Khan. Immamat Day is the anniversary of his enthronement as the 49th Imam. The observance reaffirms the spiritual loyalty of Ismailis to their Imam to the Aga Khan, and thus to their religious beliefs.

The present Aga Kan now is in his 18th year in office. Many of his whose traditions have secular as well as religious influences for its followers.

The celebration culminated in yesterday's feast at which several women of the Ismailia community toiled much of Saturday night, preparing the Asian - style food. The menu included curries and rations on dishes which in Canadian cooking might be identified as chicken a la king, beef in pastry, curried beans.

Friends and relatives of the community came from Ottawa, Kingston and Cobourg for the celebrations.

Also among the guests were John Eckert, Ontario co-ordinator of Canada Manpower's settlement program for expelled Ugandan Asians, and James Staveley, Manpower Belleville counselor who supervises the program locally.

Troubleshooting Contest Winners Are Honored

HILLIER — Two Hillier area youths, David Leslie and Randy Tarrwell, were guests of honor at a reception in the township hall Saturday night when they were saluted as champions of the Chrysler National Troubleshooting competitions. The team was sponsored by Roblin Motors Ltd. of Picton.

Students at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, the winners were coached by PECI teacher Robert Fagan, also a guest of honor.

The reception planned by the communities of Melville and Consecon opened with musical entertainment provided by Clare McFaul, chairman of the Prince Edward Board of education, and Warrener McFaul of Hillier.

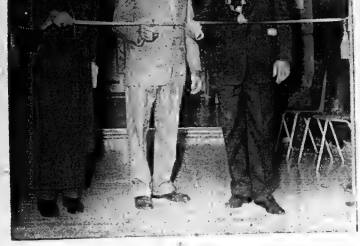
Among the officials called to the head table were George Hees, MP Prince Edward-Hastings; James Taylor, M P P Prince Edward — Lennox, Harvey E. McFarland, mayor of Picton, Hillier reeve Lewis Wight, Prince Edward County warden Russell Thompson and Lawrence Roblin of Roblin Motors Ltd., Picton.

Other head table guests included Richard Munn, vice-principal of PECI; Clare McFaul, chairman of the county board of education; Milton Snider, retired principal of Wellington Consolidated School, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Leslie and Mr. and Mrs. I. Tarrwell and Bruce Ketcheson of Consecon.

George Hees, MP Prince Edward-Hastings, remarked that volton to a goal coupled with hard work had enabled both youths to reach their championship. He predicted that they would enjoy a similar success in other endeavors because of their initiative.

Bruce Ketcheson, a classmate of the team members, introduced them to guests as two young boys whose interests changed as they grew older and eventually turned to "wheels." He said that on buses to and from PECI he often had discussed cars and snowmobiles with them and had observed a continued increase in their knowledge of mechanics.

Head table guests agreed that PECI should be proud of its two champs, who took their final victory in Winnipeg last month.



As tangible evidence of the communities' recognition of the youths, cheques from Melville and Consecon were presented to them. Hillier township also read a presentation, as did Prince Edward County, Chrysler dealer and sponsor for the team, Lawrence Roblin, also gave each youth a cheque in recognition of their work as did Picton mayor H. J. McFarland. Mayor McFarland presented five-pound cheeses to team coach Robert Fagan and to the parents of the troubleshooters.

At the close of the evening a luncheon was served by the sponsors of Recognition Night.

Troubleshooters Honored

Two 17-year-old youths were honored at a reception given Saturday night by the communities of Melville and Consecon to mark their win in the Chrysler National Troubleshooting contest held last month in Winnipeg. Receiving their awards from James Taylor, MPP for Prince Edward-Lennox and George Hees, MP for Prince Edward-Hastings are David Leslie, next to Mr. Taylor and Randy Tarrwell.

Museum Opens

A ribbon - cutting ceremony followed by a tour of inspection marked the official opening yesterday of the Prince Edward County Museum. Watching warden Russell Thompson cut the ribbon are Bishop J. B. Creeggan, left and Mayor Harvey McFarland of Picton.

Ceremonies, Dignitaries, Open P.E. County Museum

PICTON — The Prince Edward County museum, a long term project initiated by county council in 1969 was opened officially yesterday at an open air service attended by more than 250 persons.

The ribbon was cut by county warden Russell Thompson flanked by George Hees, MP Prince Edward-Hastings and Rt. Rev. J. B. Creeggan, Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario.

Also looking on were Picton mayor H. J. McFarland and James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox.

Mr. Hees, chairman for the opening services, observed that the county museum provides "a delightful setting for the relics of our very distinguished past in this county."

He added that too frequently the artifacts of olden days are not preserved and children are robbed of the opportunity to know how their forefathers lived.

County warden Russell Thompson told visitors attending yesterday's opening that the museum is not yet completed and additions and changes will be made. exhibits will be changed periodically.

Warden Thompson gave special mention to former deputy-reeve of Sophiasburgh, Roy Brooks who contributed greatly to plans for the museum in its initial stages.

James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox, observed that "a driving force" is needed to bring results and urged continuing community participation in the museum project.

Historian and curator of the Fort Henry museum in Kingston, Ronald Way, said that he has made the preservation and interpretation of Canada's history his entire career. He feels that a people that does not respect and preserve its past cannot cope with the present or plan for the future.

The Rt. Rev. J. B. Creeggan Bishop of the Diocese of. Ontario told visitors the Old St. Mary Magdalene Church now a county museum, was built in 1823 by Rev. Wm. Macaulay.

The last regular service was held there in 1934 but annual memorial services were continued until 1967.

The old church, badly in need of repair, was turned over to the county for use as a museum in November, 1969, for the sum of $1.

The Diocese of Ontario contributed $1,000 and the Church of St. Mary Magdalene $1,300 to see the old building preserved as a museum.

County warden Russell Thompson cut the ribbon officially opening the museum. The public was invited to tour the two-storey building free of charge to view its displays. Curator is Mrs. Jack Welsman.

African Atrocity?

We hold no brief for either the Portuguese in their African colonies of Angola and Mozambique or for the guerilla bands seeking to overthrow that country's long - standing colonial rule. But if reports of atrocities by Portuguese troops against innocent black villagers in Mozambique are true it will surely weaken the Lisbon government's position there and cast a cloud over its relations with other countries.

Especially is this true of Britain. Portugal has long been known as Britain's oldest ally, but even before the atrocity reports began creating strains in relations between the two countries had been tempered somewhat by Portugal's continued grip on its two African colonies. Now the allegations of an English Roman Catholic priest, based, he contends, on documented information from Spanish priests, have shocked British and world opinion. There is always the possibility such allegations were trumped up by agents of the guerrilla organizations, particularly with a visit to Britain by the Portuguese prime minister in the offing, but this seems unlikely. Four hundred men, women and children were reported slain in one village alone. Detailed descriptions of the slaughter, appearing in The Times of London, and based on the testimony of the priests, spoke of hideous acts of killing by the troops.

One eyewitness of the aftermath is reported to be the Rev. Cesar Augusto, Bishop of Tete in Mozambique, who flew by helicopter over the scene of one massacre and claims he saw the bodies.

We would like to think no such massacres occurred, but in the absence of any firm denials, it is difficult not to take these men at their word.

Another Challenger

Bobby Riggs has kicked off the preliminary war of nerves of his forthcoming challenge match with Billy Jean King by saying, "Man is king . . . not Billy Jean."

Man . . . there is the aging little tennis ace — he is 55 — at his prickly best!

Not that Mrs. King, who at 29 calls herself "the old lady" of tennis, is in any way fazed. She says she is now ready for him, allowing that she thrives under pressure.

The five times Wimbledon women's champion will need to have it all together — both her game and temperament — if she is to upset the canny Riggs whose slow game and relentless accuracy wore down opponents when Mrs. King was just a little girl.

Riggs was the perfect gentleman when he beat Australian Margaret Court recently, but he may decide the more temperamental Mrs. King fair game for his special brand of gamesmanship ,including a little needling.

Should Mrs. King lose, it will be a bad day for the Women's Lib movement as a whole, but they did for Mrs. Court. For the rest of us it is another fascinating chapter in Riggs' new-found lease of life as a challenger of the ladies.

A Canadian Champion

Glenda Reiser, 18-year-old track star from Ottawa has brought Canada some unaccustomed fame with her world record run in the mile. She covered the distance in 4:34.9 at the Pacific International Games in Victoria. Her time was one half second better than the mark held by Ellen Tiddell of West Germany. A fine effort indeed, and it is exciting indeed that we have in our midst a real champion when for many years our track athletes have had to take a back seat at international meetings.

Bomb Tests

Instead of all those assorted vessels with anti-bomb groups aboard going into the French test area in the South Pacific, why don't the Australians and New Zealanders mount a larger joint operation than the supply vessel and frigate now in the area? They could carry out joint naval manoeuvres, including practice drills of which the French might find distracting enough to give them pause from the deadly business of setting off nuclear bombs and poisoning the atmosphere.

Whitelaw Holds Whip Hand in Ulster Politics

Orange Parades No Longer Protestant Show of Strength

By KEVIN DOYLE

LONDON (CP) — Thousands of Orangemen have again marched through the town and cities of Northern Ireland to commemorate the historic battle of the Boyne, which once established Protestant ascendancy through the length and breadth of Ulster.

But this year there was little to celebrate apart from that ancient skirmish on a muddy, shagpish river 283 years ago when Protestant Prince William of Orange defeated the forces of Catholic King James II.

Behind the Loyalist Union Jacks and bright orange banners, a deepening sense of gloom seemed to pervade the July 12 festivities which no amount of optimistic speech-making or confident reassurances could dispel.

The hope that Ulster Protestants for a restoration of the old Stormont Parliament, dominated by the Unionist party, has been dashed by another William, Britain's Secretary for Northern Ireland, William Whitelaw.

The minister announced before the celebrations began that a new Ulster Assembly, with limited authority and in which Catholics will play a major part, is to meet for the first time July 30 if appropriate legislation can be passed quickly by Westminster.

For a vast number of Protestants, the new power-sharing assembly represents a first step on the road to an eventual reunification of Northern Ireland with the predominantly-Catholic Irish Republic to the south.

The protestant political forces are in disarray. The united front of Protestants presented history by bitter 'internal feuding among factions led by former premier Brian Faulkner and radicals such as William Craig and Ian Paisley.

In the new assembly, Faulkner and his Unionist party will have only a slight edge in seats over the Catholic Social Democratic and Labor Party (SDLP) and will have to count on getting some kind of support from Craig and Paisley to survive.

But Faulkner's ideal of maintaining Ulster's links with Britain and making the assembly work is anathema to Craig and Paisley, both of whom are determined to render the legislative body ineffective. Craig sees an independent Ulster as the only means of protecting Protestant interests.

Most Protestants had hoped — and many firmly believed — that there would be strong enough to force the British government to revive its plans for establishing the relatively-weak assembly and to restore Stormont, dissolved in March, 1972.

But their confidence has been shattered by Whitelaw who has made it painfully clear that, for the moment at least, he has the firmest grip on the reins of authority.

His power to force Protestant acceptance with British plans is threefold.

In the first place, he will have effective authority for handing out the jobs for "ministries" in the new assembly and by using that power judiciously can probably compel Protestants to take part rather than see direction of the assembly fall into mainly Catholic hands.

More important, he can threaten to withdraw all of the generous supplies of financial aid which flow annually to Ulster from Britain unless representatives like Craig and Paisley give their full co-operation.

Finally, Whitelaw holds the ace of the continued presence of nearly 17,000 British troops in Ulster. He might, as a last resort, threaten to begin withdrawing the forces if the Protestants refuse to follow his plans.

With the outlawed Irish Republican Army still an active force throughout Northern Ireland, the threat of taking the protection of British forces appears almost certainly to be enough to bring Ulster's Protestants could tolerate.

Gold—and Common Stock—Are Fairly Sure Bets

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Let's say you're a typical Canadian sadist, and the headliner have you worried about your personal finances.

You are more or less settled in 3 career. Nicely accumulated some assets, and want to preserve them—or, better still, achieve some growth. Where should you turn?

What about gold, the metal that makes front-page news every day? If you had bought $10,000 in gold as recently as two months ago, your investment would be worth about $15,000 today.

Not bad. But remember that these past two months have seen the near-total collapse of a 20-year-old international monetary system that tied gold officially to the U.S. dollar.

Most all that remains of the old system in the agreement among the major industrial countries that they will refrain from selling their central gold holdings. (Those holdings have an "official" value of $40 U.S. an ounce, compared with a free-market price of about $125.)

Suppose even that agreement were to collapse, and the various central banks were to start dumping their gold on the market and taking profits. The price of gold could easily fall to below the level of two months ago.

Gold, then, is an exciting speculation, with big risks to match big potential gains.

If you want to lend your cash, you'll get a high rate of return today—whether in bonds, mortgages or long-term trust-company instruments.

But some money men think interest rates are likely to go still higher. If they do, the market value of the bond you buy today will decline correspondingly.

If you invested $1,000 in the bellwether 4½ per cent Government of Canada 1983 bonds when they were issued in 1958, the value of your investment has fallen to about $785 solely because of the rise in interest rates. But if you hang on another 10 years, you'll get back your $1,000 at maturity.)

How about stocks? Prices have fallen drastically since the record highs of January. One reason is the rise of recession, and another is a widespread lack of confidence in the Nixon administration's ability to do anything constructive about the U.S. economy.

Prices have fallen so much, however, that many investment advisers are saying that now is the time to pick up bargains. In so doing, however, the problems and acknowledging that caution is advisable, we believe that carefully selected common-stock investments make good sense at the present time," says Jan Seyffied, director of research at Merrill Lynch, Royal Securities Ltd., Toronto.

One source of buying strength, could be overseas-based multinational enterprises, seeking to buy up control of North American companies on the open market, now that the dollar is so cheap relative to overseas currencies.

Real estate has a good record of capital appreciation—but buy proven locations, and ignore high-powered promotions for p a i m-fringed properties in places you have never seen. Remember, too, that if you have to borrow to buy, mortgage rates are high.

Finally, there's money itself. You could protect your cash, in these times of wildly-fluctuating exchange rates, by holding equal parts in, say, dollars, German marks, Swiss francs, Japanese yen and possibly other currencies.

Then, whatever happens to money, you'd have a piece of the action.

The first atomic bomb was exploded 28 years ago today—in 1945—above the desert near the Almagordo Air Force Base in New Mexico. The event remained a closely guarded $1 billion secret even after the announcement that the first two atomic bombs had been dropped on the Japanese cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. On Aug. 6, 1945, Hiroshima suffered 70,000 dead and 68,000 injured from a bomb equal in power to 20,000 tons of TNT. Three days later Nagasaki was hit and 39,000 persons were killed.

1851—Leopold III, King of the Belgians, abdicated.

1947—Fifteen men were killed when the RCN destroyer and a freighter collided in Halifax harbor in heavy fog.

1931—Haile Selassie proclaimed Ethopia's first constitution.

1880—The city of New Westminster, B.C., was incorporated.

1821—Mary Baker Eddy, the founder of the Christian Science movement, was born.

U.S. Army Deserter's Praise for Canada

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

As a U.S. Army deserter who has been in Canada for almost five years, I look back on those years with great appreciation to the Government of Canada and the (then) Minister of Manpower and Immigration, Allan MacEachen.

All I can say is "thanks"; for allowing myself and others like myself to come to this beautiful country as a refuge from policies of a government we weren't prepared to support — for whatever our individual motivations were.

At the time we made the personal decisions to cross the 49th Parallel, each and every draft dodger and deserter had to carefully weigh in his own mind what the move would entail in terms of his future lifestyle and "freedom".

I'm sure that every American military resister knew that coming to Canada "wasn't exactly America" — goodbye to places, people and things that we grew up with and loved, and that his farewell would be forever.

Anybody who cares here not thinking that it would be a permanent move should not have come here! These are the people that are, in most cases, contributing absolutely nothing to Canada.

I looked at my coming to Canada as a "re-birth" process. The day I received my Landed Immigrant status, was, to me, "the first day of the rest of my life". Anything that had previously happened was painfully but determinedly forgotten and I pushed on toward the future of my life as a Canadian.

Canada has shown itself to be a vast country with a worthy culture, and a place where I can lead a peaceful life of contentment and personal achievement and satisfaction.

(As an interjection, I cannot for the life of me understand why anyone would prefer life in terse, strife-ridden, violent, corrupt American society — as compared to the life available in Canada.

It was not, in my mind, an act of cowardice to seek asylum up and move to Canada. It was a conviction that took a good deal of guts to reach and implement.

And to now say: "The war is over. Give us amnesty! We want to go home!" This is cowardice to me; not being able to stick to a conviction. (Could it possibly be that the amnesty advocates were cowards in coming here, using the sympathetic aid of the good feelings of Canadians as a scapegoat for their own weakness?)

Canada was an alternative to every person of draft age in America at the time, and that is us chose it. Most of us, I'm sure, have no regrets about the made that choice.

But if there are those who don't feel they are better for it, get rid of them. Let them go back to America and do jail five years, be released from incarceration and get mugged on the streets at night.

I personally think that all the draft dodgers and deserters should be interested in Amnesty prosecution organizations would be better spent on the Committee for an Independent Canada — something similar.

A. DAVID LEWIS,
Toronto.

Housing Policy

By DON O'HEARN

As was mentioned yesterday, John Munro, treasurer and minister of inter-governmental services is back at the grindstone trying to develop a policy on housing.

In addition to this, Mr. White has another immediate task.

He must decide whether his portfolio is to be carved up.

A year and a half ago when the government was reorganized as a result of recommendations by the minister on government productivity, the most criticized action was the incorporation of the old department of municipal affairs into the treasury.

Even though COGP had recommended this, practical experience in the field in government felt it was just too much responsibility for one man to take.

The treasurer was given first order and then two parliamentary assistants to help him, but even so, quite a bit of work has gone through in the new ministry.

Most notably in the area of overseas, a somewhat stronger attack than any other minister at the moment.

And in both the energy tax and planning legislation there is the harder battles—he seemed somewhat unprepared.

Whether he will survive that the house was sitting, there was considerable criticism from the opposition that he was trying to do too much with a demand that his portfolio should be split up.

Finally in the last week of the session, Premier Davis acknowledged this to the extent that he said a reorganization of the ministry was likely.

The treasurer himself, he said, would study the question immediately after the session and would make recommendations to the cabinet at that time.

At the same time, the premier said, he was not backing down on the new shape of government resulting from the 1971 election.

Other jurisdictions, he predicted, would be watching.

The plan, which saw groups of related ministries grouped, together into three secretariats, actually doesn't seem to be working out too badly.

There is the appearance, at least, of more co-ordination.

The only ones really concerned would seem to be the three secretaries concerned: A. R. B. Lawrence, Robert Welch and George Kerr.

And with them it is a lack of public exposure.

Supposedly among the top half-dozen men in the cabinet, they have little chance to show themselves to the public doing anything important.

Women Golfers

Ottawa Journal

It is passing strange to observe the quick upsurge of interest among the golf crowd in the ladies' professional golf tournaments — so much interest in fact that in a few clubhouses and probably a few executive suites there are now heated arguments about whether the family would watch young Johnny Miller's amazing run on the U.S. Open or Jocelyne Bourassa's bid for La Canadienne championship in Montreal.

The Canadian acceptance of the female pros (somehow "proettes" seems degrading to such excellent athletes) has a surprising number of sports veterans like Carol Mann, who admitted being nervous before such large crowds. It is to be hoped that the interest is more than chauvinistic. Miss Bourassa is first a fine athlete and second a Canadian. Besides what golfer cannot be impressed with 250 yard drives and such picture golf swings — and who wouldn't be happy playing like that?

Province Will Subsidize Home

Organizers of the Cheshire Home for handicapped adults here have received approval in principle from the ministry of community and social services for a capital grant and continued financial support of the home.

Wilf Wilkinson, Trenton accountant who is chairman of the committee organizing the home, said the ministry has indicated in a letter that it is "prepared to assist" the project. The government is expected to give a capital grant of $12,000 under the Charitable Institutions Act for down payment on the house now under option. Continuing government assistance for operation of the home is expected to be about $180 a month for each resident, if the resident also contributes his $90 a month disability pension.

Next step is a meeting July 20 between the committee and the Belleville Cheshire Home and the ministry architect.

Organizers hope the home will be ready to receive the first residents in the fall. It is expected up to 16 will be accommodated when the project is completed.

Kingston A Stop On Choir Tour

The Internationally celebrated English choir of King's College, Cambridge, will perform in Kingston in September during a 12-day tour of Eastern Canada.

The choir, with 28 singers all under the age of 22, is visiting North America for the David Willcocks.

The King's College Choir has headquarters at Kings College, one of 34 individual colleges comprising Cambridge University, the traditional rival of Oxford University.

The choir tour opens officially on Sept. 2 with a concert at St. George's Cathedral. Tickets have been available since June 28 at $4 each and can be purchased from the cathedral office on Wellington Street or by mail from Box 475, Kingston. A daytime performance by the choir will be heard in Kingston on Sunday, Sept. 2 after leaving the Limestone City the choir will sing in Toronto, London, Ottawa, Montreal, Halifax and Charlottetown. It will return to England on Sept. 16.

Organized in 1446, the choir includes only the finest singers. Members are carefully chosen from applicants throughout England. All are Cambridge University.

The choir's world-wide recognition is attibuted to its famed director, David Willcocks, who has acted in this capacity for 15 years.

Under his direction the choir has made more than 100 records. Each Christmas Eve it makes a live television appearance to sing the Ceremony of Nine Lessons and Carols, broadcast throughout the world.

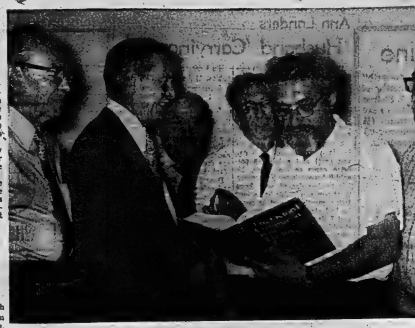
Mr. Willcocks will make his final tour with the choir this fall, as he has accepted a post as director of the Royal College of Music in London and will be leaving his job at Cambridge.

With Mr. Willcocks, the choir has toured Europe on many occasions and in 1972 visited Africa.

Tourist Council Seeks Attractions

TWEED (Special) — The Highlands of Hastings Tourist Council wants to meet with ARDA and county council representatives to find suitable tourist attractions for the county.

Doug Storey, president of the Tweed Chamber of Commerce, said some discussion has been held about the possibility of establishing a provincial park somewhere in the county.



At the July meeting of the Tourist Council in Madoc it was reported that Tweed Winter Carnival will be held Feb. 8 through 10, 1974. The Coe Hill Sports Club has asked that Feb. 13 and 14 be reserved for its carnival.

Play Postponed

PICTON — A performance of The Odd Couple by Picton Area Players has been postponed because of illness in the cast.

The play, scheduled to open Thursday at the County Centre, will begin its three-day run instead of Thursday, July 19 at 8 p.m.

The Picton Area Players are funded by an Opportunities for Youth Grant.

Signing Off - For Now

Lee Jourard (accepting farewell trunk gift) is surrounded by veteran Radio Station CJBQ staffers as he takes leave of 23 years as broadcaster and station program director to launch community television programming later this year. With Mr. Jourard, (from left) are J. H. Macdonald, station manager Frank Murray, Phil Flagler, Mack Buchanan and Jack Devine.

Many Riders but Few Trails

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

A Project SWEEP crew (Students Working in an Environmental Enhancement Program) is backing its way through the underbrush at the Macaulay Mountain conservation site to clear space for a pond. Other enthusiastic community groups already have cut away trees and brush to form ski trails for the winter sportsman.

For the biker, the Quinte Trail was beaten out of the wilderness with what became a gold handled hatchet.

In Picton the Quinte's Isle Swimming Pool Committee continues to meet in an effort to organize plans for a community pool.

Tennis has become popular and a court has been erected at Benson Hall Park. In other communities such as Wellington, courts have been set up in the schoolyard.

Recreation is no longer something to do when one is not doing anything else. It's programmed enjoyment of leisure time necessary as a break from the rat race.

In Prince Edward this need for recreational facilities has been recognized for skiers, snowmobilers, hikers, swimmers, and many other sportsmen, save for the horseman.

Today's horse owner in Prince Edward can find it extremely difficult to enjoy his sport in safety and without contravening rules.

Although bikers are welcomed at both Sandbanks and Outlet provincial parks, horseback riding is not permitted there because of reforestation programs under way. This restriction is a fair one but it does eliminate an area that could offer safe and scenic trail rides.

At the Macaulay Mountain conservation site, horseback riders are allowed to enjoy a Sunday outing but the ground is rough and much of it unsuitable for riding. There are no marked trails that a rider might follow.

Picton fairgrounds offers a half mile track where a horse could be schooled or ridden for pleasure but other sports are continually in progress in the infield. Should a rider attempt a brisk winter gallop he could be sabotaged by a snowmobiler.

In the summer months, home runs from a baseball diamond in the infield jeopardize the horseman and his mount. Similarly if a rider works his horse at the edge of the diamond, the footprints left behind could be deep enough to create a hazard for ball players.

Rural Prince Edward certainly offers dozens of scenic rides if the horseman can pilot his mount among motorcycles, mini - bikes, barking dogs, speeding motorists who honk their horns and bicycles.

A Picton resident complained in the press some weeks ago because she observed a child riding his horse on the sidewalk. The resident's surprise is understandable but considering the hazards in the street, the youngster's action might be forgiven.

Prince Edward County has at least four riding clubs, all with large memberships and a drive through the countryside can show the motorist dozens of horses and ponies in farm fields. The horse is "in" with the young and not so young.

In Picton many residents have converted garage, shed and old barns to house a horse or pony. Some have rented stalls at the Picton fairground barns.

Trail riding is enjoyed by most horse owners and, with today's emphasis on recreation in the country, thought should be given to a few properly mapped rides through scenic countryside.

Horse owners might consider meeting to discuss their individual needs and the needs of their clubs for this type of riding, then approach the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority with their ideas.

Use of the fairgrounds track is possible for snowmobilers, motorists and cyclists. Possibly horsemen seeking to enjoy this facility could arrange for a week day of unrivalled pleasure.

It would seem the community has potential for horseback trails and schooling sites if horsemen have the desire and ambition to develop them.

Obituaries and Funerals

RICKY ALLAN WOOD

THOMAS RUSSELL VANNESS

Kaladar

A double funeral was held July 3 for two youths who drowned in the Smokematts River, east of Flinton at Virgar's Creek, June 30, 1973.

Ricky Allan Wood, 14, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Wood of Hill, Kaladar. Thomas Russell Vanness, 15, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Vanness of Kaladar.

The funeral was held from Hannah Funeral Home, Tamworth, in the Northbrook Pentecostal Church where Rev. Newton officiated at the 2 p.m. service.

In addition to his parents Ricky Wood is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Arla Wood of Northbrook; Melvin of Belleville, Hilda Gaylord of Oshawa and Kenneth, David, Rodney, Nancy, Cliff, Gwendolyn and Cheryl, all of Kaladar.

Thomas Vanness is survived by his parents and a sister, Mrs. Carolyn Hayes, all of Kaladar.

Interment was in North brook Cemetery and bearers were Doug Scott, Shawn Thomlison, Archie Parks, Glen McArthur, Ronald Neal and Steve Thompson.

MRS. W. A. CURTIS

The funeral for Mrs. Mary Ellen Curtis was held Thursday from St. James' Anglican Church, Tweed.

Mrs. Curtis died July 9 at Kingston General Hospital after a four-week illness. She was in her 68th year.

Born in Rednersville, but a resident of Tweed for the past 34 years, Mrs. Curtis is survived by her husband, William A. Curtis, and sons Norman, of Harrowsmith and Charles of Orangeville. A son, Lyle, predeceased her.

Brothers Bill Gemmill of Grass Valley, California; Robert Gemmill of Superior, Wisconsin; Stanley Gemmell of Henderson, Nevada; Cecil Gemmill of Brub, Wisconsin, and sisters Elsie Greener of Corsicagan, Wisconsin, Irene Hopkins of Belleville, Maryland; Mae Kemp, Ruth Olson Brule, Wisconsin also survive her.

President of the Anglican Church Women and vice-president of the Tweed Senior Citizen Club Mrs. Curtis was interred at White Lake Cemetery.

Rev. Virgil Earle conducted the service at St. James Anglican church.

Wesley Hamilton, Arthur McCarey, Joel Lemke, and grandsons Paul, David and Anthony acted as bearers.

JOSEPH HUNTER

Funeral service for Joseph Hunter was held Thursday at the Thompson Funeral Chapel with interment in Belleville Cemetery.

Rev. Leslie Dean conducted the service while a graveside service by the local members of the United Transportation Union was directed by John Knott and Bernard Meagher.

Bearers were James Ransom, Norman Ransom, Robert Hunter, William Hunter, Leslie Lemmor, Dwight Welsh.

Quinte Cuisine

Sharon Skelly likes to try "down-to-earth" recipes. Wife of Howard Skelly and mother of Raymond, 14, Tina, 12, and Michael, 11, Sharon says she enjoys trying new recipes but they have to be sensible for her. Chopped mushrooms (½ can) or chopped green peppers (one-quarter c.) may be added to Sharon's spaghetti meatballs.

Spaghetti Meat Balls

1 tin tomato juice (48 ounces)
1 tin tomato soup (10 ounces each)
1 can Hunts tomato paste
25 ounces water to above mixture chopped onion and chopped celery (About ½ cup each) add to sauce
add spices to taste: oregano leaves, crushed chilis, gatuso parmesan cheese, salt, pepper, Italian seasoning.
Add together for sauce.
Cook at whatever thickness you wish.

Method for meat balls:
1½ lb. ground chuck
three-quarters cup oatmeal
1 egg
salt and pepper
Mix well. Make meatballs by hand. Fry in iron fry pan. Brown well on both sides. Add to juice and simmer, till serving time (couple of hours).

Nun Finds Apartment 'Extraordinary'

DOVER, N.H. (AP) — Things that seem ordinary to most career women are extraordinary to Jeanne Gardner, a former Roman Catholic nun who left the convent because, she said, she found it "dull."

For the first time in her life, she is financially independent. Her apartment is filled with bright clothes, skiing and sailing equipment. She goes out at night with both male and female friends.

Jeanne Gardner is 46 years old but she thinks her current lifestyle just 10 months ago.

For 22 years before that, she was a nun.

Now she is assistant professor of education at the University of New Hampshire in Durham. She is strong-willed and dedicated to teaching.

"I have been accused of being powerful, overwhelming," Dr. Gardner said. "A male-oriented society just can't accept that. I have my feet on the ground and it's not always appreciated."

She left the Sisters of Mercy Convent in Cumberland, R.I., last August when she realized she couldn't resolve the questions she had about herself and her tatus in the order.

"I think the direction of my life changed because the direction of education and church have changed. It doesn't mean that I'm turned off on the church. That has nothing to do with it at all.

"It's just that my dedication to education is stronger at this point than my dedication to service in the church."

As teaching nun, Miss Gardner said she often felt thwarted by the religious community.

"I saw myself doing some different things in the community if they would let me," she said. "As time went on, it became much more obvious they weren't going to let me."

Miss Gardner earned a master's degree from Rhode Island College and a doctorate from the University of Connecticut while she was still in the order.

"My belief in the church has not changed," she said. "My stand on birth control very definitely has. I still can't accept abortion but that is for my own personal reasons. I think the church would not be in the position that it's in concerning abortion if it had realistically looked at the birth-control issue.

"I'm not sorry for that 22 year phase of my life. I think I gained as much from it as they gained from me.

"But admittedly there is a need for other kinds of companionship that were not available in the church."

Successful Living

Dogs Smarter Than Men?

It should shame us to learn that dogs can be trained to lead a blind man faster than a blind man can be trained to follow his dog's lead. The dog is called man's best friend; yet we axe dogs so much abused and so little appreciated?

There are exceptions, of course. Lord Byron raised a monument to his pet dog Boatswain and wrote this touching epitaph:

"Here lie the remains of one who possessed beauty without insolence, courage without ferocity, and all the virtues of man without his vices." — CCS Outlook

Dear Doris: My son started school five years ago, an average normal 6½-year-old; his only fault was he was sensitive.

His teacher told me there was no such thing as a sensitive child, also told my son he wasn't all there, and constantly told him he could not do this or that (example: he couldn't learn to ride a two-wheel bike! — He did, no thanks to her!) And as for teaching him, he learned more at home.

Doctors said it was the classroom and the teacher. He was on medication for eight months.

Two years ago I started him at another scool. He rewrote his grades two and three with no problems and the teacher couldn't understand why he didn't pass before. She is concerned about next year as grade four is much harder. But he is a different boy than he was two years ago; he relaxed, can take teasing and is a normal boy.

His teacher and I believe he has an ability to go ahead, if he would apply himself; it's like he is still afraid.

Would the book "Learning to Learn" be of any help to him? — Just Mum

Dear Mum: Why wouldn't he be afraid? It is hard to erase those early impressions — especially when every word that issues from the mouth of someone you are counting on is a discouragement. Why a woman with such a negative attitude to children would have chosen to teach is beyond me. The very essence of a good teacher is encouragement and praise.

"Learning to Learn" would be right up his alley. In easy words this text talks directly to the students, helping them to see why it is a good idea to try; and getting across the idea that they do have some brain power there; that the trick is to use it properly. I'm sending you information about how to get a copy.

Confidential to Curious: Lesbianism occurs in varying degrees and it is not always easy to identify it. Homosexualism in either men or women may be started at a very young age.

Sometimes the victim has had some early childhood experience which has made him or her tend to reject the opposite sex and to turn to the victim's own sex — mother or father — for comfort and love.

Whether anything can be done for such people depends on whether they recognize their problem and just how strongly set are their emotional habit patterns. If they have not been too severely damaged emotionally, a psychiatrist may be able to help them readjust to heterosexual behavior.

It would not be wise for you to barge in on a family situation and to disclose to anyone what is at this point merely hearay.

Ann Landers

Husband 'Carrying On'

Dear Ann Landers: I am only 21 years old and have been married five years. My husband, who is 27, is carrying on with our babysitter. She is 18. I became suspicious when it took him an hour and a half to drive her home. She lives six blocks from here.

I found motel room receipts in his pockets (how dumb can you get?) and a bill for perfume came to the house. He said it bought it for his mother. His mother doesn't even know what perfume is. We had a long talk a month ago and he swore he had stopped seeing the girl and I thought it was settled. I should have known better. He is such a liar I can't get a straight sentence out of him. Divorce is out of the question. Our religion allows one marriage, busy or not.

The girl is considered a minor in this state. Can I do anything through the courts to break them up?—Only His Wife

Dear Only: You could have your husband put in jail, but what good would that do? My advice is to get some counseling and decide if you want to share bed and board with the bum. The church doesn't insist that you live with a man who acts rotten. Interesting that this girl is exactly the age you were when you married him. If you'd like to write another letter for 16-year-olds who think they're mature enough to get married, be my guest.

Dear Ann Landers: Four years ago we moved to Albuquerque. We have a lovely adobe house with a spacious back yard and the air is fresh and invigorating. My parents, who live in a small apartment in the heart of Newark, have been driving out every August to spend a week with us. Before they pull up they always stop at a market, load the car with steaks, chops, fruits, vegetables and canned goods. They also insist on taking us to dinner at a fine restaurant the night before they leave. One could hardly call them free-loaders.

My husband, Karl, starts knocking them mid-July. After they leave I have to listen to his small digs for another two weeks. Neither Mom nor Dad has an ounce of malice in them. They are lovely, big-hearted people. I can't understand why Karl dislikes them.

His folks are a couple of sour apples. At the wedding his father and mother shook hands with me. I have never seen them this anyone. (I often wondered how they happened to produce Karl.) We have invited them to visit us a dozen times but they are too cheap to make the trip.

Karl is beginning to complain about my folks because they are due here in a few weeks. What shall I say to him?—Mae

Dear Mae: Save your pipes and enjoy that lovely New Mexico air. Nothing you say will make any difference.

That poor fish was probably hatched in a tank of ice-water and doesn't know what it is to have a warm family relationship. He resents yours, which is why he keeps chipping away at it. Tune him out, honey.

Who Wants To Learn From Experience: This is one experience you can live without. I am dead set against any mind-altering drug. Your friend has been very fortunate. I hope she doesn't push her luck. Flashbacks can occur as late as several months after the dosage.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Wilson of RR2, Stirling are pleased to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter Caroline Eunice to Duane Wilton Dryden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Dryden, of Belleville. The marriage will take place in Emanuel United Church, Foxboro on Saturday, July 28 at one o'clock.

Your Legal Rights and Responsibilities

Giving free legal advice in Belleville means more than talking phone calls and talking. Elaine McCallum, second year student in law school at Queen's University and Ben Van Huizen, third year law student, read past cases in law books involving similar legalities to their clients' problems.

Women and Law

Elaine McCallum, a second-year law student at Queen's University, is one of 10 students — two women — giving free legal advice at Belleville's United Community Services Legal Aid office.

Elaine says she's learned a lot about practical law from her job. In school, she's learned concepts in law. Most law cases that set precedents, says Elaine, involve a lot of money and really don't apply to average cases. Whereas with her present job, cases in specific law are more interesting and deal with people. Being a woman, Mrs. McCallum has also learned about laws specifically involving women.

"Maybe I'm just more sensitive because I'm a woman," says Elaine, "but there are certain laws just for women, some good, some bad."

According to the Married Women's Property Act that appeared in late 1800s, women can now not only own property, but they may also sue their husbands for property damage. If a woman's car is damaged by her husband, he may be sued. But if the husband's car is damaged by his wife, she may not be sued by him.

The Dower Act states a widow has a right to one-third of her deceased husband's legal property even if he doesn't own it.

Whereas the Devalution of Estates Act allows widows to receive $20,000 off the top and then the remaining share are equally divided.

Most widows prefer the latter.

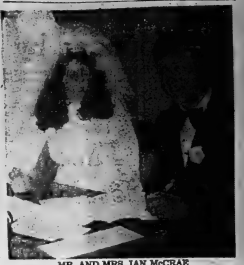
A woman cannot consent to have her son or daughter married under 18 years of age. Only father may consent.

According to law, when a woman is deserted by her husband she may collect maintenance or support for herself and her family.

If she leaves on her own accord, maintenance only for her family is received.

The Canadian Election Act requires married women to use their 'Mrs.' prefix when enlisting on the voters' list. Single women have a choice. They may use either 'Miss' or their Christian name with their surname.

As a woman law student, Mrs. McCallum knows the male-female law student ratio at Queen's University.



It's five - to - one but, enrolment numbers show there will be an increase in female students to 50-50.

So far, as a woman law student, Elaine, working at the UCS building on an Opportunities for Youth grant, there's only been one annoyance.

A male client wouldn't speak to her and would only give his problem to a male law student.

Since Mrs. McCallum has worked on cases involving legal matters, she's found being a woman in law a source of questions from everyone.

"Most people accept a woman doctor," says Elaine, "but being a woman lawyer is someone the ycan't accept."

MR. AND MRS. IAN McCRAE

McCrae — Innes

Margaret Ann Innes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Innes, Belleville, was recently married to Ian McCrae, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. McCrae, of Agincourt, Ontario, in Christ Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long bridal gown of imported crystal peau featuring a flowing circle train extending from the empire waistline. A floral headpiece held a silk illusion four-tier veil. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Best man was Collin McCrae. William Tremley ushered guests.

Following a reception held in the bride's home, the couple left for their honeymoon to Bermuda.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. McCrae will reside in Scarborough.

MR. AND MRS. FRANKLIN McKENNA

McKenna — McLeod

Janet Isabell Ann McLeod, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. McLeod of Cambridge (Galt) was married to Franklin James Keith McKenna, son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. McKenna, Belleville, recently in St. Giles Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Gordon C. Griggs, BA BD performed the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a long white nylon organza over taffeta gown enhanced by a Juliette cap holding a four-tiered silk illusion veil trimmed with lace. She carried a colonial nosegay of red roses, white carnations and white daisies.

Ruth McDonald, of Scarborough, the maid of honor, and bridesmaids, Jeanne Wilson, of Belleville and Joanna McLeod, Hespeler, all wore floral sheer organdy gowns with underlays of ice-cream shades of blue over the maid of honor) mint green and candy pink, white daisies, baby's breath, and tinted carnations.

Monica McLeod of Elmira and Jan McLeod, Cambridge (Hespeler), as flower girls, were polyester peach gowns with sheer floral aprons. They carried white baskets of white daisies, baby's breath, and peach tinted carnations.

Allan Blaind, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were James McKenna, Jr., brother of the bridegroom of Belleville and John McLeod of Cambridge (Galt) brother of the bride.

A wedding reception was held at Hespeler Legion Banquet Hall.

Following a camping trip to Thousand Islands and points east, Mr. and Mrs. McKenna will reside at 190 Cedar St., Apt. 410, Cambridge (Galt).

Peterborough Constable Is Wounded by Thief

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — A police search for men who shot and wounded a city police-man ended Sunday with no arrests.

Police said they had no leads on the men who shot Constable David Dawson, 44, three times with a .22-calibre weapon early Sunday while he was answering a burglar alarm at a downtown department store.

Police said Constable Dawson's condition was very serious but he was coming along as best as could be expected." He was conscious.

Doctors removed three bullets from Constable Dawson in an emergency operation. One bullet hit his cheek, grazing his tongue. One hit his throat, the other his back, penetrating his liver.

Constable Dawson and another policeman answered the alarm about 1 a.m. Store manager Jack Davidson, summoned by police, opened the store door for Constable Dawson, then remained by the door as the policeman made his way down the aisle. The other constable remained in the police cruiser.

Mr. Davidson told police he heard Constable Dawson shout "Come out With your hands up" and "Put it down."

He said he heard a shot, then Constable Dawson shouting again. Then there were two quick shots, followed by another.

Reinforcements arrived and the wounded policeman staggered out of the door.

Believing the gunmen were still in the store, police armed with rifles and wearing bullet-proof vests combed the store, then nearby fields unsuccessfully.

A police spokesman said the number of gunmen involved was not known.

House Faces Busy Sessions

OTTAWA (CP) — The House of Commons, with the exception of its standing committees where most of the detailed work is done, sits for an average of 2½ hours a week.

So, if Government House Leader Allan MacEachen's hope last week that "we can adjourn within a week or so" is to come true, the 264 MPs would appear to have pressure on them this week if they're to avoid long hours.

Among the bills still to receive third reading is the controversial capital punishment one to re-establish a partial hanging for five years. The death penalty would be applicable only to murders of policemen or prison guards.

Another is a bill to raise nearly $200 million for the 1976 Olympic Games at Montreal, $260 million from the sale of special coins, stamps and other postal products.

Also due for consideration is a bill to increase family allowances to an average $20 a month from the current average of $7.31. Under the old allowances, however, the new ones would be subject to income tax.

This is the third overtime week for the Commons, which usually adjourns at the end of June for the summer. The minority Liberal government is bowing to opposition pressure, seems resigned to a delayed holiday.

Routine work is to be delayed even further tonight with a special debate on domestic grain marketing will not be answered until after the date of July 24 to 26."

While the Olympics bill a h been sanctioned because some MPs have said the government is going back on its vow not to pick up any deficit incurred by the Games, the capital punishment bill is expected to stir up the most action during the clause-by-clause study preceding third reading.

It cleared the justice committee more than two weeks ago after an attempt by Solicitor-General Warren Allmand to abolish hanging for all types of murder.

There is a chance, however, that Mr. Allmand will attempt to amend it before third read ing. He tried to do this in committee but chairman James Jerome said the amendment was out of order. Mr. Jerome said that if the government wanted to abolish all hanging, it should have said so in the original bill.

The chairman did allow amendments to tighten day parol es and temporarily absences for murderers. As amended, the bill also sets a minimum sentence of 10 years before a murderer can be considered for parole.

No one has been hanged in Canada since 1962 and a five-year trial period, during which only killers of policemen or prison guards were subject to the death penalty, expired Dec. 31.

How long the Commons will take to wade through the remaining proposed legislation, Mr. MacEachen said, depends on opposition co-operation.

Trudeau 'Ashamed' Of Delays

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau closed the Liberal conference on western objectives Sunday with an admission that he was "a little bit ashamed" that it took us so long to get around to finding some of the "solutions to western problems" and a pledge that federal action is on the way.

He said the federal government will go into the western economic opportunities conference in Calgary later this month with "concrete solutions to concrete problems."

Mr. Trudeau said the cabinet would carefully study resolutions and ideas from the three-day think session on Liberal failings in western Canada.

The meeting was billed by organizers as "part of the listening process in understanding the message" last Oct. 30." In the October federal election, the Liberals won only seven of the 88 seats in the four western provinces.

Mr. Trudeau promised federal action to ensure that more western resources are developed. He said there would be import-export controls to help western industry" and that transportation system would be reformed; financial institutions would be decentralized and a Pacific environmental institute, would be established on the Pacific coast.

He said the federal government's announcements were not intended as "goodies" to pacify the West but admitted that any additional support would be welcome.

Senator Richard Stanbury told the 180 delegates at the closing session Sunday that a positive result of the election was a new determination to tackle root causes of discontent.

Senator Stanbury said the problems of the West had finally "come into the government field of vision."

Prior to the federal election last year, the government was under the impression that it had a fairly good understanding of the western provinces. "Only after the shock of Oct. 30 did it come home to them."

Lutherans Clinging To Old Way

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Contrary to most major Protestant denominations which have been moving toward greater flexibility, the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod has acted to reverse what it considers recent signs of laxity.

The three-million-member denomination, considered the most conservative among the three major United States branches of Lutheranism, ended its governing convention here Friday night.

During the convention, the church spelled out additional requirements of what it considers the main seminary for alleged permissive approaches to the Bible, and ordered corrective measures.

"It's returning to traditional positions on Scripture," says Rev. Dr. Richard Seibelt, of Ann Arbor, Mich., a district president of the Luther Church-Missouri Synod. "It means rethinking of our conservative stance."

A "moderate" minority, of about 40 per cent of the delegates, fought the trend. As leader of them, Rev. Leonard Marsin, of Chicago, put it:

"The real issue has always been whether we were to remain the progressive church we've become or return to the church we were 40 years ago."

The conservative bloc argued the other way.

"We want to stand where we were 40 years ago, where we've always stood, where we've got to stand today," said Rev. Jerry Markell, of Beulah, N.D.

The convention demanded a literal approach to the Bible, are criticized by moderates.

Rev. Dr. Jaroslav Pelikan, president of Concordia Seminary in St. Louis, said that such legal interpretation of Scripture "runs contrary to the spirit of Lutheranism."

Hamilton Policeman Kills Man

HAMILTON (CP) — A Hamilton police officer shot and killed a man Sunday who allegedly lunged at him with a knife.

Harod Graham Matthews, 27, was dead on arrival at Hamilton General Hospital shortly before 1 a.m.

Sgt. Thomas Ryan, 30, who shot Matthews through the heart, was not injured.

Police converged on an apartment building after a caller said a man brandishing a rifle and knife had gone berserk.

Police said later the man threw his gun through the porch door. Sgt. Ryan and other officers went into the apartment to try to persuade Matthews to drop the knife.

Deputy Chief Albert Welsh said Matthews lunged at Sgt. Ryan and the policeman, who had his 38-calibre service revolver drawn, was forced to shoot in self-defence.

Three Die

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police were continuing investigation of an apparent double murder and suicide following the shooting deaths Saturday of two Chinese cooks.

Police said Ping Yui Lamb died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound after being stopped at a roadblock Sunday on Highway 40 near here.

The roadblock was set up after a man walked into the kitchen of a restaurant and fired several shots from a high-powered rifle, killing the two cooks.

Back to Work

TORONTO (CP) — About 800 Bell telephone pioners return to work today after ratifying a three-year contract that will give them an immediate increase in wages and fringe benefits to $7.41 an hour from $7.13.

The members of Local 598, Operative Plasterers and Cement Masons International Union, will receive $8.96 a hour by Nov. 1, 1975.

Under the new agreement subcontract workers the men 15 hours notice of commencement to pour for the first call-in, a key issue sought by the cement pourers.

Nova Scotia Oil Boom Is Forecast

HALIFAX (CP) — Nova Scotia businessmen who have the foresight to prepare themselves and their companies for offshore oil and gas strikes will be in the enviable driver's seat for the resulting economic boom, says Michael Gillham, president of Whitman, Benn and Associates Ltd., a Halifax engineering consultants' firm.

Mr. Gillham makes the observations after taking part in a recent provincial government-sponsored tour of Scotland's offshore oil facilities and ancillary industries.

He draws some interesting parallels which show North Sea exploration between 1965 and 1968 at about the same pace as it is off Nova Scotia now.

Prior to the 1969 discovery of oil in commercial quantities in what is known as the North Sea Ekofisk field, the public sector usually took a hands-off posture, he said.

Mr. Gillham says this attitude and the lack of understanding of the oil business resulted in both government and industry being caught off guard.

Richmond Hill Takes Tournament 'A' Title

The Richmond Hill squirts have been getting progressively better with each passing week but after Saturday's Belleville Minor Softball Association Squirt Tournament, there's no where to go but down.

The Toronto squad had some anxious moments in the final. A championship game with their eastern neighbors from Scarborough but rallied in the sixth inning to win the game 7-3 and take the tournament.

It was the first time in the Belleville tournament for both Toronto teams but they took-ed right at home easily sweeping aside all opposition until their final face to face combat.

"We played a couple of real tough teams here today and Scarborough always gives us a good game but we played nothing but ball today. It looked bad for a while but once we got going I knew we'd be alright," reflected coach Bob Davis of the champion Richmond Hill nine.

Looking bad for his squad means being behind 3-0 and without a hit in the first four of the first of six Scarborough pitcher Pete Adamo. The red-clad visitors from Toronto's northern borough got their first run in the fifth on Mike Mulvihill's triple and the first of six Scarborough errors. Mulvihill's hit was the first for Richmond Hill but it opened the door for a barrage of safeties as they hammered out four more and six runs in the sixth inning.

"There's a lot of power in this team. It was going pretty bad for us but they kept in there and then the tide just turned right over for us," added the coach assistant coach, Sid Moreland.

One big inning was the turning point in the championship game but the A champs were used to that in the path of power having used the same method to oust Belleville 9-0 in the opening game" and Kingston 12-7 in the second round.

"Our hitting was pretty good too, but it's our fielding that holds us together until the bats get going," said coach Davis.

Richmond Hill have been improving with each week as Blizzard's have had a consistent performance. They lost in the finals of their own tournament earlier in the year and then grabbed the B championship in Gananoque last week.

Belleville supplied the A championship squad with a player now they're looking for a Grand Championship title at Markham next week.

The improvement is a pleasing point to coach Davis for what really brings the gleam to his eyes is that he will have virtually the same team next season.

"We have about four second year players and the rest are first year squirts. It's something to look forward to next year."

Jamie Tuck kept all the silverware in Richmond Hill by earning the MVP award.

Scarborough had reached the finals with a 12-4 drubbing of Belleville's Brad Johnson and a 12-5 win over North York.

Napanee had lost their opening game 9-0 to North York but then shook off the jitters to defeat Belleville and then hammer Lindsay 9-1 in the B championship game.

"They proved they could play ball today," stated Napanee coach Stan Losee about his OASA 'B' representatives who made their first appearance in the Belleville tourney. "They teamed up in the morning but they played more aggressively in the afternoon. We've got a good combination of hitting and pitching and it saw us through today."

Thurlow Rallies Too Late

A four run rally by Thurlow Radio Shack in the seventh, came innings too late as Belleville peewees drubbed their fellow Eastern Ontario Baseball Association opponents 13-5 Friday.

Winning pitchers, Ken Revoy and Rory Radford, allowed a meagre four hits as Belleville batters scored in each inning but the scond. Revoy provided hitting punch as well as throwing finesse in aiding his cause with two doubles and a three bagger. Greg McEachern singled three times.

Thurlow pitchers, Rick Woodward and Gary Badgley, couldn't touch wood themselves although allowing Belleville to snatch 11 hits. Radio Shack mound staff walked six batters while fanning five. Their opposite number Revoy, 14 at the plate whiee giving first to eight batters on balls.

Bill Sullivan and Dave Vader, with a triple and double respectively, rapped singles by Tom Gerrard and Tom Master-son of Thurlow.

Ellis Juniors Bow Out Early

The Ellis Juniors had a short stay in the Oshawa Junior tournament Saturday, bowing out to Scarboro in the first game of the tourney. The locals were beaten 7-1 by the Scarboro hero. Jim Richardson scored the only run of the game for the Printers, being driven in by Dave Horwood.

The eventual winners of the tournament were a hastily put together team from Cobourg.

A Banner Day

It was a banner day for Richmond Hill first baseman Jamie Tuck who had an armful of silverware to carry home. Jamie won the Most Valuable Player Award for the Belleville Minor Softball Association squirt tournament and his Richmond Hill team won the A championship game, in their first visit to Belleville.

CNR No Soft Touch For Rollins Squad

CNR of the Industrial Softball League challenged Rollins Construction of the Commercial league last night, and came up with a very decent performance against the top team in the senior league.

The Yardmen were defeated by the Construction men by a 6-0 score in their nine inning contest.

CNR surprised the Big Red Machine early by putting men in scoring position in the first inning. Mill Bell drew a walk and Brian Plumbe singled to put two men in scoring position. However Rollins' pitcher Ken DeMille got the next two men to end the quick threat.

Rollins also had a threat of their own in the third, though, loading the bases on three consecutive singles, but three pop-ups ended the inning.

They started the scoring in the next inning when Dave Lott was hit by a pitch. Ralph Boomhower singled him to third and Ralph Plane's bunt drove him in. They added two more in the third on a single by Carl Boomhower and a triple by Wayne McTaggart.

The winners collected singles in the fourth, sixth and eighth.

Ken Demille went the nine innings for the winners, allowing only five hits, while fanning 14 and issuing only one free pass.

Brian Plumbe started for the Yardmen and gave up nine of the Rollins hits before giving way to Brian Casselman in the fifth. Casselman worked the final five innings, allowing only four hits. Both pitchers failed to walk or strike out a batter.

Bob Lloyd had a double for the losers while Rob McHurter, Milt Bell, Brian Plumbe and Bob Bardy all had singles.

Dave Lott led the winners with a home run, triple and single. Ralph Plane had three singles while Wayne McTaggart bagged a triple and single for the winners.

It Takes the Best To Defeat Yardmen

OSHAWA (Special) — Belleville Yardmen midgets can feel a certain small measure of satisfaction after their departure from the Bill Tournamenta For 73 baseball workout in Oshawa this weekend.

Leamington and Hamilton Mahoney's, the two A teams in Belleville came up against in the 2nd annual single Tournament, went on to the 'A' and 'B' finals and won.

Opening their tourney action Saturday, Yardmen drubbed Leamington 9 - 6, their only loss in the four games the club played. Going into the 'A' round competition, Belleville were shut out 3-0 to give Mahoney's another step on their way to the 'A' title.

Jeff Merrill started Belleville on the road to victory against Leamington in the second inning. With two men on and two out, Merrill's single drove in two to tie the game 2-2. Starting pitcher Mike Clelland, took a walk. With two strikes worrying Craig Empey, he turned the tables with a bunt which worried Leamington pitcher so much he threw the ball away to allow runners to score. Belleville produced five runs in the second inning to force Leamington into a catchup ball game.

After a middle inning struggle, Yardmen again put up a good home plate for three in the sixth and one run in the final seventh.

After loading the bases and allowing two runs to score in the initial inning, McClelland got relief from battery mate Rick Gulkin.

Gulkin's work on the mound was effective enough to put Belleville into second round play against Hamilton. And there's where the trouble started as recorded by Yardmen coach Jim Crouchman.

"The guys were a little nervous and made a couple of errors in the first game, but they played good ball.

"Against Hamilton, there wasn't any on the team that wasn't hitting long balls. They had a couple of hits that just sharp enough."

Hamilton's pitcher wasn't that good, but everytime we got a hit somebody would be right in a position to up it. It was as if they were using ESP," they just seemed to know what we were doing."

But Crouchman gave Mahoney's credit for saying, "they had one of the better infields and outfields I've seen recently. We had the sacks loaded a couple of times, but the only hit we got was Scotty Bowes' single." Hamilton countered with four.

Two other difficulties plagued Belleville in their second game. Firstly, the plate officiating, although Hamilton also suffered there. Secondly, costly errors.

"Craig Empey was throwing ball, but he's a corner man," said Crouchman. "The umpire didn't seem to call the corners, even Hamilton had that problem. Craig had to pretty well throw down the line."

As for errors — two were costly. With two out and a man on third, Yardmen's Bowes snatched a grounder and fired to first. But Bardy's toss missed the toss to allow the run to cross a 3-2 lead for Hamilton.

In the fifth, again with two out and a man on third, shortstop Bruce McDonald slapped a hard hit ball and subsequently lost it in his feet to give Mahoney's a 9-9 lead. Only the second inning run was earned by Hamilton.

After shutting out both Scarborough Village, last year's 'A' side champion 14-0 and Belleville 3-0, Hamilton moved into the semi-final. Down but not out York 7-3. Thrilled fell 7-3 and Hamilton had themselves a championship.

Although Belleville lost, the team wasn't downhearted noted Crouchman. "They knew they had played good ball. I wasn't disappointed in the boys either. Hamilton had the breaks and we didn't."

TOURNAMENT RESULTS

Ellis Juniors Bow Out Early

The Ellis Juniors had a short stay in the Oshawa Junior tournament Saturday, bowing out to Scarboro in the first game of the tourney. The locals were beaten 7-1 by the Scarboro hero. Jim Richardson scored the only run of the game for the Printers, being driven in by Dave Horwood.

The eventual winners of the tournament were a hastily put together team from Cobourg.

I Forgot the Ball

Richmond Hill second baseman Bill Madden puts the tag on Scarborough runner Joe Tangorra as he slides into second but he forgot to catch the ball. Tangorra was safe on this play but his efforts went for naught as Richmond Hill, exploded for six runs in the sixth inning for a 7-3 "A" championship victory. The Toronto team received the Belleville Community Credit Union trophy from president Mike Knolls after their final victory.

Chris Walsh Has Perfect Game

Trenton Team Wins In Legion Baseball

COBOURG — A peewee baseball team representing Branch 110, Trenton, won Royal Canadian Legion zone and district championships at Donegan Park here on the week-end. The team's three-game sweep was featured by a perfect game recpided by Chirs Walsh and a no - hit shutout by John Webb.

Saturday's zone final against host Cobourg Branch 133 produced the perfect game. Walsh a lefthander, set the 21 batters down in order over the seven innings while posting an 8-0 win. He recorded 18 strikeouts with catcher Danny Hamilton calling the shots, on the way to the Zone F-2 honors and the Morton Parker trophy.

Fielding play of the game was turned in by second baseman Dan Scott who came up with the ball on a late inning bunt that appeared to have the Trenton infield handcuffed. Dan's throw to first was just in time.

Scott, the team captain,also supplied the punch at the plate, connecting for a double and two singles off losing pitcher Bruce Rutherford.

Brian Hanson collected a pair of singles. Kevin Patrick slammed a two-run double, while Walsh, Webb, Hamilton and Greg Howard each checked in with a single.

Touched for 10 hits, Rutherford struck out two and walked four.

The win put Trenton into the district playoff with Peterborough, Branch 62 and Whitby, Branch 112. Whitby drew a bye in the Sunday action, and waited on the sidelines while Trenton blanked Peterborough 11-0.

Webb recorded 11 strikeouts and walked three while fashioning his no-hitter. He and his mates got to Peterborough's Ron Henry and Dave Mowatt who took over in the sixth for a total of 11 hits.

Howard led the 110 hit parade with a triple and two singles. Dennis Baril cracked a double and a single while Webb singled twice. Scott banged a triple with a single apiece for Ben Leavey, Hanson and Andy MacDonald.

Walsh returned to the mound for the showdown with Whitby. He allowed just two scratch singles and lost his bid for another shutout in the sixth inning, settling for a 7-1 win.

He struck out 15 and walked none. The win was good for the District F Trophy and a berth in the Provincial playoffs to be held in Newmarket next month.

John Parrot went the distance for Whitby on a seven-hitter. He fanned seven and walked four.

No Trenton player had more than one base hit. MacDonald's double was the only extra-base blow of the game. Checking in with a single each were Leavey, Walsh, Hamilton, Webb, Hanson and Baril.

Both MacDonald and Parrot had the Whitby singles.

Dates for the Provincial playoffs will be announced in the near future.

Frontenacs' Howe Keeps Them in Game

Dick Howe was enthusiastically daring and foolhardy in the Frontenac Old Boys' netminding role in defeating QHF Rovers' forward in the penalty zone, soaring into the air on corner kicks, the 18-year-old goaltender still lost to the QHF Rovers 4-1.

Part of the Kingston and District Soccer Association team's problem was the lack of strength in the filed. Playing with only nine men from the start of the game, the Kingston club was forced further into their defensive cocoon when a player was back-ed out of the game after a skirmish late in the second half.

But when the forwards couldn't do the job, Howe came to the fore in the net. Stopping shot after shot, Howe kept the Rovers' Frontenac's fifth loss of the season nearly respectable.

The former Bay of Quinte Soccer Association Belleville United goaltender didn't have as hard a time as he could have been forced to endure however.

The Belleville QHF Rovers couldn't put together a crisp series of consecutive plays as sloppy passing and poorly placed ball robbed them of scoring opportunities. Even when they nearly tripped over the threshold of opportunity in front of Howe's net, the placement of their kicks was faulty — over the crossbar, wide of the post. Tony Goncalves, Joe Romano, John O'Neill and Chris Johnson flubbed shots aplenty.

For the opportunities which Fundie Zdravko got during QHF Rovers' sloppy display of soccer skills, the centre forward fancy-footed his way to the best goal for shot average. He scored three on those half-dozen attempts. Kevin Kirby shook the netting on the other one.

Mike Moore outraced fullback Bob Kitcher for Frontenac's only goal in the second half. After the ball glanced off Mike D'orsellas' head, Moore corailed the leather and cleared goalkeeper Gary Donovan's fingers into the corner of the net.

Cannifton Garage To Meet Fitzgibbon

Two big games remain before Fitzgibbon Construction winds up their Thurlow Minor Baseball Association tadpole division play this week.

Having defeated Bob's Sports in a total run two game semi-final matchup 15-13, Fitzgibbon moves into a similar two-game playoff final against Cannifton Garage.

But the builders might not have out of the playoff series final the way they did against Bob's Sports.

In an unorthodox method of breaking a third place tie, Cannifton Garage was relegated to fourth spot at the end of the season upon losing a coin toss to Bob's Sports. But as if to avenge the wrong, they came back to edge division pennant winners H. J. McFarland Construction, 29-27 in the semi's.

Winning their first matchup 16-15 and tying the second facing Fitzgibbon which finished the season in second with a 4-4-0 won-loss-tie record.

Fitzgibbon pitchers, Randy Hegele and Martin Denyes, had to work for their first 8-7 win over Bob's Sport. Combining on a four-hitter, the two hurlers fanned 13 men despite allowing 10 to reach first.

Robbie Clark snagged two of four given up by Bob's Sport pitchers Wayne Peters and Ron Urch. Bryan Been snagged a three bagger into the outfield to drop singles by Bob's Sports' hitters Phil Walsh, Mike Boomhower, and Urch.

In their second semi-final contest, the four pitchers not only matched arms but bit as well. Denyes partially countered Peters' single and home run with his own four bagger, although Heggele's two hit, triple and double, outmatched Urch's two single contributions.

Howe Up and Flying

Chris Johnson attempts to head the ball by leaping Frontenac Old Boys goaltender Dick Howe on a John O'Neill corner kick in Kingston and District Soccer Association play Saturday at OSD. The winger failed to score on the attempt but centre forward Fundie Zdravko scored three goals on the way to the QHF Rovers 4-1 victory, their fifth in six games.

17 Tigers Strike Out

Ryan Shrugs Off His Second No-hitter

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nolan Ryan shrugged off the fact he had just tossed his second no-hitter of the year Sunday and launched into reasons why he really needed it.

The hard-hitting California right-hander had struck out 17 while pitching the Angels to a 6-0 victory over Detroit Tigers and looked to be hard to work on his pitching.

"I needed this because I wasn't pitching good," Ryan said. A Cat Stadium record of 41,411 sat in at Tiger Stadium.

Around the rest of the American League Sunday, Minnesota Twins topped Cleveland Indians 7-6 in 10 innings, Baltimore Orioles edged Chicago White Sox 3-2, New York Yankees defeated Kansas City Royals 2-0, Oakland A's beat Milwaukee Brewers 6-3 and Boston Red Sox defeated Texas Rangers in a game halted by rain after 5½ innings.

The Tigers nipped California 2-1 Saturday but stayed in fourth place in the East Division, 2½ games behind New York. Baltimore at Chicago, Boston edged Texas 6-5, Cleveland blanked Minnesota 4-0, Milwaukee downed Oakland 5-1 and Baltimore beat Detroit 5-2.

Tonight the Royals move into Tiger Stadium while California opens a four-game set with Cleveland. Other games have Chicago at Boston and Baltimore at Texas.

"I was up more than I have been lately . . . I wanted to be loose . . . I wanted to throw a shutout," he said.

Ryan, 26, became only the fifth man in major league baseball history to toss two no-hitters in one season. Two months ago to the day he no-hit the Royals.

No one has ever had three no-hit games in one season.

It was the third no-hitter in the American League this year. The other was against Detroit, a 3-0 victory for Steve Busby of the Royals on April 27.

So I've thrown two good games," Ryan said of his 1973 gems. "But look at my record. I'm 81-81. I can't look back and say 1973 was my best year because I pitched two no-hitters.

"I haven't pitched as well as last year and I feel I have to improve myself. I feel for this club to stay in the pennant race I have to do the job. I've been kind of doing it the second half of the season."

"A long delay, due to a five-run Angel eighth inning, caused Ryan's arm to stiffen and by the time he struck out one batter the last two innin s.

"I lost something of my fast ball and was a little stiff," the six-foot-two, 199-pounder said.

Alberta Dominates Championships

EDMONTON (CP) — Young Alberta lawmen danced, shuffled and jabbed their way to dominate the first Canadian junior Olympic boxing championships for boys 10 to 15 during the weekend.

The host province won 11 of the 24 titles, two of the three outstanding boxer awards and was the only province to win more than one. Ontario and Saskatchewan were defeated in only three bouts.

Brad Hortie of Edmonton, who won the 75-pound class, was voted best fighter in the 15-year-old division while Randy Jackson, also of Edmonton, the 132-pound champion, topped the 14-to 15-year-olds.

Steven Bezanson of Nova Scotia was named the outstanding boxer in the 10-and 11-year-old class.

Ontario fighters, with five final-round wins, and British Columbia, with three titles, were the only other provinces to win more than one title bout. Saskatchewan had two uncontested titles to add to its win in the 105-pound, 14-and 15-year-old class while Quebec had one uncontested title for a total of one.

Of the 11 wins, the Alberta boxers won seven on unanimous decisions and two on technical knockouts.

Mike Young of Edmonton led the Alberta team as he picked up a unanimous decision in the best fight of the night, a 112-lb., 14-15-year-old contest with Darrell Jamrosik of Sudbury, Ont.

Young's only advantage was in aggressiveness as the heavyset pair both gave and took their best shots. Jamrosik refused to recognize Young's strength as Young laced him with his best rights and lefts.

One of the fastest fights of the three-card championship came when Bruce Anderson of Alberta met Louis Cormier of New Brunswick in the 95-pound, 14-15 class. Anderson seemed to throw one continuous combination as he knocked Cormier down and out about 30 seconds after the opening bell.

"I feel enough stuff in the last inning-plus that I should not to be concerned about striking out. I was grateful to get out of the game with a no-hitter."

After the first seven innings, Ryan had seemed a clutch to break the league's nine-inning strikeout record of 18 set in 1938 by Bob Feller of Cleveland.

"There'll be another day," Ryan said.

The 17 strikeouts matched Ryan's career high. He had 17 against Minnesota last Sept. 20 which tied the league mark of a nine-inning night game.

He has 220 so far this season to 189 innings. Last year he led the major leagues with 329 strikeouts in 284 innings. It was the 12th time this season and the 42rd time in his career that he's struck out 10 or more batters in a game.

"That was the best I've ever seen anybody pitch," exclaimed the Tigers' Dick McAuliffe, who was joined by fellow left-handed three times against Ryan. .

"I never saw a club that hits as well as Detroit make as many pitches by so much," California Manager Bobby Winkles added, spreading his hands about six inches apart.

The closest thing to a hit was a rising line drive by designated hitter Gates Brown with one out in the ninth. Shortstop Rudy Meoli moved back to the edge of the grass when Brown came to bat and made a leaping catch.

The crowd, which seemed complacent until it began cheering every strike in the bottom of the ninth, gave Ryan a standing ovation.

Vada Pinson gave Ryan all the support he needed with a sacrifice fly in the third off loser Jim Perry, 8-9.

It was the losing of the Cleveland-Minnesota game, umpire Art Frantz finally "frisked" Gaylord Perry, looking for any illegal substance the Indians' pitcher might be using to doctor the baseball. Then, at Minnesota manager Frank Quilici's behest, a lineup was produced and Perry obligingly showed his face.

Umpire-in-chief Hank Soar at first base fumed that the conduct demeans the baseball. Perry Perry are making a farce out of the game.

"We watched him absolutely every second—he was on the mound and he couldn't have been doing a thing. There was no way he was throwing any spitball today."

In the 10th, after three walks loaded the bases, Danny Thompson lofted a fly ball to short left field. Mike Adams, at third base, took off after the catch and scored the winning run before Twins' relief pitcher Bill Singer threw home was wide.

Mike Cuellar allowed himself out of a first-inning jam as Baltimore cooled off Chicago. The Orioles got all three of their runs in the sixth inning on Merv Rettenmund's run-scoring single by Al Bumbry, Tommy Davis and Earl Williams.

Horace Clarke Mottly Also scored both Yankee runs in the eighth on Roy White's single. Sam McDowell allowed just three hits and struck out 10 batters before Sparky Lyle came on in the ninth to pick up Belanger.

Bill North whipped a two-run double down the left field line in the fifth as Reggie Jackson followed with a two-run homer, his 20th of the season, to Boog Powell past the Brewers.

Dwight Evans gave the Red Sox the victory over Texas with a homer in the bottom of the seventh inning, added a fifth-inning run before the rains came.

Zaca Spirit Takes The Manitoba Derby

WINNIPEG (CP) — Zaca Spirit, a 6½ - to - 1 gamble, charged from the starting gate like a race pace, then held off a late challenge from Queen's Plate winner Royal Chocolate to win the 25th running of the $100,000 Manitoba Derby at Assiniboia Downs Sunday.

The dark brown colt earned $60,000 for Bo-Teek Farms of Toronto with a winning time of 1:49 2-5 in Canada's second richest pace for native three-year-olds.

Royal Chocolate, who finished second, netted owner Jack Stafford, of Toronto, $15,000 and will show finisher Impressive Lady, the only filly in the 11-horse field, won $9,000 for J. M. Brunton of Toronto.

Other horses in order of finish: Wing Span, winner last week of the $5 000 Derby prep, the St. James-Assiniboia Handicap; Tar Road; Albert the Conquerer; Fabulous Spirit; Merging Fire; Royal Ted; and Queen's Splendour.

Richard Cleveland, the year-old jockey who guided Zaca Spirit, the sire, said later: "I expected to be on the lead with him.

"He liked the track today and has good speed. When you have speed on a five-eighth-mile track, you have to take advantage of it."

For trainer C. F. Chapman, the win was especially sweet.

"I've had a few $50,000 and $60,000 winners but this is the first $100,000 winner."

Zaca Spirit paid 13.20 to win, 5.60 to place and 3.20 to show. Royal Chocolate paid 4.60 and 2.50 while Impressive Lady paid 2.30 to show.

A crowd of 8,543 wagered $301,735 for the day.

Jockey Ted Colangelo, who rode Royal Chocolate, said he didn't think Zaca Spirit would win the race and was more concerned about Impressive Lady.

He said he expected Zaca Spirit to take the early lead but thought Royal Chocolate would have finished out front. But Royal Chocolate stuck in the middle of the pack until the clubhouse turn and failed to move until late.

"He couldn't handle this race right," said Colangelo. "I just couldn't get him moved until the end of the backstretch.

"He started challenging in the home stretch and may have come up the winner if we had another furlong to go, but in the early going he seemed to have trouble digging into the hard track."

Grubb said it was Impressive Lady, not Royal Chocolate, that had him worried during the race.

"Coming off the back side I could hear the filly coming up. Then once I shook her off and she wasn't getting to me, I thought: 'well I make it from here'."

"I had to pick him up and get into it the last part of the race, but other than that, I had no problems."

Tara Road, co-entered by Stafford Farms with Royal Chocolate, was outrun early. He moved up after a half but finished evenly in the middle of the pack.

Albert the Consort, second Toronto entrie owned by Grellier Farms of Toronto, proved somewhat of a disappointment, dropping from eighth at the start the 10th at the quarter and finishing in ninth place in the stretch drive.

Wing Span made $4,400 for his owners, Kinghaven Farms of Toronto. Tara Road earned $2,400 and Albert the Consort $1,500.

Marichal, McCovey Pace Giants to Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willie McCovey and Juan Marichal paced San Francisco Giants to a 12 - 2 rout of Pittsburgh Pirates Sunday. McCovey with his 400th and 401st career home runs and Marichal, pitcher, with a four hitter for his 234th career victory.

But they viewed their achievements differently.

"It could have been a big thrill," McCovey said after becoming the 15th player in major league history to hit 400 homers, "but what's happened the last week or so took the thrill away."

He was referring to a statement about a week ago by manager Charlie Fox that "Gary Thomasson is my first baseman."

A couple of injuries, however, forced Fox to put Thomasson in the outfield Friday night and McCovey, restored to the starting lineup, homered his way back to a regular's job.

Marichal, making his first appearance since July 3 when he pulled a leg muscle, raised his record to 7-5.

"This did a lot for my confidence," said the Giants' longtime mound ace, who was demoted to the bullpen several weeks ago and whose longest stint since June 12 was 4 1-3 innings.

Elsewhere in the National League Sunday Atlanta Braves hammered Montreal Expos 6-1, Los Angeles Dodgers trounced Chicago Cubs 9-3, St. Louis Cardinals edged San Diego Padres 5-4 in 15 innings, Cincinnati Reds shaded New York Mets 3-1 and Houston Astros blanked Philadelphia Phillies 2-0 in a game cut to 5½ innings by rain.

The Expos also lost their weekend opener at Atlanta's 4-1 Saturday, while Pittsburgh Pirates romped 7-2 over the Giants. New York downed Cincinnati 5-2, Philadelphia and Steve Carlton throttled Houston 7-0, Los Angeles outslugged Chicago 7-3 and St. Louis dropped San Diego 5-2.

The Pirates entertain Los Angeles tonight while San Francisco renews into St. Louis. New York is at Atlanta, Philadelphia at Cincinnati and Montreal at Houston.

Ron Schueler hurled a five-hitter and Johnny Oates keyed a five-run third inning with a two-run single to lead the Braves past the Expos for their ninth triumph in 11 games.

Schueler fell behind in the second inning when Jose Bocca bella homered. But with one out in the bottom of the third, Oates started the Atlanta rally by getting the first of five consecutive hits off Mike Torrez. Ralph Garr's double was followed by Oates's single that put the Braves in front. Frank Tepedino homered in the fifth.

Willie Crawford slugged a late-breaking three-run homer to highlight a five-run third inning that powered the Dodgers over the Slipping Cubs.

Steve Carlton's tie-breaking two-out double in the 15th inning hosted the Cardinals over the Padres. Ken Reitz singled off Mike Corkins with two outs and two on to drive home the winner.

Johnny Bench and Larry Stahl hit run scoring singles to back the fourth pitching of Ross Grimsley, carrying the Reds over the Mets.

Doug Rader and Bob Watson hit run-scoring singles in support of Dave Roberts' four-hit pitching, leading the Astros over the Phillies. The games was halted with the Phils batting in the sixth and was called after a rain delay of 3 minutes following which the rain stopped.

Israel Posing Threat to U.S.

TEL AVIV (AP) — With two days of competition left, the United States has taken a 132-130 lead over Israel in the number of medals won at the ninth Maccabiah Games.

However, with swimming competition ending Sunday, the United States' lead may not be large enough to stand up the rest of the way.

U.S. swimmers contributed 48 medals and made strong showings in the pool's 29 events.

Canada's main hopes for a gold medal, Vicki Bernier of Vancouver and Pam Gullish of Toronto, had to settle for a second-place silver when they lost 6-3, 6-2 to South Africans Ilana Kloss and Helen Wehsel in the women's tennis doubles final.

Milton Bressler of Hirming-ham, Ala., broke his own 1969 record in the 400-metres Sunday, winning in 52.7, while Joe Djerassi of New York set a Games record in the hammer throw. The discus was won by Gary Wolf of San Francisco who broke a 12-year-old record with a throw of 159 feet, 4¼ inches.

Eric Linder scored three goals for the U.S. water polo team as it swam past Israel 7-5 for a gold medal. Israel took the silver medal and Belgium the bronze.

In swimming, attention was focused on Sweden's Anita Zarnowiski who raced to her seventh gold medal. Only 15 millitres after winning the women's 200-metre individual medley, Miss Zarnowiecki finished second to Wendy Weinberg of Baltimore in the 800-metre freestyle.

Roy Abramowitz of Princeton, N.J., won two gold medals, increasing his total to four in six days. He captured the 200-metre individual medley and 200-metre butterfly.

The Games ran into trouble off the athletic scene on two fronts. The Kenyan team received as special guests to participate in the all-Jewish games, announced its decision of boycotting all events.

The Kenyans, acting on instructions from Nairobi sports authorities, said they would neither participate in events with Rhodesian athletes nor with anyone who had competed with them.

There were also reports Sunday that the Uruguayan National soccer team would decline to come to Israel for a game against the Israelis because of a conflict over how much money each player was to receive.

Up, Up and Away

First Ever Win for Carole

HORSHAM, Pa. (AP) — Carole Jo Skala, a 33-year-old mother of three young children, scored her first victory on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour Sunday when she won the $30,000 George Washington Classic by one stroke.

Mrs. Skala shot a three-under-par 70 for a 54-hole total of 224, five under, to edge Sandra Haynie and Kathy McMullen, each with 215. Debbie Austin and Judy Rankin tied for fourth with 217s over the 6,150-yard Hidden Springs Country Club course.

Not even a 3½-hour delay because of rain deterred Mrs. Skala from overtaking Miss Haynie, who led by two strokes starting Sunday's final round.

Mrs. Skala rallied from a discouraging first-round 76 to post a 68 Saturday that bolted her into contention. She carded five birdies, an eagle and four bogeys in a scrambling round over the sopping wet course Sunday.

"The hole that won it for me was the 11th," Mrs. Skala said. "There, she slammed a long drive and two-ironed to reach the green about 60 feet from the pin. She calmly rolled in the long putt over the slow green for an eagle three on the 470 bogey.

This is Mrs. Skala's fourth year on the tour, on which she plays about a dozen times a year. Her best previous finish was a tie for fourth in 1971.

Miss Haynie—who led after the first round with a three-under-par 70, and at the 36th hole mark with a 72-142—shot par 72 Sunday with three birdies and three bogeys.

Miss McMullen, also a non-winner on the tour and with money left for only one more week, shot a 68, the day's best round. The Bradenton, Fla., golfer had six birdies and one par-five hole.

Weiskopf A Puzzled British Open Champ

TROON, Scotland (AP) — Tom Weiskopf, the world's newest golf hero, continues to be puzzled by the Troon course, even after winning the British Open golf championship over the tricky outside layout along Scotland's western shore.

Following his record-tying 12-under-par 276 Saturday, Weiskopf said: "I don't understand this course at all."

Golfing buffs wondered what he might have shot if he had set up a happy relationship with wind - battered, rain - splashed Troon.

Prior to the tournament over the 7,064-yard, par-72 course, Weiskopf voiced his displeasure with the layout. But his attitude mellowed with a constant stream of birdies.

Despite his original hostility, Weiskopf managed to win convincingly, equalling the best-ever score for the 103-year-old event, set at the same Troon course by Arnold Palmer the last time the tourney was played here in 1966.

"I still say it's a tough course," Weiskopf maintained. "I played my best golf ever. I never three-putted once during the four rounds. But I've never been so confused at the end of a tournament. And I still feel puzzled now."

Weiskopf, who never had won a major tourney before arriving here, had been red-hot this year, taking three events on the U.S. PGA circuit since months.

The prize money for the British Open winner was a modest $14,300. But victory in the prestige-laden event carries a host of endorsements and other huge benefits which should lift Weiskopf, who a few years ago couldn't afford to play as an amateur, into the select million-dollar class.

He began the final round with a one-stroke lead over Johnny Miller, 26-year-old winner of the U.S. Open.

Miller made a strong bid. So did Britain's Neil Coles and fa-

Winning Is Second To 'Feeling Well'

ROBINSON, Ill. (AP) — Deane Beman, noted for his brain rather than his brawn in six years on the PGA tournamentour, says in winning the $125,000 Robinson golf open he has completed his convalescence.

Beman, who underwent a delicate arm operation earlier

Crombie Wants Games In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Mayor David Crombie told a meeting of Canadian Soccer Association officials Saturday he was trying to get some of the 1976 Olympic soccer competition in Toronto.

"I'm hopeful we'll get lots of them," Crombie said. "After all, Toronto is the soccer capital of Canada."

Crombie said he had already had talks with the Olympic committee and the federal government, through Bob Secord, provincial director of amateur sport, is also involved in the discussions.

The International Olympic Committee decided at a recent meeting in Lausanne, Switzerland, to have the 16 finalists play in four groups of four teams each.

Poland, defending Olympic champs, and Canada, as host country, automatically advance to the final round of 16. The other 14 will be winners of group series now being played throughout the world.

in the year, said that he now feels as if he is playing solid golf again and that feeling well is really more rewarding to me than winning a tournament."

The former amateur champion, who left a successful insurance business in Washington, D.C., to join the pros at the age of 25, flashed a closing 67 Sunday to take the $25,000 first prize by one stroke.

Beman totaled 271, 13-under par on the Crawford County Country Club course.

Bunky Henry, who went broke after winning only $25 at the Hawaiian Open earlier this year—his entire earnings for the season—and took a month off from the tour to find a sponsor, shared second place with Bob Dickson.

Dickson, winner of the San Diego Open this spring, and Henry pocketed $11,562 each for second place.

Both made a final charge, closing with five-under-par 66s to card tournament totals of 272.

Henry included an eagle three on the 12th and a birdie two on the 18th in his finish. Dickson posted four out of five holes starting with the 11th, in his finish.

Chuck Courtney earned fourth place, shooting 69 for 273. Larry Hinson with 67 was fifth at 274, and George Archer, 68, and Frankie Pro Andy North, 70, shared sixth at 275.

Veteran Dick Rhyan of Indianapolis, who was in the 54-hole lead with Beman and Courtney at 204, wound up with 77.

Miller made a strong bid. So did Britain's Neil Coles and fa-

moved Jack Nicklaus.

Miller and Coles shared second place at 278, one stroke ahead of Nicklaus.

But Miller let Weiskopf slip away, and sparkling last rounds by Coles and Nicklaus came too late.

Coles, a balding Britain who never has won an international title, fired a closing 68.

Nicklaus, nine shots off the pace at the start of the last round, charged in with a record 65.

Before the round, Nicklaus had given Weiskopf a few words of advice.

"Don't play Johnny Miller, play the course," Nicklaus advised.

"That is just what I did," said the happy winner.

Now the sharp-shooting Weiskopf has his sights set on something other than golf.

"I love baseball," he said. "And I'm looking forward to some highway hunting in Alaska and, maybe, a big game safari in Africa."

Sudbury Defeats Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Sudbury Flyers Saturday won a berth in the Ontario Cup senior amateur soccer quarter-finals by beating Ottawa Centennials 4-3.

The quarter-final is scheduled in Thunder Bay Saturday against Thunder Bay.

But getting there was no cinch for the Flyers as Ottawa twice held the lead in the elimination game, 1-0 early in the first half and 3-2 in the second half.

Francois Deni scored twice for the Flyers and Victor Watson and Frank Anzil once each. Dave Hamm, Mike Marshall and Armasel Solomonescu scored for Ottawa.

Adams licored the opening goal, only to have Deni even things with a blistering 30 year shot into a high corner and Anzil give Sudbury the lead before the half.

Marshall and Solomonescu put Ottawa back in the lead early in the second half only to have Deni, playing inside right, again tied the game, this time on a penalty shot before Watson won it.

The eventual winner of the Ontario Cup earns the right to compete later this summer in the national senior amateur soccer championships.

35 Make Canadian Junior Track Team

MONTREAL (CP) — Thirty-five athletes make up the Canadian junior track and field team that will travel to Portugal to compete in a meet in Lisbon next weekend.

The Canadian Track and Field Association announced Friday night the team will leave here Thursday and will compete in the tri-country meet against Spain and Portugal. The athletes will train overseas before returning to Canada early in August.

Following are the members of the team:

Landers Produces

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Left-hander Pete Landers racked up his 10th and 11th pitching victories of the season during the weekend to propel Toronto into first place in the Oshawa Football League's west division, one-half game ahead of Oshawa.

Landers got his second victory of the weekend Sunday as Toronto downed Oshawa 4-1. His 10th win came in a 5-4 Toronto victory Saturday.

In two other OFL games during the weekend, Brampton defeated Newmarket 4-2 Saturday and Newmarket whipped Lindon 5-2 Sunday.

Landers recorded 17 strikeouts and scattered four hits for the win over Oshawa. He has only one loss to his credit this season.

Toronto picked up its first run in the first inning and catcher Dennis Gleed homered with the bases empty in the second to give Toronto all the margin it needed.

Toronto started its weekend sweep as Landers held London to only two hits in the game, pitched the final three innings.

Baker Replaces E. P. Taylor

TORONTO (CP) — Charles Baker, a Toronto advertising executive, has been appointed chairman of the Board of Trustees of The Jockey Club to replace E. P. Taylor.

Mr. Taylor announced his resignation during the weekend.

No reason was given for the resignation.

Mr. Taylor will remain as a member of the board and the executive committee. On Sunday he was appointed honorary chairman of the board and chairman of the finance committee.

Mr. Taylor was elected president of The Jockey Club in 1953.

Mr. Baker, 53, like Mr. Taylor, is a thoroughbred racing stable.

Welland Canal Bypass Given Blessing Sunday

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — The long-heralded Welland Canal bypass, diverting an important link of the St. Lawrence Seaway from this city's core, received its inaugural blessing Saturday. Federal Labor Minister John Munro, who described the project as "more than a marvel of engineering expertise," officially opened the $385-million diversion which had been in operation since the beginning of the 1973 shipping season.

The 8.3-mile waterway, a major part of the 27-mile Welland Canal linking Lake Erie with Lake Ontario, replaces a winding section which had long been a harassment to shipping and motor traffic in the downtown area.

Wheatley Food Plant Strike Is Settled

LEAMINGTON, Ont. (CP) — A month-long strike at Ormsteed Foods Ltd. of Wheatley ended Sunday when members of Local 880, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, voted to ratify an agreement that would bring them a 75-cent-an-hour increase over a two-year contract.

Processing operations at the plant were to resume today, company president Len Ormstead announced following settlement of the dispute which had left some vegetable crops rotting in the fields.

Mr. Ormsteed said processing would begin on the remainder of the pea crop, grown starting to come in and onion rings.

News of the settlement brought sighs of relief to area growers and processors.

U.S. Dollar Too Low

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The value of the United States dollar has sunk too far and the U.S. government should act to bolster it, French Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing said Sunday.

He said in an interview he had an agreement with U.S. Treasury Secretary George Shultz that the U.S. government would intervene if the dollar's value dropped too far.

"We have an agreement with out American interlocutors on the necessary action to be taken between the central banks," he said.

In older Belleville we recently listed this triplex providing an annual gross of $3,540.00 — Tenants pay own utilities. There are two 2-bedroom and one 1-bedroom apartment.

DUPLEX

On large lot on West Hill we would like to show you this Brick Bungalow which has a separate entrance to the large basement apartment. There are two fireplaces and the living rooms are broadloomed. An excellent property if you love your in-laws but still treasure some privacy. Phone us and let us tell you about the many extras listed at $27,000.00.

LOOKING AHEAD ?

On booming North Front Street we have a variety of Commercial Properties listed. Come in and see us about these possibilities.

HOME ON THE HILL

On extra large lot with mature trees we offer this 3-bedroom, 2-storey, older brick home overlooking the entire harbor. Call us this evening about these and many others.

COMMERCIAL LAND

Several lots on College Street West make for attractive frontage. This area is still in the development stage. Get in on the ground floor and phone us for more information.

Theatre Appears Mechanical As It Develops in Mongolia

TASHKENT, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Theatre fans in Central Asia have changed a lot since Tamara Khanzun was a girl.

She remembers mysterious and unknown but sudden death was always possible.

"I am a living ideological museum of the stage," observed the grand dame whose reputation across regions that stretch from the Caspian Sea to China is that of an Ella Fitzgerald, Margot Fonteyn and Helen Hayes rolled into one.

Her career charts the way in which performing arts, as known in the Western world, have deliberately, and in short order, been superimposed upon an alien, backward heritage.

It was just 19 years ago, that Othello arrived as the first specimen of dramaturgy from beyond the Caucasus Mountains.

Now the range includes Tennessee Williams and his peers, though 70 per cent of exhibits are culled from complex, native Oriental folklore.

In the meantime, too, audiences have learned to clap hands as a nice way of expressing appreciation and to restrain more violent impulses.

The Theatre Institute in Tashkent, established in 1954, turns out about 200 actors and technicians annually.

They serve in professional troupes set up across a 4,000-mile industrial-agrarian imperative.

The advent of theatre in all its forms—opera, symphony, ballet as well as drama—was particularly challenged because of the area's long centuries of Moslem indoctrination.

Impersonation of any sort was taboo, appearance of women in public even more so.

At Margola, a town 25 miles from Tashkent, an actress was stoned to death in 1928 by spectators outraged because she appeared in a show without the traditional Muslim veil over her face.

"She was one of my pupils," says Tamara. "Two others were killed at other places later." On several occasions, she escaped injury only with the help of sturdy bodyguards.

The colorful, still-busy actress-singer - dancer has been performing now for 53 of her 67 years and insists, "I'm 50 years younger than my age."

"I believe," she adds, "that we owed the biggest part in the development of the professional theatre to the emancipation of women."

In addition to nine dramatic troupes that perform large repertoires at home all winter and tour other parts of the Soviet Union most of the summer, there are boasts 25 theatres that cater to teen-agers, two puppet theatres, two opera companies and variety or symphony organizations.

Attendance at performances, however, brings out a less gratifying aspect of far-flung cultural drives, in Kiev or Tashkent, Tbilisi or Moscow, music and drama are mostly done with monotonously look-alike competence.

Besides standardized programming, it seems clear that directors and designers actively shun any trace of individuality or originality.

Lon Chaney Hoped Death Would Pass Unnoticed

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Lon Chaney Jr., the fifth major film star to die within two weeks, had hoped that his death would pass relatively unnoticed.

"His last wish was that his death receive no publicity," a friend said Friday.

Chaney's wife of 26 years, former model Patsy Beck, declined to specify the cause of death or even disclose funeral plans.

Chaney, 67, was preceded in death over the last two weeks by Joe E. Brown, Betty Grable, Veronica Lake and Robert Ryan.

Chaney, known for such diverse roles as the Wolf Man and the sensitive but mentally retarded Lennie in the 1939 production of John Steinbeck's Of Mice and Men, died Thursday at his home.

Friends said his last weeks were spent in 'agony' after a series of severe illnesses. Chaney had not performed publicly for several years.

His father, Lon Chaney Sr., was a star of the silent film era known as the "man of a thousand faces." Before his death in 1930, the senior Chaney told his son: "Better be paid for being ugly than starve to death trying to be handsome."

"I've played 'em all," the younger Chaney once said, "most of 'em were the second time around—Frankenstein, the mummy, Dracula. But the Wolf Man was mine, all alone. I played him six times."

Among Chaney's hundreds of film credits was his role as the arthritic old marshal in High Noon, the 1952 movie that many critics regard as a pioneer "adult Western."

He entered show business as a stuntman in 1922 against the advice of his father, who told young Chaney: "I've taken the bumps, I know."

Chaney had been released in April from a San Clemente hospital after surgery for cataracts and treatment for beriberi. Friends said he also suffered from liver problems and gout and recently had undergone acupuncture to relieve the pain of the ailments.

Besides his widow, Chaney is survived by two sons, Ronald and Lon from a previous marriage, and nine grandchildren.

Neptune Theatre Plans Light Fare

HALIFAX (CP) — Neptune Theatre has announced the 1973-74 season which begins Nov. 15 will bring to theatre-goers here a balance of experiences from light satire to classic drama.

"It will be a sunshine season, entertaining, but not frivolous," says artistic director Robert Sherrin. All the plays promise to be genuinely stimulating.

"We have geared the season to appeal to a broad cross-section of the public," says Sherrin.

The season opens with Clark Gesner's You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown, a light satiric musical about human foibles, starring the original Broadway Snoopy—Grant Cowan.

The play, based on the famous Peanuts comic strip by cartoonist Charles M. Schulz, is aimed at all age groups and does not resemble television's Charlie Brown specials, which are aimed at children, Sherrin says.

The professional troupe at Neptune shares the show on the road prior to its opening here with visits throughout the Maritimes.

Charlie Brown will be followed Jan. 24 by a Shakespearean production—either Love's Labour's Lost or Romeo and Juliet.

The last Shakespearean production at Neptune was A Midsummer Night's Dream, three years ago.

An hilarious English work, The Real Inspector Hound, a recent comedy by Tom Stoppard, will take over the stage after Shakespeare. That starts Feb. 14.

The following month the troupe plans to produce a new Canadian play, either by Newfoundlander David French (Leaving Home) or about Joseph Howe, journalist and politician in 1800s.

Next April, the theatre will present either Henrik Ibsen's Hedda Gabler or Tom Stoppard's A Gunman by Sean O'Casey.

Sherrin says both are exciting choices—topical and moving.

Sherrin, looking ahead, believes 1973-74 is a crucial period for Neptune.

We have increasing costs, but public increasing revenue. This year has been a tremendous success but we can't rely on single-ticket sales from the box office for basic support."

So Neptune is offering what it calls "an unprecedented package" hopes of producing a more favorable outlook.

Goldie Wins Damages Of $3,000

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Goldie Hawn has won $3,000 in damages and an agreement from two poster companies to stop printing a picture of her "in a silly comedy role" eating a potato chip. She had asked for $1.5 million.

In a Superior Court judgment here Friday, E-Z Card Co. and Role In The Wall also agreed to return all pictures and negatives to Miss Hawn.

Miss Hawn, who won an Academy Award in 1970 as best supporting actress for her role in Cactus Flower, said use of her picture was thwarting manufacturer's offers for product endorsements, invading her privacy and damaging her career.

She said in the suit, filed in 1970, that she had left the cast of television's Laugh-In primarily to discard her role as a comedienne and become a serious actress.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Tuesday, July 17

Aries (March 21-April 19): Act alone on behalf of those you cherish. What you do is to the point; it's unlikely people too close to the issues will understand.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): You may have to choose between home affairs and business. Being patient is not easy, but it is essential.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Many preparations, with little time for doing them. Insure enough work for you—it can be real fun!

Cancer (June 21-July 22): The day goes well, pretty much as expected, the later hours shift to different tracks, subtly beneficial.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Your way of doing things comes into question, possible criticism — you must conform with existing situations.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Cooperation lags, so you carry more than your share of most activities. Complaint would make things worse—don't.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Events sweep you along. Emphasis builds on the coming weekend's possibilities. You'll have to bak up whatever you say.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Difficult adjustments are achieved today with just a little more effort than normal, and a bit of extra time.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Movement, exchanges, exhibition are the keywords applying to most of today's activities.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An early start is one thing; an orderly beginning free from haste is something better.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Differences of viewpoint come into the open, particularly where the progress and problems of younger people are concerned.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Continue your projects quietly, as far from public view as conditions permit. Sealment will get you nowhere right now.

To Your Good Health

Narrowing Artery Makes Leg Weak

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I recently had a physical because the calf of my right leg gets sore and tired after walking eight to 10 blocks.

The doctor called it peripheral vascular occlusive disease and recommended I ask a surgeon to check my arteries with a dye test. I am 72 and dread such an operation.

A foot doctor tells me to walk until I get tired, then rest, and then walk some more, and in that way I can develop new ways for the blood to circulate. Have you any suggestions? — C.E.W.

This condition is called intermittent claudication (limping) and is the result (as your doctor told you) of occlusion or narrowing of the artery in the upper leg, or from inflammation of arteries as in Buerger's disease.

There is sufficient blood flow when you are not exercising, but not sufficient to prevent cramping when you begin exercising more than a certain amount.

The purpose of the "dye test," or X-ray after dye has been introduced to make the blood vessels visible, is to determine the extent and location of the narrowing. This does not imply surgery—although in some cases blood vessel surgery can effectively relieve the trouble.

The advice to walk as much as you are able, then rest and walk some more, is sound. In conjunction with this Buerger's exercise may help. This consists of lying on the edge of a bed or couch so some such surface. First raise your leg (the higher the better) for 15 to 30 seconds. Then lower it to the floor for one to two minutes. Then rest it in horizontal position for two minutes. Repeat the whole thing.

Doing this for half an hour several times a day should bring gradual improvement.

If you smoke, discontinue all forms of tobacco permanently.

How much success you can achieve with walking and the above exercise will be a good guide (along with the dye test) as to whether surgery would be advisable.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My temperature runs low, around 97.6. My doctor and the nurse said better low than high. All medical tests say that is normal, so I am worried. — S.E.

That 98.6 is only the average normal temperature—meaning that some variation, up and down, also is normal.

Unless some other reason appears, I see no reason why you should be worried about a somewhat low temperature.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My fiancee and I have the problem of not knowing where to obtain birth control pills and other contraceptive devices. I am 18 and she is 17. We hear of their availability but don't know where or how to get them.

We have enclosed a self-addressed envelope for your reply. Please write in pen pal letter. This is because of the strictness of my fiancee's mother.—R.J.

In simple terms, she should go to her doctor for birth control pills. They require a prescription. If she is not allowed to go to a doctor by herself, she is not old enough to get married, in my opinion.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What can you tell me about Sheehan's syndrome? It was mentioned to a member of my family but I do not understand what it is.—Mrs. B.S.E.

It is a rare condition resulting from deficiency in the pituitary gland. Since the pituitary controls other endocrine glands, Sheehan's syndrome produces symptoms resulting from failure of glands—low metabolism, underactive adrenal glands, insufficient sex hormones. A complicated condition, as you can see, and best managed by an endocrinologist.

The bidding:

Opening lead — Jack of diamonds.

This deal occurred in the Canadian Trials to choose a team for the Women's championship of the 1972 World Bridge Olympiad. The hand features a sparkling defensive play — the kind you read or hear about but never see.

Heroine of the piece at the first table was Sharyn Livolsky of Montreal, who held the East cards. Her partner led the jack of diamonds. The winning defense would have been easy to find had Sharyn let declarer played the queen from dummy, for in that case Sharyn would have taken the king and returned a diamond, leaving South in a hopeless position.

But declarer, no green hand, went up with the ace on the diamond lead and it was on this trick that Sharyn made the magnificent play of the hand.

As a result, declarer went down one. West won the diamond lead at trick two with the king, established her diamonds, and soon after got in with the ace of clubs to cash her remaining diamonds and put an end to declarer's hopes.

Had Sharyn neglected to drop her king of diamonds on the ace, declarer would have made ten tricks with proper play — instead of the eight she actually wound up with.

At the other table, North became declarer at three no-trump and East made the perfectly normal lead of a heart. Declarer won in dummy with the queen and led the queen of clubs. West took the king and shifted to the jack of diamonds, but North went up with the ace and led another club, thus making four notrump.

East, at the second table, could have duplicated Sharyn's feat had she found the brilliant opening lead of the king of diamonds. But in Canada they don't play the game with mirrors.

Tomorrow: When to cover.

BARGAINS BANNED

WINDSOR, England (CP) — Antique dealers have been asked to stop buying silverware, jewelry and bric-a-brac offered them by schoolboys of Eton College. The boys had been adding large pounds to the pocket money by selling family heirlooms sent with them to school by their well-off parents.

LIVERPOOL POOL

LIVERPOOL, England (CP) — Ladbrokes Ltd., a leading firm of bookmakers, said they were stunned when a man beat odds of €90,520-1 and collected £25,000 (about $62,500) for a five-pence bet. The bettor, who requested anonymity, picked the first two horses in each of three races.

Auto Workers Start Talks with Big Three

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers (UAW) and the three biggest United States automakers start contract talks this week amid an intra-union flare-up over bargaining issues.

Talks with General Motors start today. Talks with Ford and Chrysler began during the next two days.

A former union official said aside to the late UAW president, Walter Reuther, has charged that the union's leadership is approaching this year's talks with little desire for substantial gains for its members. The union leadership promptly denied the charge.

Paul Schrade, a former member of the international UAW executive board, contends that Leonard Woodcock, Reuther's successor, is ignoring the demands of rank-and-file members and is making a conciliatory approach to management.

Schrade said Friday that UAW members are discontented with the union's program and a rebellion is brewing over such issues as voluntary overtime working conditions and discipline.

No Reason for Canadians To Be Bound by U.S. Curbs

TORONTO, (CP) — Dennis McDermott, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers, (UAW) believes it will be possible to generate enough money for a wage settlement when the union meets the three biggest United States automakers this week—even within the confines of U.S. wage and price guidelines.

Mr. McDermott, also international UAW vice-president, will be making a traditional appearance at the bargaining sessions in Detroit.

He emphasizes, "We didn't elect President Nixon and we don't accept in Canada any inhibitions placed on bargaining across the border by the U.S. restraints."

He said it is not a wild dream to suggest that because of the integration of the auto industry, one of the Canadian subsidiaries of the Big Three may be singled out as the target if the controls in the U.S. create obstacles to an adequate wage settlement.

"Certainly, if the situation were reversed and if the Canadians had wage and price controls, the American auto workers would not be bound by the limits of a settlement in Canada. There is no reason for the Canadians to be put in that position."

Mr. McDermott said one real concern is the demand by the UAW in Canada for a catch-up in cost-of-living increases to maintain wage parity.

Canadian Banks Defend Their Services to West

TORONTO (CP) — Far from draining resources from the western provinces, Canadian chartered banks serve the area disproportionately to Western deposits, population and other criteria, the Canadian Bankers' Association says in a brief.

The association says bank loans exceed deposits in each of the four western provinces.

The "positive balance"—the difference between assets and liabilities—were $1.22 billion for the western provinces at the end of the last banking year at Oct. 31, 1972, the brief says.

The brief released today was prepared for a Calgary conference July 24-26 on western economic opportunities.

It appears to drew much the same conclusion as a federal government brief released last week which said the traditional western lament that the region is short-changed by eastern financial interests appears unjustified by facts.

Arise! The Furniture Revolution Has Come To Belleville

Famous brands of furniture cost less...much less at Cherney's - Grand Opening Thurs. July 19th, 1 p.m.

Visit us. Over $4,000 in valuable prizes. Nothing to buy. Just ask for a ballot.

You must see the new Cherney's to really believe it. Now you can view Home Furnishings in over 150 room settings. Canada's top makers are here — Serta, Sklar, Peppler, Vilas, Inglis, RCA, Electrohome and scores of others. Almost an entire football field of home furnishings. By eliminating frills, by bringing warehouse and showroom facilities under one roof, buying in carload volume and mechanizing merchandise handling Cherney's have come up with lower price tags than you could ever imagine.

Once you make your selection — Cherney's will deliver to your home. Or, you may save even more money by taking advantage of Cherney's lower "take-it-with-you" price. It's available on many items. Just pick-up your purchase in its original factory carton at Cherney's customer loading area. Come see us Thursday!

Summer, besides being the best time of year to be a woman, brings its own special needs for skin care and freshness.

In the summer months, we all want a healthy looking tan. Special care is required with skin that tends to burn easily and skin dryness caused by too much exposure to the sun at one time. These minor problems can take some of the joy out of a season that should be carefree and relaxed as far as makeup is concerned.

Enjoy the summer freedom by selecting a suntan oil or screening cream that's suited to your skin type. Use it regularly before going out in the sun, especially when in and out of the water. Like the boy scouts, always be prepared and have your lotions on hand, even if you don't think you will be out in the sun—summer is more fun when it is impromptu.

Summer fragrances are an integral part of any woman's makeup. To keep fresh and feminine, the current trend to tangy, citrus fragrances is ideal. We all love to feel fresh and attractive while enjoying the various summer activities, whether they be strenuous or languid and lazy.

All day, non-stop fragrance, beginning with the bath or shower, is part of today's sensuous life-style, and fragrances that can be used for any occasion—whether it be first thing in the morning or before an evening out—are the ideal choices for summer scents.

The latest from Lloyd Percival—free

sports & fitness Instructor

A world of knowledge for the world of sports and fitness.

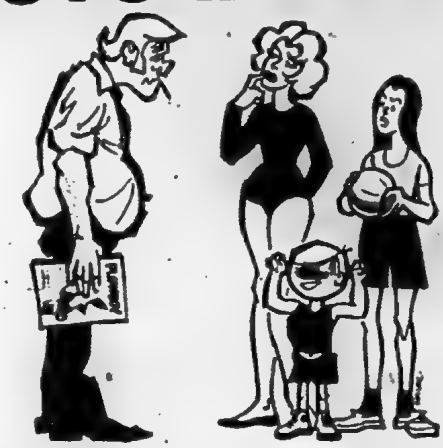
When Lloyd Percival talks about fitness . . . conditioning . . . track and field . . . nutrition . . . coaching . . . about a host of related sports and fitness subjects, people take notice. As a long time coach, Director of the Fitness Institute in Toronto and advisor to countless champion athletes and teams, he's a highly respected figure in his field.

Every month Shoppers Drug Mart stores offer you the words and wisdom of this man in his own publication—Sports & Fitness Instructor—free, at our stores across the country. It is usually displayed in special stands so you can pick it up as you shop. If you don't see it, please ask for it.

"The best sports paper I have ever read," says Karen Magnussen, world champion figure skater.

"The best by far of anything in this line I have come across," comments Bob Campbell, South Africa's national swimming coach.

We receive hundreds of letters like these from people who appreciate the many authoritative articles on fitness, coaching, and technical aspects of sports that appear every month.



The articles on this page are merely brief examples of the kind of information you will find in every issue of the newspaper where experts in each field discuss the various subjects in depth—and where Lloyd Percival states his opinion in no uncertain terms.

Hey, dad—you're in bad shape!

. . . and mom needs exercise, too

By Lloyd Percival

RESULTS of a survey of Canadian families carried out recently by Sports & Fitness Instructor showed, to no one's great surprise, that dad is usually the least fit member of the family.

"Mrs. Average Canadian Housewife" was only slightly fitter than dad—and again this was no startling revelation.

But another interesting situation was highlighted: while elementary school-age girls are generally fitter than boys in the same age group, the situation is reversed when they become teenagers.

Families scored themselves in the survey with the aid of a series of tests designed to indicate fitness capability in such areas as strength, heart/circulatory, flexibility, muscle power, movement speed, balance, body fat percentage, agility, reaction time, respiratory function, motor performance.

Evaluation

Members of the family were compared in the different components of fitness so that the specific needs of the family as whole—and of each member—could be evaluated.

The various components were "weighted" according to their importance. As an example, tests involving heart/circulatory fitness had a score potential of 30 in this system, whereas the highest score possible for strength was 20; flexibility could count for a maximum of 16 points.

Main reasons

We won't go into all the details of the survey results in this article, but it is interesting to note that the main reasons dad wound up at the bottom of the list were his poor scores in the heart/circulatory, flexibility and fat per cent tests.

He generally scored well in reaction time, agility and balance tests, but the ones in which he scored especially low were the important ones and therefore the ones that brought his fitness index down.

This shows that the "head of the family" should start emphasizing types of exercises which improve heart/circulatory fitness and get rid of fat. He should also give thought to regaining his flexibility since a lack of flexibility often relates to tension and certainly to "feeling old."

Just because the kids were shown to be fitter than mom and dad, it should not be regarded as a sign they are in great shape overall. ALL members of the family—on the average—had relatively poor scores in the heart/circulatory tests and abdominal fat percentages were far too high, even in the younger age groups.

Weak spots as far as the rest of the family were concerned include:

Weak spots

Boys (pre-adolescent): Strength, especially in arms and abdominal area.

Girls (pre-adolescent): Abdominal strength, agility, movement time.

Boys (teenage): Strength, flexibility and agility.

Girls (teenage): Too much body fat and not enough strength.

Mothers: Body fat, agility and abdominal strength.

The survey results serve to emphasize something we have heard and read a lot about in recent years: the average Canadian family has a fitness level that is lower than is desirable. However, I must sound an optimistic note. Interest in fitness is growing rapidly and more and more Canadians are doing something about their fitness rather than just talking about it.

Each month, Sports & Fitness Instructor carries a number of articles on the subject of health and fitness, complete with sets of exercises designed to help you overcome your "weak spots". Get your free copy from your nearest Shoppers Drug Mart.

the question box

IS IT true that a very short, heavily muscled person will never make a good endurance runner?

This is not true, though it is a fairly common idea to which many coaches subscribe.

There have been world record holders in the distance events who have been heavily muscled and short. One good example is the famous Russian distance star of a few years ago, Vladimir Kuts, who held world and Olympic records in 5,000 and 10,000 meters.

It should be stated, however, that the classic distance runner is light boned and slender but very strong on a per pound of body weight basis. Frank Shorter, the winner of the Munich marathon, is an example.

WILL WRESTLING make you muscle bound?

Wrestling is one of the finest activities there is: it not only improves all-over strength but is also efficient in the development of agility, coordination, balance and speed.

Any athlete anxious to build up general body strength will find wrestling an ideal way to accomplish it.

Perhaps one of the reasons for the theory that wrestling will slow you down and make you muscle-bound is that so many professional wrestlers appear to be big, fat and slow. However, when we speak of wrestling we refer to the amateur sport—not the pro exhibitions.

THE PERSONALITY CLASH THAT CREATES LOSERS

By Lou Allen

"IF A COACH were given the opportunity to go out on the field and select from his talent the particular personality type that fits his concept of a winner, the athlete would probably be a champion."

So writes Dr. Thomas Tutko, one of the foremost sports psychologists in the United States and indeed, in the world.

Dr. Tutko is referring to the personality clash between coach and athlete that often reduces the effectiveness of a coaching program to zero. The coach is usually willing to adapt his approach to the talent he has available, but is often reluctant to adjust to the different personality types—they must adjust to him, he rationalizes.

And that, says Dr. Tutko, is why a coach's techniques will often be highly successful with some players or teams, and a complete disaster with others. In the latter case, he may not be a poor coach—he may simply have failed to adjust his style to the athletes he comes in contact with and be unable to motivate them.

Pro coaches, provided they have job security, are fortunate in that they can often rebuild their teams to fit their concept of what athletes should be. The average amateur coach in club or school does not have this opportunity, and often it is his ability to adjust not his personality but his style of coaching to fit the team or individual athlete that spells success or failure.

Many coaches do not take time to become acquainted with their athletes. They rely on coaching philosophies that have taken them years to develop or are imitations of their own coaches in years past. These philosophies usually do not include motivational or psychological techniques for handling athletes as individual personalities.

Writes Dr. Tutko: "The coach must understand how he can best motivate the individual athlete, because within each athlete is the potential to be successful. It is the coach's handling that will enable each athlete to reach his full potential.

"Some coaches actually look down on their athletes or regard them as naive and in need of being governed totally. The coach exercises complete control over them.

"The better philosophy suggests that the players are individuals in their own right, and, to bring out their potential talent, they need to be understood and handled in terms of their own needs.

"The first philosophy may produce a winning team, but it will also eliminate a lot of potentially productive athletes. The latter will produce a greater number of winners because it allows for the development of several different personality types by using as the frame of reference the individual player rather than the coach."

Good advice for coaches—and I wonder if a few parents couldn't benefit from it too, not just as regards their relationship to their son or daughter in an athletic context but in all aspects of day to day living.

Mounties Seize Arms at Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A Canadian is in custody in Dublin following two seizures of arms police believe were destined for the Irish Republican Army.

A local RCMP spokesman confirmed Monday that Ottawa seized a number of sub-machine guns here Friday. A similar confiscation in Dublin was made Monday after Irish police arrested the Canadian at Dublin airport.

The man was identified as John Patrick Daniel Murphy of the Toronto borough of Scarborough. He appeared in court today in Dublin on a charge of illegally importing firearms and ammunition and was released on bail.

An RCMP official in Ottawa said Monday that through the co-operation of Irish and Canadian police the consignment of weapons was seized aboard the freighter Manchester Vigour which arrived in Dublin Sunday night from Montreal.

Seventeen rifles and 20,000 rounds of ammunition were found in a container aboard the British ship.

"We know . . . the ship did not dock at any port after leaving Montreal some time on or shortly after July 1," a police spokesman in Dublin said.

He said they had been suspicious of some Canadian shipments in the past but in this case there was enough evidence to warrant a search.

The police spokesman described Monday's seizure as "a relatively small find" but the discovery might lead to more illegal arms supplies being uncovered.

Ottawa and Toronto RCMP spokesman refused to comment further because the case is still under investigation. No arrests were made in the Toronto seizure.

They added they doubt the latest arms find represents a regular traffic from Canada but the spokesman said "all angles are being checked."

A Manchester Lines spokesman said one of their ships called in Dublin Friday but not about once every three weeks.

The president of the Toronto shipping company that shipped the arms said in an interview Monday he had packed an order in late June for which invoices described the contents as "machinery parts."

Vivian Dubois of Dubois International said he was unaware the shipment contained anything but machinery parts, as marked, until he was notified by his Dublin agent that the shipment "turned out to be this."

He said he followed "the normal procedure of weighing and measuring" the shipment. He then contacted the Canadian National Railways transport depot here for shipment of the goods to Montreal where they were taken by the Manchester ship.

Mr. Dubois refused to reveal the identity of his clients but said that although they weren't regular customers, he did handle another of their shipments last fall to Dublin marked as machinery.

The matter was also brought up in the Commons Monday when Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie promised to "make inquiries" after questioning from T. C. Douglas, New Democratic member for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands.

The minister told Mr. Douglas that all imports and exports of arms are regulated.

In an interview outside the Commons, Mr. Douglas called for a full inquiry to ascertain who was responsible for the shipment, and charges should be laid if no export permit was issued.

Police described the Irishborn Murphy as a carpenter. They said they visited his home Friday and found Second World War machine guns, ammunition and handguns crated in wooden boxes ready for shipment.

They were unable to say when Murphy left Canada but said that if he returns he will face charges of possession of restricted weapons.

However, they expressed concern about protection for his wife now that his name has been released in Dublin. The Murphys have no children.

No one was at home at the red brick bungalow on a quiet street in the east end of Metropolitan Toronto today. A neighbor said Murphy had been laid off from his job before last Christmas. They said his wife worked as a secretary.

Mr. Dubois said he had never heard of Murphy.

"The name is not familiar at all," he said. "I dealt with a company, not an individual."

He declined to disclose the name of the company "as purely business ethics."

"It's kind of shocking to think an illegal shipment like this could have been made through our services," he added.

The Dubois firm is a shipping consultant company.

Mrs. Speiran and Shea lived in the house.

Nixon Refuses To Yield Tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will not release tapes of his personal conversations to the Senate Watergate committee, the White House indicated today.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee was preparing today to ask for tape recording of President Nixon's conversations with key figures in the scandal, while continuing its public inquiry with the president's former personal lawyer, Herbert Kalmbach.

Kalmbach, a California lawyer who raised funds for Nixon's two presidential campaigns and for the seven convicted Watergate conspirators, testified only briefly Monday. He said he collected, at the request of former White House aides John Dean and John Ehrlichman, $220,000 in cash for the seven in the three months after the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic headquarters in the Watergate.

But Kalmbach's testimony linking one of Nixon's closest aides to the cover-up scheme was overshadowed by the revelation that tape recorders might be able to provide the committee's ultimate questions—what did the president know, and when did he know it.

Alexander Butterfield, a former presidential assistant and now head of the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) was called unexpectedly because he was scheduled to leave today on a trade mission to Moscow. He told the panel the president's office and telephones were bugged.

Butterfield said he had the Secret Service install sophisticated electronic eavesdropping equipment with the president's knowledge, but that only a handful of people knew about the taping. The tapes were to be used for a history of the Nixon White House years.

The White House confirmed the recording system has been in operation since the spring of 1971, personnel at the president's conversations in his Oval Office, executive office building office, the cabinet room and at his personal telephones.

The senators immediately put their staff to work preparing a formal request for the tapes they want to hear. It was understood that special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox also planned to ask for the tapes to corroborate or discredit Dean, who testified Nixon knew of the cover-up.

Sam Dash, the Senate committee's chief counsel, said the staff would go over the official White House log of the president's meetings and telephone conversations—already turned over to the panel — and select the specific dates and times cited in the testimony of Dean and others.

Both Vietnamese Sides Ask Help of Red Cross

SAIGON (CP) — The South Vietnamese and Viet Cong said today they have invited Red Cross societies from Canada and Poland to help implement the shaky peace agreement signed last January.

Both the Viet Cong and South Vietnamese said letters have been forwarded through the Canadian and Polish delegations on the International Commission of Control and Supervision.

The content of one of the letters, made public by the Viet Cong, asked the Red Cross to visit Vietnamese military and civilian personnel captured and detained in South Vietnam.

Though the letters were signed separately by the two parties, both said the contents were the same. They did not specify when the work of the Red Cross was expected to begin, but said the working program and details would be worked out later between Red Cross representatives and the Joint Military Commission of the Viet Cong and South Vietnamese.

Under terms of the Paris peace agreement, two or more Red Cross societies are "to visit all places where captured military personnel and foreign civilians are held . . . to contribute to improving the living conditions."

A 12-member Canadian Red Cross team spent three weeks in Saigon in February waiting to start visiting prison camps. The invitations never came and the team left.

Maj. Gen. Arthur Wrinch, national commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross, said at the time his team pulled out because "it became absolutely senseless for the 12 of us to sit around doing nothing . . ."

There is no indication whether the Canadian Red Cross will return now. The Polish Red Cross, which also was chosen earlier did not show up then.

Jobless Increase As Students Idle

OTTAWA (CP) — The downward trend in unemployment, apparent since January, reversed between May and June, leaving 394,000 Canadians out of work last month, Statistics Canada reported today.

In May there were 493,000 unemployed, while in June, 1973, 568,000 were jobless.

Quebec and Ontario fared the worst in the slight reversal as thousands of more students flooded the summer job market and government attempts to slow down the economy began to show effects.

The labor force total in June was 9,667,000 up from 9,533,000 in May.

The failure of many students to find summer work is apparent from estimates which show there were 294,000 jobless between ages 14 and 24 in June compared with 240,000 in that age group in May.

In June, 1972, there were 220,000 between 14 and 24 out of work.

For members of the labor force 25 years and older, the total of unemployed dropped substantially to 209,000 in June from 253,000 in May.

Between the two months, the number of women who were jobless climbed to 172,000 in June from 154,000 in May, while male unemployment dropped to 221,000 from 339,000.

Government efforts to quieten a buoyant economy probably also had an effect on the upturn in joblessness. Since April, the Bank of Canada has increased its interest rate on loans to commercial banks three times in an effort to stem client demand.

While Quebec and Ontario unemployment pictures worsened largely because of the student influx, improvement was apparent in the Atlantic and Prairie regions. British Columbia's unemployment situation remained nearly static.

Alaskan Oil Pipeline Showdown Is at Hand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today faced a showdown on whether to permit environmentalists to continue their lawsuit blocking construction of the proposed Alaskan oil pipeline.

The confrontation was over an amendment declaring the federal government has adequately reviewed the project, and that it complies with the provisions of the National Environmental Policy Act.

Environmentalists, still smarting from a defeat last week on a move to delay construction of the pipeline, for a year, have been lobbying intensively against the proposal.

Asked whether the measure would pass, Senator Ted Stevens (Rep., Alaska), a cosponsor, said, "we were fairly confident last week but now I'm not so sure."

Stevens credited lobbying by the Wilderness Society and Sierra Club with reducing from 57-to 42 the number of "solid votes" for passage.

He said the amendment would permit Congress to substitute its judgment for that of the courts in deciding whether the federal government met its legal obligations in considering alternative pipeline routes for an environmental impact statement.

The Noose Went Here

Freed Canadians Ready To Return to Duties

SAIGON (CP) — Fletcher Thomson and Ian Patten are expected to be back at work at the peace-supervision site at Xuan Loc within two days.

But there is little chance the Canadian captains will have more adventures like the one that ended Sunday when they were released after 17 days of Viet Cong captivity.

Canadian members of the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) have been ordered not go near contested territory without representatives of other ICCS countries.

Thomson, of Ottawa, and Patten, of Toronto, told of long treks through jungles and streams with their arms bound.

They had been seized by Viet Cong local forces June 28 while on a flag-showing and terrain-familiarization trip with two Vietnamese aides in the Xuan Loc area, 45 miles northeast of here.

A Canadian spokesman said today there are no plans to send the two men home to Canada early; they might be back at work within two days.

The theory behind the order that Canadian peace observers must in future be accompanied by those from the other three ICCS countries is that there is little chance of the Viet Cong detaining Hungarians or Poles, the Communist representatives on the International body.

LBJ Did Not Tape Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Secret Service and Old White House friends of Lyndon Johnson have disputed claims by the Nixon administration that LBJ used secret tape recorders in his official duties.

Both groups say the Nixon administration was wrong Monday when it tried to lay at Johnson's door the blame for the wholesale and surreptitious taping of presidential conversations.

Afghans Oust King

LONDON (CP) — A coup has taken place in Afghanistan, a spokesman for the Central Asian nation's embassy in London announced today. The India governtek radio in New Delhi said Kig Mohammed Zahir Shah had been deposed and a republic declared.

The 58-year-old monarch was reported in Rome, convalescing from an illness.

The embassy spokesman said he understood the coup was bloodless but he had no other details.

The monitoring station of All India Radio (AIR) in New Delhi said that Kabul Radio broadcast martial music this morning instead of the usual news bulletin Pushtu, the national Afghan language, and constantly announced that Prime Minister Mohammed Daud would soon speak to the nation.

Daud, a former prime minister, then came on the air and told the Kabul Radio that declaring Afghanistan a republic and charged that the former government was leading the country towards bankruptcy.

Trudeau Talked To Nixon After Office Bugged

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was one of those to confer with President Nixon at a time when the White House's Oval Office was allegedly wired with listening devices.

Mr. Trudeau met with the president Dec. 6, 1971 in the Oval Office during a two-day working visit to Washington.

Cannifton Road Main Approved

City council Monday approved construction of a new six-inch water main along Cannifton Road extending 600 feet north of McFarland Drive.

Included in the installation would be one fire hydrant and six water service laterals.

Total estimated cost of the work is $14,220 of which $11,226 would be assessed against the ratepayers, and $2,519 against the corporation. The six water service laterals are estimated at $973.

The report from the public utilities indicated this section of Cannifton Road was without water mains.

Alderman Arthur Keegan wondered if the proposed six-inch watermain would be large enough to serve the proposed Yardmen's Benefit Fund sports complex which he said would use tremendous amounts of water.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said this was a question to be answered by the utilities commission but later suggested that the proposed sports complex might be served from a proposed large main to be extended from Bell Blvd. across the city and along Adam Street.

Students Return To Explain Law

SPIEL, the ministry of labor's summer project to acquaint the public with labor law, will play a return engagement in Belleville Thursday and Friday.

This time the student-manned booth will be set up at Towers and Food City.

Spokesman for the SPIEL group operating out of Kingston for the summer, said it is continuing in the wake of the "overwhelming response" of Belleville citizens to its first appearance at Quinte Mall.

Members of the SPIEL team are prepared to answer questions on everything from minimum wages to labor legislation.

Belleville Offers Help to Brighton

If assistance is still required, the Belleville public works department will send two men and a truck to the village of Brighton to help clean up the mess left as result of gale forces winds that toppled trees and damaged buildings.

Alderman Stu Meeks raised the question at Monday's council meeting, asking if the city had sent any assistance to the village.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey replied that the city utilities commission had sent men to assist in restoring hydro service.

It was agreed that the works department would provide assistance if this was still needed.

Food Market Broken Into

City police are investigating break-in attempts — one successful and the other a failure — at two Belleville grocery stores Saturday night.

Applecrow Fruit Market, Dundas St. West, was found smashed Sunday morning although it is not yet known whether anything was stolen. Cheese, bacon, meat and other food items were tossed on the floor and over counters after thieves pried open a door to gain entry.

Fry-marks were also discovered around front and rear doors at Zegouris Variety Store, 191 Dundas St. East. Sunday morning. Police said it appeared the thieves gave up after failing to get into the building.

Man Charged On Stolen Bike

City police Sunday charged David Dean Hicks, 20, of 610 Sidney St., with possession of stolen goods after he was stopped riding down Front Street on a bike believed stolen four days earlier.

Last Wednesday, Pierre Chevrier of 21 Joyce Cr., reported his 10-speed bike was stolen from near the Belle Theatre.

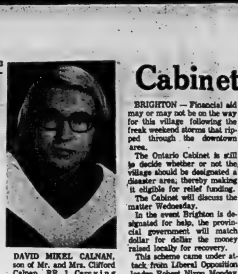
Cabinet to Meet on Brighton Aid

BRIGHTON — Financial aid may or may not be on the way for this village following the freak weekend storms that ripped through the downtown area.

The Ontario Cabinet is still to decide whether or not the village should be designated a disaster area, thereby making it eligible for relief funding.

The Cabinet will discuss the matter Tuesday.

In the event Brighton is designated for help, the provincial government will match dollar for dollar the money raised locally for relief.



This scheme came under attack from Liberal Opposition leader Robert Nixon Monday who said the province should make a more generous contribution and not rely heavily on locally-raised funds.

Village reeve Mrs. Dorothy Brintnell said she was not alarmed at the province's offer and the search for funds would not be on a door-to-door basis.

"Rather, we will be approaching local municipal councils and industry for financial aid," she said.

She said a committee would be set up to handle the fund drive following a firm provincial decision.

In the meantime, she said she was amazed at how quickly the village is being cleaned up.

DAVID MIKEL CALNAN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Calnan, RR 1 Carrying Place, recently was graduated from Trent University-Peterborough and received his Honors Bachelor of Arts degree in History. He has received a teaching Assistantship and a graduate scholarship from the University of Western Ontario, London, where he will continue his studies toward a masters degree.

Visitor Dies In Collision

STIRLING — A 43-year-old man, visiting this area from Halifax for his nephew's wedding, died in the wreckage of his car near here Sunday.

Police said Robert Vincent Lawson, father of two, was returning from the wedding reception when his single-car automobile was involved in a two - car crash on the crest of a hill a mile west of here, on the Sidney - Rawdon townships boundary road.

Mr. Lawson was pronounced dead after arriving at hospital.

They said Mr. Lawson had been involved in a minor accident in Trenton after arriving for the wedding. He was staying at the home of his brother, Charles, of Frankford, and was returning there when the mishap occurred.

Failure to File Brings Fines

Two Belleville residents who failed to file 1971 income tax returns were each fined $30 Monday in Provincial Court.

Mrs. Monica Freeman, 40 Chatham St., and Lawrence Parkhurst, 241 Ann St., both pleaded guilty to two counts of failing to file a return after demands were made under the Income Tax Act. Judge J. L. Clendenning fined them $25 for each time they ignored the request.

Mrs. Freeman received her first notification in November, 1972, seven months after the return was due. A second registered letter was sent to her in April, 1973.

Demands were made to Mr. Parkhurst Feb. 13 and March 16 of this year.

City Seeks to Buy School Building

Subject to approval by the Ministry of Community and Social Services Day Nursery Branch, the city of Belleville will purchase the former William R. Kirk School for Retarded Children at 281 John Street, for $100. Recreation would be the use the structure as a day nursery for the city.

Quoted price of the now-vacant school structure is $28,000. Annual upkeep by the provincial government would pay a 50 per cent grant if purchased approved.

In addition to the purchase resolution, council also passed a motion from Alderman Jean Smith authorizing application for the 50 per cent provincial grant.

If purchase is approved by the province, the John Street nursery school would be operated for the city by the Hastings- county social services department.

The county department now operates a nursery school for the city at Fairy Street.

Reginald Tucker, county social services administrator, said today that in all probability renovations and some structural changes would be required.

Rev. E. R. Hawkes will conduct the funeral on Thursday with service at the MacKenzie Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Interment Hazzard's Cemetery.

French Truckers Have Eating Guide

PARIS (Reuter) — Hungry truck drivers in search of a decent place to settle for a greasy snack but not in France.

This year 4,000 certified truck stop restaurants known as Relais Routiers will serve 70 million delectable, or at least respectable, meals to professions drivers as well as tourists—for less than $3 apiece.

An ever-increasing number of tourists are aware that good low-price meals are available in France in spite of eating food from surrounding the fallacy that gourmet cooking is restricted to the best and three-star restaurants listed in the Michelin guide, where prices may be around $23 a person.

French commercial trucking even has its own food guide.

Often called the poor man's Michelin, the routier publication is patterned after the French tourist bible whose ratings make many hotel keepers and restaurateurs tremble or jump for joy.

Every truck stop where the routier guide is checked once a year and if the price has gone up more than 15 francs per meal or the quality of the cooking has deteriorated, the restaurant is dropped the following year.

Relais Routiers are judged on three specific qualifications: The welcome, cooking and cleanliness. Hundred and thirty among the 4,000 listed in the current edition have been awarded the Sign for the Casserole, signifying that they merit particularly high rating.

The truckers' union this year introduced an annual award to celebrate the 40th anniversary of their movement. The first presentation went to the outstanding relais member of the year, Pierre Langlois, 34-year-old chef and owner of the Hotel de la Poste at Varzy, in central France.

Langlois has been cooking since he was 14 and his current menus include regional dishes such as Charolais beef, fillet of pike and chicken simmered in fresh mushrooms.

The drivers' union and guide book were founded in 1933 by the Vicomte Francois de Suzilee, a journalist and aristocrat at the time and a gourmet to this day.

Wheeling leisurely along the roads of France, the young nobleman observed that the best, progressive restaurants were invariably surrounded by oil slicks on the pavement and trucks in which drivers had stopped for a meal.

In his travels it is an old tourist adage to "eat where the truck drivers eat," but the fare at such roadside halts is a space age version of the Gallic truck driver's concept of food.

Forty years ago French trucks were slow and uncomfortable and drivers rarely had the money to stray from their homes for weeks on end. Soulieu became interested in the drivers' problems and ended up founding the Routiers' Union which screened and approved 150 truck stops during its inaugural year.

Four years later more than 2,000 restaurants were enrolled to post the red and blue heraldic shield which still signifies that the establishment meets rigid standards of approval.

Thirty-five thousand copies of the 1973 relais guide book (total) circulation 160,000 copies) have been printed in English this year (the others are all in French). And the current edition has been expanded to include 64 truck stops in Britain.

IN MEMORIAM

CHAPMAN — In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Ann Chapman, who died July 17, 1956.

We would not wish for sorrow,
We would not wish for pain,
But just to be remembered,
Is all we ask again.
Sadly missed and remembered by Madge, Ed and Ann. 29

JOHNSTON — In loving memory of our dear father, Frederick Johnston, who died July 17, 1970.

We are and within our memory,
Ed by Jean and Johnston.
For the one we loved so dearly,
Our thoughts are always there.
Memories are treasures,
And are kept safe in mind,
No one may see us weep,
For tears are left behind.
Sadly missed and always remembered by Jean, Ed and Ann. 29

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear son and brother Charley who passed away July 17, 1962.

Our hearts still ache with sadness,
And tears flow unseen,
You left us beautiful memories,
Your love we treasure still.
Beautiful memories she left behind,
Mind.

ELLIS — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, who passed away July 17th, 1971.

Sweet memories are golden,
Time cannot dim their worth,
And those who think of him today,
Are those who loved him most.
The flowers we lay upon his grave,
Will soon fade away,
But the love for him will remain always.
Sadly missed,
Wife and family.

A service was conducted by grandparents Tom and Mary Dunderdale.

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like to thank relatives and friends and relatives who helped us in any way during the death of our wife, mother and grandmother. A special thanks to Dr. Gregg and Dr. Jones and nursing staff at the Belleville General Hospital for their kindness, sympathy and help extended to us during the illness and death of our loved one. Thanks also to Rev. Thompson for Phillips McCarey, and a thank you to the funeral director Mr. Jim Cousins, hospital and ambulance drivers.

"We don't have to tear it down anymore," said Mrs. Brintnell. "We just have to cart away the rubble left by the storm."

She had no idea what the damage would total or what target would be set for the fund drive.

She said the village had saved $8,000 by having the town hall blown down — a price quoted in the lowest demolition tender.

Hillcrest Delegation Seeks Sewer Speedup

A group of Hillcrest area ratepayers went faster action in the installation of sanitary sewers in their area.

The request was made to city council Monday evening by a delegation of Hillcrest Ratepayers Association members armed with a petition signed by more than 50 household heads.

The request was for sani. tary sewers in West Street. north of McFarland, University Ave. north of McFarland and all of Tice Crescent.

Delegation spokesman John Gray said residents had been waiting years for sewers, the promise from city hall being that they were scheduled for installation "next year."

Mr. Gray said he had had a complete bathroom without for several years but had been denied the right to install a septic tank because of the imminence of sewer construction.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey explained however, that the city was limited to its capital expenditures each year and could not exceed a quota approved by the Ontario Municipal Board.

If the Hillcrest sewers were constructed sooner than scheduled, it would mean that other projects in the city was committed would have to be postponed.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said West Street sewers were scheduled for 1974 and 1975 construction, with University Ave. and Tice Crescent to be installed in 1975.

Danger Lurks on the Farm

The farm barnyard ranks as the number one danger spot for rural residents across Canada.

This sobering fact is brought home to farmers by the Canada Safety Council in it's calls for observance of Farm Safety Week, July 25 to 31.

Farm Safety Week is endorsed by Federal Agricultural Minister Eugene Whelan who notes that each year approximately 1,400 Canadian farm and rural residents are killed in farm operations.

Another 38,000 are injured in farm accidents and 1,500 are permanently disabled.

Statistics indicate that the accidental death rate down on the farm is 20 per cent higher with farming having the third highest accident frequency, exceeded only by the mining and construction industries.

Studies indicate that 72 per cent of the accidents involving rural residents happen on the farm or in the farm home, with only 28 percent off the farm.

On the farm 45 per cent of the accidents occur in the farm yard, 28 per cent in the field and 27 per cent in and around the home.

The high farm accident toll stems of course from the high degree of farm mechanization. Mechanization has made a positive contribution to human well-being, has reduced the time and effort required for many farm operations and has increased farm productivity.

At the same time, however, it has brought with it hazards which have been overlooked or disregarded by many farmers. Four fifths of all farm machinery accidents involve the tractor and more than half of these occur when the tractor upsets.

Other farm machines most commonly involved in fatal accidents are combines, balers, corn pickers and spreaders.

The principal type of farm machinery accidents involve the victim being caught in the machine or being crushed. Causes in many instances can be traced to guards and shielding being left off, servicing under power and falls from moving machinery.

In citing statistics on farm accidents, the Canada Safety Council stresses the numbers of children involved in farm accidents.

Ten per cent of all farm machinery deaths occur in the under 19 age group with an additional 16 per cent involving the 19-19 age group, all of whom were killed in overturns or crushed.

Youngsters who lack the physical ability, experience, and judgment, should not be permitted to operate tractors and farm machinery.

Also the practice of allowing children — or even adults to ride as passengers on tractors and farm equipment should not be allowed.

RCMP Detachment Head Transferred

Head of Belleville's RCMP detachment for six years, Cpl. Sam Pittman leaves the city at the end of July to take up duties as head of the detachment in Peterborough.

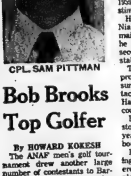
Cpl. Pittman, 35, a member of the force since 1957, learned of the transfer earlier this month. He'll be taking over an office with about twice the manpower of Belleville's four man detachment.

Replacement will be Cpl. Ron Hatzlen. He comes here from Toronto Aug. 1.

A native of Deer Lake, Nfld., Cpl. Pittman worked in Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton before coming to Belleville in 1959 for a one and a half-year stint.

He was then transferred to Niagara Falls where he remained until June, 1966, when he came to Belleville for the second time, still as a constable.

The following year, he was promoted to corporal and assumed command of the detachment which covers all Hastings and Prince Edward counties.



His career here got off to stormy beginning in 1968, the year of the Rock Hound Gemboree bust in Bancroft.

RCMP investigators, including Constable Pittman, discovered several American dis players had improperly declared their exhibits, bringing them across the border for display purposes but selling them to buyers.

When the RCMP impounded the valuable rocks as evidence, protests began that rang as far away as Queen's Park and Ottawa. As always, the Mounties got their man, collecting about $500 in undeclared revenue, but the exhibits did not reside for long in the show and Belleville detachment. If the RCMP emerged a black mark in the annalsof rock collectors all over.

Most of Cpl. Pittman's duties have been concerned with drug enforcement, water patrolling, customs and excise tax and government security. He also took part during the Queen's visit here last month.

Cpl. Pittman and his wife, Wanda, have two children, Jamie, 11, and Brent, 10. They lived in a house adjoining the detachment office at 191 Haig Rd.

Bob Brooks Top Golfer

By HOWARD KOKESH

The ANAF men's golf tournament drew another large number of contestants to Barcovan Golf Club on Saturday morning. Bob Brooks took top honors with a low gross of 83 followed by Hugh McLachlan 85; Glen Denike 89 and Bob Jones 90.

Dick Theenson was first with a low net of 60 followed by Norm Barrigar 64; Dave Fredney 65 and Frank Noble with 66.

The most honest golfer in the tournament was Keith Wager, while Russ Garvin captured the closest to the pin award with a 10-ft. shot.

The next tournament at Barcovan is planned for Saturday August 11 with tee-off time 7.30 a.m.

The ANAF ladies Cinderella Golf Tournament will be held on Sunday July 22 on the par 3 course at Barcovan with tee-off time 10 a.m. Ladies are encouraged to bring their husbands to act as caddies for the tournament and cooks for the barbecue which follows the presentation of prizes.

Tickets are now available from chairman Carl Wood or committee members on the next draw for a complete new set of golf clubs and cart.

It was with deep and sincere regret the members of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit learned of the death of Archie Jordan on Monday July 9. A hard-working, conscientious and dedicated member, he had been awarded a Dominion Life membership several years ago for over a decade he had acted most efficiently as membership chairman. Serving on the Belleville Poppy Fund Committee for several years he was vice-chairman at the time of his death. He will be hard to replace and will be sadly missed. Orangemen Gather At Bancroft Orangemen and women from all parts of Hastings county convened at Bancroft on Saturday to commemorate the 283rd anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne.

Host lodge for the occasion was LOL 624 of Bancroft, members of which had planned a full afternoon's program commencing with dinner at the Bancroft Community Arena, followed by a parade through the village, speeches and sports events.

Bob Robins of Plainfield acted as marshal for the parade which got under way at 2 p.m.

There was a good turnout of adult fans as well as in the men's, ladies and junior divisions.

Guest speaker for the Orange anniversary was W. J. Breen, past grand master for Ontario East. Mrs. Clarence Holmes of Belleville, past grand mistress for Ontario East, Jack Ellis, Hastings MP and Clarke T. Rollins, Hastings MPP, also spoke.

Prizes were awarded for the oldest man and woman on the grounds, and for the best lodge in the parade. Ball games and a tug of war rounded out the day's program.

Our Mistake

Donald Thrush, whose picture appeared in Saturday's issue in connection with his receiving a bachelor of arts degree from Queen's University, was formerly an auditor with the retail sales branch of the Ontario ministry of revenue here and not, as stated, head of the office. William Symington has been district office director since April 1, 1972, when he succeeded Clark Fraser.

Hours Bylaw Topic

City Barbers, Stylists Will Meet with Council

City council will call a meeting with all barbers and hairstylists in the city in the hope of coming up with a bylaw amendment suitable to all operators.

That was the decision Monday as an amendment to the city's bylaw setting out the definitions of a barber came up for ratification in council.

Earlier in the meeting, Bill Kuipers, hair stylist, appeared before council objecting to the amendment and asking for operating hours the same as downtown merchants.

He felt that he should be exempted from provisions of the barber bylaw as a large percentage of his business was hair styling rather than hair cutting.

He said it was unfair that he should be forced to close early when operators doing the same work at the Quinte Mall were allowed to remain open.

City Solicitor John Miller later told council that when more than 70 per cent of a shop's business is from "hairdressing" rather than barbering, the barber bylaw does not apply.

To qualify, however, an operator must pass an examination as a hairdresser.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said that if barbers' bylaw amendment was passed in council, it would undoubtedly be contested.

She said it would cost the city "big money" to defend its bylaw and possible later appeals.

"There must be some way of compromise," she suggested.

When the bylaw amendment came up for discussion it was tabled to allow a meeting of council with all barbers and hair stylists.

Cars Collide, No Injuries

THOMASBURG — Drivers of two cars escaped injury in an accident near Highway 37 here Saturday.

Damage to automobiles driven by Roy Switzer, 17, RR1 Thomasburg and Donald Samuel Calvert, 28, RR1, Thomasburg was estimated at $700 by police.

Pocket Picked While Asleep

Thieves forced a screen window and took $7 from a man's pants while he and other residents of a 79 Everett St. boarding house slept Saturday night.

Ivan Robinson, a boarder at the house owned by Myrtle Barnum, made the discovery when he awoke Sunday morning. Police said purses and other articles of clothing had also been rifled although nothing else was taken.

Not in Vain

The turnout for yesterday's blood donor clinic in Trenton may have fallen short of the expected target but every drop was important. Randy Dertiger, being assisted by Red Cross helper Jill Shirley, was one of 43 donors who appeared by late afternoon to donate blood at the Legion Hall. It had been hoped that 250-300 people would attend the all-day clinic. "People are away on holidays," was the explanation from nurse Kathleen Ingram for the low turnout.

"I can climb that mountain!"

Trenton's Sale Slips This Year

TRENTON — Merchants here have learned from a lack of sales that it was the mall idea that got their annual walk sale over the top in other years.

That was the conclusion of a number of those businessmen who participated in the fifth promotion in that category which ran for three days last week and ended on Saturday. "When the mall was the feature attraction in both 1971 and 1972, the presentation was a much more of a success than this year," reported one of the disappointed merchants.

Planners of the sale this year called for an elaborate entertainment program to attract interest and customers to the mall.

But the more ambitious undertaking had to be scrapped when the businessmen failed to receive authority to block off Dundas street downtown (between Front and Division streets) to stage the event.

Strong objections to the endeavor were registered by businessmen operating establishments on Trenton's east side. They collected signatures on a petition and called for a town council to intervene on their behalf.

Dundas street through Trenton is considered a continuation of No. 2 highway and approval to restrict the use of it in any way has to be obtained from the Ministry of Transportation and Communication at Queens Park.

Driver Faces Four Charges

FRANKFORD — A high-speed chase on Saturday during which a police officer fired a shot as the pursued car bore down on him ended with four charges against a young Campbellford man.

Police say the pursuit started when a provincial police constable tried to halt a car here for a routine check.

The automobile sped off, went through a stop sign and headed across the Trent River bridge, striking another car in its flight.

On the east side of the river it went out of control and jarred and started running the OPP Const. Robert Burkholder jumped from his cruiser and ordered the driver to halt. The automobile drove toward him and the officer fired a shot at its tires.

The car then headed down the Hastings County road toward Foxboro. Near the Wallbridge Loyalist Road intersection the officer's cruiser overtook the speeding car.

Charles Vincent Howard, 18, Campbellford, was charged with dangerous driving, failing to remain at the scene of an accident, impaired driving and having liquor in a place other than his residence.

Anti U.S. Bias

As the Vietnam war and the negotiations to end it dragged on, there was no stemer — and in effect biased — critic of the United States and its involvement in Southeast Asia than the Globe and Mail.

The United States has now withdrawn its ground forces from Vietnam, so The Globe and Mail is now turning its attention to neighboring Cambodia and the U.S. bombing of Communist forces threatening that country. The latter are attempting to overrun Cambodia and pave the way for the return of deposed Prince Norodim Sihanouk who is living in exile in Peking.

Now to read the Toronto newspaper's editorial page on a regular basis is to wonder whether the United States is really our friend and neighbor, and principal defender of the free world, or should we really be waving the flak for Sihanouk and his supporters, the Khmer Rouge forces in the capital Phnom Penh, not to mention putting out the red carpet for any other Reds who happen along.

With friends like The Globe and Mail, Moscow and Peking need have no fear of any enemy. For clearly, in that newspaper's view, the United States is the villain of the piece.

And when one gets the same sort of bias from the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, in news and documentary programs, it gives us reason to question further these strange offerings of certain sections of the media.

We should not be taken in then, but some may be, especially when the same anti-American theme comes through so clearly and so regularly from these sources which we have mentioned.

Recreation Needs

It is not so long ago that Council heard a suggestion that Belleville was "overparked," meaning that is, more than adequate parkland. Now the word is that with the proliferation of multiple housing units there is a great need for both parkland and playground property with particular emphasis on the latter.

Actually we have long felt that such facilities are needed on a comprehensive basis around the city, as much for the young people of families who are well-off in the material sense as for those in low-cost housing. There is the beautiful little Stanley Park for instance which might well have a couple of tennis courts without in any way destroying its unspoilt and tranquil atmosphere. As the city grows it will have to think more of providing recreation facilities such as these on an area basis.

Kingston Celebrations

Kingston has been having a great historic blast, what with the re-enactment of the arrival of Count Frontenac and a big parade today, not to mention the visit of the other tercentenary happenings of recent months.

It is a great year for Kingston and the various activities mentioned there have served to enhance the city's historic atmosphere as well as its community spirit.

Interesting too in recent days was the Bastille Day celebration in Cape Vincent N.Y. Few in these parts are aware of the "French Connection" in that part of New York, including, it seems, an uncle of Napoleon who settled there during that restless period in French history.

Planning

Extract from the Ontario Economic Council's review of municipal planning: "In 25 years, no government of Ontario has ever given serious notice to municipalities that despatch is of any importance in subdivision administration. As a result there is by now an almost universal resignation to an unreal, ponderous system, in which delay is of no consequence, and where lengthy processing is equated with careful study.

"In the absence of clearly enunciated provincial guidelines, even the most capable municipal operations can suffer from the excess of area, petitfogging and legalism which is manifest in aggravating delays, unreasonable requirements, and stereotyped results."

Something to think about!

New Breed of Bright Young Men

Drip-Dry Cowpokes' Replace 'Old West' Image in Commons

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA — To hear the new, young Tories tell it, politically speaking there is a "New West" instead of course, an old.

The "New West" recently was proclaimed in the House of Commons by the MP who seems to have invented it as a parliamentary term, Douglas Roche, 40-year-old freshman Conservative from Edmonton-Strathcona.

Another representative of this "New West" is a second Tory first-termer, 34-year-old Joe Clark, former special assistant to Conservative Leader Stanfield and now MP for Rocky Mountain.

These men of the "New West" are young, articulate, sophisticated, dapper and are involved in issues beyond the traditional regional horizon of wheat, cattle, oil and gas freight rates and what more kind more people on the Prairies are call "Eastern disparity" and, borrowing the term from Quebec, "Equalization."

In the words attributed to Douglas Roche, they avoid being caught in the "narrow fissations and old battles".

They have become the darlings of the big metropolitan press.

The Toronto political writers have hailed in praise, if not altogether wonder, these suave smoothies from the "New West" as the "Drip-Dry Cowpokes."

This, of course, is in contrast with Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver press-eye-view of the men from what is supposed to be the "Old West".

They have been jinxed in the big city print, in varying degrees of sorrow and even scorn, as "Diet's Cowboys".

They are not Johnny - First-Termers, but have been around Parliament Hill a long time, although none so long as Diefe's 33 years.

They came to power and took over as the leaders of Prairie political opinion when Diefe in the 1958 election marched forth from Prince Albert in the unsolicited triumph of 208 Commons seats.

"They would arrive here (in Ottawa) by train, awkward, ill at ease and suspicious of anyone who looked like George Drew," it was recently written of them by Toronto political commentators.

"Though they were tough, weathered men who talked about freight rates and farming and stayed pretty well to themselves.

"They viewed the Eastern politician as an exotic patrician who thought more about the menu at the Rideau Club than about the West.

"These Westerners were shrill free-enterprisers and they really did not much care what people in the big eastern cities thought of them.

"And for their part, the Easterners saw the Diefe MP as a rowdy wool-hat who talked too loudly and never went anywhere without a pint of cowboy rye on his hip."

Cowboys and wool-hats are only two of a wide Toronto-Montreal - Vancouver lexicon covering these men of the "Old West".

They have been variously called "rednecks, yahoos, barnburners" and, more recently, "Diefosaurs".

None of which has ever bothered them.

For in their way, they are just as politically sophisticated as the men from the "New West".

As their acknowledged leader, actually, Diefe's deputy — Jack Horner recently confided: "I've been tempted to cut out the dumb farmer routine and get some guy to disclose his position before I disclose mine — and I won't name names."

Big. Jack Horner undeniably is.

But dumb, he never has been.

He runs a 25,000 acre spread of grassland north of the Red Deer River in Alberta, grazes as many as 1,000 head of beef cattle, and cultivates as much as 1,500 acres of oats, barley and fall rye.

Son of the late Senator Ralph Horner, originally an Irishman out of Western Quebec's Pontiac country, he has made it, at 42, through 15 years in the Commons and six successive general elections.

There is a clear difference," MP newcomer Joe Clark has said, between the New West and the old, "and the two sides view each other with a stalking kind of affection."

Be interesting to see if the Clarks' weathervane will as the plain-talking "Diefe Cowboys".

They will have to be around a long time and win a lot of elections, and may discover that one win at the polls does not necessarily transform the West into something supposedly "New".

Queen Dropped Non-Political Role in Canada

By JOHN HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

A random sampling from what the world's leaders have been saying tells us why foreign affairs are so exotic.

Let' go from the sublime to the ridiculous, from the words of Queen Elizabeth II to the admonitions of Libya's Colonel-President M. Qaddafi.

Once, the Queen in Canada was supposed to be non-committal and above domestic issues, hence her reliance on expressions such as the one which fascinated British tourists a few year ago, "my husband and I ..." would never be raised abroad again.

This time substance and involvement, (with Ottawa's approval), in a Canadian domestic problem marked the Queen's two main speeches in Canada.

In Toronto and before her safe-return into royalty, Edmonton Ontario, Her Majesty gave her "Queen of the Canadians" address. It was a modern, and for her, a hard-sell pitch to maintain the monarchy in the Canadian future.

In Calgary, where Ottawa's speech-making direction came in, she admitted our Indian people have problems with the system. In our open age, the refusal of the Metis Association of Canada to take part in ceremonies for the 100th anniversary of the RCMP, could not be shoved aside.

Nor could its public charge that 100 years of the Mountie meant a century of RCMP opposition for native peoples. Even during her recent high Arctic visit in 1970 made to all the world of Canada's ownership of Arctic islands, such a speech would have been unlikely.

Half a world away from Canada, at Helsinki where 35 European nations were discussing "security" in Europe's largest ever conference on that theme, the table-pounding came from Malta and from Dom Mintoff, tiny Malta's table-pounding prime minister.

He wanted an already-unwieldly conference to be expanded wider to include his new-found North African friends, Algeria and Tunisia and to put the Middle East crisis on an agenda-laden schedule.

Prime Minister Mintoff, who almost kicked out a British garrison for not increasing their aid ante to his island nation, warned the big and small powers that the Middle East with its "black hatreds" of Arabs and Jews, was a bigger threat than the ones under discussion.

Further east in economically deprived Uganda, its president General Amin who will probably be in Ottawa in August for a monster conference of Commonwealth heads of government, still wasn't greet a new American ambassador to Kampala.

That's because Washington won't send him one after his recent statement that he hopes President Nixon survives his Watergate ordeal. The last U.S. ambassador in Uganda left seven months ago in protest over the general's earlier violent excesses about the U.S.

And speaking of Watergate and Nixon, a guarantee from him of no statement until the senate investigating committee has done its work.

The medal for incredible remarks goes again to Libya's president. Last week President Qaddafi told a public audience in Cairo that women are uncivilly and physically ill-equipped to share the roles and pressures which men must endure.

Loud shouts of disapproval arose from the angry Libyan and Egyptian women.

"Alright," Quaddafi shouted back, "if you feel you are equal to men in all things, pregnant women can make parachute drops!"

Quetico Stays Primitive

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

In the latter days of the session, Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources announced that Quetico Park was to be designated as a "primitive park."

This means that the park will be restored to, and maintained in, a completely natural state and that there will be strong restrictions on its use.

Eventually, for example, all outboard motors are to be banned from the park.

Some $2 billion is to be spent on the preservation and to provide better access.

It is true it follows the recommendations of an advisory committee it set up to study the park.

But it would know that certainly not everybody would agree with its course, for there are two very strong sides of opinion on park usage.

And even some conservationists can disagree with making them primitive and restricted areas.

The basic difference of opinion is on just which limits should be imposed in any park.

Although a good many people will agree to keeping large areas in a natural state, they can't see the point of doing this without free access.

The argument is, what is the point of having natural areas if people can't see and use them.

The obvious answer, of course, is that if there is too much usage the natural character is lost and the areas become just another recreational playground.

Apparent as this would seem to be, it is surprising how many people can't see it . . . and how vehemently they can protest at times.

As for Quetico, its designation as primitive marks the end of a long fight by people in northwestern Ontario.

The area is regarded as unique on the continent for its combination of wilderness and lakes and abundant canoe trails.

For years there has been a government to keep it unmolested.

But there has been strong pressure to open it up, particularly from commercial interests on the U.S. side. (It runs along the Minnesota border).

It is a mark in favor of the government that it has resisted this pressure.

Scotch Too Much for Scots?

Vancouver Province

Centuries of romantic myth, aided by clever advertising, have attached a thoroughly wholesome quality to the whisky of Scotland.

But now comes a report from Scotland that gives a different view of the home of Scotch than we got from Burns, who said whisky and freedom go together, or from Harry Lauder, whisky makes Scotland a gayer place.

It seems that seven times as many men and five times as many women per capita are admitted to hospital for treatment of alcoholism in Scotland than in England and Wales.

About 2,000 Highlanders, or one percent of the region's population, are alcoholics. And there is growing concern in the medical profession that the traditional daily "dram" of whisky to distillery workers there plays an important role in the problem.

Canadians are in no position to tut-tut into their rye whisky on behalf of the poor Highlanders, however; if one percent of the Highlands' population are alcoholic, what does that say for Canada where an estimated two percent — 400,000 persons — in the entire population suffers from alcoholism and another 600,000 are problem drinkers?

Violence in the U.S.

The Christian Science Monitor

No single solution will suffice to minimize repetition of the recent tragic episodes dramatizing the abuse of firearms in the United States. But several avenues to progress are open, and some steps in the right direction have been made.

These avenues include such specifics as the controversial ban on sale of guns and regulations controlling their use by persons authorized to have them. Improvement also depends on the psychological climate for personal behavior established by the family, school, and community as well as the national leadership. The urgency of evaluating and pursuing the necessary measures has been poignantly brought home once again by such events as a Boston father's fatal shooting of his wife and five of their six children. This was the worst episode in the memory of Boston's homicide chief - but sadly typical in the sense of the FBI finding that one murder occurs somewhere within families or among acquaintances.

At almost the same time a New York policeman was charged with the fatal shooting of a 10-year-old and a Baltimore policeman with the fatal shooting of a 15-year-old.

The killings take place in a context of such recently published U.S. figures as 345 fatal shootings during one week in March, 40 percent more than in a similar survey four years ago; the killing or wounding of an American by firearms every two minutes, the use of a firearm in 67 percent of 112 killings of policemen last year—and the purchase of a handgun every 13 seconds in America every 13 seconds.

Community Services

The Intelligencer.

The Letters Patent of the United Community Services lists as an aggressive objective "to plan and initiate, co-ordinate and encourage health, welfare, creation services . . . and have the courage by continuing review and revision to maximize economy and efficiency and in an orderly development and effective organization of such needed services".

One of the ways the UCS chose to fulfill this objective, was to call a meeting of all agencies, individuals and health services in order to share ideas and to determine unmet needs. This meeting was held May 8 at Edith Cavell School of Nursing and was attended by approximately 60 concerned people. The prevailing comments suggested that there is a need for co-ordination and co-operation in the Parish field. Dr. Robert Walker, area co-ordinator for the Ministry of Health was present and outlined procedures for the District Health Councils.

As ad hoc committee was appointed by the participants to conduct a study to ascertain the possibility of setting up a co-ordinating body in the health field. A questionnaire has been sent to some 300 people to aid the committee in its study of the compiled data. A report will be given at a general meeting in the fall.

The committee is fully aware of the existence of the Quinte District Health Planning Council and a copy of the Mrs. Gordon Report is in circulation. This report is a highly professional and technical study of the roles of hospitals and of present resources. In no way does the Quinte District Health Study Committee expect to duplicate or overlap the work of this report. Suggestions have already been made to the chairman of the Quinte District Hospital Planning Council that the two groups meet to co-ordinate objectives.

Quebec Sees Victory In Battle for Pipeline

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa believes Quebec has won out over Ontario in the battle for a pipeline route to carry natural gas from the Eastern Arctic to markets in Southern Canada.

Mr. Bourassa says the need to build transmission lines to bring electricity to the south from the James Bay hydroelectric development gives Quebec a marked advantage over Ontario as site for the gas line route.

The transmission lines for the electric power will require a two-mile-wide corridor from near Fort George, Que., to Montreal, 850 miles to the south.

Mr. Bourassa said in interviews with La Presse and Le Devoir during the weekend that the existence of this corridor would greatly reduce the cost of building a pipeline from the Arctic to southern markets.

Federal Energy Paper Called Policy Vacuum

OTTAWA (CP) — A government-financed youth group sharply criticized Energy Minister Donald Macdonald's recent energy paper Monday as a policy vacuum that would do nothing to protect Canadians against rapidly rising gas and oil prices or conserve the country's energy resources.

The group, Participation in Energy Policy (PEP), said in a statement the government paper virtually legitimized price increases by forecasting oil and natural gas prices will more than double by 1990.

The group, financed under a $51,000 Opportunities for Youth grant and headed by 21-year-old Toronto student Francois Bregha, said Mr. Macdonald's policy paper shied away from proposing a stronger government hand to control prices and unnecessary exploitation.

They Had Three!

"We wanted a lot of children. And we wanted them close together. But we hadn't counted on three five minutes apart."

Mary Lynne Sammon is the mother of triplets born July 2 at Belleville General Hospital. They're Angela, who weighed 4 pounds 8¼ ounces; Patrick who weighed 4 pounds 6¾ ounces; and Maureen who weighed 3 pounds 15¾ ounces.

She's also the mother of Mary, 18 months old; Michael, 2½ years old; Marty, 4 years old and Joey, the eldest, who is 6.

She and husband Patrick, a Lennox - Addington secondary school Latin teacher, live in a 75-room house in Napanee.

"We've got lots of room," Patrick says, "fortunately."

A rare one-birth-in-7,000, the triplets weren't a complete surprise to the Sammons when they were born.

In mid-June, when she was about six months pregnant, doctors ordered a sonogram because of her size. The device, an ultrasonic scanner, revealed three tiny heads.

"She was surprised," says radiology technician Ann McAlpine, "but not flabbergasted."

The equipment emits a high frequency pulsing sound which echoes off tissue in certain circumstances. The echoes are recorded on a cathode ray tube which stores the echoes to build a picture.

"The advantage of this over x-rays is that there is no known radiation," says Dr. N. D. Reid. "The majority of sonograms are done for obstetrical patients."

After the sonogram, Mrs. Sammon entered Belleville General to rest and await the birth of her babies. Not due until August 4, the triplets arrived about seven weeks early ushered into the world by Dr. Robert Allore Wreaford Donaldson, Head Nurse; Mrs. Dorothy Taylor, Unit Co-ordinator, and nurse Janice Johnson.

Still in isolettes, or incubators, the infants are on formula now. At birth they were fed intravenously. Mrs. Sammon expects them to be released from the hospital in August.

She visits them. For the first time Monday, she had an opportunity to feed one of the babies and hold all of them.

Married eight years, the couple - they're both from North Bay originally - are miles from family who are eagerly awaiting news of the babies.

"They're all thrilled," Mrs. Sammon reports.

Mr. Sammon, meanwhile, is busy collecting three of everything. Mrs. Sammon, who heads Napanee's Birthright organization, has been preparing their other four children for the triplets' arrival. (They just say "oh" and run out to play, she says).

"I'm going to need more than 24 hours in a day," Mrs. Sammon says. "I'm going to need to be triplets myself."

Head Nurse Winnifred Donaldson with Patrick Sammon, middle and male triplet born to Mary Lynne and Pat Sammon early in July. The triplets will remain at Belleville General Hospital until August.

Mother and Children

Mary Lynne Sammon with her three babies: Maureen, Patrick and Angela. The triplets were born July 2 at Belleville General Hospital. The photography session marked a special time for Mrs. Sammon and the babies: it was the first time she'd held the two-week-old triplets. At the far upper left, Mary Lynn feeds Angela, first-born of the triplets.

Dr. E. Peterkin is the babies' pediatrician.

Baby Counter

Ann McAlpine, BGH technologist, demonstrates equipment used to "scan" unborn babies. The equipment uses pulsating sound to draw "pictures". The pictures at left are actually "scans" of the Sammon triplets made about two weeks before they were born. They were her first indication that she'd have more than one baby.

Successful Living

Man in Caves

It seems that Neanderthal Man — the kind of a guy who lived on this earth in caves about 60,000 years ago — isn't half the brute he was made out to be. Recent findings indicate that these early humans took care of their own handicapped members — buried their dead with flowers and ceremony.

Who should we assume that any human — or animal — creature lacks the stirrings of love which identify us all as being a part of God's universe?

Anyway, this and many other fascinating stories are told in the Reader's Digest Association of Canada's newest publication, Marvels and Mysteries of the World Around Us.

Not only does it explain about the cave-men, it reveals about how the riddle of Atlantis may be solved and the birthplace of Western civilization found; that the art of the cave man survived because it was hidden in the earth in almost inaccessible caves.

And how about this: In five million years Los Angeles will probably be blocking San Francisco harbor, 300 miles to the north — and in 50 million years it may be an island in the Pacific Ocean 1 can hardly wait!

Dear Doris: At 58, I am a widow and very lonely, especially for persons near my own age. Do you have any ideas how one could safely meet some unattached gentleman or widowers?

I would only be interested in someone who was really respectable. — At a Loss

Dear At A Loss: Dr Wilder Penfield says there is a second career for every retired person. You are retired in a way, aren't you? Retired from being part of a two-person team; and just taking care of yourself doesn't seem worth while.

To go by the statistics you have a good many years left to you, and a philosophy of aging to take a look at.

You can reach new friends via the work way, the hobby way, or at evening classes. There is time now to work on that lifelong interest or talent that you never had room or time for before, and in seeking out the interest, you will find others also seeking. This is your best bet for contemporary companionship, male and female.

Then there is the correspondence service of the Scientific Introduction Centre in Toronto. A person located where you are could be put in touch with a gentleman of similar interests to carry on an interesting correspondence. Write to them at 18 Grenville Street, Toronto, Ontario.

I can vouch for this service as being highly respectable; and conducted by persons well versed in psychology and human relations.

Ann Landers

'Continue to Try'

Dear Ann Landers: Today I reached my 40th birthday. (I hesitate to use the word "old.") and I just read the letter signed "Living Proof." It was too much for one day.

It's too late for me but it might help other young men if you would stop spreading fairy tales. I never had a real date in my life. The few girls I asked turned me down. The reason I didn't try harder was because I believed, like "Living Proof," that some day the right girl would come along and everything would turn out fine.

Please tell them, Ann, that things don't turn out fine unless you work at it. No matter how frightening or painful, they must continue to try for dates while they are young. They mustn't wait till it's too late, as I did.—Also Living Proof

Dear Living: If you think you're going to get off the hook that easily, "Thank you for writing," you're wrong.

What makes you think it's too late? Forty is still young by today's standards. There are countless women who would just love to be asked out by a 40-year-old man who is sensitive and smart enough to write a letter like yours. So, my advice to you, Dial, is this—no matter how frightening or painful, continue to try for dates while you're still young.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been extremely nervous for several months. I won't go into detail but there have been serious family problems and illness. The doctor gave me some medication that has been very helpful. The trouble is the medicine relaxes me to the point where I say anything that comes to my mind. It seems I have no judgment.

Last evening a reception was held for a new couple who moved here. I didn't want to go but my doctor insists that I socialize now and then, so I took an extra pill before leaving the house. I managed a few fairly intelligent words to the guests, and then I stooped into the receiving line. When I met the newcomer I blurted out, "Oh, how pretty you are," as if she were a four-year-old child. That was all I said before I moved on.

Now I feel like a fool. Should I write a note and apologize?—Aldiese, Texas.

Dear Ab: Definitely not. If you had said, "Oh, how ugly you are!" that would have been a different story. A compliment is always welcome and I hope you won't spend another minute stewing about it.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 48, too old for this problem, but here it is anyway. I decided to go back to work at a fraction of my former salary to help a friend who has had some financial reverses. The man has a lovely family and he deserves a break.

The firm's most important customer has three mouths, no ears and eleven hands—which he can't keep off me. He comes to the office three times a week and follows me around like a dog. His passes are getting bolder and I am sick of him.

If he weren't such a big customer I'd give him a crack in the mouth. Is there a way to tell him off and still remain friendly?—Greenville

Dear G.: If the future of the business depends on one octopus, you'd better lock the door now, honey. He didn't give the firm his account because of you and he won't take it away if you put him in his place. Give the guy a knuckle sandwich and let the teeth fall where they may.

Quiet Feminism

Plays by Women for Women

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — You might call the Bemumba troupe quiet revolutionaries.

A joint statement from them says: "We are an eight-woman theatre troupe doing plays about women. We will play for anyone who will listen, but one of our goals is to stimulate women to think about themselves and the role society has imposed on them."

Beyond that, they decline politely but firmly to have a common image imposed on them.

Pat Leggo of Hull, Que., says: "We like people to understand that each one of us has different opinions on women's lib and on what we're doing. We're by no means all the same, or all the same degree of feminists."

Christine Willes of Ottawa says: "We agree with the basic issues of women's lib, things like equal pay and abortion, but when you get into emotional issues such as rapists, it gets very complicated."

Chris was one of the four founders of the troupe. She says the idea had several roots.

"Men get better parts because plays are written for men.

"This was something to do that we wanted to do, to provide a service for women."

All of the women want careers in the theatre.

Seven of them came together through a chain of mutual acquaintance. Canada Manpower found Suzanne Charbonneau of Point Gatineau, Que. Suzanne is actress, stage manager and coach for the French-language version of their revue.

In each of the material as possible is Canadian, and Natsuko Obama of Rexier, Alta., says the French revue has a greater Canadian content.

The eight-member troupe has a common background in child rearing. Children need earning care from a ... [illegible]

"We want to see what women really of child rearing. Children need earning care from a ... [illegible] wrong and help the couple put ... [illegible] next time. Repeat performances ... [illegible] common in second marriages.

"There is also a tendency for the children to repeat the family pattern or to do just the opposite, neither of which could be good for them. Therefore people from broken homes should seek premarital counselling."

She said she believes marriage as an institution is not dead.

"As long as we have children there will have to be some con-

Chris says the backers weren't "attacking the feminist content" of the revue, but were just insulting a group of women.

The troupe is on an Opportunities for Youth grant, and plans to write a report based on a questionnaire they hand out at performances.

In mid-June they had had Michele Pinet of Ottawa describes as "good, clean negative and positive response."

They said it was too soon for any statistical analysis, but they thought that radical feminists tended to describe the revue as too kindly toward men. Middle-aged men seemed to find it bitter.

But Pat says: "I don't think one person has said they haven't enjoyed the show."

They will have appeared in 17 communities in Eastern Canada by the time they finish the tour, on Aug. 13. Then they'll write their report and disband.

They wrote to universities and to women's centres for bookings, and say few of the universities replied.

Their joint statement says: "We are doing the revue in English and a different revue in French, as well as an English drama, a puppet show, workshops and a street show."

They've played in parks, in Y's, in auditoriums. They say they won't play where men are kept out, even though they are sympathetic to the reasons.

Linda says, "That's the point of the revue, to speak to men, to get to people who aren't already indoctrinated."

Miserable Marriages 'Might As Well End'

MONTREAL (CP) — Parents who stay together "for the sake of the children" can do more harm than good, says Dorothy Freeman, professor of social work at McGill University.

"If there's real misery and no potential in a marriage, then a divorce is best," said Dr. Freeman.

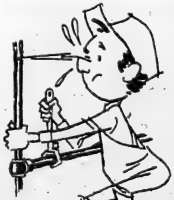
"It's better to take a child out of a home atmosphere of hate and tension."

Dr. Freeman, who has been a marriage consultant for 12 years and trains marriage counsellors, said the child should stay with the mother after a divorce but have an older male figure to relate to.

"Communication is the most important thing in a marri ge," she said, adding that some types of marriage are just not right.

"People who marry young sometimes find out they change and grow to have different goals. Then there are some marriages which are a constant competitive fencing match.

"In others, partners build a wall between themselves and theirs is literally a dead marriage. Others are a destructive kind."



Dr. Freeman said that marriage counselling can help all stage some of these marriage situations.

Lennoxville Festival Opener Draws Fire from Most Critics

LENNOXVILLE, Que. (CP) — Festival Lennoxville opened here Saturday with a "sunrise" that many critics would have been happy to see turn into an eclipse.

Sunrise on Sarah, the latest work by Vancouver playwright George Riga, drew review comments like, 'murky . . . overglossy . . . shallow self-indulgence."

On opening night, however, almost despite itself, the play managed to pull through to curtain calls and raves from a packed house.

It did it largely by the skin of Dana Ivey's teeth. In the demanding role of Sarah it is up to Miss Ivey to give shape to the wandering mind the play portrays.

She is on stage through the entire play, struggling to give life to the characters who lurk behind the gauze curtain that rims the stage, lamire the often-enamined poetry of Riga's lines into the cries of a hurting heart.

Sarah is a woman clawing her way back from madness — or hanging desperately on the edge of it. Mr. Riga never makes it clear which it is.

The play is a bold excursion from Mr. Riga. His work has always been filled with an examination of social problems — The Enemy, of Rita Joe about Indians, Captives of The Faceless Drummer about Quebec revolutionaries.

To take on the subject of a woman's soul, however, is a risky venture these days for a male writer. Surprisingly, sample comments from women in the opinion right audience were filled with praise.

For 90 minutes, the audience shares Sarah's frightened pitballing flight through the confines of her life.

Screaming, weeping, laughing, teasing, she steadily pulls the audience closer and closer to her.

In the end, Sarah survives, and with her the play.

The rest of the cast, under the firm control of director William Davis, are exactly what they have to be—only as real as Sarah sees them.

Claude Bebe is particularly notable in his ascorbic, witty portrayal of the doctor. Of the rest of the cast, Sandy Webster as the father and Scotty Block as the mother turn in notable performances.

The play, one of three being staged in the second year of the Lennoxville festival, runs until Aug. 25.

The season's second play, Jig For The Gypsy by Robertson Davies, opens Monday night. The third play, David Freeman's Ballroom, will open July 31.

The festival is designed to produce revivals of top Canadian plays.

Miss Universe Contest To Wind Up Saturday

ATHENS (Reuter) — Miss Philippines, 20-year-old Maria Margarita Moran, was proclaimed Miss Photogenic in the Miss Universe preliminary contest Sunday night.

She was among beauty queens from 61 countries who paraded before a panel of 11 judges in the first phase of the 22nd Miss Universe Pageant.

Miss Spain, 19-year-old Rocio Martin, won the national costume award with her flamenco dress.

The judges include film stars Ginger Rogers, Horst Buchholz, Lynn Redgrave and Jean-Pierre Aumont.

The judges will interview all the contestants separately in personality tests Tuesday and Wednesday. Their ballots with their decisions will be put in sealed envelopes and audited. The names of the 12 finalists will be announced Saturday.

STRATFORD, Conn. (AP) — Macbeth has joined the two plays already running at the American Shakespeare Theatre here, making three good productions this summer.

Macbeth is especially strong because of the actors who play Macbeth and MacDuff.

The three witches in this production are three women of the court. They appear in the woods wearing cloaks and face masks, but they obviously aren't hermits who live out there. They live at court and the fact that they are witches is their secret.

Fritz Weaver as Macbeth emphasizes his wish to become king without "having to sin." Later, when his murders are catching up with him, Weaver gives poignancy to the speech that Macbeth will have neither friends nor honor in his old age.

Rosemary Murphy as Lady Macbeth is good in her sleep walking scene. She is less effective when she has to convince the weakening Macbeth that he should go ahead and kill the king.

Michael Levin as MacDuff is exceptionally strong.

The other plays at the festival are Measure for Measure and The Country Wife.

NEW YORK (Reuter) — The New York Philharmonic has named Eliot Chapo, 27, as concert master, the orchestra announced Monday.

The Miami-born violinist will begin with the Philharmonic next summer. He will replace Rafael Druian who retires at the end of the 1973-74 season. his 25th anniversary as concert master of various American symphony orchestras.

Chapo now is associate concert master of the Pittsburgh Symphony. He will make his first appearance as soloist with the New York Philharmonic April 26, 1974, with Pierre Boulez conducting.

Recreation Pointers

Along with outdoor skills, more formal recreation techniques are also taught young campers at city recreation department camp on Moira River site near Plainfield. Here class gets archery instruction between learning canoeing, hiking, swimming and campfire cooking from expert counsellors.

Camp Attendance Is Picking Up

After a fitful start, registrations for the weekly camps introduced into Belleville recreation department's summer program this year, now are picking up.

The camps, offering outdoor-living-and-leisure experience to youth at token cost, so far has drawn less-than-full houses to its tents — pitched in the riverside H. R. Frink Conservation Area at Plainfield.

For its young participants — 12 to 18 years — the fee is a modest $5, plus their own groceries.

In return, from Monday to Friday they are introduced to outdoor craftsmanship — from campfire cookery to canoeing — an asset deemed increasingly significant with the upsurge in camping as a family recreation.

Registrations had been set at a minimum of 20 a week. A total of nine turned up for the first camp last week. 15 this week.

Now, however, deputy recreation director Clifford Belch said today, registrations have started to increase for the remainder of the program which runs until mid-August.

Reasons for the initial tardy response are uncertain.

Insufficient publicity and the fact it's a new venture may be contributing causes, surmises Mr. Belch.

But there's one indication that the project has achieved its goals as a recreation and education venture.

Young campers who have already been involved have signified they want to return for another week before the venture ends for this year, says 23-year-old John Holgate, co-ordinator of the department's outdoor life projects this summer.

"They're enjoying the whole thing immensely," he says.

One practical goal of the venture is to make the young enthusiasts more self-sufficient, equipped to be more helpful when they camp with their families.

"We're giving them an opportunity to discover how to do things on their own," says John. "If they were with their parents they would probably sit back and let the adults do more of the work."

A university graduate in physical education, John heads the camp's staff of four counsellors, like himself expert in various outdoor skills.

Before the five days are up, young campers have been familiarized with the techniques of safe swimming, hiking and handling of canoes, getting their bearings in the outdoor, campfire building and observation of wildlife - all designed to add up to enhanced enjoyment of the outdoors.

There are also more formal recreation activities - volleyball, soccer, archery.

Rain casts no pall on activity.

Besides the Moira River Conservation Authority - owner of the area - the project has the co-operation of the Hastings County board of education, which has a portable classroom on the site for outdoor schooling.

If bad weather shows up, the classroom can be used for various activities, including wildlife studies and arts and crafts.

Since the camp also is a leisure program, no harm-and-fast activities schedules are laid down.

"We try to emphasize that it's their program," says John. "And if they want some activity all they have to do is ask and we will try to meet the request."

The campday begins when the first person rises and begins stir in the outdoors.

The time schedule follows the common camping refrain, says John: "Once one person gets up, everybody gets up."

Hospital Parking Not Being Used

Employees at Belleville General Hospital are not using the off-street parking lot provided on the south end of the Queen Elizabeth Public school grounds.

The parking lot was set up by hospital authorities to help relieve parking conditions at the hospital but despite the large number of parking passes issued, hospital employees are not using the lot.

At city council Monday it was noted that a gate had been placed at the entrance but only six or seven cars were using the lot. Instead cars were being parked on streets adjacent to the hospital.

But council yesterday ratified a traffic and light committee recommendation to restrict parking around the Queen Elizabeth school property and to limit parking on First Street and Second Street east of the hospital to two hours.

Alderman Joe Cox asked whether the two-hour parking restriction would actually achieve anything.

He suggested that hospital employees on their coffee break would simply go out and move their cars a few feet.

Also, he wondered why the city could not have a definite policy with respect to parking instead of having recommendations come in every week or so for further parking restrictions.

Punch Way To Pokey

Two Shannonville men who reached into a parked car and punched the driver while he walked for his wife were each sent to jail for 20 days Monday.

The man had arrived outside the Wayside Inn the evening of July 3 to wait for his wife who was working inside.

As he sat inside the car, two men emerged from the inn and demanded he take them for a ride. When he refused, the men punched him in the face, cutting one eye and causing a nosebleed.

Carl Scoro, 23, and Allen Spencer, 18, both pleaded guilty to charges of common assault. They were sentenced by Provincial Judge J. L. Glendenning.

Canoe Training Time

Moira River provides ideal site for canoe training at Plainfield area camp run by city recreation department. A new city program reflecting upsurge in camping recreation, the camp runs to mid-August providing leisure and leskons in outdoors skills.

Judge Anderson Hears Rail Shopcraft Demands

OTTAWA — Railway union negotiators asked for substantial wage increases as conciliation hearings under the chairmanship of Judge J. C. Anderson, of Belleville, opened into the contract dispute between 20,000 shopcraft workers and the railroads here Monday.

If the railways are unable to meet their demands, negotiators suggested the government should consider subsidizing the industry.

The dispute is one of three — overshadowed by a rotating strike threat — involving Canadian National Railways, CP Rail and smaller companies in which there were these developments Monday:

— The companies rejected a conciliation chairman's wage proposal involving non - operating workers.

— The government hoped management and labor would accept federal mediation offers aimed at offsetting any strike threat.

As the shopcraft unions argued for a 25-per-cent plus 25-cent-an-hour wage increase before Judge Anderson, the companies rejected a wage proposal made by the chairman of the non-operating employees conciliation hearing.

In that dispute, Mr. Justice Craig Munroe of the British Columbia Supreme Court suggested wage increases over two years of 17 per cent.

Average hourly earnings of the non-operating workers were $3.81 in December.

In a release from Montreal, the companies said such an increase, if applied to all the non-operating employees, shopcraft workers and 11,000 clerical employees, would cost an estimated $278 million more in wages over two years.

An "immediate increase" of about 37 per cent would be required in three tariff categories which cover about half the workers, the statement, a spokesman for the companies said.

The non-op conciliation hearing produced three separate reports, filed last week by board members. The company nominee on the board proposed a two-year wage increase of 12.5 per cent while the union nominee recommended 21.6 per cent.

Union and company officials now are studying all reports from the hearing which has adjourned until July 26 or 27.

The conciliation hearings were called against a background of threatened rotating strikes, possibly around July 24 or 25.

Meantime, in the Commons Labor Minister John Munro said the federal government hopes both sides will accept mediation offers to resolve a strike threat.

He told MPs Monday that any intervention by the federal government should not come until after the parties have studied conciliation proposals and - in the case of unions - notified their memberships.

Fire Levels Cottage

TWEED (Special — Fire early this morning destroyed a small winterized cottage owned by Ronald Russell, RR 1 Harolton. The cottage was one of three owned and rented out by Mr. Russell on Highway 7 in Belmont township.

The cottage was levelled to the ground by the time Stockholm Volunteer Fire Department arrived. The building was insured and value of cottage and contents was estimated at $3,000.

Student Legal Aid Project Requests City Assistance

The Queen's - Belleville Legal Aid Project is running into financial problems and has asked the city council to help bail them out of their deficit.

Student lawyer from Queen's University, John Johnston, representing the student legal-aid project made the appeal Monday to council, stating that the project would have a deficit of $5,787 by April 30, 1974.

Student budget for the project from April 30 this year to the same date in 1974 was given as $19,812.40, of which just over $14,000 would be provided through an Opportunities for Youth Grant.

Student salaries were estimated at $16,875, mileage and transportation expense $1,500, secretarial expenses $672 and telephone $335.

Mr. Johnston said that during its first year of operation, September 1972 to April 1973, the Belleville project handled 300 cases and inquiries of varying types.

The service was said available to persons who could not afford a lawyer and who could not qualify for legal aid.

Of the total cases handled during the first year of operation, 27.8 per cent involved persons with financial difficulties - debtor-creditor problems, contractual disputes or consumer protection problems.

Family law problems made up another 18.7 per cent, landlord and tenant disputes 14.5 per cent, welfare and unemployment insurance problems 10.2 per cent and tort actions 10.1 per cent.

Mr. Johnston said there was no doubt that the student legal aid project performed a service not taken care of by any other organization in the city.

He said it did not conflict with the regular legal aid program which becomes full time, set budget, handles only certain problems determined by priorities.

Student legal aid is specifically meant to complement regular legal aid.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey told Mr. Johnston that the request for financial assistance would be considered later by council.

Vandals Slash Moored Boat

City police are looking for vandals who slashed the deck and upholstery on a boat docked near March's Boat Yard.

Damage to the craft, owned by Herbert Chippe of Belleville, was estimated at $125. The incident is believed to have taken place sometime Sunday night.

Former Intell Sports Editor, George Carver Dies at 77

Former sports editor of The Intelligencer and an employee of the local newspaper's editorial department for more than 30 years, George H. Carver died suddenly early Tuesday at Hastings Manor.

Mr. Carver suffered a fatal heart attack shortly after midnight and was dead on arrival at Belleville General Hospital. He was 77.

The former newspaperman, who retired from The Intelligencer five years ago, will rest at the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home. Funeral arrangements had not been made at press time.

Born in London, England, Feb. 13, 1896, he was the only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Carver of Wellington.

He came to Canada with his parents when he was eight years old and lived in Wellington until the outbreak of World War I.

Surviving are his wife, the former Flora Christina Keith; two sisters, Mrs. Lilly Bailey and Mrs. Edna Quilty, both of Wellington and one son Peter, of Kincardine, Ont. and one grandson.

Mr. Carver was educated in Prince Edward County schools, later taking a position with the Standard Bank of Canada.

He joined the 33rd Battery CFA in August, 1915, and at that immediately proceeded overseas. He was assigned to the 3rd Brigade CFA headquarters and went to France in September, 1915 to join the unit. He was invalided to England after 15 months' service in France and Belgium.

He was discharged in Halifax and joined the staff of the Halifax Herald.

During his sojourn in the Maritimes he joined the 1st Heavy Battery, Royal Canadian Garrison Artillery, attaining the rank of Captain.

During World War II he served with the 30th Battery RCA (reserve) in Belleville. Later he was transferred to the permanent force as captain-and adjutant of the 44th Field Regiment, RCA.

Following experience with the Halifax Herald and the Picton Gazette, Mr. Carver joined the editorial staff of the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer in June, 1936, as reporter and sports writer. Following the death of the incumbent editor, Ken Colling, he was placed in charge of the sports department, a position he held until 1956 when he retired.

During his newspaper lifetime he covered many events off the sports beat, including a murder trials. He travelled many miles as a sports editor, covering world series, world heavyweight title fights, Grey Cup and Stanley Cup competitions and other big sports events.

His biggest assignment came when The Intelligencer sent him to Europe to cover the 1959 World Amateur Hockey Championships. He wrote a column daily until the Canadian Flag was raised in Prague, Czechoslovakia to honor the 1959 world title winners.

He was honored by several area organizations upon his retirement in April, 1962. He was made a life member of the Bay of Quinte Country Club, the RAN and RP Associations, Duke of Edinburgh Unit 291, the Quinte Skating Club and the Belleville, Fish and Game Club.

He was a member of Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 99, an honorary member of the Belleville Shrine Club, the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment officers' association, the Sergeants' Mess and its regimental association.

For over two decades he covered annual conventions of the OMHA, the OHA, the OBA and the EOBA. The OHHA honored him by installing a trophy for annual competition, known as the George Carver Trophy.

He wrote a well-received daily sports column six days a week for a period of more than 20 years. His columns and a daily sports page layout once received an "honorable mention" for newspapers of The Intelligencer's circulation in Eastern Canada.

He was one of the few provincial sports editors to have a daily column published and posted on the bulletin board of the New York Times.

Street Name Change Is Still Not Decided

The name for that part of Tracey Street lying west of Sidney is still up in the air.

Some months ago residents on Tracey Street (east of Sidney) were petitioning they were getting mail for people living west of Sidney and a new name for Sidney Street West was suggested.

The job of renaming the street fell to the Subdivision Planning Committee which Monday presented the name Tracey Park Drive for approval of council.

But Alderman Joe Cox objected, asking that the present name, Tracey Street West be retained.

He said that with a change of street names residents would have to have all legal documents changed putting them to considerable trouble.

Alderman Jack Ireland said the name Tracey Park Drive was suitable to the residents and noted the planning committee was unanimous in its choice.

Alderman Cox's motion to retain the present name was defeated but Mayor Robin Jeffrey suggested that letters go out to all Tracey Street residents west of Sidney to determine if they were satisfied with the proposed name. Her motion to get area residents' comment was carried.

Under the CAHA

3 Junior Loops Will Form CMJHL

CALGARY (CP) — An agreement was signed Monday uniting Canada's three major junior hockey leagues, the result of that union to be known as the Canadian Major Junior Hockey League (CMJHL).

The league, which will operate under the umbrella of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA), comprises the Western Canada Hockey League (WCHL), the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, and the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League.

Roland Mercier, CAHA vice-president in charge of junior hockey, in announcing the agreement, at a news conference Monday, said the CAHA has been host for the Memorial Cup competition.

The competition, scheduled for May 5-12, will be held in Calgary.

Ed Chynoweth, WCHL president, said it is the first time since 1966 that Memorial Cup competition has been held in the West. At that time, Edmonton was the site.

Chynoweth said the Calgary Corral will house the competition and said he foresees no problems in the area of spectators, which is the Corral's about 8,000 In Ottawa, site of the 1972 Memorial Cup, capacity was about 9,200.

The CAHA past-president Joe Cleary said this will be the first time ever" that Calgary has been host for the Memorial.

As for the new national league, Kryczek said a committee has been set up to write a constitution for the CMJHL. The three major junior hockey leagues will retain their own identities "for the time being," he explained.

"The upshot of this (agreement) is that the three leagues are united under the umbrella of the CAHA. . . . We would all work together."

It had been rumored that the WCHL was thinking of signing with the WORLD Hockey Association, but with the new league "airy" agreement with professionals would be made by all of them" Kryczek said.

"We will operate as a single unit. That's the big positive."

With the new national unit, the three major junior hockey leagues will be working together, eliminating some of the "bickering" which has been experienced among them in the past, he added.

Formation of the new league will not affect the number of franchises, which remains at a maximum of 36.

Sassy First To Arrive

Schmidt and his crew arrived here Monday about just before midnight, finishing the 230-mile race in 56 hours, nine minutes.

Earlier Monday, the more than 200 sailboats lay becalmed in northern Lake Michigan with the leaders of the race still about 25 miles from their goal.

Schmidt said he took about 18 hours in dead air and coasted the final three hours at about three knots.

He said he thought he was about 28-to-29 miles ahead of the nearest boat, the Dora IV, piloted by Lynn Williams of Chicago.

Sassy also arrived first last year but lost the title in handicaps.

There is no official over-all winner of the race, with each of eight sections crowning its own champion. Determination of the fastest boat is based on elapsed time and handicaps.

The race began Saturday afternoon.

No-cut Contract For Howell

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran defenceman Harry Howell of the National Hockey League's Los Angeles Kings has turned down an offer to be director of player personnel for New York Golden Blades. It was reported Monday, but has signed a player contract with the World Hockey Association team for next season.

The signing of Howell, 41, who played 17 seasons with New York Rangers of the NHL, will be announced Wednesday, sportscaster Guy LeBow said on the National Broadcasting Co. radio network.

Howell and the Blades, known last season as the Raiders, reached accord on a two-year no-cut contract calling for the Hamilton, Ont., native to receive $32,500 annually.

Zuger Leaves Detroit Lions

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (AP) — Joe Zuger, a veteran of 10 years with Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Canadian Football League, walked out of the Detroit Lions training camp Monday, the National Football League club announced.

Zuger, 32, is a quarterback and punter with Ticats until 1971, had been trying out as a punter with the Lions.

JAKE ON THE LAM

MIAMI (AP) — Jake Scott, Miami's all-pro safety, continued a holdout Monday to back demands for a new contract despite a $200-a-day fine imposed by Dolphins' coach Don Shula. Scott joined the National Football League club three years ago from British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League.

Three Reds on NL Team

Major League All-stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Cincinnati Reds cranked up the Big Red voting machine and placed three players—catcher Johnny Bench, outfielder Pete Rose and second baseman Joe Morgan—on the starting National League All-Star team announced today.

The National League stars will meet the American League in the 44th mid-summer classic July 24 in Kansas City's new Royals Stadium.

Bench, leading the league in runs batted in, gathered 1,738,537 votes as the most popular player in either league.

Morgan, leading the league in stolen bases, amassed twice as many votes as his nearest challenger, Pittsburgh Pirates, Dave Cash, while Rose, among the top 10 hitters in the league was less vote-getter in the outfield. He'll start for the 10th time.

Along with Rose in the outfield will be Billy Williams of Chicago Cubs and Cesar Cedeno of Houston Astros. Cedeno nailed down the last starting outfield job by slipping in ahead of San Francisco Giants' Bobby Bonds, 860,375 votes to 853,344.

First baseman Dick Allen of Atlanta Braves, moving in on Babe Ruth's career home run record, received 1,362,447 of the 4,011,227 votes cast over-all, second only to Bench. It will be Aaron's 15th time as a starter and his 14th starting role.

Chicago's Ron Santo, with 808,729, topped Joe Torre of St. Louis Cardinals by almost 100,000 votes and will be making his fourth starting appearance at third. Shortstop Chris Speier of the Giants, who received 200,353 to 537,606 for runner-up Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati, is in his first starting role.

The American League's top vote-getter, Dick Allen, may not even be able to make an appearance. The White Sox' first baseman, who received 1,111,536 votes, is still recovering from a hairline fracture of his left leg, suffered in a collision with Mike Epstein of California Angels.

If Allen is unable to play, the starting assignment will probably go to Kansas City's John Mayberry, who had about 300,000 fewer votes.

In addition to Allen, other American League repeaters named for all-star starting berths were second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota Twins, Baltimore Orioles third baseman Brooks Robinson, and outfielders Reggie Jackson of Oakland A's and Bobby Murcer of New York Yankees.

Three elected to start for the first time were Boston Red Sox catcher Carlton Fisk, who also received over a million votes, Kansas City outfielder Amos Otis and Oakland shortstop Bert Campaneris.

Both leagues set records for the number of votes cast, with National League fans casting 6,011,237 votes and the American League 3,811,989.

Norman Won't Play If He Must Qualify

TORONTO (CP) — Moe Norman, the veteran Canadian golf pro from Gilford, Ont., said Monday that if he's forced to qualify for this year's Canadian Open at Richelieu Valley in Montreal he'll pass up the tournament.

The Royal Canadian Golf Association, in an agreement with the Tournament Players' Division of the United States Professional Golfers' Association, has indicated a large entry will require a pre-qualifying round for Canadian golfers this Friday.

"If I have to qualify to play fly," said Norman, a rebel on the Canadian golf tour, "I'm not going to play."

"We're hopeful there won't be one (a pre-qualifying round)," said Bill Hamilton, RCGA tour consultant. "There are 240 entries in and the deadline is Tuesday at 6 p.m."

The St. Louis golf classic, which ends Sunday, is expected to signal an exodus of many of the top pros on the U.S. tour for the Canadian Open site.

A final decision on whether a pre-qualifying round will be necessary may be taken today by Jclyde Mangum, U.S. tour supervisor.

A Friday pre-qualifying heat would pose a threat to the $10,000 Labatt's pro-am tournament at Kingston on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

All except those who have already earned exemptions into the Open would be compelled to pull out of the Kingston event if they hoped to gain a berth in the Canadian Open which starts July 26.

"We were told on the Canadian tour out west that we would have to pre-qualify," Norman said. "I won't do it. I'll play at Kingston."

Dave Zink, executive director of the Canadian PGA, said that to minimize any threat to the entrants at Kingston, they had secured a commitment from the RCGA that any pro making the 36-hole cut at Kingston would be exempt from pre-qualifying and could tee up in Montreal on Monday.

"I think it's fair enough," Zink said. "If a player can't make the cut after two rounds at Kingston, he isn't going to qualify twice and make the cut in the Canadian Open."

Weslock Makes It

TORONTO (CP) — Nic Weslock of Mississauga shot a 75 Monday to qualify for his 24th appearance on Ontario's Willingdon Cup inter-provincial team golf championship.

Don White of London, Ont., and Sandy Billyard of Foothill also qualified for the Ontario team and Ray Coole of Brampton was named as an alternate.

Kelly Roberts of London qualified for the team when he won the Ontario amateur championship last Friday with a three-round total of 215.

Dodgers Blank Bucs

Los Angeles Dodgers raised the "team spirit" bit to its ultimate Monday night following the slain straight victory, a 1-0 squeaker over Pittsburgh Pirates on the strength of Don Sutton's six-hitter and Willie Crawford's second-inning home run off Nelson Briles.

The triumph kept Los Angeles 7½ games ahead of the runner-up Cincinnati Reds in the National League West.

Houston Astros topped Montreal Expos 6-5 in 10 innings, the Reds beat Philadelphia Phillies 1-0, St. Louis Cardinals stopped San Francisco Giants 3-2 and Atlanta Braves downed New York Mets 8-6 in other Monday games.

Ken Singleton hit a three-run homer in the ninth inning to pull Montreal into a 5-5 tie at Houston. But in the bottom of the 10th, with nobody out, Houston loaded the bases against Tom Walker. The Expos, trying desperately to cut down the winning run, employed their five-man infield.

"It looked like an army in front of me," said Tommy Helms, the next batter. "They were closing in all around me. But it makes sense if you've got a pitcher that can make you hit the ball on the ground."

Walker wasn't that pitcher. Helms got the ball past the drawn infield for a single to left for the game-winning run.

Over in the Pittsburgh locker room, it was business, not credit, that was being spread around. "You can look back and say it was the home run that beat us," said Briles, "but the truth is we beat ourselves. The Dodgers didn't make any mistakes and we did."

Like Sutton, Cincinnati's Fred Norman also pitched a six-hitter and recorded his third shutout of the season. Norman's record, 7-9 on the season, is 6-1 since he joined the Reds from San Diego a month ago.

Joe Torre clouted his eighth homer of the season in the fourth inning and singled for the game-winning run for the Cards against the Giants in the eighth.

The victory was Bob Gibson's 204th of his career, tying with San Francisco's Juan Marichal as the winningest active pitcher in the majors.

Time Off Beneficial

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This is the time of year when most people are looking forward to vacations, but Boston's Reggie Smith and Kansas City's Paul Schaal were happy to get back to work Monday night.

Smith, out of the lineup the last 10 days with a knee injury, hit a two-run homer in the first inning and a two-out solo shot in the 11th, powering the Red Sox to a 9-8 victory over Chicago White Sox that pulled them within two percentage points of New York Yankees and stop the American League's E. st Division.

Schaal, sided for a week with a bruised wrist, walloped a two-run homer and a single in the Royals' 10-2 rout of Detroit Tigers.

In the only other league games, Baltimore Orioles shaded Oakland A's 7-5 as a Cleveland Indians edged California Angels 4-3.

Smith's 11th-inning homer off Cy Acosta gave the Red Sox their third straight victory and 12th in the last 16 games. A two-run homer by Chicago's Ed Herrmann in the ninth inning tied the game. Tommy Harper also homered for Boston, which is 47-31 in Smith's absence.

Schaal's homer against Detroit was a two-run blast in the second inning off Mike Strahler. Amos Otis, who had never belted a league-leading 20 homers, singled home Schaal with the go-ahead run in the fifth inning.

Baltimore's Boog Powell hit his 20th homer in the fourth inning and Merv Rettenmund added a two-run shot in the seventh inning for the Orioles, who have won three straight.

Oakland's Reggie Jackson connected for his 20th homer in the fifth inning, but Bert Campaneris' two-run single in the eighth inning proved the difference for the A's.

Dick Drago checked the Tigers except in the sixth with Norm Cash hit a two-run homer.

A three-run homer by Brooks Robinson following a two-out error by shortstop Bert Campaneris in the seventh inning lifted the Orioles past the A's before a season high crowd of 43,311 in Baltimore.

Robinson's homer came off Horacio Pina, who took over for Catfish Hunter in the sixth. Al Bumbry's homer cut Baltimore's lead to 5-4.

The footbone's connected to the headbone.

Think about it.
Your feet do a lot of things for you. They dance when you're happy. They walk when you have to get someplace. They jump when you're excited. They tiptoe when you come home late. In short, you can't get along well without them. And that's where proper footwear helps.

When you play tennis, you wear tennis shoes. When you walk, you wear good walking shoes. And when you work, if your job calls for them, you wear safety shoes. They protect your feet from injuries. Puncture-resistant soles protect against protruding nails. Protective toes absorb the shock of falling objects. And painful stubbing. And deep treads in the soles protect against treacherous walking conditions.

Take a good look at your shoes. Make sure they're not getting run down at the heel. Change fraying laces. And check the soles to see that they're in good condition. That's what self-defence is. Taking good care of yourself.

The sure way to safety is Self-Defence.

Proper footwear protects your feet.

Self-defence is taking good care of yourself.

Check that soles are in good condition.

Flying High Brave

Montreal Expos second baseman Ron Hunt awaits the throw from catcher John Boccabella in recent National League action with Atlanta Braves. Braves' Ralph Garr got up in the air but id did him no good on this play. He was thrown out on the attempted steal.

Stirling Sheet Metal Gets Extra Effort

Stirling Sheet Metal are still entrenched atop the squirt division of the Belleville Minor Softball Association standings but it took an extra effort to keep their position secure.

The Metalmen went into extra innings Monday night, before pulling out a 7-3 win over number two team in the league, Sun Luck Gardens.

Robbie Slinchcombe scored the winning run in the eighth inning breaking a 6-6 tie. Slinchcombe had a double and two singles to lead the winners' 11-hit attack. Barry Fraser struck out three batters in support of Brad Grey who hurled the victory.

Pete Wood and Warren Cavalier picked up 12 strikeouts for the Sun Lucks but still tasted defeat.

Fraser and O'Neil swung for the fences in their squirt game with Mister Beverages last night, and reached them most of the time.

Ten home runs paced the Realtors to a 31-14 win over the Bottlers. Todd Dontaine and Scott Yeomans each had three circuit blasts for the winners with Joey Parker hitting two and David Wright and Steve Nelles one each.

Bob Turner turned in a three-hit 13 strikeout performance in the final game of the night to lead Erzen Tuck Appliances to a 21-4 victory over Richard Ellis Printing.

Paul Clark had two home runs for the winners while Steve Griffin had one in a losing effort.

Danny Bennett Lucky Member

Danny Bennett, First St., Belleville is $1.000 richer today.

He is the Screaming Eagles' lucky member for the month of July.

Toronto Maple Leaf centre George Ferguson, a member of the Trenton Augers' team in the Commercial Softball League, made the draw between games at Alemite Park Monday night.

Melrose Opportunist

A good team will make the best of their opposition's mistakes and Melrose had lots of opportunities to take advantage in Saturday's South Hastings Baseball League action.

Lotta looked the ball six times and pennant leading Melrose capitalized on them for a 7-3 victory.

Ron McTaggart hurled a five-hitter for Melrose fanning seven and walking five. A two run homer by Glenn McMechan in the fifth started Melrose to a 7-0 cushion for McTaggart.

Belleville's Prudhomme Wins First

BRIGHTON — Bob Prudhomme of Belleville had to settle for second place behind Brian Down in the eight cylinder qualifying heat and in the feature for eights at the Speedway here on the weekend. But in the super feature, Prudhomme hit a break.

Down was again out in front in the super but his car lost a rear wheel. That forced a re-start with three laps to go and it was Prudhomme all the way to record his first win of the season.

Second place went to Danny Reid and Howard Moore was third.

It was Brown, Prudhomme and Reid in that order in the eight cylinder feature.

Wayne Foster took top honors in the six cylinder feature. Doug Davis was second and Mike Bolton, third.

The July 21 card will feature a 30-lap run-off for the top 15 six cylinder cars. Drivers will be aiming for the Brighton Speedway Annual Award.

Reg Abrams' Has Key Hit

Belleville United Rigging Juveniles had to come up with three runs in the bottom of the ninth to defeat Bowmanville by an 8-7 score Sunday. Steve Rushlow started things with a home run to lead off the inning, and was followed by consecutive singles by Grant Goegan and Ron McTaggart. After Bob Dunn struck out, Reg Abrams collected his second base hit of the game to drive home the winning runs.

Reg Abrams started for the winners, giving way to Ron McTaggart in the sixth. They struck out nine and walked three. Werezonski went all the way for Bowmanville, fanning eight and giving up two bases on balls.

Free Admission At Kingston

Frontenac Downs in Kingston will salute racing fans of Belleville and district Wednesday night.

Wednesday has been proclaimed "Belleville Night" by track officials.

All city and district followers of the sport who attend the regular race meet will be admitted free.

Ellis Juniors Shade Auger's 3-2

Devolin Motors Joins the Leader

By AL TEBWORTH

The log jam in the Commercial Softball League was simply piled higher last night as Devolin Motors moved into a tie for the league lead with Rollins' Construction, and both Auger's Men's Wear and Howard and Robert Printing failed to break their tie in third place in the league standings.

Devolin gained their tie by whitewashing H and R by a 7-0 count while the Juniors stopped Auger's from advancing to sole possession of the third spot by recording a come-from-behind win over the Trenton squad 3-2.

The Juniors came up with three runs in their half of the sixth inning to steal the win from Auger's. Terry Pope started the rally by drawing a walk. Dale Akey followed with a base hit, advancing Pope to third. Steve Campbell drove Pope in with a hit to right. Steve Campbell drove in the two tieing runs after Akey stole second and advanced to second himself when the throw went to the plate. After going to third on a passed ball, Campbell scored the winning run on a ball which was misplayed by Auger shortstop Frank Tanner.

Auger's had picked up their runs in the third and sixth innings. In the third Joe Theriault doubled with two out and was singled in by Al Ferguson. In the sixth, Jim Whyte singled to lead off and was driven in two outs later by Tanner.

Dave Horwood went the distance for the Juniors, giving up 10 hits while striking out two and not walking a man. Chris Long was the loser giving up only five hits on the Trenton mound. He struck out three and walked the same number.

Jim Richardson was the only Ellis batter to pick up more than one hit, collecting two singles. Dave Horwood had the other Junior hit.

For the losers it was Joe Theriault with a double and single and Jim Whyte with two singles showing the way.

In the nightcap, Devolin pitcher Ron Maracle held Howard and Robert Printing to only four hits to help the Motormen to their 11th win of the season. Meanwhile his teammates were collecting 10 off Bob Swan and Bob Elsher enroute to a 7-0 victory.

Devolin got things moving in the top of the third inning with two runs coming off three singles by Ron Maracle, Gary Goyer, and Eric Maher and a double by Marv Stacey. They collected four more in the fourth and a single in the fifth to round out the scoring.

Howard and Robert did have their chances, however stranding seven men on the basepaths during the game.

Gary Goyer had three singles in his first game of the season while Eric Maher had two singles. For the losers, John Campbell had a triple and single.

Maracle struck out six batters on the Devolin Mound while walking four. On the Printers' hill, Bob' Swan struck out two and walked the same total before giving way to Bob Elsher in the fourth. Elsher mowed down eight batters in his three and one-third innings pitched.

BYBF Shows Heels To the Challengers

The Cosy Grill has been chasing BYBF throughout the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League schedule but when they finally got within touching distance, the Yardmen kicked up the dust and left them behind again.

The Yardmen left little doubt as to their claim on first place by smashing the second place Cosy 7-1 Monday night. The winners pounded out 17 hits to dampen the Grill girls' hopes of capturing the pennant.

Donna Preston led the barrage of BYBF hits with five safeties. Judy Rappell reached for a triple and two singles and Donna Lucas connected for a double and three singles.

Sue Morton hurled the win allowing only six hits. She fanned four and walked only one.

Base hits by Sandra Claus and Rosalind Christenson produced the only Cosy run in the bottom of the seventh inning. Claus took the loss on the Grill mound.

PUC Rolling Early

CNR, Lenders Strike Late

The CNR and Quinte Mail Lenders had to stage some late inning heroics to record victories in Monday night's action but the Public Utilities were heros from the start-in rolling to a victory over Canadian Tire.

The CN scored once in each of the fourth and fifth innings to break a 3-3 tie and defeat UIC 5-3 and the Lenders created a 3-2 Constellation lead with runs in the fifth and sixth to eke out a 5-3 victory.

While the other games were close battles, the Utilities reached an early peak and never let down in a 23-6 blasting of Canadian Tire.

The Utilities scored seven times in each of the first, fifth and sixth innings to humiliate the Tiremen. Dave Middleton led the winners' 15 hit attack with three doubles and a home run. Albert Coles stroked two doubles and Jay Miller, Randy Van Norman and Warren Bulpit a double and single each in the Utilities' highest output of the season.

Bulpit, with more hits and runs than he has seen all year, hurled a three hit shutout for the winners. He whiffed six and walked two. Alec Belch doubled for the only extra-base hit off Bulpit.

Three Canadian Tire pitchers were shelled from the mound. John French batted one and two-third innings and nine runs, Andy Prudens three and two-third innings and eight runs and Alec Belch one and two-third innings and six runs.

The eastern division leading CN hopped to a 3-0 lead with a trio of runs in the second inning but the fourth UIC had rallied to even the score. The CN picked up runs in the fourth and fifth to preserve their 16th win of the season against nine losses.

Mike Fahey punched a home run and single for the Trainmen with Bob Hall adding a double and single. Rob Middleton had two singles and Bob Bardy a two run double. The hits came off UIC losing pitcher Bill Thompson who allowed 10 hits.

Pete Hoyle's two run homer tied the game for the UIC in the fourth but it was all the runs the Unemployed men could manage, as their bid to make up the point they trail Mead Johnson by in the western division failed.

Brian Hall picked up the win for the winners lasting four innings before giving way to Wayne Casselman who fired three-bit shutout ball for the last three innings.

Constellation outhit the Lenders 7-4 and held a 3-2 lead after four and a half innings but two runs in the sixth inning gave the Lenders their margin of victory.

Terry Murphy picked up the win fanning six and walking one. He outdueled the Carpetmen's Jim Thompson.

Herm Van Daalen had a double for the Lenders who moved into a tie for second spot with Brooke Bond in the loss column.

GETS HOCKEY POST

ATLANTA (AP) — T. David Lamm, sports editor of the Greensboro, N.C., Record, was named Monday executive-secretary of the Southern Hockey League. Norman Curtis, president of the newly formed league which includes many franchises from the now-defunct Eastern League, said Lamm will assume day-to-day operational control of the SHL on Aug. 1.

A Link With Past Is Gone

The death Monday of long time intelligencer sports editor George Carver severs a link with the past for many in the Quinte area.

His column, Sports Slices — Rare, Medium and Well Done — was a fixture on the sports pages.

George had the knack of bringing humor into sports. He was at his best when covering events from the past. His jargon was all his own. And it was popular with his readers.

Even after he retired some time ago, he continued to make contributions to the sports pages under the heading — By George.

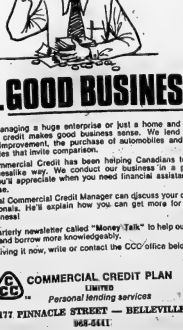
His ability to swing from prose to poetry while he was banging out the copy was another of his trademarks.

George and the late Garry Alexander were a popular one-two punch. Together, they gave their readers the very best.

Men Missing, Juveniles Lose

The Belleville Juveniles were the victims of another manpower shortage last night as they went down to a 16-1 loss to the visiting Scarboro Juveniles.

The locals had only nine players dressed for the contest, and had only seven remaining by the end of the game.



Bill Donald scored the only goal for the losers, who travel to Scarboro for the return contest Wednesday night.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, July 18 ...

Aries (March 21-April 19): Confining details persist, including some recently added ones. New acquaintances should remain just that, temporarily.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Continue work already started, disregard temptations to switch directions and method. Keen expert advice is off the mark.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Old contacts come up for renewal, bringing progress reports. Put to what work you can get away as soon as possible.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Shared expenses are the feasible approach to today's enjoyment. Group prosperity carries all along easier.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 23): Being definite in communication is essential—if there is a way to misunderstand, people find it.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): All transactions take on speculative qualities. Buy only what you need for the short-term, research major deals.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The rare art of letting well enough alone is your test area today. Whatever is mysterious will come into view shortly.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You must wait for sentimental expressions. Meanwhile, read nothing extra into news or personal remarks.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Concentrated effort is favored. Short cuts not only fail, but generate confusion. Friends are tactless.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your intuition is needed, but proceed in contrary to external symptoms and declared information.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The logic may be perfect, the system complete, but still take a false direction. Speculative enthusiasm runs high.

Pieces (Feb.19-March 20): Discretion is part of the story; waiting for other sides to the controversy is another. Keep opinion to yourself.

To Your Good Health

Cough May Be Due To Insect in Ear

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My brother developed a cough that came about every 10 to 12 weeks. He spoke to him about what happened and he said insects got into his ear. Everyone is afraid to see those insect sprays.

Something happened so he can speak only a few words without coughing. Can you tell me what to do for it?—F.K.S.

What you can do for it? Nothing.

But a dead insect may be lying against the ear drum. Or he may have an irritation with that bug spray.

Irritation of the ear drum from hard wax, hairpins or what not can cause a cough as a reflex response.

Have a physician examine your brother's ear. If the ear is all right, have him look elsewhere for the cause of the coughing-fit in your case. The ear is the best place to start.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 23 and my problem is my bowels. I'm constipated quite often. I move my bowels every two or three days with the help of prune juice several times a week, but the real trouble is that the movement is so big that I start to bleed and it hurts quite a bit. Not all the time, but I realize that bleeding may cause piles later in life.

I take a laxative once or twice a month which helps for a few days, but then it starts all over again. The bleeding is starting to increase and I'm getting scared.—D.D.

It's a big deal early to be "scared" but it is high time to start doing something about that continuing constipation. (Bleeding doesn't cause "piles," or hemorrhoids; it's the other way around. Hemorrhoids can cause bleeding.)

From your letter, I judge that you are relying on prune juice and laxatives. Prune juice is, indeed, about as good a mild laxative as you'll say about as mild a good laxative) as one usually needs. Strong laxatives are likely to irritate and do more harm than good—and since you are experiencing pain and bleeding, you should avoid any unnecessary irritation.

Start by eliminating your usual diet, and try to determine whether you are drinking enough fluids and getting enough bulk or roughage. These are basic in preventing constipation. The use of one of the bulk producers (agar, etc.) would be effective in softening the stool.

Because of the bleeding, however, I would recommend consulting your doctor (or by a proctologist) to determine the exact cause.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you define "benign endometrial hyperplasia"?—L.M.

The endometrium is the lining of the uterus. Hyperplasia means an overgrowth, or too much growth of tissue. In other words, the lining of the uterus is growing beyond normal limits. "Benign" means, however, that the growth is not cancerous.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes ringworm and what can you do for it? Can it be caught from animals?—A.S.

Ringworm is a fungus infection of the skin it can be caught from an animal with fungus skin disorders, or from people with it.

There are fungicides (medications that destroy fungus) but I take a dim view of attempting home treatment. See your doctor.

and West leads the queen of clubs, which wins.

When West shifts to a diamond, declarer goes up with the queen and returns the nine of trumps. If East ducks, so does South and, as a result, makes three spades.

But if East covers the nine with the jack — as he should to cater to the possibility of West's having four spades that include the eight and a high honor — South goes down one. The nine in this case is treated as an honor, and East covers because he play cannot cost him a trick but may gain him one.

Tomorrow: Sylvia.

FAMILY COURSES OFFERED

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP) — th Family Life Institute courses of St. Francis Xavier University are being offered for the first time on the Antigonish campus this summer. The courses, endorsed by the Nova Scotia department of education, are designed to educate teachers on the vital importance of family life and to prepare them to aid students in decision-making relative to the family, a University spokesman said.

PAY FAVORED

QUEBEC (CP) In times or places where men fear starvation, the fat woman is beautiful, says Dr. Jean Bonnelier, of the dietary research unit of the Bichat Hospital in Paris. Speaking to the annual meeting of the Canadian Pediatric Society in Quebec City, he said a woman's plumpness offers reassurance that the fear of starvation won't come true.

WOMEN ADMITTED

TORONTO (CP) After 123 years, the all-male tradition of the Board of Trade of Metropolitan Toronto has collapsed. At their annual meeting, the board members voted without argument to admit women to full membership, a spokesman said.

Opening lead—queen of clubs.

The principle of covering an honor with an honor is cited with reverence from Walla Walla to Dreepropetrovsk, but the fact is that this rule is not quite as simple as it sounds.

Thus, it is surely correct to cover with the king if declarer leads the jack from the J-3-2 facing the A-Q-6. Covering with the king holds declarer to two tricks instead of the three he would make if the jack were ducked.

But it would be wrong to cover if you had the K-x-x and declarer led the jack from dummy's J-10-x-x with the 6-5. He would make two tricks if you covered but only one if you ducked.

As a matter of fact, the best rule to follow is to cover an honor if it can gain a trick, and not cover if it can cost a trick.

This advice may not be particularly helpful — for it tells you to use your head instead of a rigid formula — but that is the kind of game bridge is. And if you find the rule too tantalizing you can always switch to canasta.

Today's hand is an extension of the principle and demonstrates the underlying theory. South is in three spades

Poverty Puts Many In Prison

VANCOUVER (CP) — A shocking number of persons, many of them native Indians, go to prison simply because they are poor, says Ian Waddell of the Vancouver Legal Assistance Society.

Almost one-quarter of all offenders committed to British Columbia jails serve time in default of payment of fines, Mr Waddell said.

But a B.C. Corrections Service survey indicates the percentage is much higher in Kamloops and Prince George, where large numbers of Indians are sent to jail.

In two interior provincial prisons, 39 per cent of all those committed served jail terms in default of payment of fines, the survey revealed. Fines range from $200 up, and the jail terms in lieu of fines range from five days to six months and up although most are under 30 days.

"If I were convicted of impaired driving all I would have to do is write out a cheque," Mr. Waddell said. "At present, if a person cannot pay the fine within the time limit set by the court, he automatically goes to jail without appearing before a judge."

Mr. Waddell says an offender's financial status should be examined in a court inquiry before sentencing, and if a default should be alleged he should be brought before a judge to explain why.

In the B.C. Corrections Service survey, the Lower Mainland Regional Corrections Centre was found to have 350 offenders committed in default of fines, a total of 39 per cent.

The default figures in other B.C. prisons averaged 39 per cent with the following breakdown: Kamloops, 39 per cent, with a high Indian population; Prince George, where 26 per cent were Indians; and Oakalla Prison Farm, where 11.5 per cent are Indian, 9.5 per cent.

The B.C. government recently changed the Small Claims Act to require a sheriff to bring a debtor to court before committal, but this does not apply to criminal cases.

To a large number of persons, Mr. Waddell says, a fine is an indirect jail sentence.

Brampton Man Facing Ulster Charge

BELFAST (CP) — Cecil Baxter of Brampton, Ont., by to appear in High Court here Oct. 8 charged with possessing explosive substances and bombmaking equipment.

The Canadian was charged, along with six other men, March 21. He pleaded not guilty. He was later released on bail but with the conditions that he surrender his passport to Northern Ireland authorities and report to police weekly.

The charge against Baxter says he was found in possession of sodium chlorate, potassium nitrate, rocket fins and other substances used in the production of mortar bombs.

He appealed against the confiscation of his passport after being released on bail but a presiding magistrate here refused his plea.

Baxter was held in custody from the time of his arrest until April 19 when the High Court granted his bail.

Tweed

TWEED — Tweed Agricultural Society, Ladies Division revised the prize list for Tweed Fall Fair 1973.

Officers are: Mrs. William J. Woods, past-president; Mrs. Oakley Truscau, president; secretary, Mrs. Thomas. S. Kelly.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Elliott, Roger and Sara of Musganiown, Pennsylvannia, spent the past two weeks with the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Elliott at Moira Lake.

John Aubrey Reid, Junior, recently completed his Bachelor of Arts Degree, majoring in Political Science at Trent University, Peterborough. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Reid. Tweed, and is the Vice-Principal at Brighton Public School. He is commencing an M. Ed. program at Queen's University in September as well as teaching.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices ordered the major indicator of the Toronto stock market moved sharply higher in moderate mid-morning trading today. The industrial index, considered a market trend, rose 1.29 to 214.41, base metals .43 to 106.30 and western oils 2.22 to 221.18. Golds were off 1.15 to 209.26.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 618,000 shares compared with 301,000 at the same time Monday.

Advances almost doubled declines, 143 to 72, with 156 issues unchanged.

Oil refining, industrial mining, steel and bank stocks were among sectors of the market recording advances while construction and material issues were lower.

Trading in shares of Security Capital B was resumed at the opening. There were no sales by mid-morning.

Lost Licence

DUNMER, England (CP) — Viola Ireland lost her driving licence after police told the court the 78-year-old widow had committed a series of infractions: a drive to have tea with a friend. On her way, she drove down the wrong side of an expressway, got stuck on the median when she tried to do a U-turn, narrowly missed a truck when she was given a push by a policeman and then, on her way home, again drove down the wrong side of the expressway.

Otto Lang Refuses to Reveal Federal Feed Grains Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — Refusing to yield to opposition pressure, Justice Minister Otto Lang said Monday night the government will not announce its feed grains policy until after the July 24-26 western economic conference in Calgary.

He told the Commons during a five-hour special debate on the price and supply of feed grains that the delay was decided in part because of a request "in very strong language" from Allan Blakeney, New Democratic Party premier of Saskatchewan.

The debate, prompted by an NDP motion that called for urgent government action, started at 8 p.m. EDT and went on until after 1 a.m., nearly three hours beyond the normal adjournment time.

However, the debate attracted the attention of relatively few MPs. Attendance in the final stages dropped to as low as nine members. There are 264 MPs.

Mr. Lang, responsible for the wheat board, said the policy will not be made known until about the end of July.

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said the timing is also complicated by a pledge he made to discuss the issue with provincial agriculture ministers in Charlottetown July 24.

The delay in making the announcement was greeted coolly by spokesmen for all three opposition parties. They said there is growing uncertainty over feed grain supplies and prices and an urgent need for government action.

Formation of the policy poses tough political problems for the government, which has already imposed export controls in response to similar United States action to protect domestic feed supplies and dampen price increases.

On one hand, it faces the prospect of angering western farmers, who stand to gain from rising demand and prices. On the other, it has to cope with growing pressure from eastern livestock and poultry producers, who have seen the price of feed grains, the biggest cost factor in their industry, rise by up to 80 per cent in the last year.

In the middle is the Canadian consumer, paying higher and higher meat prices at the supermarket.

Mr. Whelan said the policy will deal fairly with all regions from coast to coast. It would be more important to the future of Canadian agriculture than the current problem of feed grain supplies.

The minister criticized news media and armchair critics for generating unnecessary hysteria over the availability of feed grains.

Repeating previous assurances, he said there is enough protein feed on hand to meet domestic feeds until the end of the crop year. But there could be some regional distribution problems and possibly the need to make "some adjustments in composition and the level of protein formula feeds."

He promised that the policy will provide orderly marketing but he left unclear whether feed grains will be removed from wheat board control.

The board has controlled feed grains since 1949 and western MPs, reacting to speculation that its authority may be lessened, warned they will oppose any such move.

Alf Gleave (NDP—Saskatoon-Biggar), who prompted the special debate with a motion urging the government to bring down its feed grains policy as soon as possible, said the entire agriculture industry will suffer if such a move is made.

But western producers, who would presumably stand to gain most, have not been pressing seriously so radical a change, he said.

Family Allowances Bill Is Introduced

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislation that will raise family allowances from the current average of $7.21 a month for each child to a new average of $20 was introduced in the Commons Monday. It would take effect Jan. 1.

The bill is not expected to be passed before the House rises for the summer and Health Minister Marc Lalonde refused to guarantee that it will be passed in time to go into effect at the first of the year.

The Jan. 1 target date was set when the revamped plan was unveiled in the February budget.

While tripling to $1.5 billion the amount the government will spend on family allowances, the legislation will subject them to income tax for the first time, substantially reducing the net increase.

The actual level for children in various age brackets will be determined by each province but the minimum payments must be no lower than $12 and the provincial average must work out to at least $20 a child.

The current benefit structure is $6 for children under 10, $8 for those 10 to 15, and $10 for children 16 and 17. The new schedule will end the allowances at a child's 18th birthday, the same as now.

Trudeau Makes Case Against Regional Blocs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau says the West has not done a good job of articulating "western alienation," which he describes as a mixture of economic, geographical and psychological factors.

And Information Canada has failed in its mission to inform Canadians about the federal presence in all parts of the country, he said in an interview with The Canadian Press.

As he prepares for the forthcoming western economic conference in Calgary, the prime minister said there are some real and justified grievances in the West which must be faced. There was also a geographic problem: "In any large country people feel decisions are taken a long way from them" and all this is "translating itself more into a psychological feeling that they are not being consulted, that they are not part of the in-group that makes decisions."

"One thing I hear most often is that we ought to give specific answers to specific questions. Personally I think that's a short-sighted approach. There must be some specific answers . . . but what kind of West do we want?" is much more important and that is not to be answered by merely the West in which this and that freight rate will be adjusted."

Mr. Trudeau said he is aware of the political dangers of the Calgary conference, when he will face four premiers from different parties. If expectations are high, he said, the feeling of alienation could worsen if no progress is made.

But "I don't think Calgary is the last chance. It's important that we make yards, much as it was very important when bombs were going off in Quebec."

However, he added, "I don't think the nation is easily destroyed."

He is "very concerned" about the danger of regional power blocs developing as a result of the conference.

. . . That's why I repeatedly made the point that this was not a new constitutional initiative; that we were not going up a form of federalism that operated in blocs.

. . . "I would be very concerned if . . . tried to go on from Calgary . . . up a parliamentary structure . . . and have the western bloc negotiate with the rest of Canada. I'm not for associated states."

Mr. Trudeau says he tends to be more objective in tackling western alienation than he was battling separatism in Quebec.

"I can, and I have, talked about Quebec alienation with a great deal of impatience because these are the people I know and have been brought up with. But not here, I think I am more objective about it . . . less offensive than I am with some of the Quebec separatists.

Perhaps it would be right to infer that I am trying to articulate it more as a rational process when I am talking about the West than I could sort of feel for it when it was talking about my province.

"It's just as important for me as a man who believes in Canada and loves Canada to find the answer for western separatism as it was to find the answer to Quebec separatism."

IJC Seeking Power to Curb Superior Flow

OTTAWA (CP) — The International Joint Commission (IJC) wants new powers from the United States and Canadian governments to prevent flooding on the lower Great Lakes by restricting flows from Lake Superior.

In a report given the two governments June 29 released Monday, the IJC says the plan would benefit shore property-owners on Lakes Michigan, Huron, St. Clair and Erie and on their outflow rivers.

But it estimates that the plan, which involves holding back the waters of Superior, could cost shore interests on the lake "as much as $5 million" in its first year of operation.

The commission says Lake Ontario water levels, which also have been at record high levels, would not be affected by the plan.

Denturist Ultimatum Is Issued

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario denturists issued an ultimatum Monday to Premier William Davis to give them a status independent of dentists or they will refuse to take the government's new qualifying examinations to test their professional competence.

The ultimatum came in a letter to the premier, made public Monday, from Gordon R. Senkin public relations counsel for the 237-member Denturist Society of Ontario.

A controversial bill to place denturists—those who make false teeth—under the direct supervision of the dental profession was approved at the last session of the legislature.

Mr. Senkin told the premier the society was willing to prove their competence by having their qualifications assessed, but only if they could be allowed to deal directly with the public.

Taxpayers Can Quiz Witnesses

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Kingston Township ratepayers will be allowed to examine and cross-examine witnesses at the provincial inquiry into municipal affairs in the township, a county court judge ruled Monday at the inquiry's opening session.

Judge Edward Shortt ruled that persons proving they had "a substantial interest" in the inquiry could examine witnesses, at least on a limited basis.

About 50 spectators and witnesses attended Monday's session of the inquiry, which deals with complaints about breaches of the Municipal Act and the Municipal Conflict of Interest Act by members of township councils.

Land transactions of a company in which Reeve J. Earl McEwen has shares and the land's relation to the municipality's proposed $4.6-million water and sewer extensions will be a main issue.

The inquiry continues today.

Appeal Lost

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Court of Appeals has upheld the conviction of W. A. (Tony) Boyle, former United Mine Workers (UMW) president, on charges of illegally contributing union funds to political campaigns.

Boyle was sentenced June 27, 1972, in U.S. District Court to five years in prison and fined $130,000.

Sworn In

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — Pleading to Bermudians to "give us a chance," Canadian-born Sir Edwin (Ted) Leather was sworn in as Bermuda's new governor Monday as police and plainclothesmen mingled with 1,000 spectators.

The assassination of the previous governor, Sir Richard Sharples, was a blow to Bermuda's future, Sir Edwin said as he appealed for adherence to democracy.

Painters Strike

TORONTO (CP) — This city's strike-plagued construction industry no sooner got its 800 cement workers back on the job today when the painters and mobile crane operators went on strike.

The cement masons ratified a new wage pact Sunday but 1,200 painters struck Monday and the mobile crane operators began rotating strikes.

Pair Caught

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Two prisoners who attacked their guards with handcuffs and leg irons and fled in their car last Tuesday near Oshawa, Ont., were recaptured here Monday.

Police said they arrested Steven Roy Faust, 20, of Owen Sound, Ont., and Michael Mitchell McCarthur, 21, of Walkerton, Ont., when they went to an apartment after receiving a tip.

Savings Seized

OTTAWA (CP) — An unemployed father of five in Waterloo, Ont., has had his meagre savings wiped out by Unemployment Insurance Commission (UIC) bureaucracy, Conservative MP A. D. Hales charged Monday.

Mr. Hales (Wellington) said in an interview that the man was overpaid in insurance benefits "by a fair amount" and when he was unable to repay $253, the UIC seized $55.14 in a bank account he held jointly with his wife.

"This, to me, is the way you'd operate in Russia, not in Canada." He said the UIC Act contains a provision for this kind of seizure, and the commission can issue a "UIC demand on third party" that a bank must obey within seven days or face a penalty itself.

Escape Law

OTTAWA (CP) — The external affairs department was naturally as diplomatic as possible, but had to inform the Commons Monday that foreign diplomats got away with alleged violations of Canadian traffic laws about 6,000 times in the last 6½ years.

Under diplomatic immunity conventions, the hundreds of staff in Ottawa embassies are not prosecuted.

The department declined to specify, in response to a written Commons question, just "who were the 10 leading countries in number of alleged offences."

"It is considered a matter of diplomatic courtesy not to make public the number of alleged offences committed by members of individual embassies," says the written reply to Sinclair Stevens PC—York - Simcoe.

JAMES McGRATH

Children's Ads Ban Is Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — A Commons committee has rejected a bill to ban all television advertising for children but its sponsor, James McGrath (PC—St. John's East), a father of six, says he is not disappointed.

Instead, the report of the Commons broadcasting committee tabled in the Commons Monday recommends that the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) adopt regulations to provide that advertising may not be directed exclusively to children.

It also calls on the CRTC to reduce the number of commercial minutes permitted in each hour of children's programs.

CRTC regulations now restrict commercials to 12 minutes an hour during general programming.

Mr. McGrath said he expects the commission to act on the committee's recommendations soon. He called the report "a very clear and definitive representation" of views on children's advertising.

The report notes that evidence heard by the committee from consumer groups, private broadcasters, advertisers, toy manufacturers, the CBC and the CRTC suggests there must be more research to establish the effect of advertising on children and the family.

The committee urges the CRTC to require the deletion of advertising directed to children from United States programs distributed on Canadian cable systems. The Canadian Income Tax Act should be amended so advertising directed at this country on foreign television stations is no longer deductible for income tax purposes.

Jury 'Hassled'

MONTREAL (CP) — Mr. Justice Guy Mathieu of Court of Queen's Bench finished his address to the jury in the Jacques Rose trial Monday.

The 11-man jury is to begin deliberations today.

One juror was excused Monday when the court learned of his father's death.

Meanwhile, Mr. Justice Mathieu has promised to look into complaints from the jury that two "plainclothes agents" had tried to infiltrate their group during the weekend.

In a statement read aloud by the judge, the jury said other plainclothes agents had constantly "hassled" them since the beginning of their stay at an unidentified downtown hotel last Tuesday.

Crown Prosecutor Fernand Cole asked for a detailed description of the agents and promised an investigation.

Man Released

BUFFALO (AP) — A Buffalo man accused of holding his infant daughter hostage aboard a parked airliner last July while demanding that he be flown out of the country was sentenced Monday to five years' probation for custodial interference.

A State Supreme Court jury found Charles Smith, 22, innocent of burglary, assault and kidnapping charges in the case but found him guilty of seizing his daughter.

City a Park?

WINNIPEG (CP) — The city's environment committee hopes to take the sting out in licensing regulations holding back anti-mosquito fogging in residential areas.

The answer, the committee said Monday, is to proclaim the whole of Winnipeg a park.

The city has a permit to use anti-mosquito fog in parks, golf courses and along riverbanks, but not in residential areas.

The residential fogging was called off last week when the city legal department advised that a licence is needed from the provincial clean environment commission.

Thursday but the city must advertise for three weeks to allow protests from residents who object to fogging. If objections are received there would be a further delay for a public hearing.

Environment Commissioner David Henderson said some opposition to the fogging could be expected.

The park idea is to be considered by council Wednesday. Mayor Steve Juba said in an interview he is confident it will be ratified by the councillors.

Crown to Do All Algonquin Logging

TORONTO (CP) — A Crown agency takeover of logging operations at Algonquin Park was announced Tuesday as the centrepiece of a new policy to preserve the park's commercial, recreational and wilderness resources.

A. B. R. Lawrence, resources development secretary, told a news conference the takeover is inherent in the policy, evolved after five years of study, was that "reasonable people can work together."

But Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier, who unveiled the new policy in a 22-page statement, said that the decision not to place a total ban on log harvesting in the 3,000-square-mile park will disappoint environmentalists and conservationists.

Algonquin, 130 miles north of Toronto, provides an annual harvest of hard and soft woods of 14 million cubic feet for 23 logging firms, who employ 3,100.

Another 3,000 are employed indirectly from these operations, that return about $700,000 a year in royalties to the province.

Mr. Bernier said the park is large enough to permit controlled logging, which has been part of the park's operations since it was established in 1893.

The new agency, the Algonquin Forest Authority, would have the power to select the cutting areas, hire the men and machinery, and, in effect sell the lumber to the companies. Licences held by the companies will be cancelled.

Mr. Bernier said he expects some increase in the price of logs to the nearby mills because the authority will have to engage in selective cutting, and may even have to resort to horses, rather than machinery, to harvest the logs to protect the ecology.

Mr. Lawrence said, however, that the industry is in a buoyant enough state to permit the companies to absorb any increases costs that may result from the new setup.

Mr. Bernier said there would be no interruption in the flow of material to the companies while the authority is established, hopefully by legislation at the next session of the legislature.

Mr. Bernier said it may require a budget of "a million or two million dollars" to get the authority into business.

But he did not expect it would seek a profit, but be content only to assure there is good forest management, a steady supply of material to the mills and maintenance of the economy of the region, centred at Huntsville.

The new policy also envisages creation of 18 satellite parks outside Algonquin that would contain expanded camping facilities and be available to tourist outfitters. Private cottages, outboard motors and snow vehicles would be eliminated in, while canoe routes into the interior would be created.

A new youth camp for children from poor families will be built by the government to add to youth camps already there.

In all, the government accepted 26 of the 35 recommendations of the Algonquin Provincial Park Advisory Committee, whose 27-page report was made public along with the government's new policy position.

The committee, setup in 1969, was headed by former premier Leslie Frost until his recent death. He was replaced by Richard Howard.

Mr. Bernier said the government has basically confirming the view of the Frost committee that Algonquin should continue to be "an average man's wilderness."

But Mr. Bernier said that logging is vital to preserve the jobs and economy of the region, where employment opportunities are scarce at the best of times.

Wading Into Cleanup Work

Student Services, an Opportunities for Youth summer project employing six high school students, has embarked on a parks cleanup job for the summer. Gerry and Dave Smith turned out yesterday for their first stint — fishing debris out of the water along the bay shore park between Herchimer Avenue and the Government Dock. Project directors hope in their trash removal campaign to use students too young to hold regular jobs. For story, see first page, second section.

News Briefs

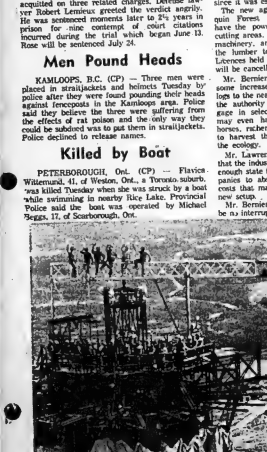
Trudeau Didn't Know

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Tuesday he had "no knowledge then and none now" that private conversations with President Richard Nixon in Washington in 1971 were recorded. He said he was not convinced his conversations had been taped and would continue to assume that such conversations "are private and privileged."

'Personal Arms'

OTTAWA (CP) — Firearms seized in a Toronto house appear to be the "personal arms" of John Murphy, arrested in Ireland in connection with a seized-weapons shipments, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand told the Commons Tuesday. The five weapons picked up in an RCMP raid last Friday included sub-machine-guns, which are restricted weapons under Canadian law. Mr. Allmand told the House the Toronto weapons are not of the same type as those seized in Dublin in boxes marked "machine parts."

Rose Found Guilty



MONTREAL (CP) Jacques Rose's long series of trials came to an end Tuesday when he was found guilty of being an accessory after the fact in the kidnapping of Pierre Laporte. He was acquitted on three related charges. Defense lawyer Robert Lemieux greeted the verdict angrily. He was sentenced moments later to 2½ years in prison for nine contempt of court citations incurred during the trial which began June 13. Rose will be sentenced July 24.

Men Pound Heads

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — Three men were placed in straitjackets and helmets Tuesday by police after they were found pounding their heads against fenceposts in the Kamloops area. Police said they believe the three were suffering from the effects of rat poison and the only way they could be subdued was to put them in straitjackets. Police declined to release names.

Killed by Boat

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Flavius Wiitemaral, 41, of Weston, Ont., a Toronto suburb, was killed Tuesday when she was struck by a boat while swimming in nearby Rice Lake. Provincial Police said the boat was operated by Michael Beggs, 17, of Scarborough, Ont.

Smelter Stack Finished

Workers celebrate the completion of the 820-foot concrete portion of the 825-foot stack being built for Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company, Ltd., at Flin Flon, Man. The first concrete was poured May 22 using the continuous slip-forming technique. The stack is scheduled to be in operation by November, 1974, and will replace the stacks serving the copper smelter and zinc refinery. (CP Photo)

Decision Called Blow To Free Enterprise

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Forest Industries Association expressed disappointment Tuesday with new government policies concerning forest operations in Algonquin Park announced earlier by Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier.

The association said in a statement it regretted the establishment of a central timber-producing agency as it "strikes at the very heart of the free enterprise system."

Richard Smith, the Liberal party's resources critic in the legislature, said the policy deals with confusing issues "in a nebulous way."

French Navy Takes Protest Ship in Tow

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (Reuter) — The French navy has apparently seized the protest boat Fri in tow off Mururoa Atoll in the South Pacific as speculation heightened that the new French nuclear tests is about to start.

A French navy partly searched the 165-foot schooner today, advising that it was intended to sail in tow.

The boarding climaxed 21 hours of intense air and sea activity in the testing area.

It does not specify "what new controls will be placed on logging, what areas of the park will be designated as primitive and natural zones, and what specific programs will be followed to ensure the protection of the interior of the park for those who desire a true wilderness areas."

Creation of a Crown agency was an indication of the ministry's failure to properly control log harvesting in the past, he said.

He said the government's decision to permit park campgrounds by private interests for children of rich parents, to remain while denouncing a plan to build a new camp for poor children as disastrous.

"What we are to have . . . is a place for the rich children in Algonquin Park, and another place for the poor, and the two shall never mingle."

Davis to Testify at Hydro Probe

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis, in a surprise move, has asked to be the star witness in testify before the select legislature committee investigating Ontario Hydro's contract for construction of a new downtown headquarters.

The new development came as the hearings resumed today. Committee members promptly agreed to adjourn until Monday to give committee counsel Richard Shibley a chance to prepare.

Today's witness was to be Gerhard Moog, head of Canada Square Corp., a personal friend of Mr. Davis. His company was awarded the contract by Hydro to construct the building.

The committee is looking into allegations of patronage in the awarding of the contract to Canada Square over three other developers.

Senators Deceived

Secret Raids Bring Charge of Lying

WASHINGTON, (AP)— Pentagon disclosure of more than 4,000 secret bombing sorties in Cambodia in 1969 and early 1970 has provoked charges that administration officials "deliberately lied" to the Senate armed services committee.

Senator Harold Hughes (Dem. Iowa) said Tuesday that still-classified reports of Indochina air operations furnished for the committee in 1971 and early 1972 show "a long list of 'zeroes'" for B-52 bombing in Cambodia for every month up to May, 1970.

"They deliberately lied to the committee," Hughes told reporters after the "very major campaign" was disclosed by Pentagon spokesman Jerry Friedheim.

Hughes said Senator Stuart Symington (Dem. Mo.), acting chairman of the committee, has agreed to call administration officials under oath "to tell us precisely what happened in these bombing operations and falsification of reports, who ordered them and how they were conducted."

The Pentagon admitted the secret bombing for the first time Monday, after former air force major Hal Knight told the committee that he helped carry out secret raids against North Vietnamese sanctuaries in Cambodia in March and April, 1970. He said that he obeyed orders to burn documentary evidence and falsify reports.

Defence Secretary James R. Schlesinger told the committee in a letter that the bombing missions in Cambodia were "fully authorized" and that special security precautions surrounded them because of a sensitive operational and diplomatic situation.

The United States at the time of the raids was professing publicly to be observing the neutrality of the Cambodian government under Prince Norodom Sihanouk, deposed early in 1970.

After the Lon Nol group took over the Cambodian government, U.S. and South Vietnamese ground troops were sent into Cambodia to clean out North Vietnamese sanctuaries.

Senate Levels Barriers To Alaska Oil Pipeline

WASHINGTON (CP) — Stung by defeat in the Senate, environmentalists moved to the House of Representatives today in their battle to block construction of the Alaska oil pipeline.

The shaft came after the Senate Tuesday passed a bill to remove all legal barriers to immediate construction of the pipeline.

"We're hoping that wiser heads will prevail in the House," said Richard Otto of the Wilderness Society. "If the House should follow the same faulty line of reasoning as the Senate, that would be the end of the ballgame."

The Senate bill declared that the federal government gave adequate consideration to alternative pipeline route through Canada in preparing an environmental impact statement.

The bill, written and guided through the Senate by Senator Harry Jackson (Dem. Wash.), also calls for removal of rights-of-way restrictions which have stalled construction of the $3.5-billion trans-Alaska line.

Similar provisions were included in a pipeline bill reported out of a House interior subcommittee Tuesday.

The two issues were the basis for the lawsuit filed by the Wilderness Society and other environmental organizations that have blocked construction of the pipeline for more than three years.

Environmentalists oppose the pipeline out of concern it would lead to widespread oil spills that would despoil the Arctic tundra and northwest coast.

If the House upholds the Senate, Olson said, "I think this would be the end of the lawsuit."

"I don't know of any basis for a legal challenge."

Most observers predict the House will concur in the Senate action. If so, construction could begin by late fall or early spring.

Backers of the pipeline contend immediate construction is essential to bring crude oil from the North Slope to the lower 48 states to alleviate the energy crisis.

Construction of the 780-mile pipeline southward to the port city of Valdez is expected to take about three years.

Macdonald Comments

Shipping Routes Negotiation Urged

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada must give priority to negotiations on shipping routes for tankers carrying Alaskan oil to the continental United States if the U.S. rules out the proposed Mackenzie Valley oil pipeline, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday.

"One of our objectives should be by negotiation with the U.S. to seek the avoidance of big tanker movements into Puget Sound just south of Vancouver," he said.

The minister said commenting in a Halifax interview on a U.S. Senate decision to approve construction of a trans-Alaskan oil pipeline.

If the House of Representatives follows suit, it would "virtually rule out" a Mackenzie Valley oil pipeline through Canadian territory.

But it is still possible that "at an early date we will be receiving an application for a Mackenzie Valley gas pipeline," the minister said.

The senate decision brought immediate concern from Canadian government leaders and environmentalists over the future of the Mackenzie Valley proposal and protection of the British Columbia coast from oil spills.

Jean Chretien, minister of northern affairs, said in Ottawa the gas pipeline is not affected by the senate decision. The Mackenzie Valley "is still the best route for the gas line."

Environment Minister Jack Davis said he was surprised the senators would "write off any environmental concern" in approving the trans-Alaska line.

He said the Canadian government will not give up discussing the problem and effects of transferring oil from Alaska and it is hoped the tankers would move only in international and U.S. waters.

Premier Dave Barrett of B.C. and Prime Minister Trudeau should go to the U.S. to "press Canada's objections to a trans-Alaska pipeline and the resultant tanker shipments.

The Alaska pipeline will terminate at Valdez in southern Alaska, where the oil will be placed aboard huge tankers that will travel south along the B.C. coast to Washington state. Canada had urged the U.S. to consider an oil line through the western Canadian Arctic.

8 Oil Firms Face Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission announced Tuesday it is issuing a complaint against the eight largest petroleum companies in the United States alleging they have participated in anti-competitive practices.

The FTC complaint said the eight firms have monopolized refining and maintained a non-competitive market structure in refining in the eastern and Gulf Coast states and parts of the central area.

The corporations named in the FTC complaint were Atlantic Richfield Co., Exxon Corp., Gulf Oil Corp., Mobil Oil Corp., the Standard Oil companies of California and Indiana, Shell Oil Corp., and Texaco.

Study for Plan Passes Hurdle

The planning study on which Belleville's official plan will be based was approved by the Quinte Planning Board last night.

Only minor corrective changes were requested from the Toronto consultant firm that presented the preliminary study for committee consideration two weeks ago.

The draft official plan text is expected to be ready for Quinte Planning Board review and public debate by early August. However, as yet, no date has been established.

William A. Ferguson, planning director for Totten, Sims Hubicki Associates will supervise the compilation of data and charts projecting various phases of city development over the coming decades.

In their review of the study, QPB planning staff requested one change in data, presented — an elaboration of the deficiencies in neighbored parkland found in the city's northeast and southwest sectors.

Using a provincial standard of 2.3 acres of "green space" per 1,000 population, the study noted only 1.23 acres were available in the northeast planning district and 1.81 in the southwest.

Planning staff requested further breakdown of the districts into planning units.

Reasoning that some units could have the necessary acreage - population ratio while others be even more deficient than the district average, the planning staff's recommendation was accepted by the committee.

It was felt the city would thereby be aided in purchasing private land, as it became available, to increase the parkland in the needed planning units.

Besides the recommendation, no major changes were made in the conceptual study of projected development in Belleville.

The special committee expressed satisfaction with the planning study and anticipated an early presentation of the 60-page draft official plan text.

Sales Good On Ore Run

PICTON — Railfans already have purchased approximately 40 per cent of the tickets to be sold for an excursion Sept. 22 from Belleville to Marmora and Marmoraton Mines dock near Picton.

The trip, arranged by the Picton Model Railroaders for the first time last year, is unique in that passenger coaches were added to the ore train on its regular run.

Alan Capon, a member of the model railroaders, said that 25 per cent of the tickets sold to date have been bought by Americans from New York State and the New England states. Railfans in Montreal, Ottawa and Quebec City also have reserved seats for the trip. A total of 160 tickets are available.

Getting Treats Ready

Playground leaders Carolyn Wessels (at left) and Betsy Wright are enchanted by youngsters preparing the refreshment stand at Parkdale Park during Get Acquainted Night at the city's 21 playgrounds. Parents and children also munched popcorn and sipped Kool Aid while watching humorous skits. Parents had the opportunity to meet leaders who will be taking care of their children all the playground program ends August 17.

Juveniles In Court

Two boys, aged 14 and 15, appeared in Juvenile Court this morning after they were caught shortly after 4 a.m. inside Woodland Cleaners at the corner of Farley and Dundas Streets.

Police came across the youngsters after noticing a window and door had been forced on the building.

The two are also accused of breaking into Belleville Plaza laundromat and the Canada Dry Bottling plant on South Herchimer Street. Both buildings were entered last night, police said.

Chamber Draws Big Membership

PICTON — The Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce with 98 paid members has reported its largest membership in three years.

At a recent directors' meeting it was observed that the chamber has funds totalling $1,837, from 1972 and more than $1,327 from the current year.

It was suggested by chamber president Gordon Callan that the management of new industries now establishing in the county should be invited to attend a directors' meeting.

Tyendinaga Mohawks Dispute Court Ruling

A spokesman for the Bay of Quinte Mohawks says they "cannot accept" an Ontario Supreme Court ruling which, in effect, would mean the Tyendinaga Reserve is not an Indian Reserve.

Chief Earl Hill said today the special situation of re-collected three base hits as ready is covered by the Indian Act.

Last week Mr. Justice Osler ruled that the Indian Act is inoperative and the Six Nations Indian reserve near Brantford is not legally an Indian reserve.

Original land grants from British colonial administrators were to the people of the Iroquois and title was not vested in the crown — as is the case with other reserves, the Judge ruled.

Mohawks at Tyendinaga and Brantford received their landsy under the same historic terms.

"As the lands of Tyendinaga reserve were made on the same terms as the Six Nations near Brantford, we could not accept such a ruling," said Chief Hill in a formal statement today.

He said a section of the Indian Act states where legal title to Indian lands is not vested in the Crown, the Act "applies as though the lands were a reserve within the meaning of this Act".

He said it was "most unfortunate" the court was unaware funds from Iroquois reserves are held in trust and administered by the federal government. This further affirms federal government responsibility under the Indian Act in Iroquois affairs and lands.

Chief Hill also declared the Tyendinaga Mohawks could not accept the Indian Act was inoperative.

His statement followed a general meeting last weekend of the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians near Peterborough which discussed the court ruling.

The judgment also supported the claim of Six Nations hereditary chiefs to administer Brantford reserve instead of an elected council.

The elected council now plans to appeal the ruling "at their earliest opportunity," said Chief Hill.

"The elected chiefs and councillors of the AIAI will support the Six Nations appeal," he added.

Chief Hill is a member of the AIAI executive and chairman of its committee drafting proposed amendments to the Indian Act.

Meantime in Brantford a spokesman for the council of hereditary chiefs Tuesday called for compromise with the elected Indian council.

Alma Greene, a Mohawk clan mother, suggested a compromise so that some elected councillors could hold positions on a new governing committee.

Mrs. Greene said she saw no reason why Richard Isaacs, head of the elected council, could not be a member of the committee.

Mrs. Greene said the hereditary chiefs would hold a business meeting today at the conclusion of two weeks of religious ceremonies.

She also said members of the Delaware band would not be welcomed on the committee as they were not members of the original Five Nations that later became the Six Nations.

BIRTHS

TERRY — Don and Lorna wish to announce the arrival of a son, Richard Scott, at Kingston on July 18th, 1972. Registered by John. Special thanks to Dr. Allen.

IN MEMORIAM

WILLMAN — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, who died July 19th, 1971.
Every day I think of you,
There is always a lonely heartache,
Every hour of every day,
But there are sewers precious memories.
Of the one we loved so dear,
—always remembered by wife, children and grandchildren.

WHALEN — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, William Whalen who passed away July 19, 1971.
He left us quietly,
The thoughts unknown,
But left us with memories,
We are proud to say,
He was loved by all,
In our garden it will always be,
For when on earth,
He was one of the best.
Sadly missed by wife Olive and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Jane Kelly (Jean) Collier wish to sincerely thank all friends, neighbors and relatives for their many acts of kindness, floral tributes and expressions of sympathy. Ellis Claims Bias In Grant Awards

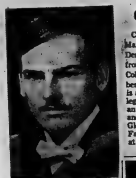
From the Ottawa Bureau of The Intelligencer



OTTAWA — The top five ridings receiving funds in Ontario under the Local Initiatives Program were represented by Liberal members of Parliament while the bottom five had elected Opposition MPs, Jack Ellis (PC — Hastings) said in the Commons Monday during debate on a Private Member's Bill.

He said the top five ridings received an average of $1-million each under LIP while the bottom five averaged only $33,000. Mr. Ellis said the political stripe of the MPs may not have had anything to do with the situation, but some felt there was an inference to be drawn from the statistics.

"I have spent a good deal of time in municipal politics and, as a mayor of a city, I always made sure that the road in front of my home was the last one to receive surface treatment. Others, however, do not seem to do things that way," Mr. Ellis noted.

In his own riding there had been two similar communities identical amounts for the erection of medical centres. One was approved and the other was not and this type of thing happened frequently when civil servants had the power to make such decisions instead of having them made by the Commons.

If the LIP and Opportunities For Youth programs were to continue they should be administered by statute and if they were not, then it was a question if they should be continued in a pork-barrel manner.

Small Potatoes Growers' Problem

The price of potatoes has soared sharply this year along with prices in general.

But as far as the locally grown variety is concerned, at least some of the increased price for new spuds can be blamed on the weather.

The reason is the dry weather during the past few weeks.

Growers note that as a result of the wet weather during the spring months, potato roots remained close to the surface of the ground.

Then with the dry weather, the roots ran shy of moisture as the ground dried out, with small potatoes being the result.

Only potato farmers with irrigation equipment are harvesting a normal crop it is stated. Those without irrigation equipment are digging a higher percentage of small potatoes.

Crops Hit By Hail

The freak windstorm that swept through the village of Brighton Friday night, tearing out century old trees and damaging buildings, also had a damaging effect on area crops.

But the spinoff damage was from hail — not from the wind.

A West Lake area farmer who attends Belleville Market said Tuesday that the hail damaged tomatoes, cucumbers and melons.

And it also had its effect on area apple orchards where young harvest apples were peppered by the hail stones.

The hail was accompanied by a downpour of rain which dumped more than half an inch of water in about 20 minutes.

Bike Spotted, Proved Stolen

Clifford Dale Kellar, 18, of 58 Moira St. W., was fined $100 Tuesday after he was convicted of possession of a stolen bicycle.

The youth pleaded guilty before Provincial Judge T. Y. Wills.

City police laid the charge after Kellar's young sister was spotted riding a multi-speed bicycle June 30 near the Loblaw Supermarket on Pinnacle Street.

The parents of Steven Morina, Sidney Street, recognized the bike as their son's and notified police who later arrested Kellar.

The bike was reported missing the day before.

Safety Checks Next Week

Drivers beware!

The Ontario ministry of transportation and communication, working with the Belleville Police Department is setting up its annual safety lane at the Belleville Fairgrounds next week.

All varieties of cars will be subject to thorough inspections by the ministry's licensed mechanics. Brakes, lights and alignment are just three of the many safety areas they will be checking.

As in previous years, drivers anywhere in the city can be pulled over and ordered to report to the fairgrounds at a specified time. Police, taxi and other utility vehicles will also be given the once over.

Smoking and Health

Death from lung cancer has claimed yet another Hollywood personality in actor Robert Ryan, at 63 a veteran of many a Western and tough guy (but not exclusively) role.

Treated for cancer several years ago Ryan apparently thought the disease had been arrested and he had been active until recently. But previously, his agent said, the actor had been a heavy cigaret smoker.

Only a short time has passed since the death of Betty Grable, also a heavy smoker and lung cancer victim.

Meanwhile we note that a panel of three — a psychologist, a nursing director and a doctor — told an audience of nurses at the recent annual meeting of the Canadian Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association in Calgary that the smokers among them should quit and set a good example. Stopping was a major responsibility for health professionals.

Unfortunately teen and teenage girls are hooked in greated numbers than ever before, so that the panel may find their appeal falling on deaf ears. Yet, Dr. Wake, a Carleton University professor, says that while lung cancer and these deaths have been noted, these are merely battles and the real war against smoking is being won.

We hope he is right. But somehow casual observation alone does not tend to confirm this. We believe it is still an uphill battle, with more and more youngsters smoking and running the risk of lung cancer.

Perhaps the Department of Health should emulate Britain which is trying to show motorists the consequences of not wearing seat belts — with billboard pictures of a woman whose face is smeared with stitches. A picture of diseased lungs might press home the health issue to smokers.

Brighton's Ordeal

Brighton's Friday - the - Thirteenth ordeal was as alarming as it was damaging. Happily, the twister — or whatever it was — caused no loss of life, although there were some close calls. The most pressing need now is reconstruction. Ironically the town hall had been scheduled for demolition anyway so much of that job has been accomplished. A great deal of repair work remains though, both private and commercial, and we agree with Prince Edward-Hastings MP George Hees that Government assistance should be forthcoming. Weather phenomena of this kind are rare enough in these parts, but neither is it entirely unknown and Government should be prepared to give a helping hand when the need occurs. This is such an occasion.

Jobs Available

Government make-work programs — local initiatives and opportunities for youth for instance — are being integrated more and more into the overall economic scheme of things. Still, it is interesting to observe that opportunities are still available in the ordinary way for absorption into the work force. A notice in the window of a Belleville plumbing firm is a case in point. It indicates there are openings for management trainees, with on-the-job training and points out that candidates must be prepared to "start at the bottom" and something to do? Here is a chance for some.

Weiskopf's Victory

Tom Weiskopf's British Open win may be his first big name title but it is certainly not the first time he has been in the big money. A year or two ago he won a tournament which featured, as we recall, the richest first prize up until then, a cool $50,000. Even if he had not won the prestige event in the UK, with all its potential for endorsement money (Weiskopf's victory purse was only $14,300) the American golfer is not going hungry by any means.

Restless Times—Could It Be Doomsday Is Already Here?

By JOHN HARRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Are we heading for some unpredictable new kind of Doomsday? Will it be bred by the growing inefficiencies in our complex social order where we will no longer control good food supplies, inflation nor prevent once-strong currencies from constant decline in value?

Have we already entered a slippery slide which we will not recognize until a massive depression overwhelms the world again? Or will it all happen suddenly as in October, 1929, triggered by a single event which has been fed on mouths and years of decline?

Doomsday-oriented views of social collapse are not new. They arise at times in the Twentieth Century when the immensely-complicated fabric we call civilization seems to be cracking down.

Even before the first ghastly challenge to the industrial era arrived with the First World War in 1914, Norman Angel, the British scholar and socialist, predicted it would happen with a resultant collapse of world economics. And that was about 1910.

The most colorful exponent of the apocalyptic view of history and the future was, of course, H. G. Wells, who also turned socialist and wrote separately-prophetic books, among them War of the Worlds.

But these predictions, most of which arose from the shape of World wars, the nuclear era after 1945, the depression of the 1930's, were made about elements in our society we could still grasp in their entirety.

We are always in bed with us, except for the long piece of the Victorian Era.

This probably aroused Angel and Wells to write as they did, Orwell had a purpose which had listed since Napoleon was crushed at Waterloo. Wells could not feel with the big fleet and army build-ups which immediately preceded the First World War.

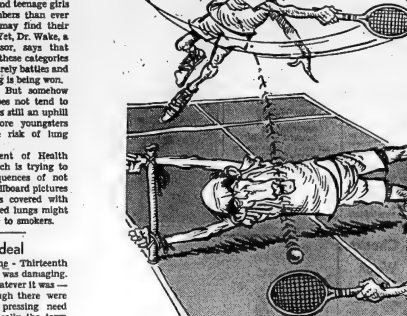
A more modern version of this was the fear our nuclear arms race of the late 1950s and 60s would lead to a triggering of an atomic and finite battle in the earth.

Granted, the massive arms stalemate between the United States and the Soviet Union seems to have been the real catalyst which permitted Nixon and Brezhnev, staunch believers in their systems, to parley and negotiate openly recently.

So, the hazards facing us are corroding man's stature to use this earth each day that we in comfortable countries live our lives.

The population explosion is showing the first signs of really being beyond the control of our sophisticated international agencies.

The famine stalking India, Bangladesh, Pakistan, the sub-Saharan deserts of West Africa shows how very thin is the line between bare survival and mass starvation, when the rain stops and fields die.



Even in stubbornly super- efficient America, specialists are predicting food rationing because there isn't enough growing in the soil of our planet these days to feed all of our appetites.

Meantime the cost of basics, food and shelter gallop astronomically in the developed world. Cost-of-living in Britain has risen almost 20 per cent since the summer of 1971.

Record inflation exceeding that of the Korean War years of the early 1950s, combined with the constant weakness of the U.S. dollar and International Fund, on which so many of the world's currencies rely, are escalating costs.

Much, obviously is wrong in an industrialized age where our push-button technology can supply us with increasingly-salient information, as how many sales a multi-national company made around the World, but where the same technology cannot cure our elemental survival/economic crises.

Perhaps the new Doomsday is already here.

Fund-Raising Methods Raise Some Eyebrows

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Next time you catch a non-Canadian executive of a Canadian company in an unguarded moment, ask him what he thinks about our political parties' fund-raising methods.

You may be told, as I have been, that our political parties are unique in the way they extract donations from big corporations and big unions.

Executives are loathe to talk frankly in public about the Canadian parties' methods of assessing political donors. But according to some businessmen who have worked for multinational enterprises in other countries as well as Canada, the often crude and blatant Canadian approach is unique.

It appears that many Canadian subsidiaries of multinationals kick in when asked, as part of their effort to be "good corporate citizens." (They are regularly asked not only for cash but also for contributions in kind, such as the use of corporate aircraft to speed favored candidates along the campaign trail.)

Nor is it only the so-called "old parties" that are tainted. The Canadian branches of United States-controlled unions are said to be less than wholehearted contributors to the Party of Big Labour.

So widespread is the practice that it hardly matters whose recollection is more accurate in the recent controversy over whether the U.S. parent of International Telephone and Telegraph Canada Ltd. was approached for funds last year by Liberal bagman.

What does matter is the reform of the whole unsavory system, from the fine, lingering proclamations by politicians that their legislative decisions never are influenced by campaign contributions, some auspicious groups might think otherwise.

It is possible, too, that some corporate contributors mistakenly believe that they have some special influence over the political destinies of Canada.

There is indeed a better way to go about raising the money that political parties need. The form of the Canada Election Act was part of the Liberals' platform in both the 1968 and 1972 general elections, but somehow the Trudeau government has never been able to get around to steering that reform through Parliament.

Amendments to the Election Act have been brought before Parliament again this session. Barring too many other pressing bills, they could be formally adopted before our next general election.

The amended Election Act would encourage small contributors by allowing a tax credit to partially offset political donations, and they would require politics parties and candidates to identify the source of any contributions of more than $100.

The amendments would provide for an alliance to parties and candidates from the federal treasury, and would place limits on the spending of parties and candidates.

It's time to clear the air on fund-raising from corporations and unions. Business and labor executives ought to be able to pursue the interests of their shareholders or members, free from arm-twisting by fund-raisers.

Parliament has been tolerant too long of a system that reduces its own stature.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 18, 1953

A new venture in the world of church music is the Diocese of Ontario this year was a Choristers' Camp. The diocese established a fine camping ground, known as Camp Hyanto, on the shores of Lake Lundhurst for the use of the various church organizations, and this year, for the first time, the choir boys made good use of the camp between July 8 - 14. The camp is under the general management of a committee, of which the Rev. Canon J. B. Creeggan is chairman, with Archdeacon N. R. Stout as general manager.

Two new members of the Belleville P.O.T.C. Department were officially sworn in by Magistrate T. Y. Wills following the regular session of magistrate's court. They are Police Constable Ronald L. Lee and Don DeMille. The two officers fill vacancies created by the resignation of former constables Jim MacDonald and Charles Lockwood.

30 YEARS AGO.

July 18, 1943

Six hundred and twenty-five crippled children in the Belleville district have benefited directly through th Belleville Rotary Club since 8g crippled children's fund was started in the city 22 years ago, stated Charles Symons, chairman of the Crippled Children's Fund Committee. Speaking at the local club, he said the Ontario Society for Crippled Children is manned and controlled by Rotarians. Despite the fact there are approximately 14 organizations doing work of this nature, 90 per cent of all crippled children's work is done by Rotary, he said.

40 YEARS AGO

July 18, 1933

The first street cars in Belleville were horse drawn and the system was managed by Jason E. Tice, father of George O. Tice of this city. In this connection it is interesting to note an item from our file copy of July 18th, 1893 which reads: "The street railway did a rushing business on circus day. Five cars and two buses were used, and 3,500 passengers were carried without an accident of any kind. This fact is highly creditable to the management of Mr. Jason Tice."

Dormitory-Town Status Riles Barrie Citizens

By RON SUDLOW

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — The city of Barrie claim that it should be compensated for municipal services it would have to provide if a new commuter link with Toronto was established is "nothing but blackmail," a Canadian transport commission hearing into the application was told Wednesday.

Coun. George Timson of Aurora, Ont., one of the cities that would be served by the proposed 63-mile Barrie-Toronto link, said the Barrie chamber of commerce has estimated that 1,700 Barrie residents commute to Toronto to work and that 450 people commute from the area south of Barrie to work there.

Mayor Morley Parker of Barrie gave qualified support to the commuter train but said the city should be compensated by federal and provincial governments for the roads and sewers it would have to provide for people who would be attracted here if the line was operated.

She said the city is also concerned about an overemphasis on residential growth when it wants to strike a balance between industries and subdivisions.

After being told by David Jones, chairman of the transport commission's railway transport committee, that the use of the term blackmail was "offensive," Mr. Timson said he didn't intend to insult Barrie but the city's stand was "unreasonable."

Alex Arthur, a Barrie alderman who spoke for the local Pellution Probe group, said that although his organization supports mass transit, the commuter service would make Barrie a bedroom for Toronto, usurp local autonomy and result in "a desperate search" for industry to restore the tax local tax base.

He said 80 per cent of the people now buying homes here commute to Toronto to work. "We have turned into luxury housing prices and could lead to a Boxy-Zeddard or a Sylvia's Cliffs of Dover and France effect on Paris in The Saturday. It ply might adopt Funicul Funicular, the U.S. could choose Home the Buffalo and Pittsburgh or for Mexicali Rose and Russia could end up with Volga Boatman.

Thank heavens that Canada had O Canada to fall back on or we might have been stuck with Barrie and Orillia as versions of Nelson Eddy and Jeanette Macdonald in a sweet entrance amid the towering Rockies.

War Possible Over Water!

Peterborough Examiner

During the long history, man has waged wars over religion, religion, ideals freedom and a number of other material and spiritual goals. But if Rotary Club representative Walter Pouyer's predictions come true, man's future wars may be over such seemingly trivialities as plain drinking water.

Of course, in the future, said Mr. Davis, drinking water will not be a mere triviality.

Some nations are lucky; more than one-third of the earth's surface water is in Canada and the Soviet Union. But some nations have practically none. Other, highly populated countries like the United States are already suffering from a shortage and saving our fresh water resources.

Mr. Davis, who was a representative of the UN conference on Environment in Stockholm Sweden, predicted that when the situation becomes critical, international wars may break out.

The idea of marching off to fight for a little water for our afternoon Scotch may sound funny and children who do not like to take a bath anyway may not find the lack of water such a tragedy.

But with the earth's population growing at a fantastic rate, the fight for water may not be funny at all.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Benito Juarez, revolutionary founder of modern Mexico, died 101 years ago today—in 1872—aged 66. A pure-blood Indian, Juarez became the governor of Oaxaca at the age of 41, and he took part in the military and civil struggles of the mid-century. A year after Juarez was elected president, Maximilian of Hapsburg sent an army to install an Austrian prince as ruler and Juarez led a successful resistance. He died during the administration of Porfirio Diaz, who was against his re-election as president.

1945—A naval ammunition dump explosion rocked Halifax.

1940—Bowing to Japanese pressure, Britain closed the Burma Road, China's last overland link with the west.

1921—The United Farmers of Alberta won the provincial election.

1915—The Italian cruiser Garibaldi was torpedoed in the Mediterranean.

1817—English novelist Jane Austen died.

Matilda Anthem?

St. Catharines Standard

The prime minister of Australia says that the new national anthem will probably be the Waltzing Matilda. Judging from the flood of entries in a competition to find something to replace God Save The Queen.

Waltzing Matilda is undoubtedly a catchy tune, is familiar around the world, and is associated in everyone's mind with Australia, even if the words are a trifle hard for foreigners to pronounce, let alone understand. But somehow it doesn't seem right for a national anthem.

If this trend were followed - that is, choosing a song associated with a country - we could have Ireland opting for Danny Boy; England choosing Why Is Cliffs of Dover and France going for Paris In The Spring. Italy might adopt Funicul Funicul, the U.S. could choose Home On The Range as its anthem, for Mexicali Rose and Russia could end up with Volga Boatman.

Thank heavens that Canada had O Canada to fall back on or we might have been stuck with Barrie and Orillia as versions of Nelson Eddy and Jeanette Macdonald in a sweet entrance amid the towering Rockies.

February Tariff Cuts Finally Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — Government good intentions finally came to fruition Tuesday night as the Commons passed a bill to reduce import tariffs on a wide range of items, including fruit and vegetable products and manufactured goods.

The amendments to the Customs Tariff Act were announced in the Feb. 20 budget speech and the reductions have been in effect since then.

The cuts average five per cent over a range of imported goods valued at about $1.3 billion. It includes fruits, vegetables, meat products, seafoods and a variety of manufactured goods including typewriters, eyeglass frames and power lawnmowers.

The tariff reductions, which will be in effect until Feb. 19, 1974, were introduced to slow increasing prices without adversely affecting production and employment. The temporary reductions will be reviewed next February.

During Tuesday's debate, opposition members expressed concern about the effect of the reductions on fruit and wine producers, mobile-home manufacturers and the cattle and broiler chicken industries.

Kenneth Hamps (PC—Lincoln) said the Ontario fruit and wine industry is "going down the drain" because the tariff reductions put processors at a disadvantage compared with importers.

Bill Frank (PC—Middlesex) said the mobile-home market will be hit by a flood of inferior United States units kept out by the old tariff. He said U.S. trailers cost about $175 to $200 less to produce than Canadian ones, making it relatively easy for U.S. manufacturers to ship to Canada and make a profit.

Mr. Frank said there should be an increase in the tariff on hatching eggs imported from the U.S. for the broiler industry. Because of cheaper soybean feed in the U.S. it was possible to produce hatching eggs 18 cents a dozen cheaper than here.

Bert Hargrave (PC—Medicine Hat) said the tariff reduction destroyed the delicate balance between Canadian and U.S. cattle markets to the detriment of this country.

Former Conservative trade minister George Hees said it is particularly obvious" that the tariff reductions have had no effect on slowing the rising cost of living.

When the government negotiates tariffs with other countries in meetings scheduled for this fall, the government will find it has to make concessions, he suggested that concessions to other countries forced by negotiations could drive tariffs far still lower.

The government could achieve its goal of cheaper food if it would subsidize the farmer so he can compete in world food markets, said Dr. Rynard.

In spite of the uncertainties in the international money market that affect the value of the dollar, he can reduce the farmer at any time if it is proved the reductions are hurting employment and production in any industry. He said he had representations from some groups but so far the only tariff re-imposed has been on greenhouse tomatoes.

P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe North) said the government had gone ahead with the reductions

Immigration Changes Approval Is Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Robert Andras introduced a bill in the Commons Tuesday asking approval of changes to the Immigration Act and regulations made last fall.

The bill will put into law what former immigration minister Bryce Mackasey did through cabinet order last November, when he revoked regulations permitting foreign visitors to apply for status as landed immigrants while in this country.

Outside the Commons Mr. Andras said Mr. Mackasey's move was brought into question by decisions of the immigration appeal board early this month and the Federal Court of Appeals in May.

The appeal board ruled the government overstepped its power when it backed up revocation of the regulations with a minor amendment to the Immigration Act by an order-in-council requiring all applicants for landed status to hold an immigrant's visa, available only outside the country.

This change was intended to prevent visitors blocked by the regulation change from applying for landed status under a clause of the act itself.

The immigration department also maintained that when a visitor applied for landed status he automatically lost his non-immigrant status under the Immigration Act. When refused admission in the ensuing special inquiry he would be liable for deportation.

The Federal Court of Appeals ruled that such a visitor did not necessarily lose his non-immigrant status under the act when he applied for permanent admission under the now-defunct regulations.

The bill would reverse that decision by making the government interpretation of the Immigration Act legal.

Introducing . . .

Country Correspondents

They're a fine old tradition in home-town newspapers across the country. Social news, weddings, even the weather, sometimes, are all part of the lively and popular columns from the Quinte area. Starting this week, we'd like to introduce to you persons who bring you rural news.

Summer vacation for Jacqueline Dunk, The Intelligencer's Frankford correspondent, will include a week's cruise with her husband, Fred and children in their 25 foot trimaran sailcraft.

Mrs. Dunk born in Toronto has been stationed in Ottawa and Gimli, (north of Winnipeg). Her husband is a safety equipment instructor at Canadian Armed Forces, Trenton.

Isobelle who moved to Frankford two years ago has started sailing lessons. She hopes to begin her son, Russell, 7 and Wendy, 3 in swimming classes soon.

While living in Gimli, our Frankford correspondent and another woman worked with retarded boys and enrolled them in cubs.

Mrs. Dunk says she enjoyed that work very much.

In Frankford, this correspondent spends her time with her family and helping her husband renovate their home and taking her co-respondence.

Her news is taken by phone in her home. But Mrs. Dunk says there isn't much news now as most groups are not active during summer months.

Other residents in the Dunk household include four chinchillas and their family dog.

Mrs. Dunk may be reached at 398-7467.

Isobelle and Friend

Women Teachers Ask Equal Jobs for Women

TORONTO (CP) — The Federation of Women Teachers Associations has asked Provincial Secretary Robert Welch to move more quickly to implement plans to get equal employment opportunities for women.

Mr. Welch recently tabled government plans for equal job opportunities and asked groups to comment.

In a brief released Monday, the federation, which represents 33,000 elementary school teachers, said it is concerned that equal job opportunities legislation will be "toothless" and "hoping for the best again," it is replying once government penalizes organizations that discriminate against women its plans would contain "pious exhortations."

The federation said unless the government penalizes organizations that discriminate against women its plans would contain "pious exhortations."

It asked that duties for maternity leave not be specified and after birth since some women might find a shorter pre-natal leave and a longer post-natal leave better.

Making better jobs available for women is not enough, the brief said. Many women will have to be actively encouraged to qualify and apply for better positions because they do not have enough confidente to go after jobs normally held by men.

Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Edward Branigan, Point Anne, are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Bonny Lee to John Michael Ferguson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ferguson of Belleville. The wedding will take place Saturday, August 18th at 2 p.m. in Emmanuel Baptist Church.

Successful Living

Who's 'Hanging On' Now? Parents or Their Kids

I have often thought that there was a misconception abroad that people know how to raise children merely by virtue of being parents. They don't, you know.

In some parts of Canada things are being done about this. School boards are discussing courses for secondary schools in child development and child rearing.

In Vancouver, Education Trustee Olive Johnson believes such a course would prepare students for future parenthood. More emphasis, for instance, could be placed on the prevention of learning problems in children.

If parents could recognize, early, a child's predicament in being unable to keep up with his pals, this would mean earlier assistance in psychological services and special Learning disabilities are teaching.

getting a good deal more attention than they used to; all perplexed and "different." children used. inevitably, to be place inside the retarded, which didn't help either type to come along the way they should.

Dear Doris: There is so much violence in the air! I have been shocked at what is going on among children. Teachers are not allowed to punish, and some children can understand only physical punishment. The strap needs to come back. There are older, stronger boys, a natural gang living close together who are the monsters in our grandchildren's school.

They picked up our grandson (nine years old) and bounced him into the street in front of an approaching car. I could not believe it so drove to the school and said this guy's not for our Bill and begin to rough him up. There was sick terror on his face. As soon as they saw us they disbanded quickly. Bill lives far up at the end of the street.

School each day is hell for him. This is happening to so many children! We must do something quickly about the permissiveness in our scools, or our newspapers are going to give us shocking news of what is happenning, not to teenagers but to young children.

— Canadian Grandmother

Dear C. G.: This is not the first time we have heard of this — and from centres widely apart across Canada. We all must consider ourselves part of the community that tolerates this personality-damaging crime against little ones.

I hereby urge all persons who hear of such things, to contact boards of education, police, newspaper, radio, television, in their areas. To urge police patrol at school times. To instigate social action through social agencies working with the "monsters" families.

Boys are usually bullies through lack of love and security in their own homes.

Dear Doris: After reading your article regarding rearing of children, I thought you and your readers would be interested in having a copy of this poem which I came across recently.

I think you will agree that it speaks for itself. — Mother of Two.

Dear Mother: Your poem, The Soul of Child Speaks for all of us. If more parents could recognise the privilege it is to cultivate the personality of a child, we would have more happy adults.

The poem compares the child to a sensitive plant needing care, warmth and light. And then it will blossom. I will gladly supply copies of this four-verse poem to anyone writing in for it, enclosing 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Doris cannot begin to answer all your questions in the column. To make sure of your reply, remember to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, sending your letter in care of this newspaper.

Ann Landers

Raising Children — Should Be Taught

Dear Ann Landers: Regarding that "I'll Not Be" letter (past-mark New Haven) from the Yale man whose Vassar "girl friend" was chaperoned by her mother for 47 years: It may have been a true story. In the town where I grew up, one couple deferred to Mama's wishes and remained cogged for 35 years. They married one month after his mother died. (The bride was 61, the groom was 64.)

In another case, Fate was not so kind. Mama was a widow and her son felt she should come first as long as she lived. She lived to be 96. The 56-year engagement ended when the man had a heart attack, one week to the day after his mother died. He was buried beside her at the age of 75.

I have always considered it a sin for a parent to hang on to a son (or a daughter) and prevent them from having a full life of their own. Thanks for letting me express myself.—West Hartford

Dear Hart: Don't fault the parents exclusively. Some children want to hang around for 50 years. And please remember that marriage is not for everyone. Some couples have a better life just "going together." If lucky. they got married their friend- ship would end.

Dear Ann Landers: I work for a company that has its own little cafeteria. Yesterday the woman behind me in line was busily engaged in conversation with the man behind her. She was smoking a cigarette and accidentally burned a large hole in my new sweater. She was unaware of it until I started to beat out the sparks. Her concern was genuine. She kept repeating, "Forgive me. I'm terribly sorry," but she never said a word did she offer to do anything about replacing the sweater or having it repaired.

After work I took the sweater thanks for writing it.

to a place that does weaving. It will cost $11 to have the hole repaired. Should I send a bill in the mail, or what?—Not Fireproof

Dear N.F.: Why in the mail? Tell her, eyeball to eyeball, that you just learned it will cost $11 to repair the sweater and you're sure she wants to do the right thing.

Dear Ann Landers: Today I'm letting the dishes and ironing go because this letter can wait no longer.

When the first child is born the mother asks, "How is it?" The father's first question is, "What is it?" If it's a boy—mission accomplished. His male ego has been satisfied. Now he can hand out cigars, brag a little and carry pictures in his wallet.

Mom is plenty busy, but she notices Dad hasnt time for the boy and tries to make it up to him. She takes him places his dad should be taking him, listens to his troubles and helps him with his homework, even though she knows full well that too much Mom is not good. A boy should identify with his father, not his mother.

Our son is 17. So far as I know he is normal. We are proud of him. I'm sure the boy was also speaking for himself. Print him, please. Maybe it will wake up some of these human cash-registers.—Full-Time Father

Dear Mother-Father: Welcome to the club. The membership is tremendous and there are chapters all over. I can add nothing to your letter but my

Chicken — That Versatile Bird

There must be a million ways to serve chicken and if imagination is used in the preparation of the versatile bird, your family will never grow tired of it.

Island - Style Chicken

1 broiler chicken, cut up (approx 3 pounds)
¼ cup honey
½ cup grapefruit juice
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon curry powder
½ teaspoon garlic powder
1 can crushed pineapple, undrained

Place chicken in greased baking dish, skin side up. Combine honey, juice and seasonings in a jar, shake well to blend, and pour over chicken. Cover and bake at 325 deg. for 45 minutes or until chicken is tender, basting occasionally.

Remove chicken pieces and place on broiler rack. Add crushed pineapple and juice to liquid in baking dish. Stir to blend. Brush over chicken. Broil, 6 inches from heat, for 5 minutes or until lightly glazed. Makes 4 servings.

Chicken Supreme

3 whole broiler-fryer chicken breasts, boned and halved
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 cup butter or margarine, melted
1 can (5 or 4 ounces) sliced mushrooms
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup apple juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup slivered almonds
6 slices Holland Rusk

Sprinkle chicken breasts with salt, pepper and paprika; place on broiler pan. Brush with melted butter. Broil, basting with butter and turning occasionally, until browned.

Meanwhile, in small saucepan, gradually stir mushroom liquid and milk into flour, blending until smooth. Cook over medium heat stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil.

Remove chicken from broiler; place in baking pan with drippings. Pour sauce over chicken breasts; bake in 350 deg. F. oven 30 minutes.

Combine apple juice and lemon juice. Place mushrooms on chicken; sprinkle with slivered almonds, and slowly pour apple juice mixture over chicken. Bake 10 minutes more or until tender, basting frequently. Place each chicken breast on a Holland rusk. Serve with sauce from baking pan. Garnish with parsley. Serves 6. This is nice served with crab apples.

Next, a fine:

Chicken Casserole

2 whole 3-pound broiler-fryer chickens
1 cup sherry
1 cup water
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon curry powder
1 medium onion, sliced
½ cup chopped celery leaves
1 can (6 or 8 ounces) whole mushrooms
2 packages (6 ounces each) long grain and wild rice
1 cup sour cream
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup
Pimiento
½ cup toasted slivered almonds
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley

Place chickens in a deep kettle; add sherry, water, salt, curry, onion and celery leaves. Bring to a boil, cover again. Reduce heat and simmer 1" hour. Remove from heat, strain broth. Refrigerate chicken and broth at once.

When chicken is cool, remove meat from bones; discard skin. Cut chicken into bite-size pieces.

Drain mushrooms; add liquid to chicken broth and measure. Cook rice according to package directions, substituting mushroom liquid and broth for part of the liquid needed. Reserve mushrooms.

Combine chicken and cooked rice in a 3-quart casserole.

Blend together sour cream and undiluted mushroom soup. Mix with rice and chicken. Arrange whole mushrooms in circle on top of casserole. Top each mushroom with pimiento cut in flower or diamond shapes. Bake 1 hour, covered, in 350 degrees F. oven.

To serve, sprinkle with almonds and parsley. Serves 8.

Chicken Almandine with Rice Ring

3 cups chicken stock (from simmered chicken)
3 cups light cream
⅛ cup butter or margarine
1½ pounds mushrooms, sliced
two thirds cup flour
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon Tabasco
8 cups cubed cooked chicken (from simmered chicken; recipe follows)
½ cup toasted slivered almonds

Rice Ring

Combine chicken stock and cream; reserve.

Melt butter over low heat, stirring constantly, 10 minutes. Add flour; stir to a paste. Stir in chicken stock mixture. Cook stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Stir in salt, Tabasco and chicken; heat to serving temperature. Turn into Rice Ring; Real party buffet dish, for it serves 12.

For the Rice Ring — just press 12 cups hot cooked rice into 12-cup ring mold. Turn out on large platter. To cook simmered chicken:

Chicken Island Style

Satisfy a longing for balmy breezes, ukeleles and hula skirts with this Honey-glazed Chicken recipe from the Ontario Food Council kitchens. Smothered in a delightfully seasoned honey, grapefruit juice and crushed pineapple marinade, it will capture the allure of island dreams in only one hour of baking time.

LENNOX-OSHAWA
Transmission Line Study

Phase 2: Alternative corridors

Lennox-Oshawa Transmission

The study continues

Ontario Hydro and its environmental consultant, Commonwealth Associates, have been conducting an intensive study over the past few months on the location of a transmission line route between Lennox Generating Station and the Oshawa Area.

The purpose of the study is to find the best possible location within a 1,200 square mile study area for a 500,000 volt transmission line right of way to transmit electricity generated at the Lennox Generating Station to a new transformer station near Oshawa.

The project represents a major portion of Ontario Hydro's bulk power transmission network across Southern Ontario. Studies are under way in other parts of the province to establish routes linking other new generating stations.

The first phase

The first phase of the study was devoted to assembling basic data about the study area from maps, statistics, etc.

During February and March 1973, public meetings and opinion surveys were conducted across the study area to record the views and opinions of people about the location of a transmission line route in their communities.

These attitudes have been used to assist in defining the alternative corridors shown on the map.

Alternative corridors

The corridors are approximately half a mile wide. Each represents an environmentally suitable location for the ultimate transmission line route, which will be about 500' wide.

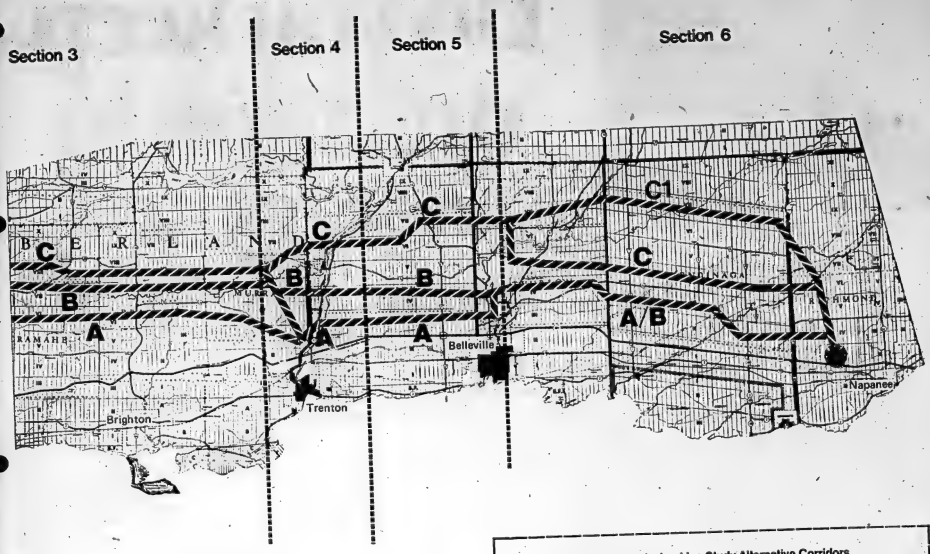
Now the second phase

To determine the views of the community about these corridors, a second phase of public meetings has been arranged.

There is a meeting for your area and you are invited to attend.

At these meetings, Commonwealth Associates will discuss the studies and residents will have an opportunity to record their preference for each corridor. A large scale map showing the location and details of the alternative corridors is now on display at the township office.

If you cannot attend one of the meetings and wish to indicate your order of preference please mark each section of the corridors on the coupon at right of this advertisement and return it on or before August 8th. All the returns will be tabulated and a final route selection will be made with the help of the overall preference expressed. Your name and address is required to complete the record for each municipality.



Solandt Commission

The Hydro/Commonwealth recommendations for the preferred route for the 500 kV transmission lines will be submitted in a report to the Solandt Commission and at the same time it will be made available to the public.

Following an interval to allow interested parties to make written submissions to the Commission on the Hydro/Commonwealth report, Dr. Omand Solandt will hold public hearings.

The best time to resolve differences regarding the corridor, will be at the formal discussions during the study. Ideally, the best route will be one that reflects the full weight of the special characteristics of the study area and the concerns of its residents.

With your participation in this way, it is Dr. Solandt's hope that only major unresolved differences of opinion will be retained for the Commission hearings and, at that time, these differences can be clearly and concisely presented to the Commission for consideration.

BULL SHOT — Premier Dave Barrett-of British Columbia won this year's World Champion Bull Throwing contest at the Williams Lake Stampede. The premier hurled a lump of bovine dung - euphemistically described as a barnyard frisbee - 143 feet, almost nine feet ahead of his nearest competitor, Mr. Barrett's prize: a barnyard frisbee mounted on a plaque. Contest is open to politicians only. (CP Photo)

B.C. Tries to Avoid California's Problems

Dave Barrett Puts Public In Development Partnership

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier Dave Barrett exploded into the national political spotlight last August by ramrodding his New Democratic Party to a shocking election victory that ended W. A. C. Bennett's 20-year-old Social Credit dynasty in British Columbia.

In the months since the election the 42-year-old social worker-turned-politician has swung the province sharply to the left by utilizing the government as a brake on what Mr. Barrett characterizes as rampant, irrational development of the provincial economy.

The future of the province, Mr. Barrett insists, lies in a carefully orchestrated development of northern B.C. geared toward human rather than material resources. He distrusts the capacity of the "free enterprisers and the boomers" to accomplish this task alone.

Consequently, the NDP administration has plunged into the private sector. In the last few months the government has bought out three companies in B.C.'s biggest industry, the forests, and started working on a government-industry partnership for development of the massive Sukunka coalfields -in the northeastern corner of the province.

Mr. Barrett carefully points out that the government is buying companies rather than expropriating them. And he talks in terms of profitable partnerships between government and private capital rather than showdowns over public ownership.

As the first anniversary of the NDP administration neared, the premier granted a rare exclusive interview to The Canadian Press in his office at the legislature buildings here.

Following is an edited transcript of the interview, in question-answer format:

Q. You have said that B.C. is moving out of an era of slam-bang-thank-you and into a period of increased emphasis on human values.

A. We hope to accomplish this through what, we call a mixed economy, with a public potential for realizing these objectives exists in the North, where we have a publicly-owned railway, and now the provincial government will add through a Crown agency ownership of Canadian Cellulose. This purchase will allow the government to become directly involved in development on a mixed economy basis of northern resources. The potential development of the Sukunka coalfield and expansion of the B.C. Railway allows us to put up a framework of mixed ownership in the north. It will allow the citizens of B.C. to participate directly in the development of their own economy.

Q. Does this mean the government will come to dominate the northern economy and, through it, the entire province eventually?

A. It's not government domination of the economy, it's government participation in it. The price will be tough bargaining. I said during the election campaign that if we couldn't do a better job with the resources of B.C., they'd stay in the ground until a generation came along with far more sense. That's the kind of sacrifice I think the people of British Columbia are willing to make.

Q. Is your ultimate objective to rebuild the social and economic fabric of the province with democratic socialism or, are you just putting some shock absorbers in what will remain essentially a capitalistic society?

A. British Columbia really doesn't have any structured fabric of a society. It's still a frontier community, and I use the word community in the relative sense of population. There are only 2.5 million people here. So we don't have a unique B.C. society. We have a series of British Columbia experiences that have been conditioned by pretty ruthless capitalistic pressures.

It is essentially a treasure house. This is Eldorado, the end of the rainbow. That period of our history is ending. The next period that is developing is the semblance of some of our own culture, our own West Coast lifestyle. What we're consciously concerned about is avoiding duplication of the California experience, where their Eldorado has turned into a bit of a nightmare.

We want to soften the blow of rampant Western capitalism by having the sound brain of a planned economy within a provincial framework. We want to ensure as much as possible that every citizen has an equal opportunity of survival in B.C. and an equal opportunity of security. We hope to be able to redirect our economy towards social goals. In terms of actually having an outline of a social structure, that's impossible. You can only theorize and hope that if you do certain things in the economy, you can at least steer the direction of the society in a far more human way.

Q. So it's more a question of putting the brakes on what you see as some of the more abusive aspects of private enterprise than it is of setting up a heavily structured democratic Socialist system?

A. Well, contrary to some descriptions, I'm not the Albeside of the north. We still operate within a North American economy. What we have to do is rationalize our piece of that economy to the best interests of the people of B.C. That's why we've made these conscious moves without expropriation, without nationalization, to be involved in the economy.

Q. How irrational and out of control is the B.C. economy in terms of what you want to do with it?

A. The boomers say it's not irrational at all, while the extreme environmentalists at the other end say it is totally irrational. In about a year's time I'll be able to give an adequate answer to that question. That's why I want to diversify our markets and get a picture of where we are in terms of resource development. There's no question, however, that it's too oriented towards resources, is there a market for things we can do at the secondary level?

Part of the reaction to the possible development of secondary industries in B.C. is one of fear by the Japanese, the Americans, the Europeans. The fear is that if there isn't an investment in secondary industry here, then they'll us cut off from raw materials. I will do nothing to dissuade them from those fears. It is this government's deliberate policy that if people are going to buy our raw materials we walk a reinvestment in jobs. That's going to become part of the price of doing business in B.C.—they understand that, and it certainly isn't a concept unique to B.C., it's going on all over the world.

What is difficult for many old hidebound capitalists who never get out of the bar at the Vancouver Club to understand is that the whole world is changing. The kind of conditions and approaches used by the government in B.C. are not unique. The Europeans understand completely what I'm talking about and so do the Japanese. The only ones who don't understand are the Vancouver Club and that city named Toronto, somewhere back there.

Q. What kind of reaction is your government getting from the B.C. business community now that it's been in power almost a year

A. The realists understand that this is a more businesslike administration than any other government in the history of British Columbia. The premier's office is no longer surrounded by flacks, hacks or doughnut-hole punchers. There's no longer any old-pals board for making policy in the premier's office, nor is there any attempt to make a decision by the seat of someone's trousers. Businessmen who are modern and adventurous in terms of expanding and understanding what's happening in this province have no quarrel with this government.

The old stick-in-the-muds who want to return to the 1933 administration that was disguised latterly through the 1950s and 1960s as Social Credit are the ones who are upset. They viewed the loss of Social Credit as their personal loss.

Q. Are you worried about threats by some industrialists, such as CPR President Ian Sinclair, to pull their operations out of B.C. because of current government policies?

A. The president of the CPR. He's a nice fellow. He sounds like the Jimmy Hoffa of Western Canada now if he's going to leave B.C., I don't know how he's going to take his tracks with him. I never heard of anything so silly. So he's going to pack up his trains and tracks in a box, move east and run 'em all around the city of Toronto. He's all mixed up. I don't want him to take his trains and go home, but if he likes it back there in Montreal he can live there. Even that great international corporation can't stop the trees from growing, the minerals from being taken out of the ground.

Q. What about your differences of opinion with NDP National Leader David Lewis over the question of foreign ownership?

A. We have differences. Frankly, I don't see the difference between a Canadian capitalist and a foreign capitalist—the Canadian capitalist has got no more of a soul than the American. If I had to make a choice, I'd probably prefer a Cyrus Eaton to a K. C. Irving. If a guy is busting a union, I don't feel any better about it because the guy is a Canadian rather than an American. If I'm asked to fight for a Canadian capitalist against an American capitalist, I won't waste the energy. But if Canadian ownership means public participation in the marketplace, then I'll go for it.

Q. Do you think you can accomplish the goals you've set out for your government in a four-year period?

A. I think we've instituted some really amazing changes. They've happened so quickly that a lot of people haven't had the time to sit down and reflect on the impact of these changes. A lot of it has gone right by the people. I don't say whether that's good or bad, it's just an observation.

Do you keep nutrition in or cook it out?

Joan Fielden, Dominion's home economist/consultant presents a basic guide to cooking foods so that nutritional value is not lost.

Overcooking is the most common way nutrients are destroyed in food. Did you know a roast cooked at 250 degrees F. will provide two more servings than one cooked at 400 degrees?

Or that slowly cooked meats are more flavourful, tender and nutritious?

Niacinamide and Riboflavin in meats, poultry and fish dissolve when cooked with water, but you can save these nutrients if you use the cooking water for gravies or sauces.

Whole, unpeeled fruits and vegetables retain more nutritional value than peeled or finely cut pieces, and the less water you use the better. Food should look appetizing, taste great and deliver maximum nutrition. In Guide #5 Joan tells how you can accomplish this in your menu planning.

Free this week - Guide #5.

"Nutrition—Cook It In Not Out" is the title and subject of Guide #5. In it you'll learn how to get maximum value from the food you prepare. There's also a vegetable cooking time-table that includes some of Joan's favourite recipes.

Inquisitive

Month - old eaglets give photographer a wondering look from nest 70 feet from ground in their white pine tree nest. When full grown, birds will weigh from 12 to 14 pounds and have six to seven foot wingspread. Parents have never attacked eagle banders, but usually fly or perch in nearby trees when baby eaglets are banded. Larger birds in nest usually indicate birds first hatched as incubation starts when first egg is laid. Three eaglets in nest are rare, normal is two or even one. (AP Photo)

Fish Farming on Prairies Drops Haphazard Methods

STONY PLAIN, Alta. (CP) — If it weren't for two plastic cages floating by a rickety wharf this would be just another prairie slough.

Keith Robinson leans over to disconnect the compressor hosing air into the cages.

The churning stops and the water settles. Just under the surface is a counter-clockwise procession of two-inch trout.

"They haven't eaten since they got here," Keith says. That was two days ago and it has him worried—that and the 1,200 fingerlings which have died in that time.

He's more used to cattle, on his farm 20 miles northwest of Edmonton, and this sort of attrition is unacceptable to a livestock man.

Robert Ferguson is a 28-year-old ex-farmer, stockgrower and feed processor from Drinkwater, 15 miles west of Moose Jaw.

He takes Keith's makeshift dip net and scoops one of the silvery fish. It's not hard because this one is near death. Ferguson examines the gills, then slits the belly for examination.

"Nothing wrong with this one," he says. "Except he's been beaten up in shipping.

Keith insists something must be wrong—disease or the water perhaps. So Ferguson takes three more dying fish and a water sample for analysis—just to make sure.

A mosquito floats into the cage and the top of the water scoops as two fingerlings fight for it.

It's a good sign and the two men smile.

Fish farming, says Ferguson, will have to come of age on the Prairies if it is to be successful.

No more wild tales about dumping a load of fingerlings into a pothole in spring and harvesting half - pounders in the fall.

"I don't know whatever convinced those people they were smarter than the Japanese who had been at fish husbandry for years," Ferguson says.

"It is the last couple of years it's been pretty dismal. The harvest rate averages between 10 and 20 per cent. Now any farmer raising grain would be shocked if he were to get that sort of germination rate."

It is unreasonable, he says, to dump young trout into a prairie pond and expect them to survive.

"One great blue heron can pick half of them off before they get started. Terns, gulls, mink—you name it—they all seem to like these easy meals," he says.

"This is why you've got to have control—the same sort of control a poultry grower has over his product. Can you imagine the sort of reaction you'd get if you told a poultry man the way to raise broilers was to turn them loose in the bush for nine weeks?"

It was early in his studies of trout farming, which began three years ago, that he became convinced that rainbow, liberation and haphazard harvesting would not be the answer to the trout farmers' problems.

Each of the cages now floating from the wharf at Robinson's farm is 25 feet long, six feet square and holds 20,000 young trout. Each will have to be transplanted to a total of five cages when they reach the five-inch length.

"Keith can expect a death rate of about 10 per cent before the harvest and he can expect to feed this crop about 15 tons of prepared meal at $400 a ton," Ferguson says.

Total cost of raising this crop, without amortizing the cost of the cages, will be $10,800.

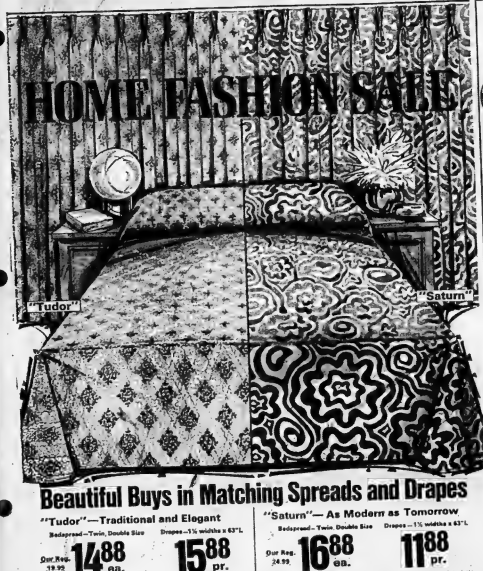
"In rough figures he can expect to sell the fish at 70 cents per pound after having spent 60 cents per pound to raise them."

The cage rearing operation means an end to the costly and undependable netting procedures of the past.

The trout themselves represent a conversion ratio of one pound of flesh for every 1.5 pounds of food. Cattle, by comparison, require 8.5 pounds of feed to grow one pound to meat, pork need four pounds of feed and 2.6 pounds is required for broiler chickens.

The lack of success experienced by some farmers in past programs has spoiled them on the prospects for trout rearing, Mr. Ferguson says.

"It will be difficult to convince them that our particular approach will work," he says. "That is why we make darned sure the people we've got, like Keith, will be successful. If he has a good harvest, the news will spread quickly."



The production over the next few years, he says, can be absorbed by markets within the province.

"I'm convinced there will be a market for our product throughout the country and eventually in the Pacific Rim countries," he says.

Canada Group of Kahn's Body Sees Bright Future for Nation

TORONTO (CP) — A group of corporate executives, drawn together by a common interest in trying to predict the future, concludes there is a tremendously bright economic future for Canada in the last quarter of this century.

It won't just happen. Major adjustments and hard decisions will have to be made, but the executives feel their over-all optimism is justified.

They call themselves the Canada Group, set up three years ago as part of a global analysis of emerging trends organized by Herman Kahn's Hudson Institute. Chairman is William E. (Chet) Barratt, manager of the corporate planning service department, Imperial Oil Ltd.

A preliminary report on the world-wide Hudson study, Corporate Environment 1975-85, may be ready this fall. Meanwhile, the Canada Group has concentrated on issues important and unique to Canada.

Those issues were readily identified by Mr. Barratt under four headings: National unity, economic independence, economic growth and quality of life.

"We found that all the real issues that were of importance to the corporation in terms of public policy or pressures on the corporation could conveniently be grouped under these headings," he said in an interview.

Here are some of the highlights of a "scenario" the group has put together for Canada through 1985 and to the year 2000:

—Population should grow to 27.6 million by 1985 and 35 million by 2000 from 21.3 million in 1970. A subsequent projection, based on more conservative assumptions of the future birth rate, set figures of 26.5 million by 1985 and 31.7 by the end of the century.

—Provinces west of the Ottawa Valley will grow faster than those east, encompassing nearly 70 per cent of the population in 30 years compared with the present 62. Ontario will have 12.6 million people, Quebec 7.8 million, the Prairies 5.94 million, B.C. 4.01 million and the Atlantic region about 2.2 million.

—Economic growth will continue at the post-war rate of 4.8 per cent annually, moderately high by world standards. The growing affluence should result in resources available for quality of life, including environmental control since pollution will be one of the major issues in the 1970s and 1980s.

—Problems of regional alienation, separatism and economic disparity will continue with varying intensity, but Canada will survive as one independent country. There will be steady emphasis on Canadian identity and sovereignty and concern about foreign ownership.

—More of total expenditures and investments will be channelled through public agencies. Government spending will increase to 40 per cent of gross national product from 34 per cent in the 1970-85 period.

—A welfare state trend will continue and there will be some form of guaranteed annual income by 1985, although income disparities will still be significant.

—Canada's natural resources will remain in high demand, the economy will be closely tied to international trade and inflation will be a serious internal problem—but no worse than other major trading partners.

—Most Canadians will live in cities and crime will increase with growing urbanism. The family will be less significant and youth problems will seem less important as the population shifts to older proportions with mature tastes in the 1990s.

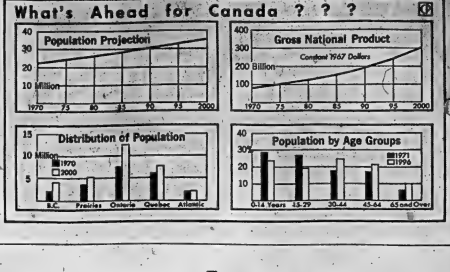
The optimistic prognosis can become pessimistic, said the group's first chairman, Harvey Cruickshank, former vice-president of Bell Canada and now a consultant with the Hudson Institute, which is based in White Plains, N.Y.

"Recurring domestically divisive political instability would unquestionably discourage morale, investment and growth. So would increasing disillusionment with growth and progress, and further erosion of traditional values, and growing disrespect for authority.

"Perhaps not even more serious would be the tendency to distribute prematurely post-industrial social benefits before they can be afforded at the expense of required investment for economic growth, increased Canadian ownership and continuing sovereignty.

"In fact, it is not too difficult to think of a disaster scenario."

The Canada Group meets about eight times a year. When it was established it had representatives from eight corporations. Now there are 10 corporations and two federal government departments represented, although only four companies are original sponsors.



Of the key issues raised in the Canada Group, Mr. Barratt said there is solid agreement that "Canada has a tremendously bright economic future." If the country fails to achieve its potential Canadians themselves will be to blame and not external factors. However, dependent as it is on foreign trade, Canada could be damaged by a world-wide move toward protectionism.

The problem of national unity is not simply one involving Quebec separatism, the chairman added.

"It's the whole question of jurisdictional conflict between the provinces and the central government. There's the more recent east-west cleavage with respect to energy prices. There's the natural pull, for example in the Maritimes and B.C., towards a north-south trade pattern and the question of their ties and likes with respect to keeping the country as one politically and economically."

These will continue to be problems, with new manifestations, but the group of 12 generally feels Canada will remain a single political entity for the remainder of this century.

Participating in the Canada Group, besides Imperial Oil, are: John Labatt Ltd., London, Ont.; Royal Bank of Canada, Montreal; Hydro-Quebec, Montreal; Power Corp. of Canada Ltd., Montreal; MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., Vancouver; Bell Canada, Montreal; Brinco Ltd., Montreal; Geneva Steel Wares Ltd., Toronto; Surveyer, Nenninger and Chenevert Inc., Montreal; and the government departments of industry, trade and commerce and science and technology.

New Telephone Link

The ocean - going cable-ship (tug) Mercury is loaded at Southampton docks with the first 300 miles of telephone cable (bottom) to link Britain and Canada. The cable will be capable of handling 1800 telephone conversations simultaneously and will be the biggest single telephone cable across the Atlantic. The operation is a joint undertaking between the British Post Office and the Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Corporation. The first calls on the new cable are expected to be carried early next year. (CP Photo)

Chinese Astronomers Think Space Program Too Costly

NANKING, China (Reuter) — Chinese astronomers believe the United States space program is "good," but too expensive.

They also think there may be life on other planets—but they say there have been no reported sightings of flying saucers over China since the Communists came to power in 1949.

"The moon landings, of course, were quite high achievements," said Chai Hsiao-tzu, an astronomer who is also scientific secretary at the Purple Mountain observatory, situated on a beautiful hilltop overlooking Nanking.

"But the American people had to pay a lot for these moon expeditions, and the landings themselves were not so valuable from the angle of astronomy. We in China hold that there is much to do on earth, and we think this earthly work more important."

Astronomers at this observatory, which was founded in 1934 and now has more than 200 scientists, confirmed that the Chinese people knew about American and Soviet space exploits, even though no news about them has been published in the official press.

Details—including information on the U.S. Skylab project—are contained in a digest of foreign news agency information that circulates widely in China.

Chao, who is 45, specializes in studying the movement of planets and satellites. He said that sometimes foreign satellites—of which there now are about 2,000—were tracked from Purple Mountain "according to the needs of scientific research" in astronomy.

China's own two satellites, launched in 1970 and 1971, were also observed.

Purple Mountain, a favorite spot for picnics and lovers during pre-Communist days, is so called because of its hue in the evening sunlight. The observatory here is one of China's largest.

Chao, who looks the very image of an astronomer—bespectacled, calm and studious—said scientists from the observatory periodically went to work on the land "to learn from the poor and middle peasants."

All the astronomers are atheists, he said.

"We know through scientific research that the earth occupies no special place in the universe," he explained, citing the work of Copernicus. "This proves statements in the Bible to the effect that God created everything are ridiculous."

Tourists' Questions Are Weird

LONDON (CP) — The information staff of the London Tourist Board patiently deals with about 250,000 travellers who troop in every year to ask questions such as: "How do I get to the Eiffel Tower?"

It's the eight-countries-in-seven days class of tourist who is most often confused and this disorientation explains one of the most common questions: "Do you speak English?"

But even the unharried visitor comes up with some that cause the staff to chuckle.

"How long does the Tube take to get to Edinburgh?" was asked by an American who didn't realize the Scottish capital is 350 miles from here and well beyond the reach of London's subway system.

Then there was the woman who wanted to know, "Where is the market where you can buy fleas?" The girl behind the counter told her that such a bizarre bazaar did not exist but there was Petticoat Lane, a Sunday sale of mixed goods often called the flea market.

Perhaps the most amusing incident recalled by the staff occurred last year when a man telephoned to ask how fast was the flight from London to Manchester, a city more than 200 miles away. The receptionist reached for her airline schedule and told the caller, "Just a minute."

"Oh, that's quite quick," he said and then hung up.

The Canadian High Commission on Trafalgar Square receives about two letters a week from Canadians wanting to reserve rooms there. They apparently think Canada House is a special hotel for Canadians instead of the offices of the diplomatic delegation.

Others have complained that the high commission's doors are locked during the weekend, like any government office, and one couple came in asking for directions to the non-existent public lunch counter.

Customs officials at Heathrow Airport have seen some strange sights which could be interpreted as somewhat insulting to Britain.

One of the first Canadian arrivals of the spring tourist rush walked off the aircraft carrying four boxes and a shopping bag filled full of soft toilet paper because, she said, someone had told her it was unavailable here.

West Asks More Aid To Farmers

WINNIPEG (CP) — The western premiers have proposed a three-pronged attack on problems of agriculture and urged the federal government to pitch in harder.

Ottawa hasn't given enough consideration to agriculture, the premiers say in a paper prepared for the Western Economic Opportunities Conference next week in Calgary, it was released today.

The premiers of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia say a major new united thrust by the federal and provincial governments is needed if western agriculture is to achieve its potential.

The three areas of improvement are agricultural development, market development and income stabilization, and co-ordination of federal programs.

Among the brief's specific recommendations are a grain income stabilization program, more federal money for agriculture research and a Prairie farm machinery testing institute.

The paper calls on the federal government to provide capital to meet the high-risk credit needs of low-income farmers.

The funds would be loaned by the federal government to the provinces and leases on the loans would be shared equally by the federal and provincial governments.

Heads Masons

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. George Turner of Windsor has been named the new Grand Master of the Masonic Lodge of Ontario. Dr. Turner, also president of the Essex County Medical Society, will officially take over the post tonight when W. K. Bally of Toronto, steps down after a two-year term.

Drop Charges

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Murder charges against two Collins Bay prisoners, resulting from the March 16 stabbing death of another prisoner, were dropped Tuesday when key Crown witnesses, also convicts, refused to testify at a preliminary hearing on grounds of mental incompetency and fear of reprisal.

Judge P. E. D. Baker dismissed the charges against Curtis J. Agawa, 22, and Leo M. Mallett, 26, both of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., after two convicts refused to testify and two others said they could not identify the accused.

Agawa and Mallett were charged after the body of Terrence M. Landry, 25, of Sarnia, Ont., was found covered with multiple stab wounds in the medium-security prison.

Lawyers for the accused called for a discharge and Judge Baker agreed.

Hear Public

TORONTO (CP) — The committee studying policing in Ontario begins its second round of public hearings here Thursday.

"The Toronto hearings will provide the 18-member study group with the opportunity to hear in person from more than 30 concerned citizens or groups who have important opinions to offer about policing" said Edward Hale, chairman of the committee.

He said the committee would be discussing everything from a forecast of the extent and nature of future policing needs to how these needs will be financed.

Fears Shortage

ORILLIA (CP) — Canada may face a domestic fuel oil shortage this winter, says Robert Beal, European president of Gulf Oil Co. Ltd.

"Some oil companies in Canada have been concentrating on the production of gasoline because of the market for it in the United States and have cut down substantially on their production of domestic fuel oil," Mr. Beal told the Orillia Rotary Club Tuesday.

Raft Sought

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Aircraft are searching for the raft Acali carrying six women and five men across the Atlantic to test the behavior of men and women together in an isolated environment.

A garbled broadcast was heard Tuesday from the 30-by-36-foot raft, but aircraft searching around Barbados were unable to locate the raft where the crew had radioed it was supposed to be.

To Take Money

TORONTO (CP) — Oscar Dribber of Rockwood, Ont., said today he will accept an unspecified "ex-gratia" payment from the Zambian government as compensation for the shooting death of his 19-year-old daughter Marjan.

ERIK NIELSEN

Nielsen Fined

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — Erik Nielsen, Conservative member of Parliament for the Yukon who was convicted and fined $250 here Monday for failing to register for the Yukon medical insurance plan, says he did not register because he is already covered under the Ontario plan.

Soldiers Die

BELFAST (AP) — A bomb hidden in a mattress in an elevator killed two British soldiers. A civilian died in another blast that demolished a bar in this Northern Ireland capital Tuesday night.

Hawkins Dies

LONDON (Reuter) — British film star Jack Hawkins died in hospital here today. He was 62.

His condition had been deteriorating gradually after a series of operations for throat cancer dating back to 1966.

Nixon Gets Brief Time To Reply

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee has given President Nixon "just a very short period of time" to reply to its request for the presidential tapes and recordings that have become central to the investigation.

A majority of the seven-member committee is on record as favoring a subpoena for the tapes if President Nixon invokes the doctrine of executive privilege and refuses to surrender them voluntarily.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are motoring to Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick this summer and would like some information on places to visit and main attractions.

ANSWER: Prince Edward Island, smallest of the 10 Canadian Provinces, was discovered by Jacques Cartier in 1534. Originally, it was inhabited by Micmac Indians but changed hands several times before finally becoming an English colony and, later, a province of Canada. Located in the Gulf of St. Lawrence on Canada's east coast, the Island is 140 miles long and from four to 40 miles wide. The climate is temperate. Days are sunny and warm, nights are cool. The average summer temperature is 72 degrees.

It has been declared a near-perfect haven for hay fever sufferers. The ragweed air pollen index for the province is among the lowest in North America. The countryside has gentle hills and valleys and lush gardens and rich, red soil.

Some of the finest and warmest pink sandy beaches on the north Atlantic coast of North America are to be found along the 800 miles of Prince Edward Island shore line. Sun, surf, and sand combine to make these gently sloping beaches a swimmer's paradise. Water temperature in summer months averages a pleasant 70 degrees.

Prince Edward Island is a delight to the camper. Most of the campsites provide electricity, and all have tables and facilities for cooking. Unserviced tent and trailer spaces are $2.50 per night in Provincial Parks, $3.50 with electricity, sewer and water. Private campgrounds range from $1 to $2 for tents, from $2 to $4 for trailers.

With an area of 8 square miles, PEI National Park extends for 25 miles along the northern shore of the Island on the Gulf of St. Lawrence. It has some of the finest sandy beaches in Eastern Canada. Cod and mackerel abound in the coastal waters and local fishermen may be hired as guides. Trout also are found in nearby streams and golfing, boating, tennis, lawn bowling and hiking are available.

The Summerside Lobster Carnival will be held this year from July 28 to July 28. The Carnival includes an aquatic day, parade, horse racing harness racing, a livestock exhibition, fiddling and step dancing championship, children's entertainment, and a sidewalk sale. Lobster suppers are held daily except Sundays, during July and August, at St. Ann's Church, Hope River, on Route 224, between Stanley Bridge and New Glasgow, five miles from Cavendish. The candlelight suppers are fully licensed. Costs $4.50 for adults and $2 for children.

There is more to PEI than Centennial Celebrations. There is Green Gables at Cavendish, popularly thought to have been the home of Lucy Maud Montgomery, author of the novel Anne of Green Gables. Her home is open to the public daily in the summer. The house is on the edge of a beautiful 18 hole championship golf course.

At Charlottetown Confederation Centre the long-run musical hit Anne of Green Gables will be presented on alternate evenings with a musical drama, Mary, based on the life of Mary Queen of Scots.

This summer there will be five car ferries instead of four shuttling back and forth to the Island between Caribou, Nova Scotia, and Wood Islands, Prince Edward Island (cars $2, adults 75 cents and children 35 cents) and from Cape Tormentine, New Brunswick to Borden, Prince Edward Island, with hourly crossings. (Cars $2.50, trailer-campers 20 cents per foot, minimum $2, adults 65 cents, children 25 cents.)

With some of the best hunting, fishing and scenery in the world, New Brunswick is one of the country's important vacation areas. Summer resorts dot the coast. Deep-sea fishing and salt-water swimming are available at Dalhousie and St. Andrews on the Bay of Fundy.

A lovely scenic drive from Fredericton to St. John is Route 102, which follows the St. John River Valley. The Reversing Falls Rapids are at the mouth of the St. John River. This is a popular tourist attraction.

Magnetic Hill is five miles north of Moncton, offering an unusual experience. The motorist drives his car downhill, then stops the motor, puts the gear in neutral, releases the brakes and the car moves backward, coasting up the hill.

St. Andrew's is a fashionable summer resort. Sports include golf on a championship course, tennis, swimming, boating and fishing.

Roosevelt Campobello International Park on Campobello Island is a 2,800-acre memorial. The 34-room cottage, occupied by President Roosevelt for years before he died, may be visited daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. — free.

Fundy National Park has 80 square miles of wooded hills and valleys overlooking the Bay of Fundy. It has scenic cliffs which rise steeply from the bay. Picnic and camp sites are scattered throughout the park. There are swimming, golf, a bowling green, tennis courts and a riding stable provided within the park.

Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick may be reached by the Trans-Canada Highway, or by travelling through the New England States. A popular cuation is to go by one route and return by the other.

Teachers on Art Course Here

Imagine the fumble-fingered teacher who's suddenly told he has to conduct an art class once a week. Neither he nor his pupils are likely to benefit from the experience.

To relieve such attacks of artists' agony, the Ontario ministry of education holds annual summer courses in art techniques. This year, one is being held at Centennial Secondary School and for 150 teachers from the Quinte area, Sault Ste. Marie and even Quebec, distress no longer resembles a wet paint brush.

Twelve areas of art instruction are covered in the five-week program says course principal, Garnet Humphrey, who has been teaching creative technique since 1946. They include such basic topics as drawing, crafts, picture-making, stitchery, bulletin boards and paper cutting.

"The program is to give teachers a broader insight into art education," says the Windsor resident.

Art instruction makes up a portion of the curriculum at Cassidy Teachers College.

"But the amount of time devoted to art is very minimal – some got 30 minutes of art 12 times in their year there. You can't really teach too much in that amount of time."

The summer program, which concludes Aug. 3, has 30 hours of morning instruction each week. Work is optional during afternoons, but Mr. Humphrey says many teachers remain at the school or take their projects home with them.

"Most years, they're really doing very well," he says, reviewing this year's class.

Graduation can mean one of three types of certificates for the teacher-students. First year entrants, which make up two-thirds of the Centennial enrolment, earn an elementary paper while persons attending for the second or third term take home intermediate part one or part two certificates.

Cost is $100 per teacher, but besides the benefits of 14 instructors, they also receive "practically everything you can think of" with which to work. As would be expected, public school teachers dominate the class.

The majority of teachers come from the Quinte area – 45 from Belleville alone. Many stay the week from distant points, however, either to escape their usual summer surroundings or because relatives live nearby with whom they can reside.

Much of the teachers' work will be on display next Wednesday when an Open House is held at the school. Everyone is invited to tour the hallways and classrooms to witness what can be achieved when perseverance overcomes pain paralysis.

An Artist's Paradise

With the Bay of Quinte for inspiration, teacher Paul Whalen of Port Hope practises sketching from his perch in front of Belleville Yacht Club. Paul is one of 150 men and women with Ontario teacher's certificates who are currently taking a ministry of education summer course in art instruction at Centennial Secondary School. Most lessons take part in the classroom but Tuesday, the "students" were taken to the harbor for a scenic treat.

Boy's Letter Inspires Cleanup of Bayfront

An 11-year-old schoolboy has prompted a summer waterfront cleanup job by an Opportunities for Youth-funded program.

The lad, Randy Gray, wrote city council in June suggesting that a group of people should collect trash in city parks.

His plea was acted on by Student Services employee Joy Smith, one of the students working on the OFY project for the summer.

Student Services wrote to council, offering to undertake the job, and Tuesday morning got at it.

Joy Smith, who heads the cleanup brigade, says most of the debris has washed up on shore by wave action, and includes "a lot of dead fish."

She hopes to recruit workers from the ranks of youngsters too young to take summer jobs. They will devote their attention to the bay shore, from Herchimer Ave. to the Government Dock, west Zwicky Island by the filtration plant, and Victoria Park.

Miss Smith hopes to get youngsters out twice a week, on Wednesdays and Thursdays, to rake and shovel. The city's parks board provides the equipment.

The students' aim is to make the parks more attractive and therefore, better used.

Volunteers can offer their services by calling Student Services at 962-8531.

Loudspeaker May Replace Parade

Quinte Exhibition directors this year are going to dispense with the customary parade as the fair kickoff and instead have asked permission to use a mobile public address unit to help advertise the four-day event.

The request for permission to use the mobile speaker was before council at its Monday meeting.

The request of the fair board to use the mobile speaker did not say so but council was told the unit to be used was being provided by a beer company.

And Alderman Joe Cox was led to know if the unit would be advertising beer as well as the exhibition.

"If so, I will oppose the application," he said.

But other council members suggested the fair board would not take the risk of offending potential fairgoers. Rather, it was stated, the purpose was to advertise the exhibition.

Exhibition dates this year are August 8-9-10-11 and the fair board request is for use of the mobile speaker on all from August 6 to August 11.

SPIEL Provides Answers On Rights of Workers

PICTON — The team from S.P.I.E.L. (Students' Program Providing Information on Employment Rights to the Labor Force) arrived in Picton Monday, setting up its mobile unit at the Armory Mall.

Team members Bill Guthrie, Ebbi Peter and Keith Kinash all of Queen's University, and Dyan Leishman, a graduate of St. Lawrence College, answered numerous questions from passers-by.

Miss Price observed many of the queries concerned topics such as student minimum wage, vacation and overtime pay and equal pay for equal work.

The aim of SPIEL is to provide Ontario citizens with an opportunity to communicate with the Ministry of Labor and its various branches. Members of the SPIEL teams are paid through a grant from the Youth Secretariat and are part of its 1973 summer employment program.

On Saturday, July 21, the group will be in Trenton in front of the town's Chamber of Commerce offices.

SPIEL provides information on employment rights, including basic minimum wages; hours of work, collecting unpaid wages due, ensuring advance notice for dismissal and lay-off and maternity leave. It is also concerned with industrial relations and industrial and construction standards and safety.

A and P Workers May Strike

Belleville's two A and P food stores may be headed for a strike action.

The Canadian Food and Allied Workers' Union represents 5,0000 A and P food store employees, including over 100 workers in two Belleville stores. It expected to announce today a strike date following a final series of strike votes held across Ontario, according to a union spokesman.

C. E. Spry, supervisor for the two Belleville A and P stores said today: "We are presently in negotiation. But beyond that I have nothing else to report at this time. It is too early to say anything."

Belleville joins stores in Hamilton, London, Thunder Bay and Sudbury that voted for the action last night. Derrick Morrissey, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Retail Council of the CFAW said last night that the results of strike votes in many major cities have been very satisfactory."

Strike action at A and P could involve about 5,000 grocery workers, butchers, everybody in the store except the manager and assistant and manager . . . even the part-time employees," said Mr. Morrissey.

Negotiations between the union and A and P food stores broke off at the end of June after 12 separate meetings with labor department negotiators failed to settle things, said Mr. Morrissey.

"On the 27th (July) we'll be in a legal strike position . . . but we expect to be called back to negotiations . . . next week. It's strictly up to the department (of Labor). It's their ball game."

Mr. Morrissey described the main issue in the dispute as "parity in benefits with what was achieved in the industry . . . at places like Steinberg's, Dominion, and Loblaws" but he couldn't elaborate until final results of the strike vote were available.

In December of last year, employees in 11 stores operated by Loblaw Groceterias Co. Ltd. ratified a contract providing for wage increases ranging from $21.50 to $40 a week over 18 months and a pension plan with back service credited to the employees.

The Loblaw contract also provided for a dental care plan, improved vacations and an increase of 46% cents an hour over the contract terms for part-time employees.

Mortgages Tighter

Mortgage funds in the Quinte area are currently in shorter supply than in January.

The situation is reflected in an increase of 1/2 per cent in mortgage interest rates, reports A. E. LePage Limited, in the mid-July survey of the local mortgage market.

Funds for speculative building by builders are also "almost non-existent," with most loans restricted to present clients at interest rates of 2¼ per cent.

NHA and conventional loans for purchase of single-family new — or relatively new — homes are quoted as 9% per cent.

Mortgages for purchase of commercial and industrial property are limited with the interest rate averaging 10 per cent.

Trial Set For Aug. 13

The trial of Richard Blake Boomhower, charged with attempted murder of two Belleville policemen, begins Aug. 13 in Hastings county courthouse.

Mr. Justice E. L. Haines of the Ontario Supreme Court will preside over a 12-member jury.

Boomhower, 17, of 287 Cannifton Rd., has been in custody since April 29 when six shots were fired at Constables Gerry Bull and Jack O'Donnell when they went to investigate reports of an axe-wielding youth.

On June 16, Provincial Judge J. L. Clendenning committed Boomhower for trial at the conclusion of a preliminary hearing.

Date Changed

The King's College Cambridge Choir will perform in St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, Saturday, September 1 at 8 p.m., not on Sept. 2, as previously reported.

Cards A Step Off the Pace

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Red Schoendienst wasn't panicking a couple of months ago when his St. Louis Cardinals headed into the National League East Division basement right at the start of the season. And he's not panicking now, with the Cards just a step away from the penthouse.

"I'm not getting excited about it, not losing any sleep," Schoendienst said after St. Louis reeled off its fifth straight victory Tuesday night, 3-1, over San Francisco Giants, to trim the Chicago Cubs lead to a half game.

In the rest of the National League, Montreal Expos handled Houston Astros 7-2, San Diego Padres bumped Chicago Cubs 1-0, New York Mets edged Atlanta Braves 8-7, Los Angeles Dodgers beat Pittsburgh Pirates 8-4 and Philadelphia Reds 3-1.

"I couldn't believe we'd ever be half a game out . . . but its still just a day-to-day situation," Schoendienst said.

Rich Folkers, with a six-hitter, hurled his first complete game in the majors and Luis Melendez and Ron Fairly delivered inning, first by beating out an infield single, then by scoring all the way from first on Bernie Carbo's single.

Montreal, trailing 2-1 in the seventh inning, scored five runs. Ron Fairly tied the score with a single. Then he put the Expos on top with a two-run single off Don Wilson, then Bob Stinson and Pepe Frias completed the rally with run-scoring hits.

"He threw me a fastball and I was expecting it," Day said. "With a 0 count I figured he'd give me his best pitch. I'm a fastball hitter and he was going to have to get me out on his best pitch."

Steve Arlin, San Diego's pitching dentist, twirled a five-hitter and scored the game's only run in outdueling Chicago's Milt Pappas. Arlin walked to open the fifth inning, Johnny Grubb also walked. Dave Roberts singled to load the bases and Nate Colbert hit a sacrifice fly.

Arlin has had 26 major League victories and 11 of them have been shutouts, "but this is the only time I've ever scored the run in a 1-0 game."

Ralph Garr, Marty Perez and Hank Aaron slugged home runs and, with just three outs to go, the Braves led New York 7-1. Then Rusty Staub and John Milner hit two-run homers. 7-1 in Beauchamp bit a run-scoring single. Willie Mays singled in two runs and the Mets were on top.

Andy Messersmith handcuffed the Pirates until the ninth inning when they chased him with three runs on four hits. Messersmith, was backed by an 11-hit attack and Willie Crawford's three runs batted in.

Cesar Geronimo broke an 3-3 deadlock in the seventh with a fourth-inning homer for Cincinnati. But the Phillies broke a 15-inning scoreless slump in the sixth on successive doubles by Greg Luzinski and Del Unser and Larry Bowa's RBI grounder to turn back Cincinnati.

GROTE HURTS HAND

ATLANTA (AP) — Catcher Jerry Grote has a fracture of the fifth finger on his right hand and will be available for emergency service only, New York Mets said Tuesday. The injury occurred when a foul tip from the bat of Cincinnati's Pete Rose glanced off Grote's hand in Sunday's game against the Reds in Cincinnati.

Otis Powers Royals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A couple of days ago, Amos Otis thought he had discovered the reason for his new-found home run stroke. Now he's not so sure.

After homering in Kansas City's 10-2 rout of Detroit Tigers Monday night, Otis pointed to slugger John Mayberry, the Royals' clean-up hitter and the major league leader in runs batted in, as the key to his own success.

"I'm batting in front of Mayberry, so I get some good pitches to hit," explained Otis, a starting outfielder on the American League's All-Star team, after Monday's game.

Now he has to revise that notion.

With Mayberry out of the starting lineup Tuesday night, Otis hit two home runs, powering the Royals to a 4-3 victory over the Tigers.

Elsewhere, Chicago White Sox swept a day-night doubleheader from Boston Red Sox 8-4 and 5-0, New York Yankees took a twi-night doubleheader from Minnesota Twins 4-3 in 12 innings and 4-1, Milwaukee Brewers topped Texas Rangers 6-3, California Angels beat Cleveland Indians 3-1 and Oakland A's defeated Baltimore Orioles 3-1.

The Royals are back in Detroit tonight with Baltimore at Oakland, Cleveland at California, Milwaukee at Texas, Minnesota at New York and Chicago at Boston.

When Mayberry was pulled from the Kansas City lineup, Kurt Bevacqua was moved up to the clean-up spot.

Bevacqua came through with a pair of singles and a double. Otis came through, too, although the Tigers' Mickey Lolich did try to pitch around him.

Al Fitzmorris, just up from Omaha of the American Association, pitched the first six innings for Kansas City to get the victory. Doug Bird came on in the sixth of the seventh and finished up to notch his sixth save of the season.

Wilbur Wood and Stan Bahnsen, who have combined for 30 of Chicago's 45 victories this season, added one apiece in the day-night doubleheader against Boston.

Wood raised his record to 16-12 in Chicago's 8-4 triumph in the day game. Ed Herrmann hit a three-run homer and drove in five runs.

Bahnsen, 12-9, scattered four singles in winning the night game 5-0.

The Yanks' ace relief pitcher, Sparky Lyle, picked up a victory and a save in the double be-der against Minnesota.

The Yanks won the opener 4-3 on a sacrifice fly by reserve outfielder Jerry Moses in the 12th inning. Bobby Murcer's single and a balk by Minnesota's Ed Bane produced two runs for the Yankees in the sixth inning of the second game.

Tim Johnson's two - run single capped a five-run eighth inning rally that carried the Brewers to a 6-3 victory over the Rangers.

Clyde Wright pitched no-hit ball for six innings, then held on for a five-hitter as California beat Cleveland 3-1.

Frank Robinson and Mike Epstein had consecutive homers for the Angels in the fourth inning. It was the 557th homer of Robinson's career, moving him past Mickey Mantle into fifth place on the all-time list—behind Babe Ruth, Hank Aaron, Willie Mays and Harmon Killebrew.

Vida Blue fired a four-hitter as Oakland beat Baltimore 3-1.

PITCHER SOLD

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals have sold right-hander Don Durham to Texas Rangers for the $20,000 waiver price and purchased southpaw Jim Kremmel from the Texas baseball club, the team announced.

Protest Is Lodged

Rollins Over Devolin 3-1

By AL TEEWORTH

Rollins Construction has regained sole ownership of first place in the Commercial Softball League once again . . . at least temporarily. The Construction team defeated Devolin Motors 3-1 in the first game of the Tuesday double header but the final outcome of the game is still in doubt, pending the result of a protest lodged by Devolin coach Phil Lott.

The controversial play came on a ball hit by pinch-hitter Ron Maracle in the bottom of the seventh inning. The ball was hit to deep centre field and appeared to hit the tip of Rollins' outfielder Glenn Carleton's glove. The ball then bounced over the fence on the first hop.

The protest was lodged on ground rules. Base umpire Jerry Murphy ruled the hit a ground rule double. Devolin's felt it should have gone as a home run.

Devolin's protest will be dealt with at a meeting this night and it is expected a decision on the matter will be announced Thursday morning.

In the second game of the twin bill, Auger's Men's Wear took over third position from idle Howard and Robert Printing with a 3-0 win over last place Bauldon Supplies.

Rollins jumped on Devolin pitcher Don Holoway in the first inning to count two runs. A fielder's choice to Glen Carleton and a walk to Paul Goodfellow led to a triple by Wayne McTaggart to drive in two runs.

Devolin answered with their only run of the game in the bottom of the inning as Rick Rosebush led off with a double to right. Mike Cook sacrificed the runner to third and Gary Goyer cashed the run with a fly ball to deep left field.

The only other run of the game came in the top of the second after Ralph Bollinhower tripled. Winning pitcher Ken DeMille drove Boomhower in with an infield grounder on which the ball was played to the plate too late to get the runner.

Rollins third baseman Wayne McTaggart pulled off one of the finer defensive plays of the season in the bottom of the fourth inning. With Mike Cook at third base and Gary Goyer at second, Eric Maher hit a liner down the third base side. A base hit could have tied the score. McTaggart had different ideas. He snagged the ball and quickly applied the tag to Cook who was off and running toward the plate.

McTaggart had a base hit to add to his triple for the winners. Carl Boomhower and Ralph Plaue each had a single to round out the Rollins hitting output.

Gary Goyer was the only Devolin batter to touch DeMille for more than one hit. He had two singles to his credit.

DeMille went the route for the winners, striking out three and walking one. Don Holoway went the distance in defeat. The Motormen pitcher fanned four and did not walk a batter.

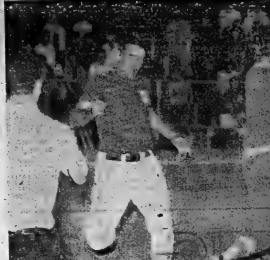
The second game belonged to Auger's pitcher George Ferguson. The big righthander pitched a two-hitter over Bardon to record the 3-0 win. As well as striking out a dozen batters, Ferguson aided his own cause with a base hit. He walked only one man and faced just 24 batters during the seven inning game.



Auger's scored single runs in the first, fifth and sixth innings to sail away the club's ninth win of the season.

Al Ferguson had a triple and double to lead the winners, Joe Theriault had a double and a single, Dave Henry tripled and Steve Barker had a single to complete the Trenton hit production.

Ted Wallwork and Jamie Hunter were the only Bardon batters to get to Ferguson. They each collected a single.

Losing pitcher Hunter gave up seven hits while striking out five and walking none.

Out at First

Jack Jury of Auger's Men's Wear was out 3b first on this play during last night's Commercial Softball League action. The throw arrived at time to Bardon Supplies' first baseman Gary Johnston. Jury did make one count in his next trip to the plate, driving in defeated BARDON 3-0.

Clutch Win

The Canniton Garage tadpoles had some anxious moments in Tuesday night's first game of the Thurlow Boys Tadpole Softball League two game total on playoffs, but they pulled through in the clutch.

The Garage scored four times in the seventh inning and then stopped a rally to edge Pitsgibbon Construction 15-14. Canniton will take their one run lead into the second and final game of the playoff series tonight at Harmony Public School at 6.30 p.m.

Jeff Robson punched a home run and single for the winners who were outhit 15-11 by Pitsgibbon. Sean Kelly added three singles and two singles went to Randy Hill and Donald Wellman.

Sean and Darryn Kelly split the winners' mound duties. Darryn fanned four and Sean three.

Martin Denyes had a homer and single and David Hard two doubles and a single for the Constructionmen. Denyes and Randy Heggie shared the losers' pitching chores.

Edwards and Stickle Big Men for Intell

The CN was dishing out their same old medicine, Tom St. Jules got a taste of his own medicine and The Intell received tow shots in the arm in Tuesday night's Industrial Softball League action.

The Trainmen rolled to their 17th win of the season hammering the Post Office 13-2, the Quinte Mad Leaders handed Tom St. Jules and Brooke Bond a 4-0 shutout and The Intell made it six wins in their last seven games by tripping AOCO 5-2.

Two home runs in the fifth inning propelled the Intell to their win and to within three points of AOCO who hold down the fourth and final playoff spot in the east.

Fred Stickle supplied the winning run for the Printers, pulling a home run to deep right field in the bottom of the fifth. Randy Berry's double and a centre-field home run by Ron Culloden gave The Intell the 5-2 win and sent AOCO hurler Wally Hull from the mound.

AOCO had taken a 2-0 lead after two with a single to Doug McKay a fielder's choice and an error. John Edwards tripled for The Intell in the third and scored on a sacrifice and then Edwards tied the game, by driving in Maurice Switzer in the fourth.

Edwards went the distance in the mound win for The Intell firing a five-hitter and striking out six. Wally Hull, Sid Grigg, Ron McCoy, Mc-Kay and Dennis Maher had singles off Edwards.

Stickle added a single to his game winning homer, while Edwards had his triple and single, Maurice Switzer a double and Randy Berry a double and single for the winners off Wally Hull and Ron McCoy who shared the AOCO mound duties.

The Leaders broke a tie for second place in the east with Brooke Bond with their 4-0 shutout.

Mark Sheridan buried a two-hitter and whiffed 13 batters in stopping the Bond. He also added three hits to his own cause to go along with two safeties from Bob Stroh and Fred Smith.

St. Jules, who had put together a string of seven straight shutouts earlier in the year, received a taste of his own medicine on the Bond mound.

St. Jules allowed eight hits and struck out nine. Larry Bithan and Bob Pazos were the only hitters in his support.

The Post Office had a 1-1 tie with the Trainmen after the first inning last night but it was as close as they got as the CN pulled out an eight point lead atop the eastern division standings.

Brian Plumbe hurled the win giving up six hits and striking out three. MR Bell and Mike Fahey each had three hits for the winners while Brian Plumbe and Barry Tamlin added a pair of hits each.

George Johnson started for the Posties before giving way to Ken Williams in the third. Gord St. Louis took over in the sixth to finish the game. The trio allowed 15 hits.

Ski Den Wins

Lino Ossanna's two goals were all Leslie Ski Den needed to shade Doug Jones Flyers 2-1 in the preview division of the Belleville Minor Soccer Association Tuesday.

Steve Pearce was the Flyers' marksman.

SAP REQUIRED

It takes from 30 to 40 gallons of sap to make one gallon of maple syrup.

"This next pitch may be a strike, but I'll bet that head smack back of first base gains inches on it"

Massie Leads Team to Win

Chris Brown and Ed Huffman pitched Foshore Chaceforjory to a 15 - 7 win over Jerry's Morotcycle in Thurlow Minor Baseball Tyke action Tuesday.

The winners Scott Massie hammered a pair of home runs and a triple while Brown and Lane Vance each collected three bas ehits as well.

Jerry's pitching was handled by Mike Emerson and Steven Wellman. The losers got a homer by Wellman and a triple from Billy May.

Time Runs Out On Bob Blaind-Red Barn

Belleville Broadloom kept dealing the killing blow in Tuesday night's Belleville and District Ladies Softball contest but Bob Blaind - Red Barn wouldn't play dead until the final inning.

Building up T-0, 13-7 and 14-10 leads the Broadloom couldn't hang on to them and watched the opposition rally to tie the score each time. Bob Blaind - Red Barn ran out of innings however when they fell behind after the Broadloom tallied in the bottom of the seventh to finally take a 15-14 victory.

The Broadloom went to the fences to record the win with Chris Smith, Leah Van Rompay and Mary-Anne Sills connecting for four-baggers. Sills went the distance for the win allowing 22 hits and striking out nine.

Judy Scanlan had a perfect night at the plate stroking five singles for the losers. Margie Scanlan and Rita Nobes each had a triple and two singles.

Lis Reid took the loss allowing 25 hits.

Kalmbach 'Demeaned' By President's Aides

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee, after hearing lawyer Herbert Kalmbach complain of being "demeaned" and "kicked in the stomach" by former presidential aides, was set today for a return session by a one-time White House secret agent.

The committee scheduled further testimony from Anthony Ulasewicz, who last year transmitted secret cash payments totalling $250,000 from Kalmbach to Watergate figures.

It was a second appearance for Ulasewicz. He testified in May that he helped transmit offers of executive clemency from then White House counsel John Dean to one of the Watergate defendants, James McCord.

Ulasewicz worked as a private investigator for White House adviser John Ehrlichman, trying to dig up embarrassing information about President Nixon's political enemies. He was paid through a trust fund run by Kalmbach, once President Nixon's personal lawyer.

Kalmbach wound up two days of testimony Tuesday still saying that he raised the $250,000 for Watergate defendants, thinking it was a humanitarian gesture to help pay legal fees and family support.

Also Tuesday President Nixon intervened with a personal letter to bar testimony to the committee by Secret Service agents.

Rather than fight Nixon's use of executive privilege, the committee sent a letter to Nixon asking him to turn over voluntarily recordings of presidential conversations that are in Secret Service custody.

The committee seeks the tape-recordings to find out exactly what was said in the series of conversations between Dean and Nixon. Dean says the president participated in the cover-up.

The White House indicated Tuesday that it will resist efforts to get the tapes. Presidential press secretary Ronald Ziegler said they are considered as presidential papers of the kind Nixon is refusing to give the committee.

Meanwhile, Vice-President Spiro Agnew said the taping of presidential conversations at the White house was not necessarily a violation of anyone's privacy because the tapes have not been transcribed.

And, Agnew told reporters at Bethesda Naval Medical Centre, "I have no resentment of the fact that I was being taped." Nixon, still recovering from viral pneumonia, met for 30 minutes with Agnew.

In questioning Kalmbach, some senators were openly skeptical.

"Your sole job was only that of a messenger?" asked Senator Daniel Inouye (Dem. Hawaii).

"Yes sir, that's what it amounted to," Kalmbach said.

"Don't you feel it was rather demeaning . . . to be used as a messenger by people like Dean and Haldeman and Ehrlichman?"

"Yes sir."

H. R. Haldeman and Ehrlichman are former top White House aides.

Kalmbach said he feels "used" now that Dean has testified that the real purpose of the money was to buy silence from the Watergate defendants.

"Used by whom?" asked Senator Lowell Weicker (Rep. Conn.).

"Used by people who knew the true purpose of this assignment without my knowledge," Kalmbach said.

That means Dean and maybe Ehrlichmon, Haldeman and former attorney general John Mitchell as well, Kambach said.

Kalmbach also said he feels "kicked in the stomach" by Ehrlichman who tape-recorded a telephone conversation between the two of them last April 19 without telling Kalmbach.

Some Loyal

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Some Afghan forces are believed to have remained loyal to the old regime during the political coup that overthrew the monarchy Tuesday, diplomatic sources said today.

The sources, quoting messages received from Kabul, said the 444 Special Forces Regiment remained loyal to Prince Abdul Wali, son-in-law of the deposed king, 59-year-old Mohammed Zahir Shah.

The sources said Prince Abdul Wali was thought to have been wounded in the coup and might even be dead.

Cuts Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate approved corporate income tax reductions Tuesday, clearing the way for royal assent, possibly late this week.

PC Fails to Limit Wiretaps

OTTAWA (CP) — An attempt by Conservative MP Ron Atkey (Toronto St. Paul'a) to limit the range of crimes that would be open to police wiretaps failed Tuesday when the Commons justice committee voted against his amendments 8 to 7.

The deciding vote was cast by Chairman Jim Jerome (L—Sudbury) who sided with the seven other Liberals.

As outlined by Mr. Atkey, the amendment would have changed the proposed legislation that gives police permission to use bugging devices where any federal statute is being violated or where there is suspicion of a violation.

Mr. Atkey wanted the proposed bill amended so that wiretaps would be permitted in cases involving treason, sedition, sabotage, use of explosives, air piracy, bribery, intimidation of MPs, extortion, fraud, perjury, murder, kidnaping, robbery, breaking and entering, arson and attempts at any of these crimes or being an accessory or conspirator to commit any of them.

He said the government's bill "paints too broadly." It would enable police to go on "fishing" expeditions in the hope of catching someone.

Justice Minister Otto Lang, arguing against the amendment before the vote, said the main reason the government took the more sweeping approach was that a lot of minor crimes turn out to be serious "when put together in an organized fashion."

Mr. Lang also said the government did not "want to get to the point where police couldn't start an investigation until they have proof beyond a reasonable doubt."

It may be that we're taking the easy way out but I think it's the workable way."

Senior Openers October 5

TORONTO (CP) — Owen Sound Downtowners will have to decide by July 25 if they'll play in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series this year, the league says.

If the club does not make its decision by then, it will have to take a one year leave of absence, a meeting decided Monday.

The league opens its season Friday, Oct. 5, with Allan Cup champions Orillia Terriers at Barrie Flyers, Bra tford at Belleville and Welland, a new entry, at home to Galt.

In other business, the league decided that subsequent to last month's ruling that each team may carry a maximum of 12 players 24 years of age or older, the limit must be reached by Oct. 31. They will be allowed 14 until that time.

Vance Millar, formerly of Galt Hornets, has been named player-coach at Welland, the meeting was told.

Cowboys Are Not Happy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One thing Dallas Cowboys are not at this stage of their preseason is one happy family.

Centre Dave Manders became the latest person to stray out of the Cowboy family circle Tuesday after contract negotiations with club general manager Tex Schramm fell through.

Manders had been one of three players absent from the Cowboy football training camp. Quarterback Craig Morton and defensive tackle Bob Lilly were also missing and subject to fines.

According to his wife, Ann, Lilly plans a news conference today to discuss his future with the Cowboys. He earlier flew back to Dallas from the National Football League club's camp after dispelling not to report until Cowboy management "gets things straightened out."

Lilly's wife quoted her husband as saying the Cowboy camp was "in a confused shambles, morale was low and he was returning home until training camp conditions improved."

Dallas has been contacted by several clubs, including Green Bay Packers about Morton, who wants his contract renegotiated and who left camp Monday.

Defensive tackle Jethro Pugh and cornerback Charlie Waters remained the only unsigned members of the team.

"Most of the guys are unhappy when they find out what others around the league are making. Most feel used . . . taken advantage of," Pugh said. "They feel like management's dragging its feet on contract negotiations.

While the players were unhappy in the Dallas camp, Washington Redskin coach George Allen wasn't exactly ecstatic about the absence of Larry Brown, his star running back, from the training camp.

Allen, who said he did not appreciate anyone not beginning preparation for the 1973 season, said Brown would be fined $300 a day for every day he missies practice.

Brown's lawyer has issued a statement that Brown had some "important personal matters" and would join the team shortly.

Defending NFL champions Miami Dolphins announced the signing of wide receiver Roy Selmes, acquired during the off-season from Dallas.

Houston Oilers held their first complete workout, but coach Bill Peterson noted that four players—flanker Ed Hill Slinic, wide receiver Billy Parks, and defensive tackle Ed LobJamer—had not reported and there was a good possibility they were retiring.

Stamps Expect Liske Back

CALGARY (CP) — Peter Liske, who left Calgary Stampders for Denver Broncos of the National Football League after Calgary's 1968 Grey Cup loss to Ottawa Rough Riders, will return to the Stamps for the 1973 Canadian Football League season, it was announced Tuesday.

Rogers Lebew, general manager of the Western Football Conference club, told a news conference that Liske, 31, is expected to sign with the Stamps Thursday after the team returns from tonight's exhibition game against Edmdeoton Eskimos.

Liske, named the CFL's outstanding player in 1967, played with the Broncos for two years and was then traded to Philadelphia Eagles. He was cut by the Eagles last week.

1-0 Win for Oshawa

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Roy Graham's bases-loaded single in the 10th inning Tuesday drove in the only run as Oshawa edged St. Catharines 1-0 to move into a virtual tie with Toronto in the Ontario Fastball League's west division.

In other games, Burlington blanked London 2-0, Niagara Falls whipped Kitchener 4-0 and Welland edged Woodstock 4-3.

Toronto holds a margin of only 14 percentage points with a 13-7 won-lost record while Oshawa has a 14-8 count.

Paul Wannamaker picked up the win, pitching only one inning and striking out three batters. Barry Timbers went 10 innings and showed third strikes to 11. They allowed on'y four hits.

Women Challenged By Snead, Demaret

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Sam Snead, whose swing seems to get sweeter with age, has issued a challenge to the women's pro golf tour.

"Jimmy Demaret and I will take on any two golfers from the women's tour in a winner-take-all match," the 61-year-old tour veterans said Tuesday. "They can pick any two gals they want.

"We'd play them even, with no handicap stroke. What the heck, Demaret is 61.

"Bobby Riggs has kicked up all that fuss playing women in tennis. Why not have the same thing in golf?"

Snead doesn't expect any women to jump at the challenge, though.

"They wouldn't take the chance of getting beat by a couple of old men."

Israel Has Edge In Total Medals

TEL AVIV (AP) — Under a protective net of security, the ninth Maccabiah Games drew to an exciting close Tuesday as Israel outpaced a tough United States basketball team to win the final gold medal of the eight-day competition.

The United States finished with 76 gold medals—16 of them in swimming events—to Israel's 60. But the Israelis edged the Americans in total medallions, 163 to 162.

The Israeli basketball victory 86-80, was the second time Israel took the top honors away from the traditionally strong U.S. team. The only other country to win the basketball gold medal was Egypt, in 1936.

No Arab country has been represented in the all - Jewish games since the third Maccabiah in 1950, two years after the first Arab-Israeli war.

"It was a case of experience winning over youth," said Israeli coach Louis Gosic. The Israels were playing their national team.

Throughout the Games, security was heaviest in Maccabiah history. Border guards armed with sub-machine-guns kept fixed eyes on the crowds at all events.

Canadians took three wrestling medals the final day—a silver and two bronze—and finished the Games with 29 medals—10 silver and 10 bronze. A silver and bronze medal were shared with Israeli Athletes.

Len Gang took the second-place silver in the 185-pound freestyle events. The bronze medals went to Howard Stupp (125 pounds) and Bruce Girvin (150 pounds), both in freestyle wrestling.

This year's Games were dedicated to the memory of 11 Israeli sportsmen killed by Arab guerrillas at the Munich Olympics last September. One silver medal winner in fencing, Marion Dringer of Holland, gave her award to Mrs. Ilodre Spitzer whose Dutch-born husband, a fencing coach, was killed at Munich.

The Americans splashed to a good start as their swimming team dominated the competition, failing to overpower only a Swedish brother and sister who walked away with 13 medals between them. The 19-year-old Zarnowiecki twins, Anita and Berndt, were the star attractions of the Games.

American men also earned a good share of the athleuc awards but Israeli women ran over all opposition in track and field avents.

Sweden ended the competition third highest in gold medals with 11 followed by South Africa, which took all the top awards in tennis and won 10 golds over-all.

In all, 1,750 athletes, coaches and trainers from 27 countries participated in the Maccabian which comes to an official close Thursday. It was the largest and fastest Maccabiah in the Games' 41-year history.

The participants travel to Jerusalem today for sightseeing and a meeting with Mayor Teddy Kollek. 4

Conflict of Interest Guidelines Produced

OTTAWA (CP) — The government tabled a working paper in the Commons Tuesday that may brighten the sometimes-tarnished public image of senators and members of Parliament.

The 70-page document includes recommendations to eliminate potential conflict-of-interest situations and reduce the suspicion that sometimes surrounds those who handle tax money.

Government House Leader Allan MacEachen, who tabled the document, said it does not reflect on the moral standards of MPs and senators.

He said the paper will serve as the basis for debate and a bill will probably be introduced during the next session of Parliament.

The paper would prohibit MPs or senators from playing any role in the management or direction of a company that does more than $1,000 business with the government annually.

It would also force them to disclose all corporate activities in which they serve as officers, directors or managers of a company, even if no government business is involved.

Where they have no part in management, MPs and senators would be limited to owning five per cent of the total shares in any company benefiting from government contracts.

This would apply only when company shares are traded publicly. No shares could be held in a privately-owned company that does government business.

The paper would prohibit MPs and senators from acting as paid representatives or lobbyists for outsiders who deal with the government, and stop them from holding any other federal or provincial office, even without pay.

Fines of up to $10,000 are recommended for any conviction involving a prohibited contract, outside jobs or failure to make specified corporate disclosures.

An MP, if convicted, would be forced to divest himself of any conflict-of-interest connections within 30 days. He would be automatically thrown out of office if he failed to do so.

For senators, who are appointed rather than elected, the penalty would be limited to fines—$10,000 for each day the violation continued beyond 30 days.

With some qualification, spokesmen for all three opposition parties welcomed the recommendations as long overdue.

One unanswered question was how much distance an MP or senator would have to put between himself and prohibited holdings. Could he merely transfer restricted shares to his wife and meet requirements?

The paper contains a draft copy of a so-called Independence of Parliament Act which, along with the paper itself, will be studied by a Commons committee before any legislative action is taken.

Little change is proposed in the list of criminal offences that force a member to resign from office. Some offences now covered by the Criminal Code would be shifted to the new act. Others would be covered under House rules.

An exception would be offering or accepting a bribe, which would remain in the Criminal Code. But there would be no change in the general rule that forces an MP or senator to resign if convicted of any indictable offence carrying a penalty of five years imprisonment or more.

MIRACLE FOOD MART... DISCOUNT PRICES WORTH GOING OUT OF YOUR WAY FOR

MEMO. FROM HELEN GAGEN

Consumer Advisor for Miracle Food Mart 75 Rexdale Blvd. Rexdale Ont.

SHOP FASTER, SHOP EASIER

More than ever these precious summer days, you'll want to shop quickly, check out quickly, and be back in the outdoors as fast as it's humanly possible.

Miracle Food Mart works constantly and consistently to find ways to make shopping and checking out more efficient for customers. You can help to cut down time in the store if you take care to observe some of the principles of speedy shopping.

First, never go to the store without a shopping list, organized under the headings of meat, fish and poultry; fruits and vegetables; dairy; frozen foods; general groceries and non-food items.

Arrange purchases in your basket so that products that should be packed together can be placed, price side up, in a handy group at the checkout desk.

Finally — please have your money ready, especially in the evenings. If even one customer takes time in locating his money, this automatically slows the whole operation, with the result that more time must be spent by other customers in having their purchases checked out.

A few moments of thought on the part of each customer can mean a real saving of time for all concerned.
